This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Sec. 4393. Murder, first and second degree, defined.—Murder by poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, or by any wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or in the commission of, or attempt to commit arson, rape, robbery, or burglary, is murder of the first degree. All other murder is murder of the second degree. (Code 1887, § 3662.)

Definition.—For definition of murder, see McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 604, 46 Am. Dec. 196; Robertson's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 851, 20 S. E. 362; Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 374, 52 Am. Rep. 634.

"Wilful, deliberate, premediated killing."—A man must be taken to intend that which he does or which is the immediate or necessary consequence of his act. Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 594; Murphy's Case, 23 Grat. 972; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 287.

Before the jury can find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, proof, direct or inferential, must be adduced that the death of the deceased was the ultimate result which the concurring will, deliberation, and premeditation of the prisoner sought. Jones' Case, 1 Leigh, 611; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 286.

How long the design must have existed.—The premeditated design to kill need not have existed for any length of time; but if the design at the time of the killing was then formed, and the killing was done without provocation then or recently received, it is murder in the first degree. Whiteford's Case, 6 Rand. 721, 18 Am. Dec. 771; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh, 598; Howell's Case, 26 Grat. 995; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 872; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 914, 920; Wright's Case, 33 Grat. 880; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 281, 284; King's Case, and note, 2 Va. Cas. 84; Brown's Case, 90 Va. 671, 19 S. E. 447.

Design as to one—Killing another.—When the original intent is murderous, the crime, on legal principles, is the same, whoever happens to be killed. Note to King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 87; note 10 Va. L. Reg. 622.

Possession of deadly weapon—Presumption of design.—A mortal wound given with a deadly weapon in the previous possession of the slayer, without any or upon very slight provocation, is prima facie wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, and throws upon the accused the necessity of proving extenuating circumstances. Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 594, 606; Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717; Howell's Case, 26 Grat. 995; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 914; Lewis' Case, 78 Va. 732; Brown's Case, 90 Va. 672, 19 S. E. 447; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339; Horton's Case, 99 Va. 848, 38 S. E. 184; Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 296; Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 378, 52 Am. Rep. 634; Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 41 S. E. 951.

When design or intention presumed.—In the enumerated cases, "poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving," and also in cases of murder "in the commission of or attempt to commit arson, rape, robbery, or burglary," there is no necessity of proof to establish that the homicide was intended. Jones' Case, 1 Leigh, 598, 612; Howell's Case, 26 Grat. 997.

The killing of a slave by his master and owner by willful and excessive whipping was murder in the first degree, though it may not have been the purpose and intention of the master and owner to kill the slave. Souther's Case, 7 Grat. 673.

Malice.—Express malice is a question of fact; implied malice, a question of law. Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 377, 52 Am. Rep. 634.

Self-control determines malice, and as long as self-control exists the crime is murder in the first or second degree, to be determined by other facts than the varying degrees of provocation. Reed's Case, 98 Va. 818, 827, 36 S. E. 399. See, also, for loss of self-control, Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860; Poindexter's Case, 33 Grat. 766; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 281; Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 292, 297.

Burden of proof—Malice is presumed from the fact of killing, unaccompanied with circumstances of extenuation, and the burden of disproving malice is thrown upon the accused. Lewis' Case, 78 Va. 733; Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 599; Willis' Case, 32 Grat. 932; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 914; Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 374, 52 Am. Rep. 634; Murphy's Case, 23 Grat. 960; Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 284; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895.

Where corpus delicti has been proven, it is competent to show relations of accused and deceased in order to prove intent. O'Boyle's Case, 100 Va. 785, 40 S. E. 121.

Capacity to commit murder — Insanity — Presumption — Burden of Proof.—Every man is presumed to be sane till the contrary is proved. The burden of proving insanity is on the prisoner (or in civil cases the party alleging it); and where the prisoner relies on this defence it is not sufficient for him to raise a rational doubt on the mind of the jury as to whether he was responsible or not, but the burden is on him to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that he was not responsible. Longley's Case, 99 Va. 808, 37 S. E. 339; Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860; Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat. 817, 36 Am. Rep. 795; Dejarnette's Case, 75 Va. 871; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895.

But in every case, although the accused may be laboring under partial insanity, if he still understands the nature and character of his act and the consequences, and has a knowledge that it is wrong, and a mental power sufficient to apply that knowledge to his own case, and to know that if he does the act he will do wrong and receive punishment, and possesses withal a will sufficient to restrain the impulse that may arise from a diseased mind, such partial insanity is not sufficient to exempt him from responsibility to the law for his crimes. Dejarnette's Case, 75 Va. 867.

Permanent insanity from drink excuses crime.—Permanent insanity from excessive drinking excuses an act which would be otherwise criminal, just as insanity produced in any other way, but anything short of permanent insanity from drink is no excuse, even though it amount to temporary insanity. Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860. But temporary insanity from drink may lessen the degree of murder from first to second degree, since it cannot be premeditated. Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895. See note on Insanity, Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 878, Va. Rep. Anno.

Drunkenness no excuse, but may reduce degree of crime.—Drunkenness is no excuse for crime, although such drunkenness may be the result of long-continued and habitual drinking, without any purpose to commit crime, and may have produced temporary insanity, during the existence of which the criminal act is committed. Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 872; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 490, 31 S. E. 895; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339.

Voluntary immediate drunkenness is not admissible to disprove malice or to reduce the offence to manslaughter. But where, by reason of it, there is wanting that deliberation and premeditation which are necessary to elevate the offence to murder in the first degree, it is properly ranked as murder in the second degree. Willis' Case, 32 Grat. 929, 936; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598; Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860.

Burden of proof to reduce crime.—The onus rests on the accused to prove, if he relies on intoxication as a defence, that when he committed the offence his condition from intoxication was such as to render him incapable of doing a "wilful, deliberate, and premeditated" act; and so of insanity. Both must be proved as independent facts. Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 284; Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat. 817, 36 Am. Rep. 795; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 808, 37 S. E. 339.

As to murder by one lacking in mental capacity, see Taylor's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 817, 19 S. E. 739.

Presumption.—As to presumption of innocence, see Taylor's Case, 88 Va. 20, 13 S. E. 298; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 808, 37 S. E. 339; O'Boyle's Case, 100 Va. 785, 40 S. E. 121.

Presumptions as to degree—Onus probandi.—Every homicide is prima facie murder in the second degree, and in order to raise the offence to murder in the first degree the Commonwealth must assume the burden of proving the elements of that crime. On the other hand, in order to reduce the offence from murder in the second degree to manslaughter the burden is cast on the accused. Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 595; Willis' Case, 32 Grat. 929; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 639; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 281; Tilley's Case, 89 Va. 151, 15 S. E. 526; Jackson's Case, 97 Va. 762, 33 S. E. 547; Reed's Case, 98 Va. 827, 36 S. E. 399; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339; Robertson's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 851, 20 S. E. 362; Vance's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 830, 19 S. E. 785.

But to reduce the offence to manslaughter it is not necessary for the accused to show that before the mortal wound was given he had declined further combat and retreated as far as he could with safety. This would entitle him to be acquitted. Jackson's Case, 97 Va. 763, 33 S. E. 547.

The law presumes all homicide to be murder in second degree unless justified, excused, or alleviated, and it is incumbent upon the prisoner to make out to the satisfaction of the court and jury the circumstances of justification, excuse, or alleviation. McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 605, 46 Am. Dec. 196.

Possession of objects taken from person of one murdered.—The unexplained possession of the fruits of a larceny is prima facie evidence of the guilt of that crime. But no such presumption is raised by the possession of objects taken from a house that has been burglarized or from the person of one who has been murdered. Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858. See, also, Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 411; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183.

Indictment.—For what defects in indictments do not vitiate them, see section 4875 and notes.

See note on indictment, Boyle's Case, 14 Grat. 674, Va. Rep. Anno.

Common-law form of indictment sufficient.—The indictment is not defective in not charging specially such defects as would show the offence to have been murder in the first degree. The common-law form of indictment for murder is all that is necessary to support a finding of guilty of murder in the first degree under this statute. Miller's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 310; Wicks' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 387; Livingston's Case, 14 Grat. 596; Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 809, 26 S. E. 858; Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 730; O'Boyle's Case, 100 Va. 785, 40 S. E. 121.

Indictment for murder.—Conviction may be for murder in attempt to commit other crimes.—It is competent, in an indictment for murder simply, to try and convict one of murder in the commission of, or attempt to commit robbery, etc. Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 724; Robertson's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 855, 20 S. E. 362.

"Malice aforethought" a sine qua non.—In an indictment for murder, it is indispensable that the killing and murder should be charged to be done "with malice aforethought." Gibson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 70. But omission of the word "deliberately" will not be fatal on general demurrer. Bull's Case, 14 Grat. 613.

Murder by poison—Scienter.—When the murder is perpetrated by the means of poison, it is said that the indictment should aver that the prisoner knew the substance to be a deadly poison, and it is the safer course to insert such an averment. Com. v. Earle, 1 Whart. 525. See Hatchett's Case, 76 Va. 1026.

Verdict—Length of time.—The court will rarely disturb the verdict of the jurors in respect to the length of time for which the prisoner is to be confined. McCune's Case, 2 Rob. 771.

Rule as to new trial—Passing on evidence.—Where the court has to pass upon the evidence in the cause a new trial ought not to be granted except in a case of plain deviation or of palpable insufficiency of evidence, and not in a doubtful case, merely because the court if on the jury would have given a different verdict. Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 728, citing Ross v. Overton, 3 Call 309, 2 Am. Dec. 552; Brugh v. Shanks, 5 Leigh 598, etc. See, also, Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 594; McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 594, 46 Am. Dec. 196; Grayson's Case, 6 Grat. 712; McCune's Case, 2 Rob. 778; Grayson's Case, 7 Grat. 613; Kates' Case, 17 Grat. 561; Howell's Case, 26 Grat. 995; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 879.

For cases of circumstantial evidence, see Dean's Case, 32 Grat. 912; Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 845; Finchim's Case, 83 Va. 689, 3 S. E. 343; Robertson's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 857, 20 S. E. 362.

Degrees of murder—Murder in the first degree.—Cases in which verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was sustained: Wicks' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 387 (on circumstantial evidence); Burgess' Case, Id. 483; Whiteford's Case, 6 Rand. 721, 18 Am. Dec. 771; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598; Bennett's Case, 8 Leigh 745; Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 594; Howell's Case, 26 Grat. 995; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 845, 872; Wright's Case, 33 Grat. 880; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 914; Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 374, 52 Am. Rep. 634; Barbour's Case, 80 Va. 287; Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 284; Gaines' Case, 88 Va. 682, 14 S. E. 375; Davis' Case, 89 Va. 132, 15 S. E. 388; Tilley's Case, 89 Va. 136, 15 S. E. 526; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895; Reed's Case, 98 Va. 817, 36 S. E. 399; Weatherman's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 819, 19 S. E. 778.

Cases in which verdict of murder in first degree was set aside because not sustained by the evidence: Grayson's Case, 6 Grat. 712, also s. c., 7 Grat. 613; Smith's Case, 21 Grat. 809; Willis' Case, 32 Grat. 929; Hatchett's Case, 76 Va. 1026; McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 281.

Murder in the first degree.—The Legislature, in the description of offences which constitute murder in the first degree, has at first enumerated some of the most striking instances of deliberate and cruel homicide; but, finding it impossible to enumerate all of them, then proceeded by general words to embrace all kinds of wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing. It is impossible to interpolate the word "such" in that general description. Whiteford's Case, 6 Rand. 721, 18 Am. Dec. 771; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598, 610.

Enumerated cases—Purpose of enumeration—The enumerated cases were not put for the purpose of indicating that those which might occur under the recited clause should resemble them in circumstances. But, if they were intended to influence the recited clause, it was by suggesting the degree of malice which should appear in cases comprehended within the recited clause. Burgess' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 488, and note immediately above.

Same—No necessity to prove design.—In all of these enumerated cases the Legislature has declared the law that perpetrator shall be guilty of murder in the first degree without further proof that the death was the ultimate result which the will, deliberation, and premeditation of the party accused sought. And the same authority has declared the law that any other kind of killing, which is sought by the will, deliberation and premeditation of the party accused shall be murder also in the first degree; but as to this other kind of killing proof must be adduced to satisfy the mind that the death of the party slain was the ultimate result which the concurring will, deliberation and premeditation of the party accused sought. But to this general rule the same authority adds an exception, which is that any death consequent upon the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate arson, rape, robbery, or burglary shall be deemed murder in the first degree. So that the cases within the exception, as now put, and the cases enumerated, as first mentioned, are, in fact, placed upon the same principle; there is no necessity of proof in either that a homicide was intended. And it follows, of course, that all other homicide which was murder at common law is now murder in the second degree, except where it shall be proved that the homicide was the result of a "wilful, delibrate, and premeditated killing"; and it also follows, of necessity, that, when by proof the mind is satisfied that the killing was wilful, deliberate, and premeditated, such killing must be taken and held to be murder in the first degree. Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598, 611; Burgess' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 483; Whiteford's Case, 6 Rand. 721, 18 Am. Dec. 771.

Same—Murder by poison.—To entitle the Commonwealth to a verdict, it is essential to prove clearly, beyond a reasonable doubt, these three essential propositions, viz.: (1) That the deceased came to his death by poison; (2) that the poison was administered by the accused; (3) that he administered it knowingly and feloniously. Hatchett's Case, 76 Va. 1026.

Same—Murder by lying in wait.—The expression "lying in wait" is taken to mean not merely his concealing himself in the path of his intended victim for the purpose of killing him, but the deliberately and premeditatedly seeking an occasion to effect the deadly purpose. Burgess' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 488.

Other cases of murder in the first degree.—Killing a by-stander, Wright's Case, 75 Va. 914; killing a policeman, Davis' Case, 89 Va. 132, 15 S. E. 388; killing after continued altercation, Crane's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 10; killing wife who was on bad terms with husband, Weatherman's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 819, 19 S. E. 778. See, also, Bennett's Case, 8 Leigh 745; Robertson's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 142, 22 S. E. 459.

Murder in the first degree distinguished from murder in the second degree. Note to King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 78; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh, 598, 612.

The use of a deadly weapon has always been treated by the courts as a material circumstance or factor in passing on the degree of murder. Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 873; Wright's Case, 33 Grat. 880, 895; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 920; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339; Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 41 S. E. 951. But see McDaniel's Case, 77 Va. 281, where use of "bearing stick" did not warrant the presumptions of intent to kill.

Murder in second degree.—Cases in which verdict of murder in the second degree was sustained: King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 78; Slaughter's Case, 11 Leigh 681, 37 Am. Dec. 638; McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 594, 46 Am. Dec. 196; Johnston's Case, 5 Grat. 660; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 634; Dock's Case, 21 Grat. 909; Stoneman's Case, 25 Grat. 887; Lewis' Case, 81 Va. 416; Shipp's Case, 86 Va. 746, 10 S. E. 1065; Snodgrass' Case, 89 Va. 679; 17 S. E. 238; Jackson's Case, 98 Va. 845, 36 S. E.

487; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339; Vance's Case, 1 Va. Dec. 830, 19 S. E. 785; Robertson's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 142, 22 S. E. 359.

Cases in which verdict of murder in second degree was not sustained: Parrish's Case, 81 Va. 1; Tucker's Case, 88 Va. 20, 13 S. E. 298.

Examples of.—The offence of homicide by a workman throwing timber from a house into the street of a populous city without warning, or of a person shooting a fowl animo furandi and killing a man, are instances of murder in the second degree. King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 87; Whiteford's Case, 6 Rand. 724, 18 Am. Dec. 771.

Defense—What party assaulted must show.—Before a party assaulted in a sudden brawl or quarrel can kill his adversary he must have retreated as far as he safely could to avoid the assault, until his further going back was prevented by some impediment, or as far as the fierceness of the assault permitted. He must show to the jury that the defense was necessary to protect his own life or to protect himself against grievous bodily harm. And with regard to the necessity that will justify the slaying of another in self-defense, it should seem that the party should not have wrongfully occasioned the necessity, for a man shall not in any case justify the killing of another by a pretense of necessity unless he were without fault in bringing that necessity upon himself. Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 729, 730.

Killing in a passion—When murder in second degree.—An instruction that if defendant was acting in the heat of passion, engendered by the slanderous words spoken of his wife, and if sufficient time had not elapsed for his passion to cool and subside, the killing was murder in the second degree, but that it was murder in the first degree if sufficient time had elapsed for his passion to subside, and if he afterwards went after the deceased with a deadly weapon for the purpose of killing him on account of the slanderous words, and did kill him wilfully and with malice and premeditation, is proper. Watson's Case, 87 Va. 608, 13 S. E. 22.

If the killing be malicious, but not wilful, deliberate, and premeditated, then such killing was murder in the second degree. Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 642.

Killing by "lying in wait"—Verdict murder in second degree.—A person commits murder by "lying in wait"; is convicted of murder in the second degree; the judge sets the verdict aside as contrary to the law and the evidence, on the ground that the evidence justified murder in the first degree.

Quære, on second trial, is it legal for judge to dismiss the indictment? 2 Va. Law Reg. 697, 787, 870. Quære, ought the judge to have set the verdict aside? Id.

Notwithstanding this section declares "murder by lying in wait" to be murder in the first degree, yet this must be read along with sections 4918 and 4919 which allow the jury a certain degree of latitude and discretion in applying the law to the facts. Burton & Conquest's Case, 108 Va. 892, 62 S. E. 376.

For note upon duty of jury to convict of murder in first degree or to acquit, see 12 Va. Law Reg 777.

Interposition between contestants—Murder in second degree.—A person neither assaulted nor threatened gets down from his horse, arms himself with a club, interposes between two other persons who are about to engage in a fight, and kills one of them. Verdict of murder in the second degree will not be disturbed. Johnston's Case, 5 Grat. 660.

Nonfelonious homicide.—Of nonfelonious homicide there are two kinds, justifiable and excusable. Min. Syn. 36.

I. Justifiable homicide.—(1) Killing in advancement of public justice. Muscoe's Case, 86 Va. 443, 10 S. E. 534. The vital question is whether the arrest was legal or not. Id.

(2) Killing in execution of public justice. Min. Syn. 36.

(3) Justifiable killing in defence of person or property.

In this third class there must be some apprehension of some forcible or atrocious felony—dangerous to one's own life, or the life of a member of the family, or danger of burning the dwelling house, though the danger may be unreal. Stoneman's Case, 25 Grat. 887; Parrish's Case, 81 Va. 1; Brown's Case, 86 Va. 466, 10 S. E. 745.

The bare fear that a man intends to commit murder or other atrocious felony, however well grounded, unaccompanied by any overt act indicative of such intention, will not warrant killing the party by prevention. There must be some overt act indicative of imminent danger at the time. Stoneman's Case, 25 Grat. 887; Brown's Case, 86 Va. 466, 10 S. E. 745; Field's Case, 89 Va. 690, 16 S. E. 865.

There must be some act by the deceased meaning present peril, or something in the attending circumstances indicative of a present purpose to make the apprehended attack. The act so done or circumstances thus existing must be of such a character as to afford reasonable ground for believing there is a design to commit a felony or to do some serious bodily harm, and imminent danger of carrying such design into immediate execution. Then the killing will be justifiable, though there is in fact no such design by the deceased. Stone's Case, 25 Grat. 887.

A person assaulted while in discharge of a lawful act, and reasonably apprehending that his assailant will do him bodily harm, has the right to repel the assault by all the force he deems necessary, and is not compelled to retreat from his assailant, but may, in turn, become the assailant, inflicting bodily wounds till his person is out of danger. Jackson's Case, 96 Va. 108, 30 S. E. 452.

For distinction between justifiable homicide in self-defense and excusable homicide in self-defense, see 6 Va. Law Reg. 176, and below (this note); also Min. Syn. 42.

II. Excusable homicide.—(1) Killing by misfortune. Min. Syn. 40, 41. (2) Killing in self-defense on a sudden broil.

When death ensues on a sudden provocation or sudden quarrel, without malice prepense, the killing is manslaughter, and in order to reduce the offense to killing in excusable self-defense the prisoner must prove two things: (1) That before the mortal blow was given he declined further combat and retreated as far as he could with safety; and (2) he killed the deceased through the necessity of preserving his own life or to save himself from great bodily harm. Dock's Case, 21 Grat. 909; Clark's Case, 90 Va. 360, 368, 18 S. E. 440; Jackson's Case, 98 Va. 845, 851, 36 S. E. 487; Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717, 719.

To make out a case of self-defense in a case of homicide, the accused must show to the jury that the defense was necessary to protect his own life, or to protect himself against grievous bodily harm; and with regard to the necessity which will justify the slaying of another in self-defense, the accused must not have wrongfully occasioned that necessity, for a man shall not in any case justify the killing of another by a pretense of necessity unless he were without fault in bringing that necessity upon himself. Clark's Case, 90 Va. 369, 18 S. E. 440; Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717; Lewis' Case, 78 Va. 732; Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 283, 298; Brown's Case, 86 Va. 466, 470, 10 S. E. 745; Gaines' Case, 88 Va. 682, 693, 14 S. E. 375; Jackson's Case, 98 Va. 845, 849, 36 S. E. 487, overruling Hash's Case, 88 Va. 172, 13 S. E. 398. See 6 Va. Law Reg. 176.

Homicide is not in self-defense where the deceased was not following the defendant or threatening him with any immediate danger at the time he threw the rock which killed the deceased. Byrd's Case, 89 Va. 536, 16 S. E. 727.

When a case of self-defense has been prima facie made out, evidence of dangerous character of deceased is admissible; but it is no palliation that prisoner believed the man he attacks and kills to be a dangerous person, and in such case such evidence is inadmissible. Harrison's Case, 79 Va. 374, 52 Am. Rep. 634.

Provocation sought or voluntarily provoked cannot excuse killing or doing bodily harm. No provocation whatever can render homicide justifiable or even excusable. The lowest grade to which it can reduce homicide is manslaughter. Honesty's Case, 81 Va. 283.

West Virginia decisions.—For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 1.

Sec. 4394. First degree; how punished.—Murder of the first degree shall be punished with death, or by confinement in the penitentiary for life, or for any term not less than twenty years. (Code 1887, § 3663; 1914, p. 419.)

Revisors' Note.—Acts 1914, p. 419, provided that "Murder of the first degree shall be punished with death, or in the discretion of the jury by confinement in the penitentiary for life." Omitting the words "in the discretion of the jury" as unnecessary, the revisors have added "or for any term not less than twenty years." Formerly, there were cases where the evidence showed the defendants guilty of first degree murder, but on account of the circumstances of the particular case, juries would not convict of first degree murder, because of the severity of the punishment, and for that reason brought in verdicts convicting defendants of a less offense. The revised section gives more latitude in this class of cases.

See notes to preceding section.

Under section 6 a person who committed murder prior to the date of the amendment of this section (Acts 1914, p. 419) but is tried subsequent thereto, is not obliged to accept the mitigation provided by the amendment. Conaway v. Com., 118 Va. 792, 88 S. E. 75.

Sec. 4395. Second degree; how punished.—Murder of the second degree shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than twenty years. (Code 1887, § 3664.)

Revisors' Note.—The maximum punishment is made twenty years instead of eighteen. This change prevents a gap between the punishment for first and second degree murder. See revisors' note to the preceding section.

See notes to section 4393.

Sec. 4396. Voluntary manslaughter; how punished.—Voluntary manslaughter, shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3665.)

Manslaughter.—See Min. Syn. 45-52; also Note on Homicide, Souther's Case, 7 Grat. 673, Va. Rep. Anno.; also notes to section 4393.

Cases in which verdict of guilty of voluntary manslaughter was affirmed: Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717; Bull's Case, 14 Grat. 613; Gray's Case, 92 Va. 772, 22 S. E. 858; Horton's Case, 99 Va. 848, 38 S. E. 184; Cash's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 1, 20 S. E. 893; Poindexter's Case, 33 Grat. 766.

Distinction between murder and manslaughter.—Every unlawful homicide must be either murder or manslaughter, and whether it be the one or the other depends alone upon whether the party who perpetrated the act did it with malice or not—malice either express or implied. Read's Case, 22 Grat. 924; King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 78; Mitchell's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 116; McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 594, 605, 46 Am. Dec. 196.

Manslaughter (when voluntary) arises from the sudden heat of the passions; murder from the wickedness of the heart. McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 605, 46 Am. Dec. 196. See Crane's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 10; Gray's Case, 92 Va. 772, 22 S. E. 858.

If upon sudden quarrel two persons fight, and one of them kills the other, this is manslaughter. McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 605; Read's Case, 22 Grat. 937; Byrd's Case, 89 Va. 538, 16 S. E. 727; King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 78; Watson's Case, 87 Va. 608, 13 S. E. 22; Horton's Case, 99 Va. 848, 38 S. E. 184.

Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of another, without malice, either express or implied; which may be either voluntary, upon a sudden heat, or involuntary, in the commission of some unlawful act. McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 605; King's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 78.

Distinction between voluntary and involuntary manslaughter.—On a trial for murder, where the evidence repelled the idea of self-defense, the court instructed the jury that if they believed from the evidence the deceased and prisoner were engaged in a sudden and mutual combat, in which no weapon dangerous in itself was used, and during the progress of the fight the prisoner struck the deceased an ordinary blow or blows with his fists or feet, without any intention either to kill the deceased or to do him great bodily harm, but to repel his attacks, and that the death of the deceased was caused thereby accidentally and apart from the prisoner's intention, then the prisoner is guilty of involuntary manslaughter. * * * Yet if the jury are satisfied that the manner of inflicting the blows are cruel and unusual, and exceeded in number and violence what was necessary to repel the deceased, and he died of such beating, then the prisoner is guilty of voluntary manslaughter. These two instructions are not erroneous. Bull's Case, 14 Grat. 613.

W. Va. Decisions.—For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 4.

Sec. 4397. Involuntary manslaughter; how punished.—Involuntary manslaughter shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years; or, in the discretion of the jury, by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars, or confinement in jail not exceeding one year, or both. (Code 1887, § 3666.)

Revisors' Note.—The section as it stands in the Code of 1887 provides that involuntary manslaughter shall be a misdemeanor; but in view of the many injuries and deaths resulting from the careless and negligent operation of steam engines, electric cars, automobiles and motor vehicles of various kinds, the revisors deemed it wise substantially to increase the maximum punishment.

See section 4396, and notes.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 5.

Sec. 4398. How and where homicide prosecuted and punished, if death occur without the State.—If any person be stricken or poisoned in, and die, by reason thereof, out of this State, the offender shall be as guilty, and be prosecuted and punished, as if the death had occurred in the county or corporation in which the stroke or poison was given or administered. (Code 1887, § 3667.)

This section overrules Linton's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 205.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 6.

Sec. 4399. Wilful abandonment, upon any shore of the State, of person sick with small-pox; how punished.—If any person wilfully abandon, or cause to be abandoned, upon any of the shores of this Commonwealth, any person who is sick with the small-pox, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years; and if such abandoned person die by reason of such wilful abandonment, the person who abandoned or caused him to be abandoned shall be punished with death, or, in the discretion of the jury, by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than eighteen years. (Code 1887, § 3668.)

Sec. 4400. Attempts to poison; how punished.—If any person administer or attempt to administer any poison or destructive thing in food, drink, medicine, or otherwise, or poison any spring, well, or reservoir of water with intent to kill or injure another person he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than eighteen years. (Code 1887, § 3669; 1897-8, p. 682.)

Essential averments.—An indictment for an attempt to administer poison that does not allege such acts as, in a legal sense, constitute an attempt to commit the offence charged, but only such as show preparation, is demurrable. Hicks' Case, 86 Va. 223, 9 S. E. 1024, 19 Am. St. Rep. 891.

Elements of "attempt."—An attempt to commit a crime consists of (1) the intent; (2) a direct ineffectual act towards its commission; and that act must reach far enough towards the accomplishment of the desired result to amount to the commencement of the consummation. Id.

Case at bar.—Merely a procurement of the poison, and an ineffectual solicitation of a third party to put it in the drink of the intended victim, constitute not an attempt, but only a preparation. Id.

Generally.—This section to be construed with section 4873. Davis' Case, 99 Va. 838, 38 S. E. 191.

Circumstantial evidence not strong enough to convict of attempt to poison. Id.

See section 4767 and note.

On indictment for felony, accused may be convicted of an attempt. See section 4922 and notes.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 7.

Sec. 4401. Attempt to produce abortion, or by publications, etc., prompt the procuring of it; how punished.—If any person administer to, or cause to be taken by a woman, any drug or other thing, or use any means with intent to destroy her unborn child, or to produce abortion or miscarriage, and thereby destroy such child or produce such abortion or miscarriage, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years. No person, by reason of any act mentioned in the foregoing part of this section, shall be punishable where such act is done in good faith, with intention of saving the life of such woman or child. And if any person, by publication, lecture, advertisement, or by the sale or circulation of any publication, or in any other manner, encourage or prompt the procuring of abortion or miscarriage, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, and be confined in jail not less than one nor more than twelve months for each offense. (Code 1887, § 3670.)

Sec. 4402. Shooting, stabbing, etc., with intent to maim, kill, etc.; how punished.—If any person maliciously shoot, stab, cut, or wound any person or by any means cause him bodily injury, with intent to maim, disfigure, disable, or kill, he shall, except where it is otherwise provided, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years. If such act be done unlawfully, but not maliciously, with the intent aforesaid, the offender shall, in the discretion of the jury, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years, or be confined in jail not exceeding twelve months, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3671.)

Malicious shooting.—Whether a person on trial is guilty of malicious shooting with intent to kill depends upon the question whether if he had killed the person at whom he shot, instead of only wounding him with intent to kill him, the offence would have been murder. Read's Case, 22 Grat. 924; Price's Case, 77 Va. 393.

As purpose to kill being inferred from deliberate use of deadly weapon, see Price's Case, 77 Va. 396, and notes to section 4393.

Assault and battery.—The conviction and punishment of a party by a justice for an assault and battery will not bar a prosecution for wounding with intent to kill by the same act for which he was punished by the justice. Murphy's Case, 23 Grat. 960.

Indictment conforming to Code.—An indictment charging that the accused made an assault with a stone, and did feloniously, maliciously, and unlawfully beat, wound, ill treat, and cause bodily injury, etc., sufficiently conforms to this section. Jones' Case, 87 Va. 63, 12 S. E. 226. See, also, Benton's Case, 91 Va. 793, 21 S. E. 495, and cases cited.

How intent should be charged.—Although this statute affixes a penalty when the act is done with the intent to maim, disfigure, disable, "or" kill (in the disjunctive), yet the indictment should charge the intents conjunctively. Angel's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 231.

Although all the intents be laid, yet proof of either supports the indictment. Id.

Necessary averment.—All offences for which the penalty is confinement in the penitentiary are felonies, and the indictment for such an offence must describe it as having been done "feloniously." Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 646; Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122; Trimble's Case, Id. 143; Taylor's Case, 20 Grat. 825.

Weapon unnecessary.—In an indictment for malicious assault with intent to kill, it is unnecessary to state the weapon with which the assault was made. Jackson's Case, 96 Va. 107, 110, 30 S. E. 452; Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899.

To charge that one "feloniously and maliciously did stab P., with intention to maim," etc., sufficiently describes the offence. Woodson's Case, 9 Leigh, 669.

Before the enactment of this section it was held necessary, under 1 Rev. Code 1819, p. 582, to aver that the defendant did disable the person attacked. Lester's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 198.

As to variance between the record of examining court and the indictment, insufficient as ground for quashing the indictment, see Derieux's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 379.

The words "strike" and "cut," although not in a former statute, did not vitiate an indictment "by the commixture of felony and misdemeanor." Derieux's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 379.

As to the plea autrefois acquit in a case of malicious shooting, which was not good, though the act of shooting was the same in both cases, see Vaughan's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 273.

See Chapple's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 184; Carver's Case, 5 Rand. 662.

Verdict.—The verdict of the jury must always be read in connection with the indictment, and, if it be certain upon the reading of them together what the meaning of the verdict is, it is sufficiently certain. Hoback's Case, 28 Grat. 922; Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 830, the latter case distinguishing Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 644. See, also, Price's Case, 77 Va. 393; Hairston's Case, 97 Va. 754, 32 S. E. 797.

Therefore, if the intent be stated in the indictment, the reference in the verdict, "guilty of," etc., "as charged in the within indictment," is a sufficient finding of the intent. Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 830, distinguishing Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 644.

And so the omission from the verdict of the name of the party injured does not vitiate such verdict. Hoback's Case, 28 Grat. 924; Price's Case, 77 Va. 393; Hairston's Case, 97 Va. 754, 32 S. E. 797.

Verdict irresponsive to issue.—Where, on an indictment under this section, the verdict finds the prisoner guilty of malicious assault, without saying with what intent the assault was committed, the verdict should be set aside on motion as irresponsive to the issue, and as malicious shooting merely is in itself no offence at all. Jones' Case, 87 Va. 63, 12 S. E. 226; Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 644. But see Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 830, where reference in the verdict to the indictment cures such omission.

On an indictment for malicious cutting and wounding with intent to maim, disfigure, etc., the defendant may be convicted of unlawful cutting and wounding with like intent, or of assault and battery. Montgomery's Case, 98 Va. 840, 36 S. E. 371; Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 832; sections 4918, 4920, and notes.

Verdict—Effect of new trial.—On an indictment for malicious stabbing with intent to kill, a verdict finding the accused guilty of unlawful stabbing with intent to kill is an acquittal of malicious stabbing; and, if the accused obtains a new trial, he does not thereby waive the advantage of the acquittal thus obtained. Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 950; Benton's Case, 91 Va. 791, 21 S. E. 495. See, also, sections 4918, 4920, and notes.

Repelling an assault—Partly assaulted not compelled to retreat.—A person assaulted while in the discharge of a lawful act, and reasonably apprehending that his assailant will do him bodily harm, has the right to repel the assault by all the force he deems necessary, and is not compelled to retreat from his assailant, inflicting bodily wounds till his person is out of danger. Jackson's Case, 96 Va. 109, 30 S. E. 452; Montgomery's Case, 98 Va. 840, 36 S. E. 371, s. c., 99 Va. 833, 37 S. E. 841.

For a mere trespass on land, the owner has no right to assault the trespasser with a deadly weapon, the result of which may be to kill him or to do him great bodily harm. Montgomery's Case, 98 Va. 840, 36 S. E. 371.

An indictment for malicious assault with intent to kill does not involve a charge of more than one offense, because it alleges a felonious assault by defendant, this being an ingredient to the other crime charged. Miller's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 47, 21 S. E. 499.

For note on Self-Defense, see notes to section 4393, "Non-felonious Homicide."

W. Va. decisions.—In the trial of an indictment found under W. Va. Code 1899, chapter 144, section 9 (substantially the same as this section), an instruction at the instance of the State which eliminates from the consideration of the jury the intent with which the alleged wounding was done, is erroneous. State v. David, 51 S. E. 230.

For W. Va., decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 9.

Sec. 4403. Shooting, etc., in committing or attempting a felony; how punished.—If any person, in the commission of, or attempt to commit a felony, unlawfully shoot, stab, cut or wound another person he shall, in the discretion of the jury, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years or be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3672.)

Sec. 4404. Shooting in place of public resort; how punished.—If any person unlawfully shoot at another person in any street in a city or town, or in any place of public resort, whether in a city or town, or elsewhere, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3673.)

Sec. 4405. Robbery; how punished.—If any person commit robbery, by partial strangulation or suffocation, or by striking or beating, or by other violence to the person, or by the threat or presenting of fire-arms, or other deadly weapon or instrumentality whatsoever, he shall be punished with death, or, in the discretion of the jury, by confinement in the penitentiary not less than eight nor more than eighteen years. If any person commit a robbery in any other mode, or by any other means, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3674.)

Revisors' Notes.—The words "or other deadly weapon or instrumentality whatsoever" following "fire-arms" are new.

Definition at common law—intent to steal.—The common law offense of robbery is "the felonious and forcible taking from the person of another of goods or money to any value, by violence or putting in fear." The Virginia statute does not define the offense, but only regulates its punishment. Houston's Case, 87 Va. 257, 12 S. E. 385. See Bishop on Statutory Crimes, section 517.

The intent to steal (animus furandi) is an essential element in the crime of robbery. Therefore an instruction that certain enumerated acts constitute robbery, without the slightest reference to the intention with which those acts were done, is erroneous. And this felonious intention must exist with reference to the goods charged in the indictment and at the time of the asportation. Jordan's Case, 25 Grat. 943.

It is not necessary that the prisoner should intend to appropriate the property to his own use. If he intended to deprive the prosecutor of his property, that is sufficient. Id.

Indictment.—An indictment alleging the felonious and forcible taking by the accused from the person of another of goods and money of a named value, by violence and putting him in fear, and that such goods and money were the property of such other person, is a sufficient charge of robbery at common law. Houston's Case, 87 Va. 257, 12 S. E. 385.

An indictment for robbery charged that the prisoners made an assault upon G., and "feloniously and violently did steal," etc. Under the Code the jury may acquit prisoners of the felony, and find them guilty of the "assault and battery." Hardy & Curry's Case, 17 Grat. 592.

In an indictment for robbery it is necessary to state specifically the form of violence by which the robbery was committed. See 11 Va. Law Reg. 148.

Generally.—For correct instruction as to punishment of robbery committed by presenting of firearms, see Houston's Case, 87 Va. 257, 12 S. E. 385.

As to instruction in regard to accessories, incorrect because of assumption of the fact of robbery, see Id.

Sec. 4406. Extorting money, etc., by threats; how punished.—If any person threaten injury to the character, person, or property of another person or accuse him of any offense and thereby extort money, property, or pecuniary benefit or any note, bond, or other evidence of debt from him or any other person he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than five years or in the discretion of the jury be confined in jail not exceeding one year and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3675; 1893-94, p. 520.)

Whether the person from whom the money was extorted was virtuous or vicious is not to be inquired into; such person is entitled to the protection of the law. Mitchell's Case, 75 Va. 856.

The error of the clerk in stating to the jury that the minimum of punishment fixed by law was three years instead of one year was not such error as to cause the judgment to be set aside in a case where the jury fixed the maximum, five years. Mitchell's Case, 75 Va. 857.

For W. Va., decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 13.

Sec. 4407. Kidnapping with intent to extort money; how punished.—If any person seize, take, or secrete any other person with intent to extort money, or pecuniary benefit, he shall be punished with death, or, in the discretion of the jury, be confined in the penitentiary not less than eight nor more than eighteen years. (Code 1887, § 3676; 1902-3-4, p. 948.)

Sec. 4408. Kidnapping; how punished.—If any person sell another as a slave, or kidnap a person with intent to use or sell him as a slave, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3681.)

The sale of an adult free negro, by his own consent, as a slave, under a collusive contract between the seller and the free negro to divide the proceeds, is not such a sale of a free negro for a slave as is made a felony by 1 Rev. Code 1819, chapter 111, section 28; Mercer's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 144.

Upon an indictment on statute 1 Rev. Code, chapter 111, section 28, for selling a free negro for a slave, it was held that to constitute the felony the sale must be absolute, and not conditional. Nix's Case, 11 Leigh, 636.

The offense is complete by the kidnapping without the actual sale. Davenport's Case, 1 Leigh 588.

The consent of a boy of eight years of age does not excuse or lessen the offense. Id.

Sec. 4409. Illegal seizure, etc., of a child; how punished.—If any person, other than the father or mother of a child, illegally seize, take, or secrete a child from the person having lawful charge of such child, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than five years, or, in the discretion of the jury, in jail not exceeding one year, and be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3713.)

punished.—If any person, under promise of marriage, conditional or unconditional, seduce and have illicit connection with any unmarried female of previous chaste character, or if any married man seduce and have illicit connection with any unmarried female of previous chaste character, he shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two, nor more than ten years. For the purposes of this section, the chastity of the female shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. (Code 1887, § 3677.)

Revisors' Note.—Under this section as it stood before the revision, it was doubtful if the offense was committed where the promise of marriage was conditional. See 25 Am. & Eng. Ency. Law (2 ed.), p. 230; 35 Cyc, p. 1336; 11 Va. L. Reg. 424. In view of the insertion of the words "conditional or unconditional" after "promise of marriage," this doubt no longer obtains.

The last sentence is new and makes statutory the holding in Mill's Case, 93 Va. 815, 22 S. E. 863; Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39; and Barker's Case, 90 Va. 820, 20 S. E. 776.

Requisites.—To constitute the crime of seduction under promise of marriage it is necessary to show the seduction, the promise of marriage, and the previous chaste character of the female seduced (and also that the female was unmarried). Mills' Case, 93 Va. 815, 22 S. E. 863, 2 Va. Law Reg. 675, 678.

There must be seduction superadded to illicit connection. Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39, and note 5 Va. Law Reg. 487.

Seduction by married man.—Seduction by married man is the offense of inducing an unmarried female of previous chaste character to consent to unlawful sexual intercourse by enticements and influences which overcome her scruples. Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39. See exhaustive article, 5 Va. Law Reg. 205, and references.

Meaning of "unmarried female of previous chaste character."—The phrase "any unmarried female of previous chaste character" means a woman who has kept her person from actual defilement, and is intended to shield and save those whose dispositions are easy and complaisant, but who would have perhaps escaped irretrievable ruin had not their confidence been secured and their apprehensions put at rest by a promise of marriage. Mills' Case, 93 Va. 815, 22 S. E. 863.

The term "unmarried female" does not include a woman who has been married and divorced. Jennings' Case, 109 Va. 821, 63 S. E. 1080.

For editorial comment upon the said opinion, see 15 Va. Law Reg. 69.

Chastity presumed.—The chastity of the prosecutrix is presumed, and the burden of impeaching it lies on the accused. Mills' Case, 93 Va. 815, 22 S. E. 863; Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39; Barker's Case, 90 Va. 820, 20 S. E. 776. The section now makes statutory this doctrine.

See, in this connection 3 Va. L. Reg. 161.

Indictments—Counts differing as to date.—It is not error to compel prosecutor to elect between two counts, which charged that the offenses were committed on different days. Hausenfluck's Case, 85 Va. 702, 8 S. E. 683.

Admissions.—Admission of accused to matron of hospital to which he took prosecutrix that he had seduced her, and that she was before respectable, are relevant and competent evidence. Hausenfluck's Case, 85 Va. 702, 8 S. E. 683.

Where confession is retracted, an instruction that it is the province of the jury to consider all the circumstances under which it was made held not error. Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39.

Evidence.—Where evidence of the good character of the accused for industry and veracity had been introduced, but none as to his relation with women, an instruction that the jury may in their discretion acquit defendant on the evidence of his good character, if sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt of his guilt, where all the evidence was considered, was properly refused. Flick's Case, 97 Va. 766, 34 S. E. 39.

Evidence of the repeated promises of the prisoner to marry the seduced female after the seduction had been accomplished is admissible to support the testimony as to the main fact of the seduction, in explaining the delay in the prosecution of the seducer, and to support the claim of the girl to previous chastity (Hausenfluck's Case, 85 Va. 707, 8 S. E. 683); but does not establish the fact of seduction (Id.).

It is allowable to prove birth of child. Hausenfluck's Case, 85 Va. 707, 8 S. E. 683.

Character of house.—The character of the house where prosecutrix resided prior to her alleged seduction may be proved by evidence of particular facts, but not by conclusions of witnesses, nor by general reputation. Barker's Case, 90 Va. 820, 20 S. E. 776.

Generally.—Cited but not construed, Kemp v. McGuire, 112 Va. 715, 72 S. E. 686.

As to defendant's offering to marry as a defense, see 4 Va. Law Reg. 115.

Sec. 4411. Abduction of female for purpose of defilement, etc.; how punished.—If any person take away or detain, against her will, any female, with intent to marry or defile her, or cause her to be married or defiled by another person, or take from any person, having lawful charge of her, a female under sixteen years of age, for the purpose of concubinage or prostitution, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years; and every person who shall assist or aid in such abduction or detention for such purpose, shall be guilty of a felony, and, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3678; 1887-8, p. 283.)

The abduction of a female over sixteen years of age (being not within the statute) cannot be punished by indictment. Anderson's Case, 5 Rand. 628, 16 Am. Dec. 776.

As to evidence necessary to convict, see section 4413 and note.

As to the original of this statute and English cases thereunder, see Rep. Rev. C. V. 1849, p. 946. See, also, Min. Syn. 69-72.

Sec. 4412. Abducting, kidnapping or unlawfully aiding in the escape of the inmates of any of the public hospitals of this State.—If any person shall abduct, kidnap, or unlawfully aid in the abduction or kidnapping, or escape of any inmate of any of the hospitals for the insane, or of any inmate of the deaf, dumb and blind hospitals of this State, for any purpose other than those mentioned in sections forty-four hundred and seven and forty-four hundred and eleven, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than one nor more than six months, or both. (1908, p. 55.)

Sec. 4413. The evidence necessary to convict; limitation of prosecution; marriage, a bar to conviction.—No conviction under sections forty-four hundred and ten and forty-four hundred and eleven shall be had on the testimony of the female seduced, abducted, or detained, unsupported by other evidence, nor unless the indictment shall be found within two years after the commission of the offense: Provided, that the subsequent marriage of the parties may be pleaded in bar of a conviction. (Code 1887, § 3679; 1887-8, p. 283.)

The additional evidence required to sustain a conviction under promise of marriage must not emanate from the mouth of the seduced woman, and must not rest wholly upon her credibility, and must be such as strengthens and corroborates her testimony. The seduction and the promise of marriage are elements of the crime which must be established by such corroborating evidence in order to sustain a conviction. Mills' Case, 93 Va. 815, 22 S. E. 863, 2 Va. Law Reg. 675, 678 (note).

Quaere, as to the extent to which the testimony of the prosecutrix must be supported by other evidence under this section in order to sustain the conviction of the accused. Barker's Case, 90 Va. 820, 20 S. E. 776.

Testimony of prosecutrix, supported by evidence of admissions of accused to matron of hospital to which he took prosecutrix, that he had seduced her, etc., and other evidence, certified and considered as upon demurrer to evidence, held sufficient to sustain and warrant verdict of conviction. Hausenfluck v. Com., 85 Va. 702, 8 S. E. 683.

Does the marriage of a female, alleged to have been seduced, to another than the alleged seducer, bar a prosecution against the alleged seducer? See note, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 73.

Discussed, 6 Va. L. J. 514.

Sec. 4414. Rape; carnal knowledge of child under sixteen years of age or a lunatic, or a pupil in any deaf, dumb, or blind institution; how punished.—If any person carnally know a female at sixteen years or more against her will, by force, or carnally know a female child under that age or a female inmate of any hospital for the insane, who has been adjudged a lunatic, or any female who is an inmate of a deaf, dumb, or blind institution who is a pupil therein he shall, in the discretion of the jury, be punished with death or confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than twenty years. But, if such female child be over the age of fourteen years and not an inmate of such hospital for the insane or institution and consents to the carnal knowledge, the punishment shall be confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than twenty years. If the carnal knowledge be with the consent of a female between the ages of twelve and sixteen years, and the female be not an inmate of such hospital for the insane or of such institution, the subsequent marriage of the parties, with the consent of the parent or guardian of the female, may be pleaded in bar of a prosecution for the offense. (Code 1887, § 3680; 1895-6, p. 673; 1916, p. 809.)

Revisors' Note.—Before the amendment of 1916 the age of consent was fourteen years. The amendment raised it to fifteen, and the revised section made it sixteen. In addition to this change, the last two sentences of the section are new with the revision. But attention is called to Acts 1918, p. 139, which puts back the age of consent to fifteen, and makes other changes.

Definition.—Rape is the unlawful carnal knowledge of a woman by a man, forcibly and against her will. Mings' Case, 85 Va. 640, 8 S. E. 474; Bailey's Case, 82 Va. 107, 3 Am. St. Rep. 87.

Force.—Wherever there is a carnal connection without anything which can be deemed consent—where there is neither a consent fraudulently procured nor any other sort of consent—by the woman, there is evidently in the wrongful act itself all the force which the law demands as an element of crime. Id.

Is penetration, without emission, sufficient?—In England, since statute of 9 Geo. IV., chapter 31, section 17, it has been held the smallest penetration is sufficient to constitute the complete offense of rape. Reg. v. Stanton, 47 Eng. Com. Law, 415. In Virginia there is no statute nor have we any case on the subject, but in case of buggery, it has been held that penetration alone completes the crime. Thomas' Case, 1 Va. Cas. 307.

Where prosecutrix testified that the accused "forced her" it was held that these words signified sexual intercourse. Bailey's Case, 82 Va. 113, 3 Am. St. Rep. 87.

Essentials of proof.—To justify conviction, (1) the criminal act must be clearly established; (2) the accused must be connected with the act in clear and satisfactory manner. Evidence of previous attempts to take improper liberties, which were neither disclosed nor resented, weakens the theory of rape. Boxley's Case, 24 Grat. 652; Brogy's Case, 10 Grat. 722.

Presumption as to boy under fourteen.—A boy under fourteen years old is conclusively presumed to be incapable of committing the crime of rape, or of attempting to commit it, whatever may be the real facts. Foster's Case, 96 Va. 306, 31 S. E. 503, 42 L. R. A. 589, 70 Am. St. Rep. 846, 4 Va. Law Reg. 539.

On whom committed—Unchaste women.—This offense may be committed as well on a woman unchaste, or a common prostitute, as on any other female. In matter of evidence, however, want of chastity may, within recognized limits, be shown as rendering it more probable that she consented. Bailey's Case, 82 Va. 110, 3 Am. St. Rep. 87.

Carnal knowledge of female under twelve (now fifteen).—Carnally to know a female child under twelve (now fifteen) years old, whether with or without consent, is rape. Givens' Case, 29 Grat. 330; Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 845; Bennet's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 235.

The prisoner may be convicted, though the female told him she was over twelve (now fifteen) years of age, and he had reasonable cause to believe that she was over that age. If she was not twelve years old, he is guilty under the statute. Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 845.

Principal in second degree—Under fourteen.—A boy under fourteen years of age, who assists another person in an attempt to commit rape, may be convicted as a principal in the second degree, and, under this statute, punished the same as the principal in the first degree, if it appear, under all the circumstances, that he had a mischievous discretion. Law's Case, 75 Va. 885, 40 Am. Rep. 750. See 4 Va. Law Reg. 539.

For husband's being principal in second degree to the crime of rape upon wife, see 5 Va. Law Reg. 111.

Indictment—Omission of the word "female."—The omission of the word "female" does not vitiate the indictment, provided the language used sufficiently shows that the rape was committed on a female. Taylor's Case, 20 Grat. 825.

An indictment in the words of this section defining the offense is good. Smith's Case, 85 Va. 924, 9 S. E. 148.

Evidence.—The female's declarations out of court are only evidence so far as they are a part of the res gestae. Brogy's Case, 10 Grat. 722.

Recent complaint—Particulars of.—Though it is competent to prove the fact of a recent complaint by the female for the purpose of sustaining her credit, it is not competent to prove the particulars of her complaint. Brogy's Case, 10 Grat. 722. And so it is not competent to prove the description given by her before seeing parties arrested, when she refuses on trial to describe how they looked at the time of assault. Id.

Previous unchaste character.—It is not allowable on cross-examination to ask prosecutrix if she had not been before a person of unchaste character. Fry's Case, 82 Va. 334.

It seems that the general character of the prosecutrix for chastity cannot be shown in a trial for rape unless attacked. Proving that she had a daughter living with her who had an illegitimate child is a sufficient attack upon her chastity as to entitle evidence to show her general character for chastity. Coleman v. Com., 84 Va. 1, 3 S. E. 878.

Argument of counsel—Instructions.—In a prosecution for rape, it is entirely proper for the prisoner's counsel to argue before the jury "that accusations of this sort are easily made, hard to be proved, and still harder to be defended by one ever so innocent"; but this language is not proper as an independent instruction, and it is not error to refuse to give it as such. Crump's Case, 98 Va. 833, 23 S. E. 760.

For refusal of appellate court to set aside verdict of attempt to commit rape upon a girl under twelve, see Givens' Case, 29 Grat. 830.

Verdict—Motion set aside.—A motion to set aside a verdict on ground that the prosecutrix, twelve years old, could not understand the nature of an oath, will not be sustained where she has been examined in regard thereto by trial court, and the court is satisfied as to her capacity to understand the same. Smith's Case, 85 Va. 924, 9 S. E. 148.

Powers of appellate court.—Circumstantial evidence being deemed by the jury sufficient to convict of rape, and the trial court having refused a new trial, it would be an unwarrantable assumption of powers of the jury for appellate court to set verdict aside. Bennet's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 238.

The conviction of a man seventy years of age on the uncorroborated evidence of the woman, who made no complaint until after the birth of a child, and whose evidence bears the impress of falsehood on its face, will not be sustained, even though the plaintiff in error stands in the appellate court as a demurrant to evidence. Harvey's Case, 103 Va. 850, 49 S. E. 481.

For rape of stepdaughter, who made no outcry, see Bailey's Case, 82 Va. 107, 3 Am. St. Rep. 87.

For case in which the evidence does not warrant the verdict of the jury finding the accused guilty of rape, Brown's Case, 11 Va. Law J. 237; also Boxley's Case, 24 Grat. 649.

Attempt to rape—Force.—There must be evidence of force, or of an intention to use force, if necessary, to overcome the will of the victim. Hairston's Case, 97 Va. 754, 32 S. E. 797.

An indecent proposal, followed by the approach of the accused, who, however, was eluded, and who did not touch prosecutrix, does not sustain conviction of attempt to rape. Id.

The intent to commit, and a direct, ineffectual act towards its commission are essential to an attempt to commit rape. Glover's Case, 86 Va. 382, 10 S. E. 420; Uhl's Case, 6 Grat. 706; Hicks' Case, 86 Va. 223, 9 S. E. 1024, 19 Am. St. Rep. 891.

A negro, not intending to have carnal knowledge of a white woman by force, but intending to have such knowledge of her while she was asleep, got into bed with her, and pulled her night garment, which waked her, using no other force. Held, this was not an attempt to ravish, within the meaning of the statute. Fields' Case, 4 Leigh 648.

Insufficient evidence.—What evidence not sufficient to convict of the offense of rape upon a woman of "easy virtue." Christian's Case, 23 Grat. 954.

Indictment—Attempt to commit rape—Word "ravish" unnecessary.—In an indictment for an attempt to commit rape, the word "ravish" is not necessary, but the words "attempting feloniously to know" are sufficient. Id.

One under indictment for attempt to rape was acquitted of that charge, but found guilty of assault and battery, and fined $1,000. This was not excessive. Doyle's Case, 100 Va. 808, 40 S. E. 925.

Sec. 4415. Depositions of female witnesses in cases of rape and attempted rape.—Before or during the trial of an indictment for rape, or attempted rape, in which the female who is alleged to have been assaulted is a witness, the judge of the court in which the same is tried may, in his discretion, by an order entered of record, either in term time or in vacation, direct that the deposition of such witness be taken at a time and place designated in said order, and said judge may adjourn the taking thereof to such other times and places as he may deem necessary. Such deposition shall be taken by said judge, by the clerk, or by any officer authorized to take depositions in the presence of said judge, in the county or city in which the offense was committed or the trial is had, who shall rule upon all questions of evidence, and otherwise control the taking of the same as though it were taken in open court; and there shall be present also the attorney for the Commonwealth, as well as the accused and his attorneys, who shall have the same rights in regard to the examination of such witness as if she were testifying in open court; and no other persons shall be present unless expressly permitted by said judge. Such deposition shall be read to the jury at the time such witness might have testified if such deposition had not been taken, and shall be considered by them, and shall have the same force and effect as though such testimony had been given orally in court. But the clerk of the court, in case no appeal is taken, shall, after the time for granting a writ of error has elapsed, withdraw the deposition from the record of the case and destroy the same. Said judge may, in like manner, direct other depositions of such witness, in rebuttal or otherwise, which shall be taken and read in the manner and under the conditions herein prescribed as to the first deposition. The cost of taking such depositions shall be paid by the Commonwealth. (1904, p. 17.)

Revisors' Note.—The act authorized the deposition to be taken in ANY county, city, or town in the State. The revisors thought that the taking of the depositions should be restricted to the city or county in which the offense was committed, or the trial is had, and the section as revised so provides.

Sec. 4416. Death by duel out of State on agreement made within it, murder.—If any person, resident in this State, by previous agreement made within the same, fight a duel without the State, and in so doing inflict a mortal wound, he shall be deemed guilty of murder in this State. (Code 1887, § 3683.)

Sec. 4417. Seconds in duels accessories before the fact.—If any person, resident in this State, by like agreement, be the second of either party in such duel as is mentioned in the preceding section and be present as such when such mortal wound is inflicted, he shall be deemed an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder in this State. (Code 1887, § 3684.)

Sec. 4418. Where such offenders prosecuted.—An offender under either of the two preceding sections may be prosecuted in the county or corporation in which the death occurs, if it occur within this State; and, if not, in any county or corporation in which such offender may be found. (Code 1887, § 3685.)

Sec. 4419. Fighting a duel, or sending a challenge; how punished.—If any person fight a duel with any deadly weapon though no death ensue, or send or deliver to another a challenge, or message intended to be a challenge, oral or written, to fight a duel, though no duel ensue, he shall be confined in jail not more than one year, and be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3686.)

An indictment for sending a challenge, in the form of a letter, to fight a duel, need not set out the words of the letter nor the substance thereof. Brown's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 516.

Before this statute, an indictment for fighting a duel with pistols was held bad on demurrer, whether considered as charging the act of fighting a duel as a distinct offense at common law, or as being equivalent to an indictment for an affray or a common assault. Lambert's Case, 9 Leigh 603, 607.

For W. Va., decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 22.

Sec. 4420. Accepting or bearing a challenge; how punished.—And if any person accept, or knowingly carry or deliver, any such challenge or message, or advise, encourage, or promote such duel, he shall be confined in jail not more than six months and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3687.)

Party to a duel.—It seems that the surgeon of a party to a duel would be regarded in law as being concerned in or as aiding and abetting the duel. Cullen's Case, 24 Grat. 624.

Mere presence is not sufficient to render one guilty of aiding and abetting the commission of crime. There must be something done or said by him showing his consent to the felonious purpose and contributing to its execution. Reynolds' Case, 33 Grat. 834; Kemp's Case, 80 Va. 443.

For W. Va., decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 23.

Sec. 4421. Persons leaving the State to evade law against duelling, etc., and persons present as seconds, etc., punished as if offense committed in the State.—If any person, resident in this State, leave the same for the purpose of eluding the provisions herein contained respecting dwelling, or challenge to fight, and without the State engage in a duel (though no death ensue), or challenge another, or send or deliver a message intended to be a challenge to fight such duel, or accept, or knowingly carry or deliver any such challenge or message, or be present at the fighting of such duel with deadly weapons, as an aid, second, or surgeon, or advise, encourage, or promote such duel, he shall be deemed as guilty, and subject to the like punishment, as if the offense had been committed in this State. Prosecutions under this section shall be in the county or city in which the defendant resided immediately before leaving the State for the purposes aforesaid. (Code 1887, § 3688.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new, and prescribes the venue of prosecutions under the section.

The word "dwelling" in line three of the text is manifestly intended for "duelling"—a mere typographical error.

Sec. 4422. Plea of former conviction or acquittal.—Any person indicted in this State under sections forty-four hundred and sixteen, forty-four hundred and seventeen, forty-four hundred and eighteen or forty-four hundred and twenty-one, may plead his conviction or acquittal of the same offense in another State in bar of such indictment. (Code 1887, § 3689.)

Sec. 4423. Posting or upbraiding another for not engaging in a duel; how punished.—If any person post another, or, in writing or in print, use any reproachful or contemptuous language to or concerning another, for not fighting a duel, or for not sending or accepting a challenge, he shall be confined in jail not more than six months, or fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3690.)

Sec. 4424. Duty of justice having cause to suspect a duel is about to be fought.—If any justice or judge have good cause to suspect that any person is about to be engaged in a duel, he may issue his warrant to bring such person before him, and, if he think proper to take from him a recognizance to keep the peace, he shall insert therein a condition that he will not, during the time for which he is bound, be concerned in a duel, directly or indirectly. (Code 1887, § 3691.)

A judge out of court (and a fortiori in court) may, when he has reason to suspect that a duel is about to take place, commit a witness who refuses to give testimony by affidavit until he shall give testimony. Jones' Case, 1 Va. Cas. 270.

For W. Va., decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 144, section 27.

Sec. 4425. Seconds, etc., required to testify, where duel fought and person killed or wounded; exemption from prosecution.—Any person who bears a challenge or acceptance to fight a duel with a deadly weapon, if such duel be fought and any person be killed or wounded by such fighting, or who engages or is concerned in any manner, directly or indirectly, in a duel fought with a deadly weapon, by which fighting any person is killed or wounded, may be required, in any prosecution against any person but himself for such killing or wounding, to testify as a witness, as well before the grand jury, as before the court or any judicial tribunal, having cognizance of the offense; and when he shall have so testified, he shall never thereafter be liable to any punishment or prosecution for any offense committed by him as principal, accessory, or otherwise, in or about the said duel. (Code 1887, § 3692.)

Bill of rights—Self-crimination.—By the bill of rights of Virginia, a person is not only secured against giving evidence against himself on his own trial, but he cannot be required on the trial of another to testify, if his evidence will tend to criminate himself. Cullen's Case, 24 Grat. 624.

But where the statute affords full protection to a witness testifying in a criminal prosecution he is not justified in refusing to testify on the ground that his answer will tend to criminate himself. Kendrick's Case, 78 Va. 490; Temple's Case, 75 Va. 892. See section 4780.

The previous statute (October 11, 1870) was held unconstitutional, as it only provided that the "statement" made by the witness should not be used against him, and did not afford to the witness complete indemnity; therefore the witness could not be required to testify. Cullen's Case, 24 Grat. 624.

The fact that the witness has testified before the coroner or grand jury does not deprive him of the privilege. Id.

Sec. 4426. Prize fighters, pugilism, and fights between men and animals; how punished.—Any person who shall voluntarily engage in a pugilistic encounter between man and man or a fight between a man and bull or any other animal for money or other thing of value or for any championship, or upon the result of which any money or any thing of value is bet or wagered or to see which any admission fee is charged, either directly or indirectly, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years. By the term "pugilistc encounter" as used in this section is meant any voluntary fight or personal encounter by blows by means of the fists or otherwise, whether with or without gloves, between two or more men for money or for a prize of any character or for any other thing of value or for any championship or upon the result of which any money or any thing of value is bet or wagered. (Code 1887, § 3693; 1895-6, p. 546.)

Sec. 4427. Their aiders and abettors; how punished.—Whoever is present at such fight as an aid, second, or surgeon, or advises, encourages, or promotes such fight, shall, in the discretion of the jury, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not exceeding three years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both. (Code 1887, § 3694.)

Sec. 4428. Burning or destroying dwelling-house, etc., at night. —If any person, in the night-time, maliciously burn, or by the use of dynamite, nitro-glycerine, or other explosive, maliciously destroy, in whole or in part, the dwelling-house of another, or any hotel, asylum, or other house in which persons usually dwell or lodge, or any railroad car, boat, or vessel, or river craft, in which persons usually dwell or lodge, or any jail or prison, or maliciously set fire to any thing by the burning whereof such dwelling house, hotel, asylum, or other house, or railroad car, boat, vessel or river craft, jail or prison, shall be burned in the night-time, he shall be punished with death, or in the discretion of the jury, by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than twenty years, but if the jury find that at the time of committing the offense there was no person in such dwelling house, hotel, asylum, or other house, or in such railroad car, boat, vessel, or river craft, jail or prison, the offender shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than twenty years. Any such burning or destruction in the day-time shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years. And if any person in the night-time maliciously burn, or by the use of dynamite, nitro-glycerine, or other explosive, destroy any barn, stable, shed, or other building containing live stock, the live stock being in the building at the time of the burning or destruction, he shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3695; 1889-90, p. 37; 1906, p. 14.)

Revisors' Note.—As the destruction of property by explosives was put on the same footing as destruction by fire by the act cited at the end of this section (1889-90, p. 37), the two methods have been united in the same section; and as burning, in legal contemplation, is a destruction of any portion of the house, however small, it was thought that greater latitude should be given the jury in the matter of punishment. It was also thought that the punishment prescribed in the last sentence of the section was too severe, and this was changed. The combination of burning and destruction by explosives has also been carried out in several of the sections mentioned below.

Definition at common law.—Arson is the malicious and wilful burning of the dwelling house of another person. Min. Syn. 88.

Quaere, is the common law offense of arson abolished? Cullen's Case, 7 Grat. 619.

Essentials of proof.—(1) The corpus delicti must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. (2) The prisoner must be connected with the perpetration of the offense by evidence so convincing as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis consistent with innocence. Brown's Case, 87 Va. 220, 12 S. E. 472; Anderson's Case, 83 Va. 326, 2 S. E. 281.

Evidence simply that a fire was of an incendiary origin; that the accused had an opportunity to commit the crime, and that he cherished and expressed ill feelings toward the owner of property destroyed, does not warrant a conviction. Jones' Case, 103 Va. 1012, 49 S. E. 663. Garner's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 458, 26 S. E. 507.

Offense against possession.—Arson is an offense against the possession or occupancy. Hence a landlord may commit it in the house occupied by his tenant. Erskine's Case, 8 Grat. 624.

Dwelling house.—A dwelling house, as here used, embraces all its parcels, including such outhouse as is parcel thereof. The burning of such an outhouse is the burning of a dwelling house in the meaning of the law, and may be so described in the indictment; and proof of the burning of the outhouse will as much sustain the indictment as would proof of the burning of the principal part of the dwelling house, or the whole of it, including all the parts. Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943.

The facts that a building has once been used as a dwelling house, and is intended for the same use in the future, do not of themselves make the building a dwelling house, within the meaning of this statute. Hooker's Case, 13 Grat. 763, 765.

A jail was a subject of arson before it was in terms included in the statute. Posey's Case, 4 Call 109, 12 Am. Dec. 560; Stevens' Case, 4 Leigh 737 (683). And if the jail be described as "the house of the sheriff and jailer of said county," that part of the description is unnecessary, and may be rejected as surplusage. Stevens' Case, 4 Leigh 737 (683).

Barns and stables.—A count (an indictment) charging that the prisoner at night did burn a barn and stable, the same being an outhouse not adjoining the dwelling house, nor under the same roof, but some person usually lodging therein at night, does not set out an offense for which the punishment is death. Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943.

On such count, the prisoner having been found guilty and sentenced to be hanged, the court will reverse the judgment, and remand the prisoner to be tried, under section 4431. Id.

The malicious burning of wheat threshed from the straw was not a violation of the sixth section of Acts 1847-8, chapter 120, subd. 4. Erskine's Case, 8 Grat. 624. See section 4431.

Indictment.—In indictment for statutory offenses, the language of the statute should be strictly followed. Therefore, in an indictment under this section, it is not sufficient to use the words "set fire to," but the word "burn" must be used. Howel's Case, 5 Grat. 664. See, on subject description of statutory offenses, Benton's Case, 91 Va. 782, 793, 21 S. E. 495; Young's Case, 15 Grat. 664; Taylor's Case, 20 Grat. 825; Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 965.

In an indictment under this section, the word house imports, "dwelling house," and is sufficient. If upon the trial it appears that it was not a house upon which arson could be committed, it is the duty of the judge to direct the jury to acquit the prisoner. Posey's Case, 4 Call 109, 2 Am. Dec. 560.

Averring ownership.—An indictment for the burning of a "certain store-house, not adjoining or occupied with the dwelling house of one S.," sufficiently describes the store-house as the property of S. Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570; Butler's Case, 81 Va. 159.

An indictment for arson at common law is sufficient in a case of arson in the daytime, yet is more appropriate to charge the burning in the daytime. To convict of the offense of burning at night, it seems the indictment must charge the burning at night. Curran's Case, 7 Grat. 619.

Verdict—Guilty on one count—Acquitted on the other.—An indictment contains two counts, one under section 4428, the other under section 4432. A general verdict of guilty is found. The punishment fixed by the verdict is not such as could be ascertained under that finding in the first section. The finding of the jury was then guilty under the second count, and an acquittal under the first count. Richards' Case, 81 Va. 110, 116. See, also, Bennet's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 235; Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627; Page's Case, Id. 683; and sections 4773, 4774, 4918, and notes.

Sec. 4429. What not deemed a dwelling house.—No out-house, not adjoining a dwelling-house, nor under the same roof, (although within the curtilage thereof) shall be deemed parcel of such dwelling-house, within the meaning of this chapter, unless some person usually lodge therein at night. (Code 1887, § 3696.)

Outhouse parcel of dwelling house.—To make an outhouse, not adjoining a dwelling house nor under the same roof thereof, two things are necessary: First, that such outhouse is within the curtilage of the dwelling house and occupied therewith; and, second, that some person usually lodges therein at night. Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943.

This section creates no offense. It declares nothing necessary to be noticed in pleading, either in the indictment or elsewhere. It is mere incident to the previous section, and a mere limitation of the word dwelling-house therein mentioned. Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943. See note section 4428.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 3.

Sec. 4430. Burning or destroying meeting-house, court-house, college, school-house, etc.; how punished.—If any person maliciously burn, or by the use of dynamite or nitro-glycerine, or any other explosive substance, maliciously destroy, in whole or in part, any meeting-house, court-house, town-house, college, academy, school-house or other building erected for public use (except an asylum, hotel, jail, or prison), or any banking-house, warehouse, store-house, manufactory, mill, or other house of another person, not usually occupied by persons lodging therein at night, at a time when any person is therein, or if he maliciously set fire to anything, by the burning whereof any building mentioned in this section shall be burned, at a time when any person is therein, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than fifteen years. If such offense be committed when no person is in such building mentioned in this section, the offender shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3697; 1889-90, p. 37.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to section 4428.

Sec. 4431. Burning piles of wood, stacks of straw, etc.; how punished.—If any person maliciously burn any pile or parcel of wood, boards, or other lumber, or any barn, stable, corn-house, tobacco-house, stack of wheat, or other grain, or of fodder, straw, or hay, or any other personal property, he shall, if the thing burnt, with the property therein, be of the value of one hundred dollars, be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years; and if it be of less value, he shall be so confined not less than two nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3698.)

See Erskine's Case, 8 Grat. 625.

For burning of barn, see Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943.

Sec. 4432. Burning or destroying any other building; how punished.—If any person maliciously burn, or by the use of dynamite or nitro-glycerine or other explosive substance, maliciously destroy, in whole or in part, any building, at a time when any person is therein, the burning or destruction whereof is not punishable under any other section of this chapter, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than fifteen years. If he commit such offense at a time when no person is in such building, and such building, with the property therein be of the value of one hundred dollars, or more, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years, and if it and the property therein be of less value, he shall be so confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3699; 1889-90, p. 37.)

Indictment—Particular description of building.—An indictment under this section must describe the building with such particularity as will inform accused what building is meant. Richards' Case, 81 Va. 110.

Indictment for arson describes the house burned as "the county jail and prison of the county H., being the house of L. J., sheriff and jailor of said county." Held, the burning of such jail was felony under 1 Rev. Code, chapter 160, section 4, corresponding to this section. Stevens' Case, 4 Leigh 683. See section 4428.

An indictment charged that the accused did feloniously and maliciously burn a certain barn and the property therein, said barn and the property therein being the property of one D., and situate in the county aforesaid, which said barn and the property therein was then and there of the value of $1,500.

Held sufficient under this section. Wolf's Case, 30 Grat. 833.

The malicious burning by the owner of a house on his own lands, the house being then in the legal occupancy of another, is a violation of this section. Erskine's Case, 8 Grat. 624.

Before the word "prison" was used in the enumeration of section 4428, it was held that the burning of a jail was a felony under the section. Stevens' Case, 4 Leigh 683.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 6.

Sec. 4433. Burning or destroying bridge lock, or dam; how punished.—If any person maliciously burn, or by the use of dynamite, nitro-glycerine, or other explosive substance, or by other means, maliciously destroy, in whole or in part, any bridge, lock, or dam, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3700; 1889-90, p. 37.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to section 4428.

Sec. 4434. Setting fire to woods, fences, grass, etc.; how punished.—If any person maliciously set fire to any woods, fence, grass, straw or other thing capable of spreading fire on lands, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years, or in the discretion of the jury, be fined not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars and be confined in jail not less than one nor more than twelve months. (Code 1887, § 3701; 1908, p. 42.)

Revisors' Note.—The section formerly read, "If any person UNLAWFULLY AND maliciously set fire," etc. The words "unlawfully and" are stricken out, because sufficiently covered by the next succeeding section. In addition to this omission, a change has been made in the arrangement of the punishment. No change, however, has been made in the amount of punishment.

For conviction under this statute on circumstantial evidence, see Earhart's Case, 9 Leigh, 671.

An indictment is described as an indictment "for setting fire to the woods and burning the same." Held, this is a sufficient record of the finding. Earhart's Case, 9 Leigh 671.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 8.

Sec. 4435. Setting woods, etc., on fire, whereby another is damaged; how punished.—If any person carelessly, negligently, or intentionally set any woods or marshes on fire, or set fire to any stubble, brush, straw or inflammable substance, capable of spreading fire on lands, whereby the property of another is damaged or jeopardized, he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3702; 1916, p. 490.)

Revisors' Note.—A material reduction in the punishment is made by the revised section. As it appears in Acts 1916, page 490, the punishment prescribed is a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, or confinement in jail not less than ten nor more than thirty days, or both such fine and imprisonment. The revisors deeming the fine alone a sufficient deterrent, have stricken out the jail sentence.

Sec. 4436. Wilful burning of property with intent to injure insurer; how punished.—If any person wilfully burn any building, or any goods or chattels, which at the time are insured against loss or damage by fire, with intent to injure the insurer, whether such person be the owner of the property or not, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3703.)

Sec. 4437. Burglary defined; punishment; possession of burglarious tools.—If any person break and enter the dwelling-house of another in the night-time with intent to commit a felony or larceny therein, he shall be deemed guilty of burglary, though the thing stolen, or intended to be stolen, be of less value than fifty dollars. If any person be guilty of burglary, he shall be punished with death, or, in the discretion of the jury, by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than eighteen years. If any person have in his possession any tools, implements, or outfit, with intent to commit burglary, robbery, or larceny, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than eighteen years. The possession of such burglarious tools, implements, or outfit by any person other than a licensed dealer, shall be prima facie evidence of an intent to commit burglary, robbery, or larceny. (Code 1887, § 3704; 1912, p. 137.)

Revisors' Note.—The phraseology of this section has been changed so as to include common law burglary in the definition of burglary under the statute, and there is a transposition of sentences at the beginning of the section, but no material change has been intended.

Definition.—Burglary is the breaking and entering of the mansion house of another in the night with intent to commit some felony (or, in Virginia, larceny of anything, though of less value than $50) within the same. Min. Syn. 91; Weldon's Case, 4 Leigh 652.

Breaking—Two kinds.—There are two kinds of breaking—actual and constructive. Actual breaking implies entrance by violence, more or less. Constructive breaking is by threats, fraud, or conspiracy. Clarke's Case, 25 Grat. 908.

The word "break," in this section, is borrowed from the law in regard to burglary, and is to be understood as it would be when used in a charge of burglary. Finch's Case, 14 Grat. 643.

Actual breaking.—Entry through a door that was so closed that it came within the casing, and to open which required some degree of force, constitutes in law a breaking, though there was no fastening of any other kind on the door. Finch's Case, 14 Grat. 643.

But an entry effected through a door which was open, or partially open, is in law no breaking. Id.

The only covering to an opening for a window is a cloth hung over two nails at the top and loose at the bottom. Quære, if the removing the cloth from one of the nails is a sufficient breaking to constitute burglary. Hunter's Case, 7 Grat. 642, 56 Am. Dec. 121.

Constructive breaking—Conspiracy.—Constructive breaking may be by conspiracy with servants, but not with one of two joint occupants of a room. Clarke's Case, 25 Grat. 908.

For note of case as to what constitutes "breaking," see 11 Va. Law Reg. 690.

When one has succeeded without actual breaking in getting into a building for purpose of taking goods, is he guilty of burglary upon breaking out to get away? See note, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 75.

Time.—An indictment charging that goods were feloniously and burglariously taken from a dwelling house, without charging that this was done in the night time, is not a good indictment for burglary, but is only an indictment for a larceny. Marks' Case, 4 Leigh 652, 660.

Intent.—The allegation of an actual larceny is only in aid of the allegation of intent. Therefore such allegation need not be laid with the same formality as in an indictment for larceny itself. Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570; Vaughan's Case, Id. 576; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183.

Subject of burglary.—For a description of goods charged to be stolen which is good after verdict, see Vaughan's Case, 17 Grat. 576. See, also, Wright's Case, 82 Va. 185.

House.—An indictment for housebreaking need not negative the idea that the barroom which was broken and entered adjoined any dwelling house other than that of the owner of the barroom. Lawrence's Case, 81 Va. 484.

Averring ownership.—In an indictment for housebreaking, the house is said to be "a certain millhouse not adjoining to or occupied with the dwelling house of F." Held, the indictment sufficiently alleges the ownership of the house to have been in F., and is sufficient in law. Webster's Case, 80 Va. 598; Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570; Butler's Case, 81 Va. 162.

An indictment contained the following description: "Six labor tickets, of the value of six dollars." Held, that the indictment is good, though it does not specify the articles, or state that they were the property of J. or any other person. Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183; Vaughan's Case, 17 Grat. 576.

Upon an indictment charging the person with breaking and entering the storehouse of A. and B., composing the firm of A. B., proof of the breaking and entering the storehouse of A. B. is sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty, without showing the names of the individuals who composed the firm, or other particulars as to the ownership of the storehouse. Henderson's Case, 98 Va. 794, 34 S. E. 881.

Evidence.—The general rule of the common law with regard to the evidence in cases of larceny, that possession of the goods recently stolen is prima facie evidence of guilt, and throws upon the accused the burden of accounting for the possession of such goods, has never been held to apply to the same effect in cases of burglary, and the decided weight of authority is that it does not. Still, where the goods have been obtained by means of burglary or housebreaking, the fact of such possession is a most material circumstance to be considered by the jury in connection with other inculpatory circumstances. There must be some evidence of guilty conduct besides the mere possession of the stolen property before the presumption of housebreaking is superadded to that of larceny. Henderson's Case, 98 Va. 800, 34 S. E. 881; Gravely's Case, 86 Va. 396, 10 S. E. 431; Hall's Case, 3 Grat. 593; Walker's Case, 28 Grat. 969; Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 411; Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 806, 22 S. E. 352; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 188; Branch's Case, 100 Va. 837, 41 S. E. 862; Tyler's Case, 120 Va. 868, 91 S. E. 171.

See, also, Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858, and notes to section 4393.

Possession and control must be exclusive.—The burden rests upon the Commonwealth to prove that the alleged possession of stolen goods by the accused was an exclusive possession, and in this case the evidence is insufficient. Tyler's Case, 120 Va. 868, 91 S. E. 171.

Even in case of simple larceny, in order to raise the presumption of guilt from the possession of stolen goods, it is necessary that they be found in the exclusive possession and subject to the exclusive control of the accused. Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 411; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183.

Proof of the unlawful entry into a dwelling house in the night time does not throw upon the accused the burden of proving to the satisfaction of the jury that his entry was for a lawful purpose. Garnett's and Cosby's Case, 117 Va. 902, 83 S. E. 1083.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Circumstantial evidence insufficient to warrant conviction of burglary, Bundick's Case, 97 Va. 783, 34 S. E. 454.

Every fact necessary to prisoner's guilt must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. Id.; Prather's Case, 85 Va. 125, 7 S. E. 178; Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 411; Pryor's Case, 27 Grat. 1009.

Sec. 4438. Entering dwelling-house or other house, vessel, or car in the night or, etc., with intent to commit murder, rape, or robbery; how punished.—If any person in the night enter without breaking or in the daytime break and enter a dwelling-house or an out-house adjoining thereto and occupied therewith or in the night-time enter without breaking or break and enter either in the daytime or night-time any office, shop, store-house, warehouse, banking-house, or other house, or any ship or vessel or river craft or any railroad car with intent to commit murder, rape, or robbery, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than fifteen years. (Code 1887, § 3705; 1893-4, p. 229; 1895-6, p. 36.)

Revisors' Note.—No change, except the maximum punishment is raised from ten to fifteen years. The offenses denounced by this section are heinous, much more so than some of those in the preceding sections, and yet the penalty was much less.

Housebreaking distinguished from larceny.—On an indictment for housebreaking which charges actual larceny, a general finding of guilty leads to a sentence for housebreaking, and not larceny. Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 574; Butler's Case, 81 Va. 162.

An indictment which charges a breaking into the house of L. with intent to steal and stealing therefrom is an indictment for housebreaking, not larceny, and is good. Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570; Vaughan's Case, Id. 576; Butler's Case, 81 Va. 159.

In such indictment, if the actual larceny is properly stated, the prisoner may be found guilty of larceny, though acquitted of the housebreaking. Id.

Housebreaking with intent to commit larceny and grand larceny are two distinct offences, and to each is affixed its own penalty; but they may be, and often are, one continual act, and may be charged in the same count of an indictment. Upon such count the accused may be found guilty of either or both offences, but there can be only one penalty imposed. If it is desired to punish for both offences in a case of this kind, a separate count for larceny must be inserted in the indictment. If there is a conviction generally, or of the grand larceny only, and it is submitted to, in either case this is a bar to prosecution. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 783, 21 S. E. 495; Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570.

Indictment was for breaking and entering a millhouse. If committed between February 12, 1894, when act amending this section and omitting words "or other house" was passed, and January, 1896, when the amendment was repealed, it was a misdemeanor; if before or after that period, it was a felony. Time, therefore, was of the essence, and should have been stated. Cool's Case, 94 Va. 799, 26 S. E. 411.

Housebreaking and grand larceny are of equal degree. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 782, 21 S. E. 495. See section 4918 and notes.

Meathouse held to be a storehouse. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 782, 21 S. E. 498.

Sec. 4439. Same act, with intent to commit larceny; how punished.—If any person do any of the acts mentioned in the preceding section, with intent to commit larceny, or any felony other than murder, rape, or robbery, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years, or, in the discretion of the jury, confined in jail not exceeding twelve months, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3706; 1901-2, p. 567.)

Breaking and entering a house in the night-time, with intent to commit larceny, may be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary or in jail, at the discretion of the jury, and is a felony. Benton v. Com., 89 Va. 570, 16 S. E. 725.

See notes to sections 4437, 4438.

Sec. 4440. Grand and petit larceny defined; how punished; larceny of horse, mule, ass, cow, steer, bull, or calf; how punished.—If any person steal from the person of another money or other thing of the value of five dollars or more he shall be deemed guilty of grand larceny and be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years. If any person commit simple larceny not from the person of another of goods and chattels he shall if they are of the value of fifty dollars or more be deemed guilty of grand larceny and be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years; and if they be of less value than five dollars in the first case or fifty dollars in the last he shall be guilty of petit larceny and shall be punished by confinement in jail not less than ten days nor more than twelve months or by fine not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars, or both. But any person who shall be guilty of the larceny of a horse, mule, or ass shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than eighteen years; and any person who shall be guilty of the larceny of a cow, steer, bull or calf, shall in the discretion of the jury be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years or be confined in jail not exceeding twelve months and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3707; 1889-90, p. 110; 1893-4, p. 220.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment for petit larceny generally was formerly confinement in jail not less than fifteen days nor more than six months, or by fine of not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars, or both. The jail part of the punishment in the revised section has been changed to not less than ten days, nor more than twelve months, thus giving more latitude to the justice, court, or jury, as the case may be.

In the latter part of the section the words "or calf" appearing after "bull," are new.

Definition.—Larceny at common law is the taking and carrying away of the personal goods of another, against his will or without his consent, and with a felonious intent. If there be no trespass in taking goods, there can be no larceny in carrying them away. Richards' Case, 13 Grat. 806.

Elements—Taking and carrying away—Character of taking.—This statute applies not only to pickpockets (those who steal from the person of another secretly), but also to one who openly snatches money out of the hand of a person, if this be done animo furandi. Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555.

Subsequent abandonment by pickpocket of goods stolen is no defense. Whalen's Case, 90 Va. 544, 19 S. E. 182.

Owner induced to give up his goods by fraud by one who feloniously intends to convert them to his own use. This is larceny. Vaughan's Case, 10 Grat. 762; Starkie's Case, 7 Leigh 752; Walker's Case, 8 Leigh 743; Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555.

Salesman in store, having full control of goods and money in store for purposes of his employment, abstracts a part of the goods and money, with a fraudulent intent to convert the same to his own use. Held, he is guilty of larceny. Walker's Case, 8 Leigh 743.

Goods of another.—Goods stolen should be charged to be the property of some person by name or to the jurors unknown; otherwise the defect is not cured by the statute of jeofails. Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122. And if owner be a married woman, the property must be laid in her husband. Hughes Case, 17 Grat. 565, 94 Am. Dec. 498. (But this is probably no longer true under the present married women's law.)

If owner be named in the indictment, the proof must show the property to be in the person named. Jones' Case, 17 Grat. 563; Robinson's Case, 32 Grat. 866.

The possession of the owner may be either actual or constructive. Richards' Case, 13 Grat. 806.

Constructive possession is in case of servants stealing property given into their charge by the master (Walker's Case, 8 Leigh 743); or guest at hotel disposing of gun loaned him by landlord (Richards' Case, 13 Grat. 803).

Possession need not be charged.—At common law the indictment need not charge that the goods were stolen from the possession of the owner or of any other person. Thompson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 135; Angel's Case, Id. 228.

An indictment for the larceny of a slave, of the goods and chattels of one A., and out of the possession of the said A., is bad, if the slave was hired for the year to B., and was in B.'s actual possession at the time of the larceny. Williams' Case, 1 Va. Cas. 14.

Intent.—The original intent must be felonious, and may be inferred from circumstances (Booth's Case, 4 Grat. 525); and is a question for the jury (Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555). The intent to steal must be when the goods came into the hands of the prisoner, and if the animus furandi be afterwards it is no larceny. The intent must exist with regard to the goods charged in the indictment. Jordan's Case, 25 Grat. 943.

A man who borrows with intent to steal is guilty of larceny. Starkie's Case, 7 Leigh 752.

Pretended buying, if done animo furandi, is larceny. Blunt's Case, 4 Leigh 689, 26 Am. Dec. 341.

A drunken man mounted a horse in the presence of the owner and several others, claimed it as his own, and tried to ride off. The circumstances do not indicate felonious intent. Hall's Case, 78 Va. 678. See, as to effect of drunkenness on intent, 8 Va. Law Reg. 687.

Subjects of larceny.—An article, to be subject to larceny, must be of some value: but it may be worth less than the smallest coin. That a lock had a key in it, and was used to fasten a door, was sufficient to show that it was of some value, though there was no distinct proof of value. Wolverton's Case, 75 Va. 909.

At common law a dog is not the subject of larceny. Maclin's Case, 3 Leigh 809; Davis' Case, 17 Grat. 617. But see sections 2324, 4445; 3 Va. Law Reg. 200.

Bees are creatures ferae naturæ, but when reclaimed and in the possession of the owner are the subjects of larceny. Harvey's Case, 23 Grat. 944.

If any of the subjects mentioned in the indictment might be the subject of larceny it is sufficient, and the verdict will not be arrested. Harvey's Case, 23 Grat. 941.

A negro, whether free or not, was a subject of larceny, as the law was aforetime. Davenport's Case, 1 Leigh 588.

See, also, sections 4444, 4445, 4447.

When special commissioner or receiver of a court deemed guilty of larceny, see section 6273.

Larceny of lost property.—The mere possession of goods which have been actually lost does not furnish any conclusive, or even prima facie evidence of guilt. To constitute larceny in the finder, it is not enough that the party has general means, by the use of proper diligence, of discovering the true owner. He must know the owner at the time of the finding, or the goods must have some mark about them understood by him, or presumably known by him, by which the owner can be ascertained, and he must appropriate them at the time of finding with intent to take entire dominion over them. Hunt's Case, 13 Grat. 757, 70 Am. Dec. 443; Tanner's Case, 14 Grat. 635; Perrin's Case, 87 Va. 554, 13 S. E. 76.

As to the time when the intent to appropriate goods found or received by mistake must exist, in order to constitute larceny thereof, see 2 Va. Law Reg. 702; 3 Va. Law Reg. 609.

Evidence.—Proof of receiving stolen goods knowing them to have been stolen, or of embezzlement, or of obtaining money under false pretenses, will sustain the common-law indictment for larceny. Pitsnogle's Case, 91 Va. 810, 22 S. E. 351, 50 Am. St. Rep. 867; Anable's Case, 24 Grat. 563; Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. formation obtained in consequence thereof, see Williams' Case, 27 Grat. 997.

Possession of fruits of larceny.—Exclusive possession of the fruits of larceny, recently committed, is prima facie presumption that the possessor was the thief. What is such recent possession as to raise this presumption is a question for the jury, and depends upon the nature of the property and other circumstances of the case. Price's Case, 21 Grat. 847; Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 806, 22 S. E. 352; Walker's Case, 28 Grat. 976; Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 413; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183; Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858; Branch's Case, 100 Va. 837, 41 S. E. 862. The last four cases are authority that mere possession is not even prima facie evidence of burglary and housebreaking. See, also, Tyler's Case, 120 Va. 868, 91 S. E. 171.

The presumption of guilt arising from the unexplained possession of the fruits of crime is a presumption of fact, and not of law. Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858, 3 Va. Law Reg. 99.

For evidence to show previous conviction of petit larceny, see Pryor's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 479, 26 S. E. 864.

Indictment.—For errors in indictment cured by statute of jeofails, see section 4875 and notes.

For general rule as to description of a statutory offense in an indictment, see Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 974; also Taylor's Case, 20 Grat. 825; Duff's Case, 92 Va. 770, 23 S. E. 643.

An indictment may contain several counts, one for larceny, others for receiving stolen goods knowing them to have been stolen, and others for aiding to conceal the same, when the counts relate to the same goods, but lay the offense to different persons. Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. Dec. 314. See, also, Anthony's Case, 88 Va. 850, 14 S. E. 834; Benton's Case, 91 Va. 782, 792, 21 S. E. 495; Smith's Case, 21 Grat. 809.

For sufficiency of indictments charging larceny of United States currency, see notes to section 4870.

Joinder of offences.—Where several articles are stolen at one time and place, the stealing is regarded as one transaction, and may be charged in a single count, though the articles belong to different persons. Alexander's Case, 90 Va. 809, 20 S. E. 782.

For variance between indictment for horse stealing and record of examining court not sufficient to quash indictment, see Halkem's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 4.

The record of examining court need not set out the offense with the same precision as an indictment. Id

The omission of the word "feloniously" from a warrant charging an accused with larceny will not vitiate a judgment of acquittal. Jones v. Morris, 97 Va. 43, 33 S. E. 377.

Verdict.—The verdict need not ascertain what goods were stolen, nor their value, nor what articles are not forthcoming, if any, nor the value of such as are not forthcoming. Poindexter's Case, 6 Rand. 667.

When the aggregate value of the property stolen was less than $50, a conviction for felony is erroneous. Alexander's Case, 90 Va. 809, 20 S. E. 782.

An indictment for petit larceny contains the word "feloniously." The verdict was, "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty." Held, verdict is sufficient, as the word "feloniously" only refers to the intent with which the taking was done. Wolverton's Case, 75 Va. 909.

The change of verdict of grand larceny by the Commonwealth's attorney, which was not merely a change of form, was improper. Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 806, 22 S. E. 352.

Jurisdiction.—One who steals property at a place beyond the jurisdiction of this State, and brings the same into the State, cannot be lawfully convicted of larceny in this State. Strouther's Case, 92 Va. 789, 22 S. E. 852, 53 Am. St. Rep. 852.

Sec. 4441. Stealing and taking away sand on the banks of the Potomac river.—Taking, stealing, and carrying away twenty or more bushels of sand from the land of any owner on the banks of the Potomac river within this Commonwealth shall be deemed a felony, and on conviction the person found guilty shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not exceeding one year or in the discretion of the jury shall be punished as for a misdemeanor. (1893-4, p. 949.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment prescribed by the act from which this section is taken was "confinement in the penitentiary of not less than one, nor more than three years, or at the discretion of the jury, by a fine of not less than one hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars." This punishment has been materially reduced, and now seems more commensurate with the offense.

An act was passed in 1918 (Acts 1918, page 534) the purpose of which apparently was to repeal the act from which this section is taken and to substitute therefor a much broader act; but it should be noticed that while the title of the act is confined to stealing and taking away sand and gravel from the banks of the Potomac river in certain cases, the body of the act is more comprehensive.

Sec. 4442. Larceny of bank notes, checks, etc., or any book of accounts; how punished.—If any person steal any bank note, check, or other writing, or paper of value, whether the same represents money, and passes as currency, or otherwise, or any book of accounts, for or concerning money or goods due or to be delivered, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof, and receive the same punishment, according to the value of the thing stolen, prescribed for the punishment of the larceny of goods and chattels. The provisions of this section shall be construed to embrace all bank notes, and papers of value representing money and passing as currency, whether the same be the issue of this State or any other State, or of the United States, or of any corporation, and shall include all other papers of value, of whatever description. (Code 1887, § 3708.)

Effect of this section.—This section places larceny of papers of value on the same footing as larceny of any other subject. The rules of law and evidence applicable to the offense of larceny generally must also apply in case of such larceny under the statute. Vaughn's Case, 10 Grat. 760.

Larceny of check.—For circumstances that did not amount to larceny of a check by secretary of the board of supervisors, see Anable's Case, 24 Grat. 563. For circumstances amounting to larceny of a check, and what may be proved on an indictment therefor against secretary of a building fund association, see Shinn's Case, 32 Grat. 899.

The obligor in a bond may commit larceny thereof, even in the presence and with the knowledge of the assignee of the bond. Vaughn's Case, 10 Grat. 758.

Indictment—Possession.—In an indictment for the larceny of bank notes it is not necessary that it should charge that the stealing was from the possession of any one. Angel's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 228; Thompson's Case, Id. 135.

Description of note.—The names of banks issuing such notes may be rejected as surplusage. It is not necessary to give proof of the charters of those banks. Pomeroy's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 342.

A general description as "bank notes current in the United States" is sufficient. Moseley's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 154.

As to what description of money is sufficient in prosecution for larceny, see section 4870 and note. For state of the law before section 4870 was enacted, see Leftwich's Case, 20 Grat. 716. See, also, Dulin's Case, 25 Grat. 965.

The term "bank note" is not restricted to those of chartered banks. Pomeroy's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 342.

It is sufficient to state that the notes were for a certain sum of money, without stating their value. Adams' Case, 23 Grat. 949. See section 4443.

Description of paper.—An indictment charging the prisoner with stealing certain papers of the value of $110, not otherwise describing the paper charged to have been stolen, is fatally defective. Robinson's Case, 32 Grat. 866.

An indictment for larceny of "one paper, purporting to be a check for $125, of the value of $125, of the goods and chattels of one R., then and there being on the person of said R.," held sufficient. Whalen's Case, 90 Va. 544, 19 S. E. 182.

Value of note.—If it be proved that the prisoner, after stealing the note, passed it away as genuine, this act of his affords prima facie evidence that the note was genuine, and dispenses with the evidence of the further proof of these acts. Cumming's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 128.

Indictment—"Feloniously" necessary.—An indictment for stealing bank notes under act of 1806 should charge that they were feloniously stolen, although by the act it is not denominated a felony, and this error is not cured by the statute of criminal jeofails. Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122.

Evidence.—It is not necessary to produce the stolen notes on trial, and, if produced, not necessary to prove by the officers of the bank that they are genuine. Moore's Case, 2 Leigh 701, 706.

Presumption.—Possession of a lost bank note is not prima facie presumption of guilt of the possessor. Hunt's Case, 13 Grat. 757, 70 Am. Dec. 443.

Variance.—Indictment charges stealing of six dollars in United States treasury notes; the bill of exceptions states that A. was holding "some money," etc. This is an apparent variance between allegata and probata, and therefore judgment is erroneous. Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555.

See notes to section 4440.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 15.

Sec. 4443. How value thereof estimated.—In a prosecution under the preceding section, the money due on or secured by the writing, paper, or book, and remaining unsatisfied, or which in any event might be collected thereon, or the value of the property or money affected thereby, shall be deemed to be the value of the article stolen. (Code 1887, § 3709.)

This section merely prescribes for estimating the value of the paper, and is not a part of the necessary description of the offense prescribed by the preceding sections, although the words "remaining unsatisfied" are usually inserted in the indictment in such cases. Whalen's Case, 90 Va. 546, 19 S. E. 182; Adams' Case, 23 Grat. 949; Robinson's Case, 32 Grat. 866, distinguished Whalen's Case, supra.

Sec. 4444. Larceny may be of things fixed to the freehold.—Things which savor of the realty, and are at the time they are taken, part of the freehold, whether they be of the substance or produce thereof, or affixed thereto, shall be deemed goods and chattels, of which larceny may be committed, although there be no interval between the severing and taking away. (Code 1887, § 3710.)

Sec. 4445. Certain dogs not assessed subject to petit larceny and trespass.—All dogs in the cities of Richmond, Petersburg, and Alexandria and in the county of Henrico, whether listed for taxation or not, shall be deemed personal property, and may be the subject of petit larceny and malicious or unlawful trespass. (Code 1887, § 3711; 1893-4, p. 421; 1897-8, p. 128; 1899-00, p. 1082; 1904, p. 343.)

Revisors' Note.—This section as found in Acts 1904, page 343, after enumerating certain cities and the county of Henrico continues, "and all dogs listed for taxation in any county or city in the State shall be deemed personal property," etc. As this provision is now covered by section 2824, this language is changed to read, "whether listed for taxation or not." No change is made as to dogs within the territory covered by this section. Manchester, being now a part of Richmond, is omitted in the enumeration of cities.

Sec. 4446. Protection of Antwerp and homing pigeons, and to punish their wilful destruction or detention.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to shoot, maim, or kill any Antwerp or homing pigeon knowing them to be such, either in flight or at rest, and any person guilty of shooting, killing, or maiming such pigeon or pigeons as aforesaid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall for every such offense pay a fine of not less than one nor more than twenty-five dollars. It shall also be unlawful for any person or persons to forcibly detain or entrap any Antwerp or homing pigeon which can be identified by any device or mark, and any person or persons so detaining said pigeon or pigeons shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall for every such offense pay a fine of not less than one nor more than twenty-five dollars. (1893-4, p. 804.)

Revisors' Note.—The minimum fine for the acts forbidden by both the first and second sentences has been reduced from ten dollars to one dollar.

Sec. 4447. Removal, etc., of goods distrained or levied on with intent, etc., larceny.—If any person fraudulently remove, destroy, receive, or secrete any goods and chattels that have been distrained or levied on, with intent to defeat such distress or levy, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof. (Code 1887, § 3712.)

An indictment under this section may be for larceny or it may be framed on the language of the statute; but if the latter, the indictment must describe the offense in the terms of the statute, or in language substantially equivalent thereto. Duff's Case, 92 Va. 769, 23 S. E. 643, also note 1 Va. Law Reg. 528.

In either case, to bring the case within the statute, the elements of the offense would have been required to be proved, to wit, that the accused committed the act fraudulently and with intent to defeat the levy. 1 Va. Law Reg. 528.

Sec. 4448. Receiving, etc., stolen goods, knowing, etc., larceny; prosecution therefor.—If any person buy or receive from another person, or aid in concealing any stolen goods or other thing, knowing the same to have been stolen, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof, and may be proceeded against, although the principal offender be not convicted. (Code 1887, § 3714.)

Four essentials of proof.—To sustain prosecution under this statute, four things are necessary: (1) That the goods or other things were previously stolen by some other person; (2) that the accused bought or received them from another person; (3) that at the time he so bought or received or aided in concealing them he knew they had been stolen; (4) that he so bought or received them, or aided in concealing them, malo animo, or with dishonest intent. Hay's Case, 32 Grat. 946, 34 Am. Rep. 799.

On an indictment for larceny, proof of receiving stolen goods knowing them to have been stolen is sufficient to sustain the indictment. Price's Case, 21 Grat. 846.

Counts for larceny may be joined with count for receiving stolen good, etc. Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. Dec. 314. See notes to section 4440 and section 4451.

Guilty knowledge—General rule.—Whenever the intent or guilty knowledge of a party charged with crime is a material ingredient in the issue of the case, other acts and declarations of a similar character, tending to establish such intent or knowledge, are proper evidence to be admitted, provided they are not too remotely connected with the offense charged; and what are the limits as to time and circumstances is for the court, in its discretion, to determine. Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 862.

Evidence to prove knowledge—Character of accused.—On the question whether the accused bought the goods knowing them to have been stolen, the evidence being circumstantial, evidence of the good character of the accused is competent. Hey's Case, 32 Grat. 946, 34 Am. Rep. 799.

Possession of the fruits of crime—Presumption.—The unexplained possession of the fruits of larceny is prima facie evidence of the guilt of that crime. But no such presumption is raised by the possession of objects taken from a house that has been burglarized or from the person of one who has been murdered. Taliaferro's Case, 77 Va. 411; Wright's Case, 82 Va. 183; Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858; Walker's Case, 28 Grat. 976; Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 806, 22 S. E. 352; Price's Case, 21 Grat. 846; Tyler's Case, 120 Va. 868, 91 S. E. 171.

The receiving of a stolen bank note was held not the receiving of stolen goods, within the meaning of the act of 1792, chapter 109. Rutherford's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 141.

For other cases bearing on false pretences, see section 4459.

Sec. 4449. Buying or receiving certain goods with intent to defraud.—If any person buy or receive second-hand grate-baskets, keys, bells and bell-fixtures, gas-fixtures, water-fixtures, water-pipes, gas-pipes, or any part of such fixtures or pipes with intent to defraud he shall be confined in jail not less than one month nor more than six months. Possession of any such second-hand baskets, keys, bells and bell-fixtures, water-fixtures, gas-fixtures, water-pipes, gas-pipes, or any part of such fixtures or pipes if bought or received from any other person than the manufacturer thereof or his authorized agent or the owner thereof shall be prima facie evidence of such intent. (1893-4, p. 509.)

Revisors' Note.—See Acts 1918, chapter 311, p. 485.

Sec. 4450. Buying, etc., pig or railroad iron, brass, metal, or any composition thereof with intent to defraud; how punished; possession evidence of intent.—If any person buy or receive pig iron, or railroad iron, brass, metal, or any composition thereof with intent to defraud he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than two years or in the discretion of the jury in jail not exceeding one year. Possession of any pig iron or railroad iron, brass, metal, or any composition thereof if bought or received from any other person than the manufacturer thereof or his authorized agent or of a regularly licensed dealer therein shall be prima facie evidence of such intent. (Code 1887, § 3715. 1889-90, p. 30.)

Under this section it is essential for the Commonwealth to prove that such articles were bought or received in the manner forbidden by the statute before any presumption will arise from the possession of such articles. This presumption arising from possession is of intent, and not of the fact that the articles were bought or received. Goldman's Case, 100 Va. 865, 42 S. E. 923.

Cited but not construed. Runde v. Commonwealth, 108 Va. 873, 61 S. E. 792.

Sec. 4451. Embezzlement deemed larceny; indictment; statement from attorney for the Commonwealth.—If any person wrongfully and fraudulently use, dispose of, conceal, or embezzle any money, bill, note, check, order, draft, bond, receipt, bill of lading, or any other personal property, tangible or intangible, which he shall have received for another, or for his employer, principal, or bailor, or by virtue of his office, trust, or employment, or which shall have been entrusted or delivered to him by another, or by any court, corporation, or company, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof, and may be indicted as for simple larceny, but proof of embezzlement under this section shall be sufficient to sustain the charge. On the trial of every indictment for larceny, however, the defendant, if he demands it, shall be entitled to a statement in writing from the attorney for the Commonwealth of what statute he intends to rely upon to ask for conviction. (Code 1887, § 3716; 1895-6, p. 676.)

Revisors' Note.—Two important changes have been made in this section.

Near the beginning of it the word "property" has been changed to "personal property, tangible or intangible." This change makes the decision in Pitsnogle v. Com., 91 Va. 810, 22 S. E. 351, statutory in plain terms.

As to the second change, in view of the fact that upon an indictment for larceny the proof may show simple larceny, embezzlement, obtaining goods by false pretenses, or fraudulent removal of goods which have been levied on, etc., the revisors have considered it wise to add the provision found in the last sentence of the section.

As to what is proper evidence to prove embezzlement of a check, see Shinn's Case, 32 Grat. 899.

On an indictment for larceny, proof of embezzlement is sufficient to sustain the charge. Pitsnogle's Case, 91 Va. 808, 811, 22 S. E. 351, 50 Am. St. Rep. 867. See, also, notes to sections 4440, 4448.

In the prosecution of a prisoner for embezzlement by substituting worthless for good securities, the worthless character of the securities substituted must be shown by witnesses who are present and testify as to facts within their personal knowledge. The impossibility of procuring such witnesses cannot justify the introduction of improper evidence. Wadley's Case, 98 Va. 803, 35 S. E. 452.

The conversion of property under a bona fide claim of ownership is not embezzlement. To constitute embezzlement there must be a fraudulent intent to deprive the owner of his property permanently. Wadley's Case, 98 Va. 803, 35 S. E. 452, 5 Va. Law Reg. 822, note.

As to what description of money is sufficient in prosecution for embezzlement, see section 4870.

See notes to section 4926.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 19.

Sec. 4452. Embezzlement by officers, etc., of public funds; how punished; default in paying over funds evidence of guilt.—If any officer, agent, or employee of the State or of any city, town, or county or the deputy of any such officer having custody of public funds knowingly misuse or misappropriate the same or knowingly dispose thereof otherwise than in accordance with law he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years, and any default of such officer, agent, employee, or deputy in paying over said funds to the proper authorities when required by law to do so shall be deemed prima facie evidence of his guilt. (Code 1887, § 3717; 1891-2, p. 748.)

A publication stating that the plaintiff, a chief of police, had collected certain fines of an official, which fines did not appear by the records to have been recorded, is not a charge of crime under this or the preceding section. Moss v. Harwood, 102 Va. 386, 46 S. E. 385.

In the prosecution of a justice for embezzling money collected by him as a fine, it is not necessary to show the magisterial district in which the justice was an officer. Robinson v. Com., 104 Va. 888, 52 S. E. 690.

In a prosecution of embezzlement against a justice for money collected by him as a fine, a conviction may be had on showing a misappropriation of a part of it. Id.

Where a justice of the peace collects a fine and misuses or misappropriates the same he is indictable under this section. Id.

Under a charge of embezzlement the fact that defendant made restitution of the fruits of his crime after the completion of the offense is no defense. Id.

In a prosecution of a justice for embezzlement of funds collected by him as a fine, evidence as to the custom of other justices with reference to paying same over should be excluded. Id.

Sec. 4453. Sale, pledge, etc., of goods, produce, etc., belonging to another and failure to pay over proceeds, deemed larceny.—If any person store or ship goods, wares, merchandise, grain, flour, or other produce or commodity, in his own name, being in the possession thereof for or on account of another, and sell, negotiate, pledge, or hypothecate the same, or any part thereof, or the receipt or bill of lading received therefor, and fraudulently fail to account for or pay over to his principal, or the owner of the property, the amount so received on such sale, negotiation, pledge, or hypothecation, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof. (Code 1887, § 3718; 1895-6, p. 676.)

Embezzlement by waterman holding himself out to be captain of a boat. Smith's Case, 4 Grat. 532.

Sec. 4454. Failure to perform promise to deliver crop, or, etc., in return for advances, deemed larceny.—If any person obtain from another an advance of money, merchandise, or other thing, upon a promise in writing that he will send or deliver to such other person his crop, or other property, and fraudulently fail or refuse to perform such promise, and also fail to make good such advance, he shall be deemed guilty of the larceny of such money, merchandise, or other thing. (Code 1887, § 3719.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "and also fail to make good such advance" inserted after the second "promise" are new.

See Acts 1918, chapter 179, p. 312. The act of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 12) referred to in the title of the act of 1918 (but not in the enacting clause) does not appear in this Code.

Sec. 4455. In relation to the fraudulent conversion of property held under a trust deed.—Whenever any person is in possession of any personal property, in any capacity, the title or ownership of which he has agreed in writing shall be or remain in another, and such person so in possession shall fraudulently sell, pledge, pawn, or remove from the premises where it has been agreed that the property shall remain, and refuse to disclose the location thereof, or otherwise dispose of the property without the written consent of the owner or the person in whom the title is, or if such writing be a deed of trust, without the written consent of the trustee or beneficiary in such deed of trust, he shall be deemed guilty of the larceny thereof; and in any prosecution hereunder, the fact that such person, after demand therefor by the person in whom the title or ownership of the property is, or his agent, shall fail or refuse to disclose to such claimant or his agent, the location of the property, or to surrender the same, shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of the provisions of this section.

This section shall not be construed to interfere with the rights of any innocent third party purchasing said property, unless such writing shall be docketed or recorded as provided by law. (1887, p. 505; 1897-8, p. 371; 1904, p. 331; 1916, p. 513.)

Sec. 4456. Failure to pay for or refusal to return goods, wares or merchandise delivered for selection or approval larceny in certain cases.—If any person shall solicit and obtain from any licensed merchant any goods, wares or merchandise for examination or approval, and shall thereafter, upon written demand, refuse or fail to return the same to such merchant in unused condition, or to pay for the same, such person so offending shall be deemed guilty of the larceny thereof. But the provisions of this section shall not apply unless such written demand be made within five days after delivery, and unless the goods, wares or merchandise shall have attached to them or to the package in which they are contained a label, card or tag containing the words, "Delivered for selection or approval." (1916, p. 498.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken provided that, "If any person, WITH INTENT TO CHEAT AND DEFRAUD, shall solicit and obtain," etc. The capitalized words are omitted, because if there be the intent to cheat and defraud, the person is guilty of obtaining property under false pretenses under section 4459. As revised, the section makes the intent to cheat and defraud unnecessary.

Sec. 4457. Fraudulent entries, or, etc., with intent, etc., in accounts, by officers or clerks of banks, or joint stock company; how punished.—If any officer or clerk of any bank or joint stock company make, alter, or omit to make any entry in any account kept in such bank, or by such company, with intent, in so doing, to conceal the true state of such account, or to defraud the said bank or company, or to enable or assist any person to obtain money to which he was not entitled, such officer or clerk shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3720.)

Sec. 4458. Destroying or concealing a will; how punished.—If any person fraudulently destroy or conceal any will or codicil, with intent to prevent the probate thereof, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3721.)

See 7 Va. Law Reg. 455, 461, 462.

Sec. 4459. Obtaining money, etc., by false pretense, etc., with intent, etc., larceny; obtaining signature by false pretense, etc., with such intent, forgery.—If any person obtain, by any false pretense or token, from any person, with intent to defraud, money or other property which may be the subject of larceny, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny thereof; or if he obtain, by any false pretense or token, with such intent, the signature of any person to a writing, the false making whereof would be forgery, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3722.)

Revisors' Note.—Material increase in the punishment. Formerly the confinement in the penitentiary was one to five years. This did not harmonize with the punishment provided for by section 4489 (section 3737, as found in Acts 1912, p. 111), that is to say, one to ten years. As revised, section 4489 makes the punishment two to ten years. The punishment prescribed in the two sections is now the same.

For "An act to punish the making or use of false statements to obtain property or credit," see Acts 1918, p. 453.

Elements of the offense.—Four things must concur to constitute the offense described in the statute: (1) An intent to defraud; (2) actual fraud committed; (3) false pretences must be used for the purpose of perpetrating the fraud; (4) the fraud must be accomplished by means of the false pretences. Anable's Case 24 Grat. 567.

The gravamen of the offense is that the pretences are false. Id.

The false pretences must have been believed by the party whose property was taken (Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 864), and must have had a decided weight and influence upon the mind of the owner (Fay's Case, 28 Grat. 912).

The fraudulent intent must be averred and proved (Anable's Case, 24 Grat. 563, 570; Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 872); and must have existed at the time the false pretences were made by which the money was obtained (Fay's Case, 28 Grat. 912); and is a question of fact for the jury (Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 862); and may be proved by other acts and declarations of a similar character, tending to establish such intent or knowledge, provided they are not too remotely connected with the offense charged (Hey's Case, 32 Grat. 946, 34 Am. Rep. 799; Trogdon's Case, supra).

In an indictment for larceny, proof of obtaining money by false pretences will sustain the indictment. But, to sustain the prosecution, the Commonwealth must prove every ingredient required in an indictment for obtaining money by false pretences. Fay's Case, 28 Grat. 912; Trodgdon's Case, 31 Grat. 862. See, also, notes to sections 4440, 4448; and Leftwich's Case, 20 Grat. 716; Price's Case, 21 Grat. 846; Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. Dec. 314; Anable's Case, 24 Grat. 566; Lewis v. Com., 120 Va. 875, 91 S. E. 174.

If clerk charge the jury in the usual form of larceny, and it appears that the money charged to have been stolen was obtained by false pretences, another charge by the clerk is neither necessary nor proper. Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 966.

Accessories.—As to what conduct will amount to aiding and abetting the crime, see Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 966.

Description of subject-matter.—The general rule as to the description of the subject-matter is that it should be described with such a certainty as will enable the jury to decide whether the chattel proved to have been stolen is the very same with that upon which the indictment is founded, and show judicially to the court that it could have been the subject-matter of the offense charged, and enable the defendant to plead his acquittal or conviction to a subsequent indictment relating to the same chattel. Anable's Case, 24 Grat. 563.

Accused was charged in the indictment with the larceny of money, whereas the proof showed the larceny of a check, on which the money was obtained. Held, that the ultimate offense of obtaining money by false pretences was supported by the evidence that such money was fraudulently obtained by means of a check fraudulently acquired, and that in every real sense money was paid to the accused, hence, that the charge in the indictment was substantially proved. Lewis v. Com., 120 Va. 875, 91 S. E. 174.

As to what description of money is sufficient in prosecution for obtaining money under false pretences, see section 4870 and notes.

False token—What is meant by—A false token is some real visible mark or thing, such as a key or ring presented by the party as coming from a third person, by which the person defrauded is deceived. Note to Speer's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 67.

Cheat at common law.—Falsely procuring the goods of others by means of a false and counterfeit note purporting to be the note of a bank, but which bank never existed, knowing said note to be false and counterfeit, is indictable as a cheat at common law. Com. v. Speer. 2 Va. Cas. 65.

Sec. 4460. To punish false pretense in obtaining registration of cattle and other animals and giving false pedigree.—Every person who by any false pretense shall obtain from any club, association, society, or company for improving the breed of cattle, horses, sheep, swine, or other domestic animals the registration of any animal in the herd register or other register of any such club, association, society, or company, or a transfer of any such registration, and every person who shall knowingly give a false pedigree of any animal shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by confinement in jail for a period not exceeding twelve months or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or both. (1887, p. 38.)

Sec. 4461. Sale of goods marked "sterling," and "sterling silver."—A person who makes or sells or offers to sell or dispose of or has in his possession with intent to sell or dispose of any article of merchandise marked, stamped, or branded with the words "sterling" or "sterling silver," or encased or enclosed in any box, package, cover, or wrapper, or other thing in or by which the said article is packed, enclosed, or otherwise prepared for sale or disposition having thereon any engraving or printed label, stamp, imprint, mark, or trade-mark indicating or denoting by such marking, stamping, branding, engraving, or printing that such article is silver, sterling silver, or solid silver, unless nine hundred and twenty-five one thousandths part of the component parts of the metal of which the said article manufactured is pure silver, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred and fifty dollars and in default of payment be confined in jail not less than ten nor more than sixty days or both. (1895-6, p. 349.)

Sec. 4462. Sale of goods marked "coin silver."—A person who makes or sells or offers to sell or dispose of or has in his possession with intent to sell or dispose of any article of merchandise marked, stamped, or branded with words "coin" or "coin silver," or encased or enclosed in any box, package, cover, or wrapper, or other thing in or by which the said article is packed, enclosed, or otherwise prepared for sale or disposition having thereon any engraving or printed label, stamp, imprint, mark or trade-mark indicating or denoting by such marking, stamping, branding, engraving, or printing that such article is coin or coin silver, unless nine hundred one-thousandths part of the component parts of the metal of which the said article is manufactured is pure silver, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred and fifty dollars and in default of payment be confined in jail not less than ten nor more than sixty days or both. (1895-6, p. 349.)

Sec. 4463. Regulating sale of merchandise made of gold.—Any person who makes or sells or offers to sell or dispose of or has in his possession with intent to sell or dispose of any article of merchandise made of gold of a less carat of fineness than is stamped or marked on it or of a less carat of fineness than is engraved, printed, stamped, or imprinted on the tag, card, box, label, package, wrapper, cover, or other thing in or by whic hthe said article is packed, enclosed, or otherwise prepared for sale or disposition shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred and fifty dollars for such offense and in default of payment be confined in jail not less than ten nor more than sixty days or both (1895-6, p. 349.)

Sec. 4464. Protection of hotels and boarding-houses.—Whoever puts up at a hotel or boarding-house and without having an express agreement for credit procures food, entertainment, or accommodation without paying therefor and with intent to cheat or de fraud the owner or keeper of such hotel or boarding-house out of the pay for the same; or with intent to cheat or defraud such owner or keeper out of the pay therefor obtains credit at a hotel or boarding-house for such food, entertainment, or accommodation by means of any false show of baggage or effects brought thereto; or with such intent obtains credit at a hotel or boarding-house for such food, entertainment, or accommodation through any misrepresentation or false statement; or with such intent removes or causes to be removed any baggage or effects from a hotel or boarding-house, while there is a lien existing thereon for the proper charges due from him for fare and board furnished therein, shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding three months or by fine not exceeding fifty dollars. (1893-4, p. 970.)

The constitutionality of a somewhat similar statute has been upheld, in re Milecke, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 259.

Sec. 4465. Fraud in the issuance, sale, etc., of stocks, bonds, etc., or city or town lots; how punished.—If any person, including a corporation or association, and the officers or agents thereof, alone or in common with others, having devised or intending to devise any scheme or artifice to defraud by the issuance, sale, promotion, negotiation or distribution of any stocks, bonds, notes or other securities or contracts, or city, town or suburban lots, shall in or for executing such scheme or artifice or in attempting to do so, commit any overt act within this State, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars or by confinement in jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Prosecutions for violations of this section shall be only by indictment or presentment in the court having jurisdiction. (1916, p. 835)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from paragraphs one and four of the act cited. Paragraphs two and three of the act are made section 3714, found in chapter 146, which is on the State Corporation Commission. A comprehensive law on frauds of this nature was passed in 1918. (Acts 1918, p. 676).

See note, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 146.

Sec. 4466. Wilfully destroying a vessel; how punished.—If any person wilfully scuttle, cast away, or otherwise dispose of, or in any manner destroy, except where otherwise provided, a ship, vessel, or other water craft, with intent to injure or defraud any owner thereof, or of any property on board the same, or any insurer of such ship, vessel, or other water craft, or any part thereof, or any such property on board of same, if the same be of the value of fifty dollars, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years, but if it be of less value than fifty dollars, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3723.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been rewritten so as to make its supposed meaning clearer, to make the method of injury or destruction more comprehensive, and to graduate the punishment.

Sec. 4467. Poisoning, killing, maiming, or disfiguring horses, cattle, or other beasts; how punished.—If any person maliciously administer poison to or expose it with intent that it shall be taken by any horse, cattle, or other beast of any other person; or if he poison or kill his own horse, cattle, or other beast for the purpose of defrauding any insurer thereof; or if any person maliciously shoot, stab, cut, or wound any horse, mule, or cattle of any person with intent to kill or injure the same, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. And if any person unlawfully shoot, stab, cut, or wound any horse, mule, or cattle of any person, or unlawfully and maliciously shoot, stab, cut, or otherwise wound or poison any fowl of another, or any dog of another which has been listed or assessed for taxation, with intent to maim, disfigure, disable or kill the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3724; 1901-2, p. 687.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been rewritten and materially changed. The punishment is annexed if the act charged in the first part of the section is done maliciously and with intent to kill or INJURE. The original act said "kill or DESTROY." The original act made the punishment confinement in the penitentiary three to ten years, or in the discretion of the jury, confinement in jail not less than six nor more than twelve months, and a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. The revisors thought that the offense was of such nature that it should be punished by confinement in the penitentiary from two to ten years. As to acts made unlawful by the latter part of the section, the revisors have extended the protection to fowls and to dogs listed or assessed for taxation. The revisors thought the punishment prescribed by the former law too severe. It fixed the punishment at from one to three years in the penitentiary, or in the discretion of the jury, confinement in jail not exceeding twelve months and a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. Now the offense is simply declared to be a misdemeanor.

See Gregory's Forms, No. 693.

Sec. 4468. Obstructing or injuring canal, railroad, etc.; how punished.—If any person maliciously obstruct, remove, or injure any part of a canal, railroad, or urban, suburban or interurban electric railway, or any lines of any electric power company, or any bridge or fixture thereof, or maliciously obstruct, tamper with, injure, or remove any machinery, engine, car, trolley, supply or return wires, or any other work thereof, or maliciously open, close, displace, tamper with, or injure any switch, switch point, or switch lever, or signal of any such company, whereby the life of any passenger or other person on such canal, railroad, urban, suburban, or interurban electric railway, is put in peril, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years; and, in the event of the death of any passenger or other person resulting from such malicious act, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of murder, the degree to be determined by the jury.

If any act be committed unlawfully, but not maliciously, the person so offending shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years, or at the discretion of the jury, be confined in jail not to exceed twelve months and fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3725; 1893-4, p. 662; 1904, p. 294; 1906, p. 447.)

Sec. 4469. Being on track of railroad, etc., or driving, etc., any animal thereon, etc.; how punished.—If any person be on the track of a railroad within one hundred yards of an approaching train otherwise than in passing over such road at a public or private crossing, or wilfully ride, drive, or lead any animal, or contrive for any animal to go on such track, except in crossing as aforesaid, without the consent of the railroad company or person operating such road, he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3726.)

Sec. 4470. Trespassers forbidden to jump on or off railroad cars or trains.—If any person, not being a passenger or employee, but a trespasser, shall jump on or off any railroad car or train on its arrival, stay, or departure at or from any station or depot of such railroad, or on the passage of any such car or train over any part of any such railroad, such person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than two dollars and fifty cents, nor more than ten dollars, or by imprisonment in jail not exceeding thirty days, or both. (1899-00, p. 743.)

Sec. 4471. Trespassing upon railroad trains; how punished.—If any person, not being a passenger or employee, shall be found trespassing upon any railroad car or train of any railroad in this State, by riding on any car, or any part thereof, on its arrival, stay, or departure at or from any station or depot of such railroad, or on the passage of any such car or train over any part of any such railroad, such person so offending shall be deemed a disorderly person, and on conviction as such, shall be punished by a fine of not less than two dollars and fifty cents nor exceeding twenty-five dollars, or by imprisonment in jail not exceeding thirty days, or both. (1899-00, p. 775.)

Sec. 4472. Taking or removing waste or packing from journal boxes, etc.; how punished.—If any person shall wilfully and maliciously take or remove the waste or packing from out any journal box, or boxes, of any locomotive, engine, tender, carriage, coach, car, caboose, or truck used or operated upon any railroad, whether the same be operated by steam or electricity, he shall, upon conviction thereof, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years, or in jail not less than one nor more than twelve months, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (1904, p. 132.)

Sec. 4473. Punishment for shooting at or throwing stones or other missiles at any train, car, vessel, or river craft.—If any person maliciously shoot at, or maliciously throw any stones, or other missiles, at or against any train, or cars on any railroad or other transportation company, or at, or against, any vessel or other water craft, whereby the life of any passenger or other person on such train or car, or on such vessel, or other water craft, may be put in peril, the person or persons so offending, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years; and, in the event of the death of any passenger or other person, resulting from such malicious shooting or throwing, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of murder, the degree to be determined by the jury. If any such act be committed unlawfully, but not maliciously, the person so offending shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one, nor more than three years, or, at the discretion of the jury, be confined in jail not to exceed twelve months, and fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (1904, p. 293.)

Revisors' Note.—The minimum punishment for violating the first part of the first sentence has been decreased from five to two years.

Sec. 4474. Injuring, destroying, or removing switch-lamp, flag-lamp, or other signal used by any railroad; how punished.—If any person maliciously injure, destroy, or remove any switch-lamp, flag, or other signal used by any railroad whereby the life of any traveler, employee, or other person is or may be put in peril he shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years, and in the event of the death of any traveler, employee, or other person resulting from such malicious injuring, destroying, or removing the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of murder, the degree to be determined by the jury. If such act be done unlawfully but not maliciously the offender shall, in the discretion of the jury, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years or be confined in jail not exceeding twelve months and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars; and in the event of the death of any traveler, employee, or other person resulting from such unlawful injuring, destroying, or removing the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of murder or of manslaughter, as the jury may determine. (1897-8, p. 506.)

Revisors' Note.—The maximum confinement in the penitentiary prescribed in the first part of the second sentence has been decreased from five to three years.

Sec. 4475. Driving, etc., any animal on track of railroad with view to recover damages; how punished.—If any person, with a view to the recovery of damages against a railroad company, wilfully ride, drive, or lead any animal, or otherwise contrive for any animal to go on the railroad track of such company, and such animal is by reason thereof killed or injured, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years, or, in the discretion of the jury, confined in jail not exceeding one year and fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3727.)

Sec. 4476. Injury to or destruction of fences or cattle stops along the line of railroads a misdemeanor; penalty.—Any person who shall wilfully or maliciously cut or break down, injure, or destroy any fence erected along the line of any railroad, for the purpose of fencing the track or depot grounds of such road, or shall break down, injure, or destroy any cattle stop along the line of any railroad, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by confinement in jail not less than fifteen days, or fined not less than ten dollars, or both. (1899-00, p. 571.)

Revisors' Note.—The insertion of the words "wilfully or" before "maliciously" makes this section cover the offense described in section 3728 of the Code of 1887. That section prescribed a higher penalty than the act cited at the end of section 4476 above, although in that act the word "maliciously" and not "wilfully," was used. No other change is made in the act constituting section 4476, and section 3728 of the Code of 1887 has been omitted and thereby repealed.

Sec. 4477. Unlawful use of, or injury to, telephone and telegraph lines.—Any person

1. Who shall maliciously injure, molest, cut down, or destroy any telephone or telegraph line, wire, cable, or pole, or the material or property belonging thereto; or

2. Who shall maliciously cut, break, tap, or make any connection with any telephone or telegraph line, wire, cable, or instrument of any telegraph or telephone company which has legally acquired the right of way by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise; or

3. Who shall maliciously copy in any unauthorized manner any message, either social, business, or otherwise, passing over it in this State; or

4. Who shall wilfully or maliciously prevent, obstruct, or delay by any means or contrivance whatsoever the sending, conveyance, or delivery in this State of any authorized communication by or through any telephone or telegraph line, wire, or cable under the control of any telephone or telegraph company doing business in this State; or

5. Who shall maliciously aid, agree with, employ, or conspire with any unauthorized person or persons to unlawfully do or cause to be done any of the acts hereinbefore mentioned,

Shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (1897-8, p. 587.)

Revisors' Note.—In addition to changes in arrangement and phraseology, the punishment for a violation of this section is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782.

Sec. 4478. To protect electric light and power companies, gas companies, and cities and towns from the theft of electric current or gas or apparatus, or unlawful interference therewith.—Any person who shall unlawfully injure or destroy, or having the right to prevent it shall permit to be injured or destroyed any meter, pipe, conduit, wire, line, post, lamp, or other apparatus belonging to a city or town or to a company engaged in the manufacture or sale of electricity or gas for lighting or power purposes, or who shall unlawfully prevent an electric or gas meter from duly registering the quantity of electricity or gas supplied, or in any way unlawfully interefere with its proper action or just registration, or who shall without the consent of such company or city or town unlawfully divert any electric current from any wire of such company or city or town, or who shall otherwise unlawfully use or cause to be used without the consent of such company or city or town any electricity or gas manufactured or distributed by such company or city or town, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (1897-8, p. 254.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment for a violation of this section is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782.

Sec. 4479. Injuring, etc., any property, or removing, etc., any monument erected for, etc., or tree marked for, etc.; how punished.—If any person, unlawfully, but not feloniously, take and carry away, or destroy, deface, or injure any property, real or personal, not his own, or break down, destroy, deface, injure or remove any monument erected for the purpose of marking the site of any engagement fought during the War between the States, or for the purpose of designating the boundaries of any city, town, tract of land, or any tree marked for that purpose, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3729; 1914, p. 498.)

Statute embraced slaves, domestic animals, but not dogs.—The statute of 1822-3, chapter 34, from which this section came, embraced living domestic animals, and the fact of the property being at the time of the trespass on the land of the defendant did not prevent the operation of the statute. Percavil's Case, 4 Leigh, 686. The statute embraced slaves (Howard's Case, 11 Leigh 631); but not dogs (Maclin's Case, 3 Leigh, 877 [809]; Davis' Case, 17 Grat. 617).

A party removing a fence from land to which he has a title is not indictable under the statute. Campbell's Case, 2 Rob. 791. See, also, Ratcliffe's Case, 5 Grat. 657; Wise's Case, 98 Va. 839, 36 S. E. 479.

An indictment charging that defendant knowingly, etc., removed a fence from the lands of P., and did injure and expose the growing crop of P. then on said land, charges but one offense, and is valid. Ratcliffe's Case, 5 Grat. 657.

The offence under the statute consists in unlawfully taking away, etc., the property of another, and it ought to appear by the indictment that it is the property of another. Israel's Case, 4 Leigh 677.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 145, section 27.

Sec. 4480. Unauthorized use of automobiles or motor vehicles.—Any person who, without the consent of the owner, shall take, or cause to be taken, an automobile or motor vehicle, and operate or drive, or cause the same to be operated or driven for his own private use or purpose, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (1912, p. 566; 1916, p. 776.)

Revisors' Note.—The phraseology of the present section obviates the question of the application of the rule ejusdem generis, and the punishment is as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782, in this respect following the act of 1912 cited at the end of the section.

For note on unauthorized use of an automobile at common law, see 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 158.

Sec. 4481. Pulling down fences or leaving open gates; how punished.—If any person without permission of the owner pull down the fence of another and leave the same down, or without permission open and leave open the gate of another or any gate across a public road established by order of court, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered before a justice of the peace. (Code 1887, § 3730; 1891-2, p. 403.)

Revisors' Note.—See, as affecting this section, Acts 1918, chapter 88, p. 140.

Sec. 4482. Injuries to public buildings, etc.; how punished.—If any person wilfully and maliciously break any window or door may be of an unchartered bank. Murry's Case, 5 Leigh, 720. The bank's charter may be unconstitutional. Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 712. It is not necessary to prove the notes to be counterfeit by an officer of the bank of which the notes are counterfeited. Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745. Parol evidence is allowed to prove existence of bank. Cady's Case, 10 Grat. 776.

Indictment.—An indictment for causing and procuring a counterfeited bank note to be offered to be passed, without stating by whom or how the accused caused and procured it to be done, is sufficiently certain and good. Brown's Case, 2 Leigh 832 (769); Murry's Case, 5 Leigh.722.

In an indictment for passing a counterfeit note it is not necessary to allege that the bank is a chartered bank, or that there is no such bank, or that the note was passed "to the prejudice of another's right," or "for the prisoner's own benefit," or "for the benefit of another." Murry's Case, 5 Leigh 720. See section 4873.

Joining of offenses in one count.—In the same count may be charged the offense of falsely making, forging and counterfeiting, causing to and procuring to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited; and willing by acting and assisting in the said false making, etc. Rasnick's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 356, and notes thereto Va. Rep. Anno.

Uttering counterfeit coin—Scienter—Presumption of fact.—In a prosecution for uttering counterfeit coin, guilty knowledge of prisoner is an essential fact to be proved. There can be no presumption of law from other facts of this guilty knowledge, though there may be a presumption of fact. Wash's Case, 16 Grat. 530, and note thereto Va. Rep. Anno. See, also, Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 801; Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 708; Finn's Case, 5 Rand. 701.

Generally.—It is not necessary to produce the coin or to account for its existence. Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627.

One who brightens base pieces is guilty of counterfeiting. Rasnick's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 356.

A prisoner examined for forging and counterfeiting under section 4487, and sent on to the circuit court, cannot be indicted under section 4490. Page's Case, 9 Leigh 687.

See notes to section 4489; also note on Forgery and Counterfeiting, Coleman's Case, 25 Grat. 865, Va. Rep. Anno., 23 Am. Rep. 711; Min. Syn. 128, et seq.

Sec. 4488. Making or having in possession anything designed for forging any writing; how punished.—If any person engrave, stamp, or cast, or otherwise make or mend, any plate, block, press, or other thing, adapted and designed for the forging and false making of any writing or other thing, the forging or false making whereof is punishable by this chapter; or if such person have in possession any such plate, block, press, or other thing, with intent to use, or cause or permit it to be used, in forging or false making any such writing or other thing, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3736.)

For indictment under this section insufficient on account of description of die or instrument, see Scott's Case, 1 Rob. 695.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 146, section 4.

Sec. 4489. Forging, uttering, etc., other writings; how punished.—If any person forge any writing, other than such as is mentioned in sections forty-four hundred and eighty-four and forty-four hundred and eighty-seven, to the prejudice of another's right, or utter, or attempt to employ as true, such forged writing, knowing it to be forged, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3737; 1912, p. 111.)

Revisors' Note.—This section increases the minimum punishment from one year to two years, thus restoring the Code of 1887 as to the minimum punishment.

Definition at common law.—Forgery is the making of a false writing which, if genuine, would be apparently of legal sufficiency. Terry's Case, 87 Va. 674, 13 S. E. 104; Gordon's Case, 100 Va. 825, 41 S. E. 746, 57 L. R. A. 744. See 8 Va. Law Reg. 80-84.

Any forgery which is not enumerated in the statute is still indictable at common law. Com. v. Ayer, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 150; State v. Morton, 27 Vt. 310, 65 Am. Dec. 201.

Forgery and uttering separate offenses.—Forgery and uttering a forged instrument are separate offenses. Johnson's Case, 102 Va. 927, 46 S. E. 789.

Subjects of forgery.—The writings must not be invalid on their face. Terry's Case, 87 Va. 674, 13 S. E. 104. The statute predicates the offense only of such writings as are or may be to the prejudice of another's right. Terry's Case, 87 Va. 672, 13 S. E. 104; Powell's Case, 11 Grat. 822. An instrument is one of legal efficacy, within the rules relating to forgery, where, by any possibility, it may operate to the injury of another. Gordon's Case, 100 Va. 829, 41 S. E. 746, 57 L. R. A. 744; Linton's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 476. A bail bond taken by a sheriff may be a subject of forgery. Linton's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 476. Also the forging of the indorsement of a note. Powell's Case, 11 Grat. 822. Also the check of a bank whose charter is unconstitutional. Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 708. Also a receipt. Gordon's Case, 100 Va. 826, 832, 41 S. E. 746, 57 L. R. A. 744. But a letter recommending a person to credit was held not to be a subject of forgery at common law or under statutes. Foulkes' Case, 2 Rob. 836. See, also, Proctor's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 4. As to forgery of an instrument void for want of revenue stamp, see 5 Va. Law Reg. 193.

It is immaterial that the note was not indorsed by the payee. Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 707.

Indictment—Description of forged document.—If the description of the document would be good in case of an indictment for larceny, it is sufficient. Coleman's Case, 25 Grat. 866, 23 Am. Rep. 711; Pomeroy's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 342. See section 4871; also sections 4870 and 4440.

It is not necessary to state who is the maker of a note nor where it is payable. Cocke's Case, 13 Grat. 750. Nor is it necessary to insert the words, "to the prejudice of another's right." Powell's Case, 11 Grat. 822. Nor is it necessary to state in the indictment the person intended to be injured. Section 4873. Nor to set out the indorsements on the note, or any other matter written upon the same paper, constituting no part of the note itself, and not entering into the essential description of that instrument. Perkin's Case, 7 Grat. 651, 56 Am. Dec. 123. See, also, Powell's Case, 11 Grat. 822.

The description of the writing in the indictment as the indorsement of the person whose name is forged will not vitiate the indictment, though the simulated liability might not be that of technical indorser, but of a different character. Powell's Case, 11 Grat. 822.

An indictment, instead of setting out the tenor of the forged notes, has the notes annexed, and a reference thereto. The plea is the general issue. Although this is a careless and irregular mode of counting, the irregularity is cured by the statute of jeofails. Ervin's Case, 2 Va. 337.

Misjoinder of counts.—An indictment charging in one count the forgery of a check and of the indorsement thereon is not liable to the objection of duplicity or misjoinder. Sprouse's Case, 81 Va. 374.

Digitized by Google

New indictment—Variance—Autrefois acquit.—First indictment was for forgery of an order for forty-seven dollars and twenty-five cents, while the order produced was for for forty-seven dollars and twenty-three cents. This was a variance which entitled the accused to acquittal on that indictment. But the acquittal on that indictment does not forbid prosecution of accused on another indictment for same forgery, setting out order correctly. Burress' Case, 27 Grat. 934.

For indictment as principal in the second degree, see Huffman's Case, 6 Rand. 685; Rasnick's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 356.

Evidence.—Counterfeit notes passed by prisoner's confederate in the presence of prisoner are proper evidence. Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745. The Commonwealth may disprove the genuineness of the signature by any one acquainted with the party's handwriting. Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745; Foulkes' Case, 2 Rob. 836; Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 734; Burress' Case, 27 Grat. 935. The forged paper is proper evidence, notwithstanding its date has been changed since it was passed. Huffman's Case, 6 Rand. 685. If the original paper be lost, secondary evidence of the contents, character, and description of the paper is admissible to sustain the prosecution. Pendleton's Case, 4 Leigh 694, 26 Am. Dec. 342; Foulkes' Case, 2 Rob. 837; Cocke's Case, 13 Grat. 755.

Possession of similar forged notes or the implements for making them is prima facie presumptive evidence that the prisoner was the forger. Spencer's Case, 2 Leigh 751. As to evidence to prove pecuniary condition of obligor in a forged note, see Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 734; Sands' Case, Id. 800.

As to prisoner's furnishing evidence against himself which was not compulsory, see Sprouse's Case, 81 Va. 374. As to effect of prisoner's failure to produce evidence, see Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 735.

It seems it is a question of fact for the jury to decide by whom the forgery of the paper was committed. Perkins' Case, 7 Grat. 656, 56 Am. Dec. 123; Spencer's Case, 2 Leigh 751.

The accused being in possession of the forged order, drawn in his own favor, is a fact constituting complete proof that either by himself, or by false conspiracy with others, he forged or assented to the forgery of the instrument, until he shows that he is not the actual perpetrator, and that he himself was not privy. Perkins' Case, 7 Grat. 656, 56 Am. Dec. 123. In the case of a bank note, contra. Id.

Special verdict—Law with the prisoner.—Kearns' Case, 1 Va. Cas. 109.

Attempting to employ as true forged writing—Scienter.—Guilty knowledge of the prisoner is an essential fact to be proved. There can be no presumption of law from other facts of this guilty knowledge, but it is to be judged by the jury, and may be inferred from the unexplained possession of similar forged writings, and from having about the same time passed other writings of the same kind. Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 708; Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745; Spencer's Case, Id. 751; Finn's Case, 5 Rand. 701; Wash's Case, 16 Grat. 540; Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 801; Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 734. See, also, Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 862.

There must also be a fraudulent intent, of which the jury is to judge; and this intent ought to be inferred from the false making or any writing which is the subject of forgery. Wash's Case, 16 Grat. 540; Trogdon's Case, 31 Grat. 871; Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 801; Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 734.

Any assertion or declaration, by word or act, directly or indirectly, that the forged writing is good, with such knowledge and intent, is an uttering or attempt to employ as true the writing. Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 801; Chahoon's Case, Id. 734.

For circumstances making the bringing suit on a forged note an attempt to employ the same as true, within the meaning of the statute, see Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 735; Sands' Case, Id. 800.

In all cases of tendering, offering, passing, or uttering counterfeit notes the indictment is sufficiently certain if it pursues the words of the statute; if it sets forth the tenor of the instrument, thereby giving a precise certainty; if it sets forth the scienter, and the intent to defraud some person or corporate body by name. Brown's Case, 2 Leigh 837 (773).

It is not necessary to set forth in the count the persons whom the prisoner procured to forge the instrument, or with whom he acted and assisted in the forgery. A general description, in the words of the statute, is sufficient. Huffman's Case, 6 Rand. 685; Brown's Case, 2 Leigh, 832 (769); Ervin & Lewis' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 337.

Generally.—See notes to section 4487; also note to Coleman's Case, 25 Grat. 865, Va. Rep. Anno., 23 Am. Rep. 711; Min. Syn. 128, et seq. See article in 8 Va. Law Reg. 79, 321.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 146, section 5.

Sec. 4490. Having in possession, knowingly, forged coin or bank notes, with intent to utter same, etc., or selling same, etc., so as to enable another to do so; how punished.—If any person have in his possession forged bank notes, forged or base coin, such as are mentioned in section forty-four hundred and eighty-seven, knowing the same to be forged or base, with the intent to utter or employ the same as true, or to sell, exchange, or deliver them, so as to enable any other person to utter or employ them as true, he shall, if the number of such notes or coins in his possession at the same time, be ten or more, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years; and if the number be less than ten, be punished as for a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3738.)

The charge in an indictment under this section that the prisoner had more than ten pieces of forged or base coin on a certain day is not sufficient; the indictment must allege he had them in his possession at the same time. Scott's Case, 14 Grat. 687.

The forging of coin (section 4487), the felonious having in possession such forged coin (section 4490), and the uttering and publishing the same (section 4489), are distinct and substantive offenses. They are kindred in character, but it cannot be said that any one is the major, and includes within itself all the elements of the other two or of either of them. Scott's Case, 14 Grat. 687; Page's Case, 9 Leigh, 683; Mowbray's Case, 11 Leigh, 643. Therefore a prisoner examined under section 4487, as the law was, could not be indicted under section 4490. Scott's Case, 14 Grat. 687.

See notes to sections 4487 and 4489, and the following cases: Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745; Spencer's Case, Id. 751; Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 708.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 146, section 6.

Sec. 4491. Sec. 4493. What deemed perjury.—If any person, to whom an oath is lawfully administered on any occasion, wilfully swear falsely on such occasion touching any material matter or thing, or if a person falsely make oath that any other person is twenty-one years of age, in order to obtain a marriage license for such other person, he shall be guilty of perjury. (Code 1887, § 3741.)

Perjury.—For definition at common law, see Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 828, 24 S. E. 272; Pickering's Case, 8 Grat. 628, 56 Am. Dec. 158.

At common law, as well as under the statute, four things are essential to constitute the offense: (1) The oath must be wilful; (2) it must be false; (3) it must be taken before competent authority; (4) the thing sworn to must be material. Rhodes' Case, 78 Va. 692; Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272; Crump's Case, 75 Va. 922; Pickering's Case, 8 Grat. 628, 56 Am. Dec. 158.

The indictment must charge that the defendant feloniously and wilfully swore falsely, or must use in the place of the word "wilfully" some equivalent. Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272.

It is indispensable to charge that the defendant swore falsely, but not necessary to aver that he swore absolutely and positively. Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272; Thomas' Case, 2 Rob. 795. See, also, Cook's Case, 1 Rob. 729.

The oath may be before a justice on a warrant trial (Litton's Case, 6 Grat. 691); before a regimental court of inquiry (Conner's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 30); by a juror on his voir dire (Stockley's Case, 10 Leigh 678); before clerk on application for marriage license (section 4493, overruling Williamson's Case, 4 Grat. 555). See, also, Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 857. For other cases, see Roach's Case, 1 Grat. 561; Lodge's Case, 2 Grat. 579; Calvert's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 181; Cook's Case, 1 Rob. 729.

The indictment must aver that the false testimony was material, but it is not necessary to set forth all the circumstances which render it material. Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272. See, also, on materiality, Crump's Case, 75 Va. 922 (garnishment proceedings); Calvert's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 181 (insolvent debtor's oath); Rhodes' Case, 78 Va. 692 (where the oath as to date was not material to the issue); also Pickering's Case, 8 Grat. 628, 56 Am. Dec. 158.

State cannot punish for perjury committed before judicial tribunal of United States. In re Loney, 134 U. S. 375, 10 Sup. Ct. 584, 33 L. Ed. 949.

Evidence.—If the evidence in proof of the crime of perjury consists of two opposing statements of the prisoner, and nothing more, he cannot be convicted. To authorize a conviction of perjury, there must be two witnesses testifying to the falsity of the statement, or one witness with strong corroborating circumstances. Schwartz's Case, 27 Grat. 1025, 21 Am. Rep. 365; Pickering's Case, 8 Grat. 628, 56 Am. Dec. 158.

Indictment.—Where one is indicted for swearing contradictorily on two occasions, prosecutor must elect which oath he holds to be perjured, and that oath he must affirmatively prove to be false. If defendant is shown to have sworn contradictory oaths, without more, non constat which is false. Rhodes' Case, 78 Va. 692; Schwartz's Case, 27 Grat. 1027, 21 Am. Rep. 365.

As to form of an indictment for perjury, see section 4869 and notes.

Upon indictment for perjury, where it is a question whether the oath taken is legal perjury, the court should not quash the indictment, but should put the defendant to his demurrer. Litton's Case, 6 Grat. 691.

Variance.—The indictment sets forth that a warrant for debt due by account for rent was sued out by the defendant, and the warrant given in evidence shows that the claim was not for rent, but for other things; this is such a variance that the warrant ought not to be given in evidence. Hickman's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 323.

Generally.—Cited but not construed, Casselman v. Bialas, 112 Va. 57, 70 S. E. 479.

Sec. 4494. Perjury and subornation of perjury; how punished.—If any person commit or procure another person to commit perjury, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years; or, in the discretion of the jury, be confined in jail not exceeding one year, or fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both. (Code 1887, § 3742.)

Revisors' Note.—This section no longer expressly makes a distinction between perjury or subornation of perjury committed on a trial for felony and perjury or subornation of perjury committed on any other occasion; but it leaves it in the discretion of the jury to impose the jail sentence or fine, or both, in any case. If the punishment be by confinement in the penitentiary, under the present section the term may be not less than ONE nor more than ten years. The revisors thought that juries should be given more latitude in fixing the punishment for these crimes. Formerly if the perjury was committed on a trial for felony, the punishment was by confinement in the penitentiary not less than TWO, nor more than ten years, and if on any other occasion, by confinement in jail not exceeding one year, and by fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars.

In order to convict accused of subornation of perjury, it is essential for the Commonwealth to show that the person whom he is alleged to have suborned had committed perjury. Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 859. See notes to section 4764.

Accused, after verdict for subornation of perjury, is entitled to a new trial, if the person whom he is accused of having suborned to commit perjury is acquitted of the perjury charged. Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 857.

Cited but not construed, Samuel's Case, 110 Va. 901, 66 S. E. 222.

Sec. 4495. Further penalty.—He shall, moreover, on conviction thereof, be adjudged forever incapable of holding any post mentioned in section two hundred and eighty-nine, or of serving as a juror. (Code 1887, § 3743.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or giving evidence as a witness," found at the end of this section as it stood before the revision, have been omitted. In 1 Green. Ev. (16th Ed.), section 378a, it is said:

"The policy of absolute exclusion for persons convicted of crime can no longer be defended. Nevertheless, legislation has not yet everywhere caught up with enlightened opinion. (1) In the greater number of jurisdictions, this disqualification has been entirely removed. (2) In a smaller number, it is retained for a few crimes—usually the crime of perjury. (3) In a few jurisdictions, the old crudities remain."

To disqualify the convict from giving evidence as a witness might be very detrimental to third persons, and in view of the fact that conviction in another jurisdiction does not disqualify, the revisors were of opinion that this provision of the section should be omitted. See Samuels v. Com., 110 Va. 901, 66 S. E. 222, 20 Anno. Cases 880, and Kain v. Angle, 111 Va. 415, 69 S. E. 335. See section 4779.

Sec. 4496. Bribes to officers or candidates for office.—If any person corruptly give, offer, or promise to any executive, legislative, or judicial officer, or to any candidate for such office, and either before or after he shall have qualified, or shall have taken his seat, any gift or gratuity, with intent to influence his act, vote, opinion, decision, or judgment on any matter, question, cause, or proceeding, which is or may be then pending, or may by law come or be brought before him in his official capacity, he shall, upon conviction, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years. This section shall also apply to a resident of this State who, while temporarily absent therefrom for that purpose, shall make such gift, offer or promise, and thereafter return to this State. (Code 1887, § 3744; 1902-3-4, p. 823.)

Revisors' Note.—The phraseology of this section has been considerably changed, with some change in meaning. The section is extended so as to include candidates for office, as well as officers.

In an information against a J. P. for bribery in election of a clerk, it ought to be stated with certainty that an election was holden, and that at that election the vote was given. Newell's Case, 2 Wash. 88.

For a corrupt agreement that was not within the statute (1 R. C. 1819, p. 559) against the buying and selling of offices, see Com. v. Callaghan & Holloway, 2 Va. Cas. 460.

The term "executive officer" is not limited in its application to the chief magistrate of the Commonwealth, but embraces as well inferior executive officers, whose duties are for the most part ministerial. This section therefore embraces a police officer. Haynes v. Com., 104 Va. 854, 52 S. E. 358.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 147, section 4.

Sec. 4497. Acceptance thereof by officer; how punished.—If any executive, legislative, or judicial officer, or any candidate for such office accept in this State, or if, being resident in this State, such officer or candidate shall go out of this State and accept, and afterwards return to and reside in this State, any gift or gratuity, or any promise to make a gift or do any act beneficial to such officer or candidate under an agreement, or with an understanding that his vote, opinion, or judgment shall be given on any particular side of any question, cause, or proceeding which is or may be by law brought before him in his official capacity, or that in such capacity he shall make any particular nomination or appointment, he shall, upon conviction, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years, and shall forfeit his office and be forever incapable of holding any post mentioned in section two hundred and eighty-nine. The word candidate as used in this and the preceding section, shall mean any one who offers himself or is put forward by others as a suitable person or an aspirant for such office. (Code 1887, § 3745; 1902-3-4, p. 823.)

Revisors' Note.—This section now includes candidates. The last sentence is new.

Sec. 4498. Evidence in prosecutions under the two preceding sections.—No person prosecuted under either of the two preceding sections shall be competent to testify against a witness for the Commonwealth in such prosecution touching the giving, or offering to give, or the acceptance of any bribe by such witness prior to the commencement of such prosecution; nor shall any witness called by the court or Commonwealth's attorney and giving evidence for the prosecution, either before the grand jury or the court in such prosecution, be ever proceeded against for any offense of giving, or offering to give, or accepting a bribe committed by him at the time and place indicated in such prosecution; but such witness shall be compelled to testify, and for refusing to answer questions may, by the court, be fined a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months. (1902-3-4, p. 20.)

Sec. 4499. Lobbying with General Assembly; how punished.—If any person pay or receive money or other compensation, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of securing the passage or defeat of any measure by the General Assembly, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding twelve months, and fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3746.)

The section was doubtless intended to apply to the use of money in the line of bribery and corruption, debauching the members, or buying votes, and not to contracts with attorneys for purely professional services, such as drafting petitions, setting forth client's claim, taking testimony, collecting facts, preparing arguments, oral or written, addresses to the Legislature or its committee, with intention to reach its reason by argument. Yates v. Robertson, 80 Va. 475.

Sec. 4500. Employing persons so to lobby; how punished.—If any person employ paid agents for the purpose of giving information of any action which may be taken by the General Assembly, in order that said information may be used for the purpose of securing the passage or defeat of any measure by the General Assembly, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding twelve months, and fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3747.)

Sec. 4501. To whom the two preceding sections not applicable.—The two preceding sections shall not apply to any person who may be invited by or have the permission of any regular or special committee of the General Assembly to appear before it, either for or against any measure. (Code 1887, § 3748.)

Sec. 4502. Bribes to officers to prevent service of process; how punished.—If any officer, authorized to serve legal process, receive any money or other thing of value, for omitting or delaying to perform any duty pertaining to his office, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, and be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3749.)

The words "to perform any duty pertaining to his office" are broader in scope than the words "to serve legal process," and must be taken literally, and not limited to the latter expression. Old's Case, 18 Grat. 927.

The offense punishable by the statute is the omitting or delaying to perform any duty, etc., not the doing of any act. Id.

For the natural and proper mode of charging a violation of this statute, see opinion of Moncure, P., Id.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 147, section 6.

Sec. 4503. Giving bribes to, or receiving same by, commissioners, auditors, jurors, etc.; how punished.—If any person give, or offer, or promise to give, any money or other thing of value, to a commissioner appointed by a court, auditor, arbitrator, umpire, or juror (although not impaneled), with intent to bias his opinion or influence his decision in relation to any matter in which he is acting or is to act, or if any such commissioner, auditor, arbitrator, umpire, or juror, corruptly take or receive such money or other thing, he shall be confined in jail six months, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3750.)

For comment upon this section, see 13 Va. Law Reg. 487.

Sec. 4504. Any person aiding escape of prisoner; how punished.—Where a person is lawfully detained as a prisoner in any jail, prison, or custody, if any person convey anything into the jail or prison, with intent to facilitate the prisoner's escape therefrom, or in any way aid such prisoner to escape, or in the attempt to escape from such jail, prison, or custody, or forcibly rescue, or attempt to rescue him therefrom, such person, if the rescue or escape be effected, shall, if the prisoner was detained on conviction or charge of felony, be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years; and if the same be not effected, or if the prisoner was not detained on such conviction or charge, be confined in jail six months, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3751.)

Commented upon in 13 Va. Law Reg. 170.

Sec. 4505. Officer voluntarily suffering prisoner convicted of, or charged with, felony, to escape; how punished.—If any sheriff, jailor, or other officer, or any guard, or other person summoned or employed by any such sheriff, jailor, or other officer, voluntarily suffer a prisoner convicted of or charged with felony, to escape from his custody, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3752; 1899-00, p. 353.)

Commented upon in 13 Va. Law Reg. 170.

Sec. 4506. Or negligently suffering such prisoner or a prisoner not so convicted or charged to escape, or wilfully refusing to receive a prisoner; how punished.—If any sheriff, jailor, or other officer, or any guard or other person summoned or employed by such sheriff, jailor, or other officer, negligently suffer a prisoner convicted of or charged with felony, or voluntarily or negligently suffer a prisoner convicted of, or charged with, an offense, not a felony, to escape from his custody, or wilfully refuse to receive into his custody a person lawfully committed thereto, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, or be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3753; 1899-00, p. 353.)

The sheriff of one county cannot be prosecuted in another for having dismissed a prisoner in his own county. Lewis' Case, 4 Leigh 664.

A sheriff is not liable for his deputy's dismissal of a prisoner. Id.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 147, section 10.

Commented upon in 13 Va. Law Reg. 170.

Sec. 4507. Prisoner, if convicted escaping from jail; how punished.—If any person confined in jail on conviction of a criminal offense escape thence by force or violence, other than by setting fire thereto, he shall be confined in the penitentiary one year, if previously sentenced to confinement therein, or be confined in jail six months, if previously sentenced to confinement in jail: the term of confinement under this section to commence from the expiration of the former sentence. (Code 1887, § 3754.)

The former sentence does not expire until the prisoner has suffered the full amount of imprisonment; and if prisoner escapes before he has served out a sentence, when he is recaptured he must be held in jail till he actually suffers the full amount of the term, and this though he has been indicted for his escape. Cleek's Case, 21 Grat. 777.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations' chapter 147, section 11.

Sec. 4508. Escape from jail of prisoner not sentenced; how punished.—If any person, lawfully imprisoned in jail and not sentenced on conviction of a criminal offense, escape from jail by force or violence, other than by setting fire thereto, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year. (Code 1887, § 3755.)

Sec. 4509. Escape, etc., by setting fire to jail; how punished.—If any person, lawfully imprisoned in jail, escape, or attempt to escape therefrom, by setting fire thereto, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3756.)

Sec. 4510. Officer refusing, delaying, etc., to execute process for criminal; how punished.—If any officer willfully and corruptly refuse to execute any lawful process, requiring him to apprehend or confine a person convicted of, or charged with, an offense, or wilfully and corruptly omit or delay to execute such process, whereby such person shall escape and go at large, such officer shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, and be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3757.)

Sec. 4511. Refusal to aid officer in execution of his office; how punished.—If any person, on being required by any sheriff or other officer, refuse or neglect to assist him in the execution of his office in a criminal case, or in the preservation of the peace, or the apprehending or securing of any person for a breach of the peace, or in any case of escape or rescue, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, and be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3758.)

Sec. 4512. Failure to obey order of justice, etc., on view of breach of the peace, etc.; how punished; ignorance of his office, no excuse.—If any person, being required by a justice or other conservator of the peace on view of a breach of the peace or other offense, to bring before him the offender, refuse or neglect to obey the justice or other conservator of the peace, he shall be punished as is provided in the preceding section for refusing to assist a sheriff; and if the justice or other conservator of the peace declare himself or be known to be such to the person so refusing or neglecting, ignorance of his office shall not be pleaded as an excuse. (Code 1887, § 3759.)

Sec. 4513. Concealing or compounding offenses; how punished.—If any person, knowing of the commission of an offense, take any money or reward, or an engagement therefor, upon an agreement or understanding, expressed or implied, to compound or conceal such offense, or not to prosecute therefor, or not to give evidence thereof, he shall, if such offense be felony, be confined in jail not more than one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars; and if such offense be not a felony, unless it be punishable merely by forfeiture to him, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, and fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3760.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations' chapter 147, section 19.

Sec. 4514. Extortion by officer; how punished.—If any officer, for performing an official duty for which a fee or compensation is allowed or provided by law, knowingly demand and receive a greater fee or compensation than is so allowed or provided, he shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars. (Code 1887, § 3761.)

Sec. 4515. Fraudulent issue of fee bills; how punished.—If any person, authorized by law to charge fees for services performed by him, and issue bills therefor, fraudulently issue a fee bill for a service not performed by him, or for more than he is entitled to, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3762.)

Sec. 4516. False entries, or destruction of records, by officers; how punished.—If a clerk of any court, or other public officer, fraudulently make a false entry, or erase, alter, secrete, or destroy any record in his keeping and belonging to his office, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3763.)

Sec. 4517. Additional penalty.—Any person, convicted under either of the two preceding sections, shall forfeit his office, and be forever incapable of holding any post mentioned in section two hundred and eighty-nine. (Code 1887, § 3764.)

Sec. 4518. Theft or destruction of public records by others than officers; how punished.—If any person steal, or fraudulently secrete or destroy, a public record or part hereof, he shall, if the offense be not embraced by section forty-five hundred and sixteen, be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3765.)

Sec. 4519. Officer summoning juror to act partially; how punished.—If any sheriff or other officer corruptly, or through favor or ill-will, summon a juror, with intent that such juror shall find a verdict for or against either party, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, and forfeit his office, and be forever incapable of holding any post mentioned in section two hundred and eighty-nine. (Code 1887, § 3766.)

Sec. 4520. Corruptly procuring juror to be summoned; how punished.—If any person procure, or attempt to procure, a juror to be summoned, with intent that such juror shall find a verdict for or against either party, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3767.)

Sec. 4521. Cases in which courts and judges may punish summarily for contempt.—The courts and judges may issue attachments for contempt, and punish them summarily, only in the cases following:

First. Misbehavior in the presence of the court, or so near thereto as to obstruct or interrupt the administration of justice.

Second. Violence, or threats of violence, to a judge or officer of the court, or to a juror, witness, or party going to, attending, or returning from the court, for or in respect of any act or proceeding had or to be had in such court.

Third. Obscene, contemptuous, or insulting language addressed to or published of a judge for or in respect of any act, or proceeding had, or to be had, in such court, or like language used in his presence and intended for his hearing, for or in respect of such act or proceeding.

Fourth. Misbehavior of an officer of the court in his official character.

Fifth. Disobedience or resistance of an officer of the court, juror, witness, or other person to any lawful process, judgment, decree, or order of the said court. (Code 1887, § 3768; 1897-8, p. 548; 1904, p. 309.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or published of," found in line two of the third sub-division, are new, and their insertion changes the holding in Yoder v. Com., 107 Va., at pp. 831, 832, 57 S. E. 581.

Contempt—Direct and Constructive—Distinction.—The substantial difference between a direct and constructive contempt is one of procedure. The court may proceed on its own knowledge of the facts, where the contempt is in the presence of the court, and punish the offender without further proof, while in contempt not in the presence of the court (constructive contempt) the offender must be brought before the court by a rule; but the power to punish is the same in both cases. Burdett's Case, 103 Va. 838, 48 S. E. 878.

Powers of courts in contempt cases.—There is an inherent power of self-defense and self-preservation in the courts of this State created by the Constitution, which may be regulated by the General Assembly, but cannot be destroyed or so diminished as to be rendered ineffectual thereby. It is a power in the breast of the court, and the General Assembly cannot deprive such courts of the power to summarily punish for contempt by providing for a trial by jury in such cases. Carter's Case, 96 Va. 791, 807, 816, 32 S. E. 780, 45 L. R. A. 310; Well's Case, 21 Grat. 503; Dandridge's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 408; Burdett's Case, 103 Va. 838, 48 S. E. 878.

Therefore the act of 1897-8, p. 548, was unconstitutional in so far as it gave the accused in case of indirect contempts the choice of trial by jury or the court. Carter's Case, 96 Va. 805, 32 S. E. 780, 45 L. R. A. 310. See, also, 4 Va. Law Reg. 49, 281, 345, 392; also, 5 Va. Law Reg. 200.

The power to punish "summarily" for contempt is a power to punish without the intervention of a jury and is limited to the classes of contempt set forth in this section, the provisions of which are reasonable and do not so far abridge or impair the powers of courts as to render them incapable of efficient exercise of their functions. Yoder's Case, 107 Va. 823, 57 S. E. 581.

Right of appeal.—But the act of 1897-8, p. 548, in so far as it allowed an appeal to the Court of Appeals in all cases of contempts, was constitutional. Trimble's Case, 96 Va. 818, 32 S. E. 786. (N. B. The subsection of act 1897-8, p. 548, is no longer law.) See as to right of appeal, section 4932 and notes.

Contempt—What Constitutes—Instances.—For what constitutes contempt, see 2 Barton's L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 774, et. seq.

Instances.—Insult off the bench in regard to an opinion delivered by judge in court, Dandridge's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 408; suit in false name, Howard v. Rawson, 2 Leigh 733; commissioners executing decree after an appeal granted, McLaughlin v. Janney, 6 Grat. 609; disobeying an injunction, Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. City of Wheeling, 13 Grat. 40, 57; interference with a receiver without the permission of the court, Thornton v. W. Sav. Bank, 76 Va. 432; resisting the execution of the court's order to open a road, Bailey's Case, 78 Va. 19; failure to obey peremptory mandamus, Cromwell's Case, 95 Va. 254, 28 S. E. 1023; preventing duly summoned witnesses from attending court, Feely's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 1; attorney sending false telegram to judge in order to delay case, Carter's Case, 96 Va. 791, 802, 32 S. E. 780, 45 L. R. A. 310; refusal to testify before grand jury, Kendrick's Case, 78 Va. 490; newspaper publications, Elam v. Com., 4 Va. Law Reg. 520; 6 Va. Law Reg. 792.

While any citizen may comment upon the decisions and proceedings of a court, and discuss their correctness, and the fitness or unfitness of the judges, and the fidelity with which they perform their duties, he has no right to attempt, by libellous publications, to degrade the tribunal, for such publications are an abuse of the liberty of the press, and summary punishment, as for a contempt, of the author of a libellous newspaper article is not an invasion of the liberty of the press, but is to be exercised with utmost caution. Burdett's Case, 103 Va. 838, 48 S. E. 878.

Courts have power to punish, as for a contempt, libellous publications upon the court, or the judge thereof in his official capacity, and such power exists as well after a case has been finally disposed of as where it is still pending. Burdett's Case, 103 Va. 838, 48 S. E. 878.

Where an agent in charge of the affairs of a branch of a corporation has been notified of the appointment of receivers to take charge of the affairs of the corporation, and thereafter wrongfully pays over funds of which he was custodian to a creditor of the corporation, he is guilty of a contempt. Camden v. Virginia Safe Dep. Co., 115 Va. 20, 78 S. E. 596.

Fifth subdivision of section.—The language of the fourth (now fifth) clause of this section embraces only such judgments for contempt as are designed to enforce performance or obedience, and not to punish for an offense. Wells' Case, 21 Grat. 504.

Disobedience of a decree of the court comes within the fifth subdivision of this section, and the judge may punish summarily. Forbes v. State Council, 107 Va. 853, 60 S. E. 81.

Instances of behavior not amounting to contempt.—Riot during recess of court, Stuart's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 320; hiding from sheriff to avoid service of summons to testify before grand jury, Deskins' Case, 4 Leigh 685; failure of a member of a volunteer military company to answer jury summons, Miller's Case, 80 Va. 33; unauthorized acts of employees disclaimed by employer, Postal Tel. Co. v. N. & W. R. R., 88 Va. 929, 14 S. E. 691; attorney acting in good faith for what he believed the best interest of his client and from no disrespect of the court, Wells' Case, 21 Grat. 509; filing protest against action of court by justice thereof, Stokeley's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 330; failure of attorney to be present when his case was called and time agreed, owing to his detention in another case, protracted longer than he had anticipated, Wise's Case, 97 Va. 779, 34 S. E. 453; refusal to obey vague and uncertain decree. Birchett v. Bolling, 5 Munf. 442.

The publication in a newspaper of insulting language concerning a judge with respect to proceedings had in his court cannot be said to be "addressed to the judge," and is therefore not within this section. Yoder's Case, 107 Va. 823, 57 S. E. 581. Criticised in note to Yoder v. Com., 13 Va. Law Reg. 313, and also see editorial, 13 Va. Law Reg. 320. The revised section overturns this decision.

A person cannot be punished for contempt for disobedience or resistance of a decree appointing a receiver, when he was not a party to the suit, had no knowledge of its existence or the appointment of the receiver, and where the decree appointing the receiver contained no mandate, direction or prohibition against him. Kidd v. Virginia Deposit Co., 113 Va. 612, 75 S. E. 145.

Evidence necessary to convict.—The proceeding to punish for contempt is criminal or quasi criminal in its nature, and the rules of evidence applicable in criminal cases prevail. Mere preponderance of evidence is not sufficient to convict, but the offense charged must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. The parties must be brought clearly within the terms of the statute before they can be punished summarily for contempt. Kidd v. Virginia Deposit Co., 113 Va. 612, 75 S. E. 145.

Proceedings in contempt cases.—Title.—Before attachment they may be entitled in the suit in which the contempt is alleged; afterwards they should be entitled on the criminal side of the court. 6 Va. Law Reg. 862.

Nature—How reviewed.—A proceeding for contempt is in the nature of a criminal proceeding, and the judgment can be reviewed by a superior tribunal by writ of error only, and not on application for a writ of habeas corpus. B. & O. R. R. v. City of Wheeling, 13 Grat. 40, 57; Cromwell's Case, 95 Va. 254, 28 S. E. 1023. And while formerly not all judgments in contempt cases could be reviewed, now "any judgment of conviction for contempt" may be reviewed on writ of error, and this provision of the statute is constitutional. Trimble's Case, 96 Va. 818, 32 S. E. 786.

The attachment.—An attachment for contempt has no other object than to bring the party into court. Therefore, when the contempt is in open court, there is no need of process to bring him in, nor of interrogatories to ascertain what has occurred in open court. Where the contempt is not in open court, the usual course is to issue a rule to show cause why an attachment should not issue, though the attachment sometimes issues without the rule. Dandridge's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 408. For further proceedings, see same case; also Morris v. Creel, 1 Va. Cas. 333; 2 Barton's L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 773-776.

An attachment for contempt in disobedience of a decree of the chancery court will only lie for disobedience of what is decreed, and not for what may be decreed. Taliaferro v. Horde's Adm'r, 1 Rand. 242.

The sheriff is the proper officer to execute the order of attachment for contempt. Hook v. Ross, 1 Hen. & M. 319.

Where contempt not established.—In a proceeding for contempt, where the contempt is not established, it is error to seek to enforce the return of money improperly paid by an order directing the imprisonment of the defendant if the money be not paid. Kidd v. Virginia Deposit Co., 113 Va. 612, 75 S. E. 145.

Defenses.—With respect to conduct or language, where the intent with which a thing is said or done gives color and character to the act or words, a disclaimer of any purpose to be guilty of a contempt or to destroy or impair the authority due to the court is a good defense. Carter's Case, 96 Va. 800, 32 S. E. 780, 45 L. R. A. 310; Well's Case, 21 Grat. 500. But this is true only of language or acts of doubtful import, and which may reasonably bear two constructions. Carter's Case, 96 Va. 803, 32 S. E. 780, 45 L. R. A. 310. See, also Trimble's Case, 96 Va. 818, 32 S. E. 786.

For case where party disclaiming evil intent under oath was discharged. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. v. N. & W. R. R. Co., 88 Va. 929, 14 S. E. 691.

In a prosecution for contempt in publishing a libel, the fact that the defendant thought the court had adjourned constitutes no defense. Burdett's Case, 103 Va. 838, 48 S. E. 878.

Where there is a decree for the payment of money and an order of attachment if the money be not paid, the payment of money in accordance with the terms of a decree, or inability upon the part of the defendant to pay it on account of poverty, insolvency, or other cause not attributable to any fault of respondent, should be taken as a satisfaction. Camden v. Virginia Safe Dep. Co., 115 Va. 20, 78 S. E. 596.

Generally.—As to court's power to remit fine for contempt, see section 2557; bill of exceptions, section 4929; suspension of execution of sentence, section 4930; writs of error, section 4932.

On subject of contempt generally, see 2 Barton's L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 772-778; note to Wells' Case, 21 Grat. 500, Va. Rep. Anno; article 17 Va. L. Reg. 102; editorials, 20 Va. L. Reg. 149; 20 Va. L. Reg. 550; 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 70.

Sec. 4522. Power of justice to punish for contempt.—A justice, while engaged in the trial of a case, or in any judicial proceeding, shall have the same power and jurisdiction as a court to punish summarily for contempt, but in no case shall the fine exceed twenty dollars, or the imprisonment exceed ten days, for the same contempt. (Code 1887, § 3769.)

Sec. 4523. Appeal from sentence of justice; how; what justice to certify; how appeal heard and decided.—Any person sentenced to pay a fine, or to imprisonment, under the preceding section, may appeal therefrom to the court of the county or corporation in which the justice resides, or to the judge thereof in vacation, upon entering into a recognizance before the justice, with surety and in a penalty deemed sufficient, to appear before said court on the first day of the next term, or before the judge in vacation, to answer for the offense. If such appeal be taken, a certificate of the conviction and the particular circumstances of the offense, together with the recognizance,, shall forthwith be transmitted by the justice to the clerk of said court, who shall immediately deliver the same to the judge thereof. Such judge may hear the case in term or in vacation upon the said certificate and any legal testimony adduced on either side, and make such order therein as may seem to him proper. Such order when made in vacation shall be entered in the order book of the court and have the same force and effect as an order entered in term. (Code 1887, § 3770.)

Sec. 4524. Fine and imprisonment by court limited, unless jury be impaneled.—No court shall, without a jury, for any such contempt as is mentioned in the first class embraced in section forty-five hundred and twenty-one, impose a fine exceeding fifty dollars, or imprison more than ten days; but in any such case the court may impanel a jury (without an indictment, information, or any formal pleading), to ascertain the fine or imprisonment proper to be inflicted, and may give judgment according to the verdict. (Code 1887, § 3771.)

The limitation of the duration of the punishment for contempt imposed by this section applies only to the contempts mentioned in the first clause of section 4521. Yoder's Case, 107 Va. 823, 57 S. E. 581.

Sec. 4525. Obstructing justice by threats or force; how punished.—If any person, by threats, or force, attempt to intimidate or impede a judge, justice, juror, witness, or an officer of a court, or any sergeant, constable, or other peace officer or any revenue officer, in the discharge of his duty, or to obstruct or impede the administration of justice in any court, he shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3772.)

Using means to prevent and preventing a witness from attending court who had been duly summoned is a contempt of court, which may be punished by information. Feely's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 1.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations' chapter 147, section 30.

Sec. 4526. Fraud in drawing jurors, etc.; how punished.—If any person be guilty of any fraud, either by tampering with the jury box previously to a draft, or in drawing a juror, or in returning into the jury box the name of any person which has lawfully been drawn out and drawing and substituting another in his stead, or in any other way in drawing of jurors, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year and fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3773.)

And it shall be the duty of each of them to go among, or as near as may be with safety to, persons riotously, tumultuously, or unlawfully assembled, and in the name of the law command them to disperse; and if they shall not thereupon immediately and peaceably disperse, such judge or justice giving the command, and any other present, shall command the assistance of all persons present, and of the sheriff or sergeant of the county or corporation, with his posse, if need be, in arresting and securing those so assembled. If any person present, on being required to give his assistance or depart, fail to obey, he shall be deemed a rioter. (Code 1887, § 3774.)

assembly, the judge or justice ordering the arrest, or any other justice, shall commit him to jail, unless he shall enter into recognizance, with sufficient surety, to appear before the court having jurisdiction of the offense, at its next term, to answer therefor, and in the meantime to be of good behavior and keep the peace. (Code 1887, § 3775.)

Sec. 4529. Judge or justice failing in his duty; how punished.—If any judge or justice have notice of a riotous, tumultuous, or unlawful assembly, in the county or corporation in which he resides, and fail to proceed immediately to the place of such assembly, or as near as he may safely, or fail to exercise his authority for suppressing it and arresting the offenders, he shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3776.)

Sec. 4530. If persons disobey order of judge or justice to disperse, he may require assistance.—If any persons, engaged in such assembly, being commanded as aforesaid to disperse, fail to do so without delay, any such judge or justice may require the aid of a sufficient number of persons, in arms or otherwise, and proceed, in such manner as he may deem expedient, to disperse and suppress such assembly, and arrest and secure those engaged in it. (Code 1887, § 3777.)

Sec. 4531. Judges, justices, and persons acting under their orders, guiltless, if a person killed or wounded; if either of them killed, all engaged in the assembly guilty.—If, by any means taken under authority of this chapter to disperse any such assembly, or attest and secure those engaged in it, any person present, as spectator or otherwise, be killed or wounded, any judge or justice exercising such authority, and every one acting under his order, shall be held guiltless; and if the judge or justice, or any person acting under the order of either of them, be killed or wounded in taking such means, or by the rioters, all persons engaged in such assembly shall be deemed guilty of such killing or wounding. (Code 1887, § 3778.)

Policeman using force in arresting.—A policeman who does not use more force than is necessary to arrest a person who is engaged in riotous and disorderly conduct, and who resists the officer, is not guilty of an assault and battery. Mesmer's Case, 26 Grat. 976.

bled, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3779.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been broadened so as to embrace the offense of stoning a dwelling-house in the night-time.

A house in which the lower front room is used as a store room, while the rest is used as a dwelling, is a dwelling house, in the meaning of this section. Samanni's Case, 16 Grat. 543.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 148, section 6.

Sec. 4533. Riotous or disorderly conduct on train or street car a misdemeanor.—If any person, whether a passenger or not, shall, while in any car or caboose, or on any part of a train carrying passengers or employees of any railroad or street passenger railway, behave in a riotous or disorderly manner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The agent or employees in charge of the train, car, or caboose, may require such person to discontinue his riotous or disorderly conduct, and if he refuses to do so may eject him, with the aid, if necessary, of any other persons who may be called upon for the purpose. (1899-00, p. 580.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment for a violation of this section is prescribed by section 4782. The act from which the section is taken prescribed a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, or confinement in jail not less than one month nor more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4534. Carrying concealed weapons; how punished; forfeiture of weapons; how disposed of.—If any person carry about his person hid from common observation, any pistol, dirk, bowie-knife, razor, slungshot, metal knucks, or any weapon of like kind, he shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than twenty dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars and, in the discretion of the court, justice, police justice, or jury trying the case, may, in addition thereto, be committed to jail for not more than six months, and such pistol, dirk, bowie-knife, razor, slung-shot, metal-knucks, or any weapon of like kind, shall, by order of the court, justice or police justice be forfeited to the Commonwealth and may be seized by an officer as forfeited, and such as may be needed for police officers and conservators of the peace shall be devoted to that purpose, and the remainder shall be destroyed by the officer having them in charge; but this section shall not apply to any police officer, town or city sergeant, constable, sheriff, conservator of the peace, or to carriers of United States mail in the rural districts, or collecting officer while in the discharge of his official duty: provided, the circuit court of any county in term time, and any corporation court in term time, upon a written application and satisfactory proof of the good character and necessity of the applicant to carry concealed weapons, may grant such permission for one year. The order making same shall be entered in the law order book of such court. (Code 1887, § 3780; 1895-6, p. 826; 1908, pp. 381, 671.)

Revisors' Note.—So much of the original act as was deemed desirable has been retained without material change. The residue is omitted.

Under the act of 1838, a constable could be convicted of carrying concealed weapons. Hicks' Case, 7 Grat. 597.

In Withers v. Com., 109 Va. 837, 65 S. E. 16, it was held that commissioners in chancery were conservators of the peace under section 3912 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to section 4789 of this Code), and as such might carry concealed weapons although not at the time acting in the discharge of official duties; that the words "while in the discharge of his official duty" used in section 3780 of the Code of 1887, as amended (corresponding to the above section), applied only to the next antecedent class of officers, to-wit, collecting officers; and that it was not necessary, in that case, to invoke the aid of punctuation in construing the statutes.

The purpose of this statute was to interdict the practice of carrying a deadly weapon about the person, concealed, and yet so accessible as to afford prompt and immediate use. "About his person" must mean that it is so connected with the person as to be readily accessible for use or surprise, if desired. A pistol in a scabbard and in a pair of saddle-bags with the lids down, though the saddle-bags be in the hand, does not fall within the language of the statute. Sutherland v. Com., 109 Va. 834, 65 S. E. 15.

For comment on this section, see 14 Va. L. Reg. 408; 15 Id. 391.

Sec. 4535. Prohibiting the selling or having in possession blackjacks, etc.—If any person sell or barter, or exhibit for sale or for barter, or give or furnish, or cause to be sold, bartered, given or furnished, or has in his possession, or under his control, with the intent of selling, bartering, giving or furnishing any blackjack, brass or metal knucks, or like weapons, such person shall be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars. The having in one's possession of any such weapon shall be prima facie evidence, except in the case of a conservator of the peace, of his intent to sell, barter, give or furnish the same. (1906, p. 9.)

Sec. 4536. Punishment for using abusive language to another.—If any person shall, in the presence or hearing of another, curse or abuse such person, or use any violent abusive language to such person concerning himself or any of his female relations, under circumstances reasonably calculated to provoke a breach of the peace, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction fined in any sum not less than two dollars and fifty cents nor more than five hundred dollars, in the discretion of the justice trying the case. (1895-6, p. 808; 1910, p. 18.)

As to civil action for insulting words, see section 5781.

Sec. 4537. Threats of death or bodily injury to a person or member of his family; how punished.—If any person write or compose and also send or procure the sending of any letter or inscribed communication, so written or composed, whether such letter or communication be signed or anonymous, to any person, containing a threat to kill or do bodily injury to the person to whom such letter or communication is sent, or a threat to kill or do bodily injury to any member of his or her family, the person so writing or composing and so sending or procuring the sending of such letter or communication, shall be confined in the penitentiary for a period not exceeding five years, or, in the discretion of the jury, shall be confined in jail not less than thirty days, nor more than twelve months, or be fined not less than fifty dollars. (1908, p. 686.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "nor more than twelve months," found near the end of the section, are new.

Proof to be made of marriage.—In prosecution for bigamy it is necessary to prove an actual marriage, valid or avoidable, and not yet avoided. 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 274, and cases there cited.

As to how the existence of the marriage is to be proved, see Womack v. Tankersley, 78 Va. 242; Warner's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 95; Oneale's Case, 17 Grat. 582; Moore's Case, 9 Leigh 639; Min. Syn. 177. If the marriage is alleged to have taken place in a foreign country or state, proof must be made of a marriage valid according to the laws of that country or state. Bird's Case, 21 Grat. 800. As to deliberate admissions of marriage, see cases cited above.

A marriage under the secession government is valid. Oneale's Case, 17 Grat. 582.

As to what constitutes the marriage certificate, see section 5074, et seq., Moore's Case, 9 Leigh 639.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 149, section 1.

Sec. 4539. Qualification of preceding section.—The preceding section shall not extend to a person whose former husband or wife shall have been continuously absent from such person for seven years next before marriage of such person to another, and shall not have been known by such person to be living within that time; nor to a person who can show that the second marriage was contracted in good faith under a reasonable belief that the former consort was dead; nor to a person who shall, at the time of the subsequent marriage, have been divorced from the bond of the former marriage, although the term at which the decree for divorce was entered had not ended, or whose former marriage was void. (Code 1887, § 3782; 1877-8, p. 301.)

Revisors' Note.—In addition to a slight verbal change, material changes have been made in meaning. The words, "nor to a person who can show that the second marriage was contracted in good faith under a reasonable belief that the former consort was dead," are new, as are also the words appearing in lines two and three from the bottom of the text, "although the term at which the decree for divorce was entered had not ended." The words appearing at the end of the section, "or whose former marriage was void" are used in lieu of "or whose former marriage shall at that time have been declared void by the sentence of a court of competent jurisdiction."

The propriety of these changes would seem to be manifest. As to the first change mentioned, see 4 Va. Law Reg. 71. The second change was made because the question has arisen as to the status of persons marrying before the end of the term at which the decree for divorce was entered. As to the third change mentioned, under the statute as it formerly stood, if the marriage was void but had not been so declared, the person would probably be guilty of bigamy. It is not believed this was intended. If the former marriage was absolutely void, it should be immaterial whether it had been so declared or not.

This and the next preceding section should be read in connection with section 5113.

Sec. 4540. Marriage within prohibited degrees, how punished; residents, within prohibited degrees, and white person and colored person, going out of State to be married and afterwards returning, how punished; cohabitation, evidence of marriage.—If any person marry in violation of section five thousand and eighty-four or five thousand and eighty-five, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, in the discretion of the jury. And if any person, resident in this State, and within the degrees of relationship mentioned in those sections, or any white person and colored person, shall go out of this State for the purpose of being married, and with the intention of returning, and be married out of it, and afterwards return to and reside in it, cohabiting as man and wife, they shall be as guilty, and be punished, as if the marriage had been in this State. The fact of their cohabitation here as man and wife shall be evidence of their marriage. (Code 1887, § 3783.)

Marrying brother's widow.—The seventeenth section of 1 Rev. Code, chapter 196, made it unlawful for one to marry his brother's "wife." Held, the marrying a brother's widow was an offense within the statute. Perryman's Case, 2 Leigh 717.

Judgment need not affix punishment.—A judgment declaring the marriage a nullity is valid, though it does not proceed to punish the parties, or to require them to enter into bonds with condition to live separate (Kelly v. Scott, 5 Grat. 479); and husband has no interest in the property which was the wife's at time of marriage (Id.).

Marriage a mutual affair—Indictment.—An indictment which charges that the man did incestuously intermarry with the woman is sufficiently certain to charge her as well as him without requiring the converse to be charged. Hutchins' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 331.

Appearance by attorney.—In prosecution prior to 1827 for marrying a deceased wife's sister, or for marrying the husband of a deceased sister, the parties might appear by attorney. Kelly v. Scott, 5 Grat. 479.

Negro and white person going out of state to marry.—While the forms and ceremonies of marriage are governed by the laws of the place where the marriage is celebrated, the essentials of the contract depend upon and are governed by the laws of the country where the parties are domiciled at the time of the marriage, and in which the matrimonial residence is contemplated. Therefore a rule that a marriage valid where celebrated is valid everywhere has no application to a marriage entered into in a foreign country, in contravention of the public policy and statutes of the country of the parties, which pronounce marriage between them not only absolutely void, but criminal. Kinney's Case, 30 Grat. 858, 32 Am. Rep. 690, Greenhow v. James' Ex'r, 80 Va. 636, 56 Am. Rep. 603, citing Brook v. Brook, 9 H. L. Cas. 223. See section 4546 and notes. As to who are colored persons, see section 67.

Sec. 4541. Issuing license contrary to law; how punished.—If any clerk of a court knowingly issue a marriage license contrary to law, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3784.)

Previous to the enactment of this section it was held not necessary to charge that the clerk knew that the party was an infant, or that he issued the license maliciously or corruptly, or that a marriage took place in pursuance of the license. Hill's Case, 6 Leigh 636.

Sec. 4542. Celebrating marriage without license, or, etc.; how punished.—If any person knowingly perform the ceremony of marriage without lawful license, or officiate in celebrating the rites of marriage without being authorized by law to do so, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3785.)

Sec. 4543. Adultery and fornication; how punished.—If any person commit adultery or fornication, he shall be fined not less than twenty dollars. And if he commit adultery or fornication with any person, whom he is forbidden by law to marry, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3786.)

Revisors' Note.—For punishment of misdemeanors where no other is provided by statute, see section 4782. As this section stood before the revision, the last sentence read as follows "And if he commit adultery or fornication with any person, whom he is forbidden by section 2224 or 2225 [of the former Code] to marry, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, in the discretion of the jury."

Adultery and fornication were not common law offenses, unless accompanied by circumstances in themselves a misdemeanor. Anderson's Case, 5 Rand. 627, 16 Am. Dec. 776; Isaacs Case, 5 Rand. 634.

Illicit intercourse between an unmarried man and a married woman is fornication in the man. Lafferty's Case, 6 Grat. 672.

As the law was, adultery or fornication could be committed with a slave. Jones' Case, 2 Grat. 555.

Conviction may be had upon the testimony of one credible witness. Gregor's Case, 7 Grat. 591.

Sec. 4544. Conspiracy between a husband and any other person or persons to cause a wife to commit adultery a felony; punishment.—If any husband shall conspire with any other person or persons to cause the wife of such husband to commit adultery for the purpose of securing from her a divorce or for any other purpose and any act in furtherance of such conspiracy is done, the said husband shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than ten years; and if any person or persons shall conspire with any husband to cause the wife of such husband to commit adultery for any of the purposes aforesaid and any act in furtherance of such conspiracy is done, such person or persons shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than five years. (1897-8, p. 38.)

Revisors' Note.—Material changes are made by this section in the punishment. In the first case, it has been reduced from "not less than ten nor more than eighteen years" to "not less than five nor more than ten years"; and in the second case, it has been reduced from "not less than five nor more than eighteen years," to "not less than three nor more than five years."

Sec. 4545. Lewd and lascivious cohabitation; how punished; penalty for second offense.—If any persons, not married to each other, lewdly and lasciviously associate and cohabit together, or, whether married or not, be guilty of open and gross lewdness and lasciviousness, they shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars; and, upon a repetition of the offense, and conviction thereof, they may also be confined in jail not less than six nor more than twelve months. (Code 1887, § 3787.)

Two things necessary to be proved.—The conjunction "and" in the phrase of the section is essentially and indispensably copulative; there must be both lewd and lascivious intercourse "and" a living together of the parties as husband and wife live together. Proof of occasional incontinence merely is not sufficient. Jones' Case, 80 Va. 18, 20; Pruner & Clark's Case, 82 Va. 115; Scott's Case, 77 Va. 344, distinguished in Jones' Case, supra.

Indictment either joint or separate.—An indictment for lewd and lascivious cohabitation may be either joint or separate. Scott's Case, 77 Va. 344; Isaacs' Case, 5 Rand. 634; Jones' Case, 2 Grat. 555; Nichols' and Janes' Case, 7 Grat. 589.

Cohabitation before and after act was passed.—In an indictment for lewd and lascivious cohabitation, the offense is charged from a day prior to the day when the statute went into effect, but as continuing to a day after the commencement of the act. The indictment is good. Nichols' and Janes' Case, 7 Grat. 589.

Admission sustaining indictment.—Admissions by the defendant that he, a white man, lived together with a colored woman, that she was his wife, and that her daughter was his child, will sustain an indictment under this section. Scott's Case, 77 Va. 346.

Actionable to accuse falsely of adultery.—It is actionable to charge one falsely with fornication or adultery, for they are crimes under the statute. Payne v. Tancil, 98 Va. 262, 35 S. E. 725.

Sec. 4546. Marriage of white person with colored person; how punished.—If any white person intermarry with a colored person, or any colored person intermarry with a white person, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3788.)

Who are colored persons—What necessary to prove under section.—Every person having one-sixteenth or more of negro blood shall be deemed a colored person. Section 67.

A marriage between a white man and a woman who is of less than one-fourth (now one-sixteenth) negro blood, even though it be only one drop less is legal. A woman whose father was white, and whose mother's father was white, and whose great-grandfather was of brown complexion was not a negro in the sense of the statute. McPherson's Case, 28 Grat. 939.

In order to sustain a charge under this section, it is necessary to prove: (1) That the accused is a person of one-fourth or more negro blood (now one-sixteenth), and the burden of proving this lies on the Commonwealth. Jones' Case, 80 Va. 538; McPherson's Case, 28 Grat. 940; (2) An actual marriage duly celebrated between the parties, or that the parties consummated the marriage in the bona fide belief that the person celebrating was legally authorized according to the laws of Virginia. Jones' Case, 79 Va. 213.

Marriage in another state.—A marriage made in another state, in fraudem legis of this state, does not protect the parties in a prosecution in this state for a violation of its penal laws; and therefore a negro man and a white woman domiciled in this state, but who are married in the District of Columbia, may, when they return to dwell in Virginia, be prosecuted for lewd and lascivious cohabitation. Kinney's Case, 30 Grat. 858, 865, 32 Am. Rep. 690; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 273. See section 4540.

Sec. 4549. Publishing, selling, distributing, etc., obscene books, etc., how punished.—If any person import, print, publish, sell, or distribute any book or other thing containing obscene language, or any print, picture, figure, or description, manifestly tending to corrupt the morals of youth; or introduce into any family or place of education, or buy, or have in his possession, any such thing for the purpose of sale, exhibition, or circulation, or with intent to introduce it into any family or place of education, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3791.)

Revisors' Note.—For punishment of misdemeanors where no other is provided by statute, see section 4782. As this section stood before the revision, the punishment was by confinement in jail not exceeding one year and by a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars.

Sec. 4550. Fighting cocks, dogs, etc.; how punished.—If any person engage in the fighting of cocks, dogs or other animals, for money, prize or anything of value, or upon the result of which any money or other thing of value is bet or wagered, or to which admission fee is charged, directly or indirectly, or for any championship, he shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (Code 1887, § 3792; 1910, p. 330.)

Sec. 4551. Buggery; how punished.—If any person commit the crime of buggery, either with mankind or with any brute animal, or have carnal copulation in any manner with another person of the same sex, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years. (Code 1887, § 3793; 1916, p. 511.)

Revisors' Note.—The penalty has been reduced from "not less than two nor more than five years" to "not less than one nor more than three years."

Sec. 4552. Violation of sepulture; how punished.—If a person unlawfully disinter or displace a dead human body, or any part of a dead human body, which has been deposited in any vault, grave or other burial place, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than five nor more than ten years. (Code 1887, § 3794.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 704.

Sec. 4553. Injuries to cemeteries, burial grounds, etc.; how punished.—If any person wilfully and maliciously destroy, mutilate, deface, injure, or remove any tomb, monument, grave-stone, or other structure placed within any cemetery, grave-yard, or place of burial, or within any lot belonging to any memorial or monumental association, or any fence, railing, or other work for the protection or ornament of any tomb, monument, grave-stone, or other structure aforesaid, or of any cemetery lot within any cemetery; or wilfully or maliciously destroy, remove, cut, break, or injure any tree, shrub, or plant within any cemetery or lot of any memorial or monumental association; or wilfully or maliciously destroy, mutilate, injure, or remove and carry away any flowers, wreaths, vases, or other ornaments placed upon or around any grave, tomb, monument, or lot in any cemetery, grave-yard, or other place of burial; or wilfully obstruct proper ingress and egress to and from any cemetery or lot belonging to any memorial association, he shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or confined in jail not exceeding six months. (Code 1887, § 3795.)

Sec. 4554. Cruelty to animals.—Any person who overrides, overdrives, overloads, tortures, ill-treats, or cruelly or unnecessarily beats, maims, mutilates, or kills any animal, whether belonging to himself or another, or deprives any animal of necessary sustenance, food, or drink, or causes any of the above things, or being the owner of such animal permits such acts to be done by another, or who wilfully sets on foot, instigates, engages in, or in any way furthers any act of cruelty to any animal; or who shall carry or cause to be carried in or upon any vehicle or vessel or otherwise any animal in a cruel, brutal, or inhuman manner, so as to produce torture or unnecessary suffering, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; but nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the dehorning of cattle. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Revisors' Note.—This and the eleven following sections are taken from the same act. Various changes in phraseology have been made, and some changes in meaning. Section 4554 is taken from section 1 of the act with material changes: (1) The words, "or who having in custody any maimed, diseased, disabled, or infirm animal leaves it to lie or be in a street, road, or public place," found in the section as it appears in the act, have been transferred to section 4743. (2) The punishment is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782. Formerly, it was by fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or confinement in jail not exceeding twelve months, or both. (3) The act excepted the docking of horses' tails as well as the dehorning of cattle, but the revised section makes but one exception. There can be no necessity for docking a horse's tail, and it subjects the animal to the greatest annoyance and distress in the summer season. In prohibiting the docking of horses' tails, Virginia now follows the laws of various other states.

For note upon the question whether cruelty to turtles falls within the statute, see 18 Va. L. Reg. 791.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 149, section 14.

Sec. 4555. Officers and agents of societies for prevention of cruelty to animals given power to arrest offenders.—Any officer or agent of any society duly incorporated under the laws of this State for the prevention of cruelty to animals whose appointment shall have been approved as hereinafter provided shall have power to arrest without warrant any person found violating in his presence any of the provisions of law concerning cruelty to animals, and upon making such arrest shall forthwith convey the person arrested before some court or magistrate having jurisdiction of the offense and there make complaint against him; but said officers and agents shall not be authorized to make such arrests within any municipal corporation unless their appointment has been approved by the mayor thereof, nor within any county beyond the limits of a municipal corporation unless their appointment has been approved by the circuit judge of said county; and the mayor or circuit judge shall keep a record of all such appointments and require the officer or agent to execute bond in the penalty of five hundred dollars with security conditioned according to law and that such officer or agent will not knowingly make a false or improper arrest. Such officers and agents shall be provided with a certificate by the society appointing them that they are such officers or agents, in such form as the directors of said society may choose, which certificate shall also bear the written approval by the mayor or circuit judge of such appointment as provided for in this section, and the said officers and agents shall, if requested, show such certificates when acting officially; and any such officer or agent shall have power to execute any warrant issued by a magistrate for the violation of any of the said provisions, whether the offense was committed in his presence or not.

In no case shall the appointment of such officers or agents or any services performed by them entail any cost or expense upon such county or municipal corporation or upon the State. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4556. Officers and agents of such societies may prevent cruelty to animals; interference with such officers and agents a misdemeanor.—Any such officer or agent whose appointment shall have been approved as provided in the preceding section may lawfully interfere to prevent the perpetration of any act of cruelty upon any animal in his presence, and every person who shall interfere with or obstruct or resist any such officer or agent in the discharge of his rights, powers, and duties as authorized and prescribed by law, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or confined in jail not more than thirty days or both. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4557. Power of search for violations of statutes against cruelty to animals.—When a sworn complaint is made to any proper authority by any such agent or officer that the complainant believes and has reasonable cause to believe that the laws in relation to cruelty to animals have been, are being, or are about to be violated in any particular building or place, such authority, if satisfied that there is reasonable cause for such belief, shall issue a warrant authorizing any sheriff, deputy sheriff, sergeant, deputy sergeant, constable, police officer, or any such officer, or agent of such society to search such building or place; but no such search shall be made after sunset unless specially authorized by such authority upon satisfactory cause shown. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4558. When animals to be destroyed.—Any such agent or officer may lawfully destroy, or cause to be destroyed, any animal in his charge or found abandoned or not properly cared for, when in the judgment of such agent or officer and two reputable citizens called to view the same in his presence, one of whom may be selected by the owner of said animal, if he should so request, and who shall give their written certificate thereto, such animal appears to be injured, disabled, diseased, past recovery, or unfit for any useful purpose, and should the two citizens called in as above disagree they shall select a third, and his decision shall be final. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4559. When agent or officer of such society to take charge of animals and vehicle; notice to owner; lien for care, etc.—When any person arrested under any provision of law concerning cruelty to animals is at the time of such arrest in charge of any vehicle drawn by or containing any animal cruelly treated, any such agent or officer of such society may take charge of such animal and of such vehicle and its contents and shall give notice thereof to the owner if known, and shall care and provide for them until their owner shall take charge of the same, which he shall do within thirty days from the date of said notice, and the said society shall have a lien on said animals and vehicles for the expenses of such care and provision, which lien may be enforced as provided in section forty-five hundred and sixty-one. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4560. When such agent or officer may take charge of animals abandoned, neglected, cruelly treated, or unfit for use; notice to owner; expense of care and provision.—Any such officer or agent may lawfully take charge of any animal found abandoned, neglected, or cruelly treated or unfit for use, and shall thereupon give notice thereof to the owner, if known, and may provide for such animal until the owner take charge of the same, and the expenses of such care and provision shall be a charge against the owner of such animal, collectible from the owner at the suit of the society whose officer or agent may have taken charge of such animal. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4561. Lien for food, shelter, and keep of animals; how enforced.—When any such society, acting through its agents or officers, shall provide a neglected or abandoned animal, or any other animal, taken charge of by the society, as hereinbefore provided, with proper food, shelter, and care, it may detain such animal until the expense of such food, shelter, and care is paid, and shall have a lien upon such animal therefor, and if such expense be not paid within thirty days after such food, shelter, and care begins to be furnished, as aforesaid, such animal may be sold at public auction upon giving written notice of the time and place of sale at least six days previous thereto to the owner if he be known, and if he be not known by giving notice of the time and place of such sale for at least six days previous thereto in some newspaper published in the county or city where such animal was found; and after discharging the lien on said animal or vehicle the proceeds remaining shall be paid over to owner of said animal. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "thirty days" in line seven of the text, are used in lieu of "twenty days," which appear in the act.

Sec. 4562. Jurisdiction of justices; right of appeal.—The provisions of the eight preceding sections may be enforced by any justice of the peace in cities, towns, or counties wherein the offense is committed, or the offender or owner may be found, and every such offender shall have the right of appeal to the corporation court in cities and the circuit court in counties. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4563. Half of fines collected in certain prosecutions to go to society for prevention of cruelty to animals.—In every case prosecuted upon the evidence, complaint, or information of any officer or agent of any duly incorporated society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, one-half of the fine assessed against the accused person who may have been convicted shall, upon the collection of said fine, be paid over to the said society. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4564. When officer or agent to be set down as prosecutor.—Whenever a warrant is sworn out, or a presentment, indictment, or information is obtained upon the complaint or information of any such officer or agent, the name of such officer or agent shall be endorsed as prosecutor upon such warrant, indictment, information, or presentment. (1893-4, p. 163.)

unless the name of such officer or agent be endorsed on the warrant, presentment, indictment, or information sued out, or presentment found or obtained, upon the complaint and information of such officer or agent. (1893-4, p. 163.)

Sec. 4566. Shooting of pigeons, or other birds or fowls for amusement, and renting premises for such purposes.—Whoever keeps or uses a live pigeon or other bird or fowl for the purpose of a target, or to be shot at either for amusement or as a test of skill in marksmanship, or shoots at a bird kept or used as aforesaid, or is a party to such shooting, or lets any building, room, field, or premises, or knowingly permits the use thereof for the purpose of such shooting, shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both. Nothing herein contained shall apply to the shooting of wild game. (1906, p. 448.)

Sec. 4567. Injury to hired horse, etc., or vehicle by reckless riding, driving, etc.; defrauding livery man; how punished.—If any person having hired from a licensed livery stable keeper or any other person, any horse, mule, automobile or other vehicle, wilfully or negligently injure or damage the same by hard or reckless riding, driving, or using, or permit any other person so to do, or hire the same to any other person, or procure any horse, mule, automobile or other vehicle from a licensed livery stable keeper, or any other person, without previously making arrangements for credit, and use the same without paying therefor and with intent to cheat or defraud said licensed livery stable keeper, or other person, he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars. (Code 1887, § 3797; 1904, p. 79; 1910, p. 347.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or any other person" found in line seven of the text are new, as are also the words, "or other person" found in line nine of the text. The latter part of the section should be as comprehensive as the first.

Sec. 4568. Profane swearing and drunkenness; how punished.—If any person arrived at the age of discretion profanely curse or swear or get drunk in public he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one nor more than ten dollars. (Code 1887, § 3798; 1897-8, p. 342; 1914, p. 29.)

Revisors' Note.—The words formerly appearing in this section: "but nothing herein contained shall apply to any city or town having police regulations on this subject" have been omitted, so as to make no distinction in this respect between cities or towns and counties.

As to drunkenness, see Acts 1918, p. 578. This act supersedes chapter 184 of this Code.

Sec. 4569. Use of profane or indecent language over telephone.—(1870)

Digitized by Google

If any person shall curse or abuse anyone, or use vulgar, profane or indecent language over any telephone in this State, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars. (1910, p. 258.)

Sec. 4570. Working or transacting business on Sunday; how punished.—If a person on a Sunday be found laboring at any trade or calling, or employ his apprentices or servants in labor or other business, except in household or other work of necessity or charity, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five dollars for each offense. Every day any person or servant or apprentice is so employed shall constitute a distinct offense and the court in which or the justice by whom any judgment of conviction is rendered may require of the person so convicted a recognizance in a penalty of not less than one hundred or more than five thousand dollars, with or without security, conditioned that such person shall be of good behavior, and especially to refrain from a repetition of such offense, for a period not exceeding twelve months. This section shall not apply to furnaces, kilns, plants and other business of like kind that may be necessary to be conducted on Sunday. (Code 1887, § 3799; 1908, p. 258; 1916, p. 751.)

Revisors' Note.—This section was slightly amended by Acts 1916, p. 751; but as it appears above, it is taken from the act of 1908, with the last sentence added. The reason for the addition is manifest. The proviso with reference to the delivery of ice cream has been omitted because deemed unnecessary. The section is of long standing, and has always had a reasonable construction, and to make one special exception might lead to the construction that many other acts were forbidden which have never been held to be within the purview of the section.

Violation of section a misdemeanor.—Before the amendment of 1908 a violation of this section was not a misdemeanor, and the forfeiture imposed could be recovered only by civil warrant. Wells' Case, 107 Va. 834, 57 S. E. 588. Objection that the proceeding was by a criminal warrant might be raised in the Supreme Court of Appeals for the first time. Hanger's Case, 107 Va. 872, 60 S. E. 67. Any person, whether employer or employee, who violated the section was amenable to the forfeiture. Puckett's Case, 107 Va. 844, 57 S. E. 591. As the section now reads, a violation of it is expressly declared to be a misdemeanor.

When Sunday begins and ends.—Sunday is from 12:00 o'clock Saturday night until 12:00 o'clock Sunday night. Jeffries' Case, 113 Va. 773, 75 S. E. 90; State v. Green, 27 Mo. 466.

Under a similar statute in West Virginia it was held that the burden was on the Commonwealth to prove that the work was not "of necessity or charity." State v. McBee, 52 W. Va. 257, 43 S. E. 121, 60 L. R. A. 638; 8 Va. Law Reg. 763. See, also, 8 Va. Law Reg. 908.

As an offense against the Sunday laws consists in the doing of an act on a prohibited day, time is of the essence of the offense, and it must be affirmatively alleged that the act complained of was performed on a Sunday, although the particular Sunday is not important, provided it is within the Statute of Limitations. 37 Cyc. 579, citing Jackson v. the State, 87 Ga. 787, 15 S. Sec. 4571. Exception as to the Jews.—The penalty imposed by the preceding section shall not be incurred by any person who conscientiously believes that the seventh day of the week ought to be observed as a Sabbath, and actually refrains from all secular business and labor on that day, provided he does not compel an apprentice or servant, not of his belief, to do secular work or business on a Sunday, and does not on that day disturb any other person. (Code 1887, § 3800.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "penalty imposed" are used in lieu of "forfeiture declared." As section 4570 (section 3799 of the Code of 1887) stood before the amendment of 1908, a violation of it was not a misdemeanor. Wells' Case, 107 Va. 884, 57 S. E. 588. Under the amendment of 1908, and as the section now stands, a violation of it is expressly declared to be a misdemeanor.

As to religious freedom, see section 34 and notes.

Sec. 4572. What transportation, etc., by railroads on Sunday prohibited.—No railroad company, receiver, or trustee, controlling or operating a railroad, shall, by any agent or employee, load, unload, run or transport upon such road on a Sunday, any car, train of cars or locomotive, nor permit the same to be done by any such agent or employee, except where such cars, trains or locomotives are used exclusively for the relief of wrecked train or trains so disabled as to obstruct the main track of the railroad; or for the transportation of the United States mail; or for the transportation of passengers and their baggage; or where such cars, trains or locomotives constitute interstate freight trains exclusively, which trains may be run through the State of Virginia without stopping at local stations for interchange of freight; or for the transportation of live stock, or for the transportation of articles of such perishable nature as would necessarily impair in value by one day's delay in their passage: provided, however, that if it should be necessary to transport live stock or perishable articles on a Sunday to an extent not sufficient to make a whole train load, such train load may be made up with cars loaded with ordinary freight; and provided, however, that the State Corporation Commission may, at such times necessity may require, either to meet an emergency or to save life or property, suspend the restriction of this section and authorize the running, loading or unloading on Sunday of freight trains on any railroad, and of any car or locomotive. The State Corporation Commission may, upon petition, duly verified, of any railroad company, either by general rule or special order, or both, authorize the running, loading or unloading on Sunday of freight trains on such railroad, and of any car or locomotive, for any of the causes in the provisos of this section. (Code 1887, § 3801; 1910, pp. 59, 471.)

This statute prior to its amendment in 1910 held not unconstitutional in N. & W. R. R. v. Com., 93 Va. 749, 24 S. E. 837, 34 L. R. A. 105, 57 Am. St. Rep. 827, overruling N. & W. R. R. v. Com., 88 Va. 95, 13 S. E. 340, 13 L. R. A. 107, 29 Am. St. Rep. 705, in which latter case the court held that the section violated article 1, section 8, cl. 3, Const. U. S. See note, 2 Va. Law Reg. 283.

Empty coal cars, en route back to West Virginia, when they are used exclusively to transport coal into this state, and which are intended to be used again, are not engaged in transporting articles of interstate commerce, and the transportation is therefore controlled by laws of this state. Such transportation on Sunday is forbidden by this section. N. & W. R. R. v. Com., 93 Va. 749, 24 S. E. 837, 34 L. R. A. 105, 57 Am. St. Rep. 827.

Where ground of liability charged is that an injury was inflicted by a train run on Sunday, the declaration is bad on demurrer, if it does not aver that the train was not one of those permitted by law to be run on Sunday, as the statute contains several exceptions. Sec. 4573. What time the word "Sunday" in the preceding section embraces.—The word "Sunday" as used in the preceding section shall be construed to embrace only that portion of the day between sunrise and sunset; and trains in transitu having started prior to twelve o'clock on Saturday night, may, in order to reach the terminus or shops of the railroad, run until nine o'clock the following Sunday morning, but not later. Sec. 4574. Violations of section forty-five hundred and seventy-two; where and how punished.—Any railroad company, receiver, or trustee violating the provisions of section forty-five hundred and seventy-two shall be deemed to have committed a separate offense in each county or corporation in which such car, train of cars, or locomotive shall run, or in which such car or train of cars shall be loaded or unloaded; and shall be fined not less than fifty

Sec. 4575. To prohibit the loading and unloading of steamships' and steamboats' cargoes on a Sunday.—No steamboat company shall by any agent or employee load or unload on a Sunday any steamship or steamboat arriving at any port or landing on the bays, rivers, or other waters of this State or permit the same to be done by any such agent or employee except where such steamship or steamboat is for the transportation of the United States mails, or for the transportation of passengers and their baggage, or for the transportation of through freight in transitu, or of live stock, or of articles of such perishable nature as would be necessarily impaired in value by one day's delay in their passage: provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing any steamship or steamboat arriving at any port or landing on the bays, rivers, and other waters of this State not its final point of destination from unloading any and all freight intended for delivery at such intermediate port or landing or from loading and taking on any and all freight intended for shipment from such intermediate port or landing to the final destination of said steamship or steamboat. Any steamship or steamboat company violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed to have committed a separate offense in each county or corporation in which said steamship or steamboat shall land and be unloaded. and shall be fined in a sum not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. Sec. 4576. Disturbance of religious worship a misdemeanor.—If any person wilfully interrupt or disturb any assembly met for the worship of God, or being intoxicated, disturb the same, whether wilfully or not, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and any justice or other conservator of the peace may put him under restraint during religious worship, and require him to enter into a recognizance for his good behavior for a period not exceeding twelve months. (Code 1887, § 3805; 1899-00, p. 1115; 1908, p. 24.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782.

The disturbance need not be during divine service, but may be at any time that the congregation is assembled, even at night, after they have retired to their tents. Jennings' Case, 3 Grat. 624.

etc.—If any person wilfully interrupt, molest, or disturb the exercise of any free school or any other school or of any literary society, or being intoxicated, disturb the same, whether wilfully or not, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1889-90, p. 152.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782. The act provided that, "A justice of the peace or police justice may try and determine these cases." This sentence has been omitted as unnecessary. See section 4987.

Sec. 4578. Carrying dangerous weapon to place of religious worship, or on Sunday at place other than his own premises; how punished.—If any person carry any gun, pistol, bowie-knife, dagger, or other dangerous weapon, to a place of worship while a meeting for religious purposes is being held at such place, or, without good and sufficient cause therefor, carry any such weapon on a Sunday at any place other than his own premises, he shall be fined not less than twenty dollars. If any offense under this section be committed at a place of religious worship, the offender may be arrested on the order of a conservator of the peace, without warrant, and held until a warrant can be obtained, but not exceeding three hours. It shall be the duty of every justice, upon his own knowledge, or upon the affidavit of any person, that an offense under this section has been committed, to issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender. (Code 1887, § 3806.)

Sec. 4579. Pandering; punishment therefor; competency of certain evidence.—Any person who takes, harbors, inveigles, entices, persuades or encourages, either by threats or promises, or by any device or scheme takes, or causes to be taken, any female into a house of ill-fame or of assignation, or elsewhere, against her will, for the purpose of prostitution or illegal sexual intercourse; or,

Takes or detains a female unlawfully against her will with the intent to compel her, by force, threats, persuasion, menace or duress, to marry him or to marry any other person, or to be defiled; or,

Being parent, guardian or any other person having legal charge of the person of a female, consents to her being taken or detained by any person for the purpose of prostitution or sexual intercourse,

Is guilty of pandering, and shall be punished by confinement for a term of not less than one year nor more than ten years in the penitentiary, and by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars.

tution, is guilty of pandering, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars and by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one or more than ten years.

Any person who shall receive any money or other valuable thing for or on account of procuring for or placing in a house of prostitution or elsewhere any female for the purpose of causing her to cohabit with any male person or persons, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be confined in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than ten years.

Any person who, by force, fraud, intimidation or threats, places or leaves, or procures any other person or persons to place or leave his wife in a house of prostitution or to lead a life of prostitution, shall be guilty of pandering, and upon conviction thereof shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years.

Any person or persons who shall knowingly receive any money or other valuable thing from the earnings of any female engaged in prostitution, except for a consideration deemed good or valuable in law, shall be guilty of pandering, and on conviction be confined in the penitentiary for a term not less than one year nor more than ten years, and fined not more than five hundred dollars.

Any person or persons who shall detain any female in a disorderly house or house of prostitution because of any debt or debts she has contracted, or is said to have contracted, while living in said house of prostitution or disorderly house, shall be guilty of felony, and on conviction thereof shall be confined in the penitentiary for a term not less than one year nor more than ten years.

Any person or persons transporting, or attempting to transport, by any railroad, steamboat, railway, or by any other means of conveyance, through or across this State, any female for the purposes within the intent of this section, may be presented, indicted, tried and convicted in any county or city in which any part of said transportation may have taken place.

Any female hereinbefore referred to shall be a competent witness in any prosecution under this section to testify to any and all matters, including conversations with the accused or by him with third persons in her presence, notwithstanding she may have married the accused either before or after the violation of any of the provisions of this section, but she shall not be compelled to testify after such marriage. (1910, p. 252.)

Revisors' Note.—In addition to slight verbal changes, the revised section contains one change in meaning. This change consists of the use of the words, "in which any part of said transporation may have taken place," found at the end of the second paragraph from the bottom, in lieu of "in which the said offender may be apprehended, and on arrest (1876) be taken to any court of competent jurisdiction in any such county or city; and the said presentment, indictment and trial shall be had in the same county or city in which the arrest occurs." The object of this change is to obviate a constitutional question. (See Const., section 8.) A trial by a jury remote from where the offense was committed could hardly be called a trial by a jury of his vicinage. See Richard's Case, 107 Va. 881, 59 S. E. 1104. But each step of the transportation may be regarded as a part of a continuous offense. In some states where property is stolen in one state and brought into another, the latter state punishes for larceny, deeming each removal of the property as a new asportation. There was no such statute in Virginia when Strouther's Case, 92 Va. 787, 22 S. E. 852, was decided, but such statutes are regarded as valid.

Sec. 4580. Appointment of police for religious meetings.—The supervisor or any justice of the magisterial district where a religious meeting is held shall, upon the written application of the conductor of such meeting, appoint as many temporary police as may be necessary to enforce order at such meeting, the authorities of such meeting paying all expenses incurred by reason of the appointment of such officers. (Code 1887, § 3810; 1891-2, p. 872; 1895-6, pp. 488, 539.)

And if it be a second offense, it shall be so stated in the indictment returned, and the prosecuting attorney shall introduce before the trial court, evidence of said former conviction, and shall not be permitted to use his discretion in charging said second offense, or in introducing evidence and proving the same, on the trial, but the failure to charge former conviction shall not invalidate the indictment.

Sec. 4588. Acts and products not affected by this chapter; sales by druggists for medicinal purposes.—The provisions of this chapter shall not be construed to prevent any person from manufacturing for his domestic consumption at his home, but not to be sold, dispensed or given away, except as hereinafter provided, wine or cider from fruit of his own raising; or to prevent the manufacture from fruit of cider for the purpose of making vinegar, not used as a beverage; and non-intoxicating cider, containing not more than one per centum of alcohol by volume, for use or sale; or to prevent the manufacture and sale, as hereinafter provided at wholesale, to druggists, only of pure grain or fruit or ethyl alcohol, for medicinal, pharmaceutical, scientific and merchanical purposes, or of wine for sacramental purposes for use by religious bodies; or to prevent the sale, keeping or storing for sale by druggists, of pure grain or fruit or ethyl alcohol, and of pure whiskey and pure brandy, for mechanical, pharmaceutical, medicinal and scientific purposes, or of wine for sacramental purposes for use by religious bodies, but nothing in this chapter nor in any section thereof shall have any application whatever to denatured alcohol or denatured rum intended for use only in the industrial or mechanical arts, including especially the manufacture of tobacco, cigarettes, cheroots or cigars, where the same is brought or shipped into the State under bond and there kept and stored under bond, in strict compliance with the United States internal revenue laws and regulations, until actually applied to the uses above mentioned and none other whatsoever, or to prevent the sale or gift and keeping and storing for sale by druggists and general merchants or others duly licensed by existing laws of any medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with formulas prescribed by the United States pharmacopeia and national formulary patent and proprietary preparations and other bona fide medicinal and technical preparations which contain no more alcohol than is necessary to extract the medicinal properties of the drugs contained in such preparations, and no more alcohol than is necessary to hold the medicinal agents in solution and to preserve the same, and which are manufactured and sold as medicine and not as beverages; or to prevent the manufacture and sale of toilet, medicinal and antiseptic preparations and solutions not intended for internal human use, nor to be sold as beverages, and upon the outside of each bottle, box or package of which is printed in English conspicuously and legibly and clearly the quantity by volume of alcohol in such preparations; or to prevent the manufacturing or keeping for sale of the food product known as flavoring extracts which shall be so manufactured or sold for cooking and culinary purposes only, and not to be sold for beverage purposes, provided that it shall not be lawful to manufacture or sell any toilet medicinal, antiseptic preparations or solutions, or any flavoring extracts or patent or proprietary medicines or preparations, the manufacture or sale of which requires the payment of the United States liquor dealer's tax. (Id., § 8.)

Sec. 4589. Sales of proprietary medicines, toilet articles, etc., and Jamaica ginger, and purchases, etc., by druggists not licensed under this chapter.—It shall be unlawful for any person to sell such toilet, medicinal, antiseptic preparations or solutions or flavoring extracts or patent or proprietary medicines or preparations for beverage purposes in the guise of flavoring extracts or medicines, and it shall be unlawful for anyone but a licensed pharmacist to sell, dispense or give away to the consumer the extract, essence or tincture of Jamaica ginger, and such pharmacist only upon the prescription of a regular licensed physician, and then only upon the same conditions as ardent spirits are sold under the provisions of this chapter.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the manufacture and transportation for sale outside of the State of the extract, essence, or tincture of Jamaica ginger into territory where the same may be legally sold, nor to prevent any regularly licensed druggist or drug company doing business in this State, though not licensed under this chapter, from buying, storing, and having the same transported to him, or it, by common carriers, pure grain, fruit or ethyl alcohol for medicinal, pharmaceutical, scientific and mechanical purposes, but all such druggists and drug companies shall make inventories of stock on hand, affidavit, and the monthly report as hereinafter required of druggists licensed under this chapter, except that the affidavit of such druggists and drug companies shall not contain the words, "sold, dispensed." (Id., § 8.)

Sec. 4591. Sales by druggists for medicinal purposes.—No druggist shall sell any grain, ethyl, or fruit alcohol, or pure whiskey, or pure brandy, except for medicinal, scientific, pharmaceutical, or mechanical purposes, or wine for sacramental purposes for use by religious bodies only, except as hereinafter provided, and the same shall not be sold by such druggists for medicinal purposes, except upon written prescription of a physician in active practice of good standing in his profession, and not of intemperate habits, or addicted to the use of any narcotic drug, prescribing the quantity of alcohol, pure whiskey or pure brandy, designating the said amount in fractions of a pint, or quart, the disease or malady for which it is prescribed, how it is to be used, the name of the person for whom prescribed, the number of previous prescriptions for ardent spirits given by such physician to such person within six months next preceding the date of such prescription, and stating that the same is absolutely necessary for medicine, and not to be used as a beverage, and that such physician, at the time such prescription was given, made a careful, personal physical examination of such person; and only one sale, not exceeding one pint of whiskey or brandy or not exceeding one quart of pure fruit or grain alcohol, shall be made upon such prescription, which shall at all times be kept on file by the druggist filling the same, and open to the inspection of all State, county, and municipal officers, their deputies and inspectors. It shall be the duty of the druggist to register in an alphabetically arranged book, kept exclusively for the purpose of registering prescriptions and affidavits, all prescriptions from physicians mentioned in this section in the following order: The name of the physician, the name of the person prescribed for, the quantity of alcohol, pure whiskey or pure brandy, and the use for which prescribed, and shall endorse on the prescription or affidavit the date upon which the prescription was filled, and the name of the druggist or firm filling said prescription, or making said sale, and such book shall at all times be open for the same inspection as the prescription. habits and not addicted to the use of any narcotic drugs, who shall at the time and place of sale, if bought in person, make an affidavit in writing, signed by himself, before such druggist, or a registered pharmacist, then in the employ of such druggist, or, if not bought in person, before any person authorized by law to administer oaths, stating the quantity, when, where and fully for what purpose and by whom such alcohol or wine is to be used, and that the affiant is not a minor nor of intemperate habits and not addicted to the use of any narcotic drugs. Such affidavit shall be filed and preserved by the druggist selling the alcohol and wine and be subject to the inspection at all times by any State, county or municipal officer, their deputies or inspectors, and a record thereof made by such druggist in the record book for prescriptions and affidavits herein mentioned, showing date of affidavit, by whom made, the quantity of such alcohol, or wine, and when, where, for what purpose and by whom to be used. Only one sale shall be made upon such affidavit, and for no greater quantity than is therein specified. The person offering said prescription to be filled, or making said affidavit, shall certify to the correctness of the record in said record book, by recording his signature opposite said record of said prescription or affidavit. For the purpose of this chapter, any registered druggist or pharmacist making such sale, shall have authority to administer the oaths required by this section. (Id., § 9.)

Sec. 4593. Penalty on druggists, etc., for violating preceding section.—If any druggist, owner of a drug store, registered pharmacist, clerk, or employee shall knowingly violate the provisions of the preceding section by selling or giving away such alcohol, pure whiskey, pure brandy or wine, to any one to be used for any purpose other than that named in said prescription or affidavit (provided that no whiskey or brandy shall be sold except upon prescription), or shall sell or give away any ardent spirits without such prescription or affidavit, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and in addition to the penalty prescribed for a misdemeanor by this chapter, the license of such druggist to sell ardent spirits shall be revoked by the court for a period of one year, and all ardent spirits in possession of said druggist, or in the said drug store, or on the premises connected therewith, shall be destroyed by order of the court; for a second or a subsequent offense, in addition to the penalty prescribed for a misdemeanor by this chapter, the license of the said druggist to practice pharmacy shall be revoked forthwith, and all ardent spirits in the possession of said druggist, or in the said drug store, or on the premises connected therewith, shall forthwith be destroyed, by order of the court, and the court shall forthwith certify the fact of the revocation of said license to the authority granting such license, which order of revocation shall forthwith be made a matter of record by said authority, and shall act as a bar to the granting of license to said druggist in the future. (Id., § 9.)

Sec. 4594. Purchases by dentists, physicians and veterinary surgeons.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prevent dentists, physicians and veterinary surgeons from purchasing in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, pure fruit or ethyl or grain alcohol to be used in the practice of their professions and for no other purpose whatsoever. (Id., § 9.)

Sec. 4595. Presumptions upon sale by druggists, etc., unlawful sales by employees without employer's knowledge; penalties for failure to discharge convicted employees.—In any prosecution against a druggist, owner of a drug store, registered pharmacist, clerk or employee, for selling or giving ardent spirits contrary to law, if such sale or gift be proven, it shall be presumed to be unlawful in the absence of satisfactory proof to the contrary, but the presentation of such prescription or affidavit by the defendant on trial shall be sufficient to rebut the presumption arising from the proof of such sale or gift, if the jury shall believe from all the evidence in the case that such sale or gift was made in good faith under the belief that such prescription or affidavit and the statements therein were true, and that such druggist, owner of a drug store, registered pharmacist, clerk or employee shall have complied with all other provisions of this chapter relating to such sale or gift. If any clerk or employee in a drug store other than the druggist or owner of said drug store, shall sell or give away any ardent spirits contrary to the provisions of this chapter, upon conviction of said clerk or employee, said druggist, or owner of said drug store, may before trial and the revocation of the license and the destruction of the ardent spirits in his possession as required in sections forty-five hundred and ninety-two and forty-five hundred and ninety-three, be permitted to present to the court evidence that said sale or gift was without his knowledge, consent, acquiescence or connivance, and if the court is convinced from said evidence that said druggist, or owner of said drug store was not in any sense a party to the violation of this chapter by his clerk or other employee, then said druggist or owner of a drug store shall not be deemed guilty of the violation of said section forty-five hundred and ninety-two and forty-five hundred and ninety-three, by reason of the violation thereof by his clerk or employee.

If any druggist or owner of a drug store, who has been duly notified that any clerk or employee has been convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall fail at once to discharge said clerk or employee permanently, he shall forfeit his license as a registered pharmacist for a period of three months,

Sec. 4596. Indictments against druggists.—While any good and sufficient indictment may be used, an indictment against any druggist, owner of a drug store, registered pharmacist, clerk or employee, for any offense committed under the provisions of this chapter relating to druggists, shall be sufficient if substantially in the form and to the effect following:

"Commonwealth of Virginia,

County of ....., to-wit:

In the circuit court of said county:

The grand jurors in and for the body of said county of..... ..... and now attending said court at its.....term, 19...., upon their oaths do present that ..... within one year next prior to the finding of this indictment in the said county of ....., did unlawfully sell, give away, offer, dispense, expose, keep and store for sale and gift, ardent spirits against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth of Virginia."

And if it be a second offense, it shall be so stated in the indictment returned, and the prosecuting attorney shall introduce before the trial court evidence of said former conviction, and shall not be permitted to use his discretion in charging said second offense, or in introducing evidence or proving the same on the trial; but the failure to charge a former conviction shall not invalidate the indictment.

If the offense is committed in a city, the word city shall be substituted for county, the court having jurisdiction substituted for circuit court, and the name of the city for the name of the county. (Id., § 11.)

Sec. 4597. Affidavit by person of intemperate habits, use other than stated in affidavit.—If any person who is of intemperate habits or addicted to the use of any narcotic drug shall make the affidavit mentioned in section forty-five hundred and ninety-two, or if any person making such affidavit shall use as a beverage, or for any purpose, or at any place other than that stated in the affidavit, or shall knowingly permit another to make use of said alcohol or wine, or any part thereof, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such affidavit, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Id., § 12.)

Sec. 4598. When issue of prescriptions by physicians unlawful; penalty.—If any physician who is not in active practice, or who is not in good standing in his profession, or who is of intemperate habits, or addicted to the use of any narcotic drug shall issue any such prescription as is mentioned in this chapter, or if any physician shall issue such prescription without at the time making a careful, personal physical examination of the person for whom the ardent spirits are prescribed, or shall prescribe ardent spirits for any person who he knows or has reason to believe is in the habit of drinking to intoxication, unless it is prescribed bona fide and solely for medical purposes as a necessary treatment, when the patient is confined to his bed or in some hospital or institution as a result of alcoholism, or shall in his prescription make any false statement, or shall prescribe ardent spirits when such ardent spirits are plainly not a remedy, or shall resort to any shift or device by which ardent spirits may be improperly procured, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and in addition to the penalty prescribed for a misdemeanor by this chapter, for the first offense under this chapter, the court may in its discretion suspend the license of such physician for a period of six months, and for a second offense in addition to the penalty prescribed for a misdemeanor by this chapter the court shall suspend such license for a period of twelve months, and for any subsequent offense in addition to the penalty prescribed for a misdemeanor by this chapter, the court shall forthwith revoke the license of said physician, and shall forthwith certify the fact of the revocation of said license to the authority granting said license, which order of revocation shall forthwith be made a matter of record by said authority, and shall act as a bar to the granting of license to said physician in the future. (Id., § 13.)

Sec. 4599. Issue of licenses to druggists.—Before a druggist shall sell ardent spirits on prescription, or pure fruit, ethyl, or grain alcohol for scientific, mechanical or pharmaceutical purposes, or wine for sacramental purposes on affidavit as provided in this chapter, he must procure a license to do so from the circuit court of the county, or the corporation court of the city.

Before making application for such license notice must be posted and continuously kept at the front door of the store in which the privilege is to be exercised for at least thirty days before making the application, stating the court before which and the time at which the application will be made for license to sell pure fruit, ethyl and grain alcohol, pure whiskey and pure brandy and wine for sacramental purposes. Such notice shall be published once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county or city, and if there is no newspaper published in the county in which the privilege is to be exercised, the notice shall be published in some newspaper of general circulation therein. The applicant shall, in the event that a license is granted, obtain from the commissioner of the revenue, upon the payment of the usual fee, the proper certificate, but no tax shall be required for the exercise of said privilege.

Before the court shall grant any such license, the judge thereof shall be satisfied that the person making the application is a qualified voter of the State and of good moral character, is a registered pharmacist in good standing, or employs a registered pharmacist, that he has in his store drugs, belonging to him, and not including patent medicines and drugs to be sold on commission, of the value of one thousand dollars (wholesale price), provided that in towns of less than five hundred inhabitants the value of the stock of drugs referred to above shall be not less than five hundred dollars, wholesale value, and carries on in good faith the business of a druggist; that he is not of intemperate habits or addicted to the use of any narcotic drugs; that he is a person of good character and will observe the laws controlling the sale of ardent spirits and alcohol; that the applicant has presented satisfactory proof that there is a necessity existing for the granting of such license, and that the sale of ardent spirits at that place and by such applicant will not be contrary to sound public policy or injurious to the moral or material interests of the community. In no case shall a license be granted if a majority of the voters qualified to vote at the last preceding general election petition the court not to grant such license in the following cases, namely: in a town of over one thousand inhabitants, the petition shall be signed by a majority of the said qualified voters of such town; in a town under one thousand inhabitants, the petition shall be signed by a majority of said qualified voters of the town and district in which said town is situated; if in the district, the petition shall be signed by a majority of the said qualified voters of the district and towns of less than one thousand inhabitants in said district. (Id., § 57.)

Sec. 4658. Any citizen may appear personally or by counsel in opposition to the granting of said license, and the court may in its discretion refuse to grant such license if convinced that the person applying is not a suitable person to exercise the said privilege, and the court may revoke such license after giving to the holder of the same an opportunity to be heard in opposition to such revocation; provided it shall not be necessary to obtain such license to sell soft drinks at any place for benevolent or charitable purposes. It shall be unlawful for any dispenser of soft drinks to use any ardent spirits as a flavor or mixture.

Any person violating any provision of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars for the first offense, and shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars for the second offense, and for every subsequent offense shall be fined not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, and confined in jail not less than one nor more than six months. Nor shall any provision of this chapter be construed as repealing any ordinance of any town or city in so far as the same restricts and limits beyond the provisions of this chapter, the transportation, delivery, receipt, possession, sale, offering for sale, advertising for sale, or in any way dispensing, giving away or receiving orders or transmitting orders, for ardent spirits as herein defined; nor shall the provisions of this chapter be construed to repeal or alter an act approved March twenty-second, nineteen hundred and sixteen, entitled, "An act to provide for submitting to the qualified voters of counties and cities the question of interstate and intrastate shipment of ardent spirits for beverage purposes, and prohibiting the transportation, bringing into or receiving of ardent spirits for beverage purposes in any such county or city as shall

Revisors' Note.—The changes in this section were made for the purpose of making its langugae more comprehensive.

For cases under this section as it formerly stood, see Wyatt's Case, 6 Rand. 694; Huff's Case, 14 Grat. 648; Nuckolls' Case, 32 Grat. 884; Leath's Case, 32 Grat. 873; Rasnick's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 356; Angel's Case, Id., 231; Tiernan's Case, 4 Grat. 545; Morganstern's Case, 94 Va. 789, 26 S. E. 402. Lewis' Case, 115 Va. 962, 80 S. E. 575.

Sec. 4677. Occupant of premises permitting gaming tables, gaming bank, etc., how punished.—If any person knowingly permit a gaming table, gaming bank or wheel of fortune, such as is mentioned in the preceding section, to be kept or exhibited on any premises in his occupation, or who shall keep a place resorted to for the purpose of gaming, or a place frequented for such purposes, or who shall reside in such place for such purposes, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3816.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or who shall keep a place resorted to for the purpose of gaming, or a place frequented for such purposes, or who shall reside in such place for such purposes," are new.

Under this section, a presentment is sufficient without information. Maddox's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 19.

Sec. 4678. Persons aiding as doorkeepers, etc., how punished.—If any person act as doorkeeper, guard or watch, or employ another person to act as such, for a keeper or exhibitor of a gaming table, gaming bank, or wheel of fortune, or a place resorted to for the purpose of gaming, or resist, or by any means or device hinder or delay the lawful arrest of such keeper or exhibitor, or person conducting such place, or the seizure of the table, bank, wheel or money exhibited or staked thereat, or unlawfully take the same from the person seizing it, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3817.)

Revisors' Note.—The language of this section is made more comprehensive in order to conform to the preceding section.

Sec. 4679. Betting or playing at faro or at the said games, or at any game except, etc., at a public place, how punished.—If any person bet or play at any such table, bank or wheel of fortune as is mentioned in section forty-six hundred and seventy-six, or if at any ordinary, race field, store-house, tavern, inn or other public house, or in any street, highway, or other public place, or in any out-house or other place where people resort for the purpose of gaming, he play at any game except billiards, bowls, chess, backgammon, drafts, dominoes or a licensed game, or bet on the sides of those who play, he shall be fined thirty dollars and shall, if required by the court, give security for his behavior for one year or in default thereof, shall be confined in jail not exceeding three months. (Code 1887, § 3818.)

Revisors' Note.—The language of the present section is intended to be more comprehensive than that of the former section. The word "shall" in line two from the bottom of the text is used in lieu of "may."

A presentment for playing cards must allege the place to be public at the time of the playing, the name of the place not importing ex vi termini that it was at all times a public place. Bishops' Case, 13 Grat. 785; Hord's Case, 4 Leigh 674, 26 Am. Dec. 340; Robert's Case, 10 Leigh 686.

The true construction of this statute is that it is unlawful to bet at any game at a public place. Neal's Case, 22 Grat. 917. Therefore betting on the game of bagatelle at an auction is within the statute (Neal's Case, 22 Grat. 917); but betting on a horse race was not within the act of March, 1848 (Shelton's Case, 8 Grat. 592).

Playing cards at a tavern is unlawful gaming, whether the party bets or not. Terry's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 77.

The following have been held to be public places, within the meaning of the statute: Disused jail, on public square, accessible to all citizens. Walker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 515. A house of entertainment, whether licensed or not. Linkous' Case, 9 Leigh 608; Hord's Case, 4 Leigh 674; Wortham's Case, 5 Rand. 675. Barn near a tavern on muster day. Farmer's Case, 8 Leigh 741. Racefield, where horses are training for approaching race. Wilson's Case, 9 Leigh 648. Licensed eating house in a town. Neal's Case, 22 Grat. 917. A church while the people are assembled (but at other times a church may be a strictly private place). Bishop's Case, 13 Grat. 785.

The following have been held not to be public places, within the meaning of the statute: A storehouse not within the curtilage of the tavern, nor used therewith, though leased by lessee of the tavern. Sanders' Case, 5 Leigh 751. Secluded spot in the open air, thickly surrounded by brush and briars, and two hundred yards from a shooting match. Vandine's Case, 6 Grat. 689. Storehouse at night, after business hours, and with door closed. Feazle's Case, 8 Grat. 586; Windsor's Case, 4 Leigh 680. A room in an outhouse, within the enclosure of the tavern lot, but not under control of tavern keeper. Purcell's Case, 14 Grat. 680.

Presentment for gaming at the booth of one man cannot be supported by proof of gaming at booth of a different man. Butts' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 18. But an indictment for playing at cards at a public place may be sustained by proof that the party bet at faro at the time and place stated. Gibboney's Case, 14 Grat. 582. But see Windsor's Case, 4 Leigh 680.

A presentment for playing cards "at or near" a place is objectionable for uncertainty. Bishop's Case, 13 Grat. 785.

Expert witness need not be a professional gambler. Nuckolls' Case, 32 Grat. 884.

Witness not justified in refusing to testify before grand jury on ground that his answer will tend to criminate himself. Kendrick's Case, 78 Va. 490; sections 4780, 4781.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 151, section 4.

Sec. 4680. What included in preceding section.—All houses and offices commonly known as public, and all gaming houses, are included within the meaning of the preceding section. Any room attached to such public house, and commonly used for gaming, is also included, whether the same be kept closed or open.

A business office after business hours, or a private residence, is not to be construed as within the meaning of a public house or place, unless such office after business hours, or private residence, is commonly used for gaming.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new.

Sec. 4681. Offense complete without betting.—In prosecutions under the two preceding sections, it shall not be necessary for the Commonwealth to prove that any money, or article of value, or the representation of either, was bet at such game.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new.

Sec. 4682. To prevent and punish betting, gambling, and the making, writing, or selling of books or pools or mutuals on the results of any trotting race or running race of horses or race of any kind, or on any game of ball.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons or association of persons, corporation, or corporations, to occupy any room, shed, tenement, or building, or any part thereof, or to occupy any place upon any grounds with books, apparatus, or paraphernalia for the purpose of recording or registering bets or wagers or of selling or making books, pools, or mutuals upon the result of any game of baseball, football, or any trial of speed or power of endurance of animals or beasts, or being the owner or lessee or occupant of any room, tent, tenement, shed, booth, or building or part thereof, knowingly to permit the same to be used or occupied for any such purposes, or therein to keep, exhibit, or employ any device or apparatus for the purpose of recording or registering such bets or wagers or the selling or making of such books, pools, or mutuals, or to become the custodian or depository for gain, hire, or reward of any money, property, or thing of value bet or wagered or to be wagered or bet contrary to the provisions of this section, or to receive, register, record, forward, or purport or pretend to forward to or for any game of baseball, football, or any race course any money, thing, or consideration of value offered for the purpose of being bet or wagered upon any game of baseball, football, or the speed or endurance of any animal or beast, or to occupy any place or building or part thereof with books, papers, apparatus, or paraphernalia for the purpose of receiving or pretending to receive or for recording or registering or for forwarding or pretending or attempting to forward in any manner whatever any money, thing, or consideration of value bet or to be bet contrary to the provisions of this section, or to aid or assist or abet at any race track or place in any manner in any of the acts forbidden by this statute.

Any person or persons or association of persons, corporation, or corporations violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than two hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, one-fourth of which shall be paid to the informer, and be imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days.

But nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent agricultural associations and riding and driving clubs or associations offering a purse or premium at such trials of speed of animals or beasts as may be held by them. (1891-2, p. 626; 1893-4, p. 646; 1895-6, p. 579.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is a combination of Acts 1893-4, p. 646 and Acts 1895-6, p. 579.

The title of the act of 1891-2, p. 626 (cited in the parentheses above) was held to be a sufficient compliance with section 15, art. 5, Const. 1869, providing that no law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be exprssed in its title. Same provision as section 52, Const. 1902. Lescallett's Case, 89 Va. 878, 17 S. E. 546.

The court in Lescallett's Case, 89 Va. 878, 17 S. E. 546, decided that this statute being penal should be strictly construed, apparently overlooking the provisions of section 4704, which provides that all laws for suppressing gaming shall be construed as remedial.

Sec. 4683. Pool selling, etc., upon the results of any trials of speed of any animals or beasts taking place without the limits of the Commonwealth forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons, or association of persons, corporation or corporations by any ways, means, or devices to make any bet or wager or receive or record or register or forward or purport or pretend to forward any money, thing, or consideration of value to be bet or wagered upon the result of any trial of speed or power of endurance or skill of animals or beasts which is to take place beyond the limits of this Commonwealth, or by any ways, means, or devices to aid, assist, or abet in the making of any bet or wager or the receiving, recording, or registering, or forwarding or purporting or pretending to forward any money, thing, or consideration of value to be bet or wagered upon the result of any trial of speed or power of endurance or skill of animals or beasts which is to take place beyond the limits of this Commonwealth, or to aid or assist or abet in any way or in any manner in any of the acts forbidden by this section.

Any person or persons or association of persons or corporation or corporations violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than two hundred nor more than five hundred dollars and be imprisoned not less than thirty nor more than ninety days. (1895-6, p. 576.)

The act upon which this section is based was held not to be repugnant to the interstate commerce clause of the United States Constitution; nor was it inoperative because it was signed by the Governor on the same day as section 3818c of Pollard's Code (1904), which was inconsistent with the same. Lacey v. Palmer, 93 Va. 159, 24 S. E. 930, 31 L. R. A. 822, 57 Am. St. Rep. 795. For note to same, see 2 Va. Law Reg. 94.

The act was unconstitutional as to all offenses created by it, except "pool-selling on horse races." The words "and so forth" express nothing as a compliance with the constitutional provision as to article 5, section 15, Const. 1869. (Same provision in Const. 1902, section 52.) Lacey v. Palmer, 93 Va. 159, 24 S. E. 930, 31 L. R. A. 822, 57 Am. St. Rep. 795.

Sec. 4684. Relating to the entry and riding or driving of horses at places where purses, premiums, or stakes are competed for.—Whoever for the purpose of competing for a purse, premium, or stake offered by any agricultural society or by any person or association in this State knowingly and designedly enters, rides, or drives any horse that is painted, stained, or in any way marked or disguised, or that is a different horse from the one which is purported to be entered, ridden, or driven, or knowingly and designedly for the purpose of competing for a purse, premium, or stake, enters, rides, or drives a horse in a class to which it does not belong shall be punished by a fine not less than fifty dollars and not exceeding three hundred dollars or by imprisonment not less than thirty days and not exceeding six months. (1893-4, p. 265.)

Sec. 4685. Prohibiting keeping or exhibiting, or being concerned the same punishment and incur the same forfeiture as if such unlawful gaming were permitted at his own principal house; and, in a prosecution therefor, if the gaming be proved, it shall be presumed that such out-house or other place was let or hired with intent aforesaid, unless the presumption be repelled in the manner mentioned in the preceding section. (Code 1887, § 3822.)

See notes to section 4688.

Sec. 4691. Winning by cheating or other fraud, how punished.—If any person playing at any game, or making a wager, or having share in any stake or wager, or betting on the hands or sides of others playing at any game, or making a wager, cheat, or by fraudulent means win or acquire, for himself or another, money or other valuable thing, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not less than five times the value of the money or thing won or acquired. (Code 1887, § 3823.)

Sec. 4692. Betting on election or appointment to office, how punished.—If any person bet or wager money or other thing over the value of five dollars, on any election or appointment to any office or place, to be made under authority of the Constitution and laws of this State, or of the United States, he shall be fined not less than the value of such money or thing, and not more than five times the value thereof. (Code 1887, § 3824.)

This is to be construed as a remedial (not penal) statute. Shumate's Case, 15 Grat. 653. See section 4704.

A bet implies a risk, but not necessarily a risk in both parties. There must be between them a chance of gain and a chance of loss, but the terms may be such that it is impossible for one to lose and yet the transaction may be a wager. Shumate's Case, 15 Grat. 653.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 5, section 9.

Sec. 4693. Persons concerned in managing, etc., a lottery or raffle, or permitting same in his house, or buying, selling, etc., chances or tickets in a lottery, how punished.—If any person set up or promote, or be concerned in managing or drawing a lottery or raffle, for money or other thing of value, or knowingly permit such lottery in any house under his control, or knowingly permit money or other property to be raffled for in such house, or to be won therein, by throwing or using dice, or by any other game of chance, or knowingly permit the sale in such house of any chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in a lottery, or any writing, certificate, bill, token, or other device purporting or intended to guarantee or assure to any person, or entitle him to a prize or share of, or interest in a prize to be drawn in a lottery, or, for himself or another person, buy, sell, or transfer, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale, or with intent to exchange, negotiate, or transfer, or aid in selling, exchanging, negotiating, or transferring a chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in a lottery, or any such writing, certificate, bill, token, or device, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3825, 3826.)

A witness cannot be required to give evidence in a prosecution for managing and conducting a lottery, if he will thereby criminate himself. Temple's Case, 75 Va. 892.

Is a drawing for distribution of lots of unequal value among subscribers to stock of a corporation a violation of this section? Cardwell v. Kelly, 95 Va. 573, 28 S. E. 953, 40 L. R. A. 240.

As the law was by the Code of 1819, the taking chance in a raffle was not the same offense as the purchase of a foreign lottery ticket. Garland's Case, 5 Rand. 652.

For an article on "Advertising Schemes and the Lottery Law," see 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 178.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 151, section 11.

Sec. 4694. Money, etc., drawn or proposed to be drawn in such lottery, forfeited to the State.—All money and things of value, drawn or proposed to be drawn by an inhabitant of this State and all money or things of value received by such person by reason of his being the owner or holder of a ticket or share of a ticket in any lottery, or pretended lottery, contrary to this chapter, shall be forfeited to the Commonwealth, and may be seized by an officer and held to await proceedings for condemnation. (Code 1887, § 3827.)

Sec. 4695. Furnishing cigarettes or tobacco in any form or pistols, etc., to minors.—If any person sell, barter, give, or furnish, or cause to be sold, bartered, given or furnished to any minor under sixteen years of age cigarettes or tobacco in any form, or pistols or dirks or bowie-knives, having good cause to believe him or her to be a minor under sixteen years of age, said person shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. (1889-90, p. 118; 1893-4, p. 425.)

Sec. 4696. Use of opium in the manufacture of cigarettes prohibited.—Any manufacturer or manufacturers of cigarettes who shall employ opium, either in the tobacco used or the paper wrappers of cigarettes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense, or imprisoned not less than six months, or both. (1910, p. 358.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken provided that the offender should "be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense, AND imprisoned, IN THE DISCRETION OF THE TRIAL COURT, not less than six months." The revisors deemed it better to leave the whole subject of the punishment to the jury, within the limits prescribed.

Sec. 4697. Selling or giving toy firearms to persons under twelve years of age a misdemeanor.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association, to sell, barter, exchange, furnish, or dispose of by purchase, gift, or in any other manner, any toy gun, pistol, rifle, or other toy firearm, if the same shall, by means of powder or other explosive discharge blank or ball charges, to any person under the age of twelve years. Any firm, corporation, or association violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or confined in jail for a period not less than thirty nor more than ninety days, or both. Each sale of any of the articles hereinbefore specified to any person under the age mentioned shall constitute a separate offense, and any person over the age of twelve years who shall purchase, accept, or in any manner acquire any of the toy articles of the kind hereinbefore enumerated for any person under the age of twelve years, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or confined in jail not less than thirty nor more than sixty days, or both. (1902-3-4, p. 261.)

Revisors' Note.—The punishment for violating the latter part of this section has been reduced. Formerly, it was by fine of not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred dollars, or confinement in jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both.

The revisors have reduced penalties in a number of instances because it is the certainty of punishment rather than its severity that tends to prevent crimes, and if the penalties are put too high, there are many cases where juries will not convict.

Sec. 4698. Persons issuing notes for circulation without authority of law, how punished.—Every person who, with intent to create a circulating medium, shall issue without authority of law, any note or other security, purporting that money or other thing of value is payable by or on behalf of such person, and every officer and agent of such person aiding or assisting therein shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months and fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. But this section shall not apply to any bank or association for carrying on the business of banking, organized under the laws of Virginia for the issue of notes for circulation. (Code 1887, § 3830; 1899-00, p. 804.)

Sec. 4699. Persons passing, etc., such circulating medium, how punished.—If any person pass or receive in payment, any note or security issued in violation of the preceding section or section forty-one hundred and thirty-six, knowing the same to have been illegally issued, he shall be fined not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3831.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "knowing the same to have been illegally issued" are new. This qualification seemed to be not only proper, but necessary.

Sec. 4700. Persons bringing into the State for circulation notes under five dollars, or passing, etc., same, how punished.—If any person bring into this State, with intent to put the same in circulation, any bank note of less denomination than five dollars, issued in another State, or pass or receive such note in payment, he shall be fined not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars; but this section shall not apply to a non-resident of this State traveling or temporarily sojourning therein. (Code 1887, § 3832.)

Sec. 4701. Issuing such notes, how punished; who deemed an issuer.—In every case where a note of less denomination than five dollars is offered or issued as money, whether the said note be issued by a bank, corporation, or by individuals, the person, firm, or association of persons, corporation, or body politic, so offering or issuing such note, shall be fined ten dollars; and every person whose name is signed on the face of such note, shall be deemed an issuer in the meaning of this chapter. (Code 1887, § 3833.)

Sec. 4702. Private action given; penalty cumulative.—Any person may recover, by motion before a justice or court, from any person whose name is on the face of a note of a denomination less than five dollars, five times the amount of such note; and such recovery shall be in addition to the fine hereinbefore imposed. (Code 1887, § 3835.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "or alderman, or before any" formerly appearing in this section after "justice," have been omitted.

Sec. 4703. Scrip prohibited as well as notes.—The five preceding sections shall apply as well to interest-bearing scrip for sums less than five dollars, as to notes of other descriptions. (Code 1887, § 3836.)

Sec. 4704. Law construed as remedial.—All laws for suppressing gaming, lotteries, unchartered banks, and the circulation of bank notes for less than five dollars, shall be construed as remedial. (Code 1887, § 3837.)

See Shumate's Case, 15 Grat. 653.

Sec. 4705. Attorney's fee; officers not allowed fees out of the treasury in such cases.—In every case of conviction for an offense under any preceding section of this chapter, an attorney's fee of ten dollars shall be taxed in the costs and paid by the defendant, but no attorney or officer shall be entitled to the payment of any fees out of the treasury for services rendered in a prosecution for such offense. (Code 1887, § 3838; 1889-90, p. 172; 1899-00, p. 329.)

Sec. 4706. Members of any board of visitors, etc., or officers etc., of any State institution, or, etc., contracting therewith, how punished.—If any member of the board of visitors or directors of any State institution, or employee or agent thereof, or any trustee of any public trust or fund, or any salaried officer of any such State institution, or of any such public trust or fund, contract or be interested in any contract with such institution or with the governing authority of such public trust or fund in any manner for furnishing supplies or performing any work for said institution, or for the governing authority of said trust or fund, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3839.)

Sec. 4707. Unauthorized credit to minor students.—Any person who shall give credit to a minor student of any college or university, or other institution of learning of this State, without the written consent of his parent or guardian, or of an authorized officer of such institution, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than fifty dollars. (Code 1887, § 2835, 3840; 1897-8, p. 253.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is based upon the statutes cited at the end of the section, and is intended to carry out the policy thereof. As it now reads it seems to carry out that policy better than the former statutes.

Sec. 4708. Inspector or sampler of tobacco issuing false receipt or note, how punished.—If any inspector or sampler of tobacco, issue, or cause to be issued, his receipt or note for any tobacco not received into the warehouse of which he is inspector or sampler, or more than one receipt or note for the same tobacco, except when authorized by law to do so, or re-issue or pass away a tobacco receipt or note, after the delivery of the tobacco for which it was given, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than five years. (Code 1887, § 3841.)

Sec. 4709. Importing convicts, how punished.—If a master of a vessel, or other person, knowingly import or bring into this State from any place out of the United States, any person convicted of crime, he shall be confined in jail for three months, and be fined one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3842.)

Sec. 4710. Digging gensing within certain period, how punished.—If any person dig gensing between the fifteenth day of March and the fifteenth day of September, elsewhere than on his own land, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than ten dollars for each offense, one-half to go to the informer, and the residue to the Commonwealth. (Code 1887, § 3845.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "elsewhere than on his own land" are new.

Sec. 4711. Junk dealers to keep certain books and exhibit the same; to make report of certain articles received or purchased by them, and prescribing penalties for failing to do so.—Every junk dealer shall keep at his place of business a book or books, in which shall be fairly written in English an accurate description of each article purchased or received by him (except rags, bones, old scrap iron other than gas-pipe, and paper), with the price paid therefor, together with the name, residence, occupation, and a correct description of the person from whom he received the same. The said book shall at all times be open to the inspection of any sheriff, sergeant, constable, or police officer of the county or corporation in which such junk dealer shall do business. Every junk dealer doing business in any city or town shall every day (except Sunday) before eleven o'clock in the forenoon deliver to the chief of police of such city or town on a blank form to be prescribed by such chief of police a legible and correct transcript from his book or books of his transactions of the previous day. No junk dealer shall sell, melt, change the form of, or dispose of any article bought or received by him which he is required by this section to make record of and report within five days after such report. Any junk dealer who shall fail to keep such book or who shall on demand fail or refuse to exhibit the same to any sheriff, sergeant, constable, or police officer, or who shall fail or refuse to make a correct report as required by this section, or who shall in any other respect violate its provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for each offense shall on conviction thereof be punished with a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. If any junk dealer shall have in his possession any article which is proved to have been stolen, except rags, bones, old scrap iron other than gas-pipe, and paper, the receipt or purchase of which he has not recorded in the book which he is required to keep or which he has not reported as prescribed by this section he shall be deemed guilty of the larceny thereof. (1897-8, p. 521.)

Sec. 4712. Corruptly influencing agents, servants or employees; penalty for influencing or being influenced.—Any person who gives, offers, or promises to an agent, employee, or servant, any gift or gratuity whatever, without the knowledge and consent of the principal, employer, or master of such agent, employee, or servant, with intent to influence his action to the prejudice of his principal's, employer's, or master's business;

Or an agent, employee, or servant who, without the knowledge and consent of his principal, employer, or master, requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to himself, under an agreement or with an understanding that he shall act in any particular manner as to his principal's, employer's, or master's business;

Or an agent, employee, or servant, who being authorized to procure materials, supplies, or other articles either by purchase or contract for his principal, employer, or master, or to employ service or labor for his principal, employer or master, receives directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, a commission, discount, or bonus from the person who makes such sale or contract, or furnishes such materials, supplies, or other articles, or from a person who renders such service or labor;

Or any person who gives or offers such an agent, employee, or servant such commission, discount, or bonus;

Shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1906, p. 458.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the first part of section 1 of the act cited, with the omission of the proviso. For punishment of misdemeanors where no other is provided, see section 4782. It is not intended by the omission of the proviso to change the meaning of the section in this respect.

This statute is similar to one which had previously been adopted in New York.

Sec. 4713. Witness testifying under the preceding section to be immune from punishment thereunder.—No witness called by the attorney for the Commonwealth, or by the court, and giving evidence for the prosecution in a proceeding under the preceding section shall ever be proceeded against for any offense under that section, but such witness shall be compelled to testify, and for refusing to do so, may be punished for contempt. (1906, p. 458.)

Revisors' Note.—The immunity furnished by the original act was not complete. The change made in the phraseology is intended to give complete immunity.

Sec. 4714. Definition of words and phrases used in the three following sections relating to bucketing and bucket-shopping.—The following words and phrases used in the three following sections shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meaning:

"Person" shall mean an individual, partnership, corporation or association, whether acting in his or their own right, or as the officer, agent, servant, correspondent or representative of another.

"Contract" shall mean any agreement, trade or transaction.

"Securities" shall mean all evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase and sale thereof, shares in any corporation or association, bonds, coupons, scrip, rights, choses in action and other evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase or sale thereof.

"Commodities" shall mean anything movable that is bought and sold.

"Bucket shop" shall mean any room, office, store, building or other place where any contract prohibited by the said three following sections is made, or offered to be made.

"Keeper" shall mean any person owning, keeping, managing, operating or promoting a bucket shop, or assisting so to do.

"Bucketing" or "bucket-shopping" shall mean:

The making of, or offering to make, any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit, or upon margin,, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties thereto intend. or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, terminated, closed or settled according to, or upon the basis of, the public market quotations of prices made on any board of trade or exchange, upon which said securities or commodities are dealt in, and without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or

The making of, or offering to make, any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities, wherein both parties intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, deemed terminated, closed or settled, when such public market quotations of prices for the securities or commodities named in such contract shall reach a certain figure without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or

The making of, or offering to make, any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities, wherein both parties do not intend, or such keeper does not intend, the actual or bona fide receipt or delivery of such securities or commodities, but do intend, or such keeper does intend, a settlement of such contract based upon the differences in such public market quotations of price at which said securities or commodities are, or are asserted to be, bought and sold. (1908, p. 605, § 1.)

Sec. 4715. Prohibiting bucketing and bucket-shopping; penalty; second offense.—Any person who makes, or offers to make, any contract defined in the preceding section, or who is the keeper of any bucket shop, shall, upon conviction therefor, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person who shall be convicted of a second offense shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than five years. The continuing of the keeping of a bucket shop, by any person, after the first conviction therefor, shall be deemed a second offense under this section. (1908, p. 605, § 2.)

Revisors' Note.—The only change made in this section is as to the punishment in the first sentence of the section.

Sec. 4716. Quotation of prices of securities, etc., in order to induce contracts prohibited by preceding section.—Any person who shall communicate, receive, exhibit or display in any manner any statement of quotations of prices of any securities or commodities with an intent to make, or offer to make, or to aid in making, or offering to make, any contract prohibited by the preceding section, upon conviction thereof shall be subject to the penalties provided in the said section. (1908, p. 605, § 3.)

Sec. 4717. Effect of failure or neglect to furnish on request information as to sale and purchase of securities or commodities.—Every person shall furnish, upon demand, to any customer or principal for whom such person has executed any order for the actual purchase or sale of any securities or commodities, either for immediate or future delivery, a written statement containing the names of the persons from whom such property was bought, or to whom it has been sold, as the fact may be, the time when, place where, and the price, at which time the same was either bought or sold; and if such person shall refuse or neglect to furnish such statement within twenty-four hours after such demand, such refusal or neglect shall be prima facie evidence that such purchase or sale was bucketing or bucket-shopping. (1908, p. 605, § 4.)

Sec. 4718. Effect of payment of license or other tax.—No person committing any of the acts or things prohibited in the three preceding sections shall be allowed to plead in defense thereof the payment of any license or other tax to the State, or to any county or municipality thereof; nor shall the payment of any such license or tax in any wise operate to relieve such offender from the penalties imposed by the said sections. (1908, p. 605, § 5.)

Sec. 4719. Prohibiting unlawful use or wearing of any insignia or button of any association or society, or trade's union, or any Southern cross of honor.—Any person who shall wilfully wear any insignia or button of any association, society or trade's union or who shall use the same to obtain aid or assistance within this State, unless he shall be entitled to use or wear the same under the constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations of such association, society or trade's union, or any person who shall wilfully wear or use, to obtain assistance, any Southern cross of honor, not being entitled to do so under the regulation under which such crosses of honor are given, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1908, p. 52; 1910, p. 331.)

Revisors' Note.—The only change made in this section is as to the punishment.

As to the constitutionality of this section, see 24 L. R. A. (N. S.), 795.

Sec. 4720. To regulate the sale of seed cotton and prohibit the sale thereof at night.—It shall be unlawful for any person in the night-time to sell, buy, or to store for sale at a future time, or allowed to be stored at his place of business for future sale, any seed cotton; but this section shall not apply to storing cotton in public gin houses for the purpose of ginning. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. All purchasers of seed cotton shall keep a strict account of their purchases, the name of the seller, the quantity purchased, and the date of sale, which shall be open to inspection at all times to any person having a pecuniary interest therein. (1912, p. 570.)

Revisors' Note.—The only material change made in this section is as to the punishment.

Sec. 4721. Hypnotism and mesmerism prohibited.—If any person or persons shall hypnotize or mesmerize or attempt to hypnotize or mesmerize any person or persons, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. But this section shall not apply to hypnotism or mesmerism performed by a licensed physician or surgeon, or at his request, in the practice of his profession. (1912, p. 136.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken also made it unlawful for any one to consent to be hypnotized or mesmerized, except by a regularly practicing physician. This feature is omitted. For punishment of misdemeanors where no other is provided by statute, see section 4782.

Sec. 4722. Running automobiles, engines, etc., while intoxicated; how punished.—It shall be unlawful for any person to drive or run any automobile, car, truck, engine, or train while under the influence of intoxicants. If any person violates the provisions of this section he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1916, p. 640.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken provided that "It shall be unlawful for any CHAUFFEUR, MOTORMAN, ENGINEER OR OTHER person to drive," etc. The capitalized words are omitted to obviate the question of the application of the rule ejusdem generis. The punishment is now as for a misdemeanor, for which see section 4782.

Sec. 4724. fined in jail not exceeding one year; and if any officer be convicted as aforesaid, he shall be removed from office. (Code 1887, § 3850.)

Revisors' Note.—The word, "primary," found in line three of the text, is new. See section 224.

The county or corporation courts have the right to remove a judge of elections for malfeasance in office or for gross neglect of duty, though he has not been convicted by the jury of any offense, but on the contrary has been acquitted. McDougal v. Guigon, 27 Grat. 133. It should be remembered that at the time of this decision the courts appointed the judges of election.

Sec. 4725. Person voting unlawfully, or advising another to do so, or attempting by threats or bribe to influence vote of elector, or furnishing false ballot, or fraudulently putting ballot in box, or, etc., how punished.—If any person knowingly vote in any election district in which he does not actually reside, or, in which he is not a registered voter; or vote more than once at the same election; or not being a qualified elector, vote at any election with an unlawful intent; or procure, aid, assist, counsel, or advise another to vote, knowing that such person is not duly qualified to vote at the place where, and the time when, the vote is to be given; or, by threat or bribery, attempt to influence any elector in giving his vote or ballot, or, by such means, attempt to deter him from giving his vote or ballot; or procure, aid, assist, counsel, or advise another to go or come into any county, corporation, or election district for the purpose of illegally giving his vote in such county, corporation, or election district, knowing that such person is not legally qualified to vote therein; or furnish a ballot to an elector, who cannot read the language in which such ballot is printed or written, informing him that it contains a name or names different from those which are written or printed thereon, with an intent to deceive and induce him to vote contrary to his inclination; or fraudulently or deceitfully change a ballot of an elector, by which such elector is prevented from voting for such candidate or candidates as he intended; or, after proclamation made of the opening of the polls and at any time before the vote is fully canvassed, fraudulently put a ballot or ticket in the box, he shall be confined in jail not exceeding one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3851.)

Sec. 4726. (Code 1887, § 3852.)

Sec. 4727. Giving or receiving bribe for vote, how punished.—If any person, directly or indirectly, give to a voter in any election any money, goods, or chattels under an agreement, express or implied, that such voter shall give his vote for a particular candidate, or for or against any question voted on at any such election, such person shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or confined in jail not less than one nor more than twelve months. And the voter receiving such money, goods, or chattels, in pursuance of such agreement, shall be punished in like manner with the person giving the same. (Code 1887, § 3853; 1902-3-4, p. 880.)

In an information against a justice of the peace for bribery in the election of a clerk, it ought to be stated with certainty that an election was holden, and that at that election the vote was given. Newell's Case, 2 Wash. 88.

On the trial of an indictment under this section, against a voter for receiving a bribe, a witness who is asked to testify as to his knowledge of any violation of section 145a of Pollard's Code (see chapter 16 of this Code), and "of any other election laws," is entitled to the immunity afforded by clause 9 of said section 145a (section 258 of this Code), and is compellable to testify. Flanary's Case, 113 Va. 775, 75 S. E. 289.

Cited but not construed in Rose's Case, 116 Va. 1023, 82 S. E. 699.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 5, section 8.

Sec. 4728. Wilfully rejecting, or corruptly registering a voter, how punished.—If any registrar wilfully or maliciously reject from registration, or corruptly register any person, contrary to law, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3854.)

Revisors' Note.—No change, except as to the punishment.

Sec. 4729. Altering, destroying, etc., books, etc., of registration, how punished.—If any officer or other person illegally change, alter, amend, or destroy any books or lists of registration, he shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, and confined in jail not less than three nor more than twelve months. (Code 1887, § 3855.)

He shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3856; 1897-8, p. 895; 1899-00, p. 1114.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or use a bicycle, or drive any vehicle," formerly appearing in this section after "animal" found in the next to the last paragraph, have been omitted in view of section 4733. The penalty for violating the section is prescribed by section 4782. Before the revision the penalty was a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars.

The onus of proving that the road alleged to have been obstructed was at the time of the offense a regularly established and open road rests on the Commonwealth. Bailey's Case, 78 Va. 19.

Under Act 1877-8, p. 379, similar in effect to this, it was held that failure of the indictment to aver scienter is fatal. Bailey's Case, 78 Va. 19.

Under this section a road which has merely been ordered to be opened, but has never been actually opened, is not a road, such as this section prescribes a penalty for obstructing. Id.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 43, section 45.

Sec. 4731. Encroachment on or changing the lines or direction of any public road without permission of the circuit court; penalty. —Any person other than a duly authorized officer, changing the line of any public road, on either side thereof, as the lines have existed for twenty years or more, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, unless he shall have first obtained, upon petition, the permission of the circuit court of the county in which the road lies, which petition and permission shall be entered of record, showing how, and to what extent, the line of a public road has been changed. It shall be the duty of the supervisor of the district to give notice in writing to all persons making, or who have made, such encroachment on any public road in his district, by changing the lines or the direction thereof, without permission of the circuit court as aforesaid, to remove any fence or obstruction, whether heretofore or hereafter made, and to restore the original line or lines of the said road, and on failure to do so within twenty days after said notice, the person so offending shall be liable to a fine of five dollars for each day the said fence or other obstruction remains in said road, after the expiration of the said twenty days aforesaid. (1902-3-4, p. 489.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken prescribed no mode by which the application could be made. Under the revised section, the application is by petition, which petition, together with the permission of the court, when obtained, is to be entered of record, "showing how, and to what extent, the line of a public road has been changed." The penalty for violating the first part of the section is prescribed by section 4782. Before the revision the penalty was a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars.

upon any public road, street or public square, at an illegal speed, or at a speed tending to endanger human life or bodily safety, or to cause the destruction of the property of another, or causes such vehicle, conveyance or car to run at an illegal or dangerous speed in attempting to pass another vehicle, conveyance or car, or to prevent such other vehicle, conveyance or car from passing his own, and any person who rides or drives any animal or animals over or upon any public road, street, highway, bridge, or landing, at a speed tending to endanger human life or bodily safety, or to cause the destruction of property, or if any horse race be run on any road, bridge, or landing or street, the rider of such horse in such race, the owner, if he assent thereto, and every person who shall bet on the race, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Code 1887, § 3864.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is largely new, and is much more comprehensive than the section as it stood before the revision. Formerly the section applied to horse-racing only. For punishment of misdemeanors where no other is prescribed by statute, see section 4782.

Sec. 4742. Driving sheep along road more than ten miles without branding them, how punished.—If any drover drive, or cause to be driven, sheep along a road for a greater distance than ten miles without having the same branded or marked with paint, he shall be fined five dollars for each offense, and every ten miles any such sheep may be so driven, shall constitute a separate offense. (Code 1887, § 3865.)

Cited but not construed in Wells' Case, 107 Va. 834, 57 S. E. 588.

Sec. 4743. Casting dead animal into road, how punished.—If any person cast any dead animal into a road, or having in custody any maimed, diseased, disabled or infirm animal, leaves it to lie or be in a street, road or public place, he shall be fined not exceeding twenty dollars. (Code 1887, § 3866.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or having in custody any maimed, diseased, disabled or infirm animal, leaves it to lie or be in a street, road or public place." appear in this section for the first time. They are taken from a later act. See revisors' note to section 4554.

Sec. 4744. Restraint of unaltered horses, jacks and bulls.—If any person wilfully or negligently permit any unaltered horse or jack of the age of two years or more, or any bull of the age of one year or more, to go at large out of the enclosed grounds of the owner or keeper, or take such horse or jack to any place of public worship, after being admonished by any person not to do so, he shall forfeit ten dollars for the first offense, and for the second offense double that amount, to be recovered before a justice; and for the third offense said horse, jack or bull shall be the property of any person who will take him up: but the provisions of this section, as to bulls, shall not apply to any county until adopted by a majority vote of the board of supervisors of such county. (Code 1887, § 2191; 1910, p. 325.)

Sec. 4745. Putting or casting glass, etc., into public road, a misdemeanor.—If any person shall put or cast into any public road of this Commonwealth any glass, bottles, glassware, crockery, porcelain, or pieces thereof, or any pieces of iron or hard or sharp metal, or any nails, tacks, or sharp-pointed instruments of any kind, likely in their nature to cut or puncture any tire of any vehicle, or injure any animal traveling thereon, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (1916, p. 627.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken expressly made a distinction in the punishment between a wilful and malicious violation and a careless violation, prescribing the punishment in each case. The revised section leaves the punishment to be regulated by section 4782, thus giving the court, jury, or justice much discretion in fixing it, according to the circumstances of the particular case. Section 8 of the act expressly gave an action of damages against any person violating the act, for loss or injury sustained, by any one so aggrieved. It is believed this section would lie independently of section 8, hence this section has been omitted.

Sec. 4746. Felling timber or casting wood into a river or creek, whereby a bridge, or, etc., is injured, how punished.—If any person knowingly and wilfully fell timber into any of the rivers or creeks in this State, or cast any waste wood into the same, which shall damage or destroy any bridge or boat, or injure any other property by drifting against such property, he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3867.)

Sec. 4747. Dams, etc., which obstruct navigation or passage of fish, prohibited; punishment therefor.—Any dam or other thing, in a water course, which obstructs navigation or the passage of fish, shall be deemed a nuisance, unless it be to work a mill, manufactory, or other machine or engine useful to the public, and is allowed by law or order of court. And though a dam may have been so allowed in a water course before the first day of January, seventeen hundred and eighty-seven, yet if it cause obstruction, it shall not be rebuilt, if destroyed, until leave for that purpose has been obtained under chapter one hundred and forty. For every twenty-four hours that a dam or other thing may remain in a water course, in violation of this section, the person causing or permitting such violation shall forfeit two dollars, whereof the informer shall have one-half. This section shall not apply to mill dams across rivers, creeks, or branches within the counties of Floyd, Carroll, and Grayson. (Code 1887, § 3868.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "if destroyed" found in line eight of the text, are new, but not intended to change the existing law.

On a prosecution for the abatement of a public nuisance consisting of a milldam, it was error to refuse a requested instruction that a milldam lawfully established is not prima facie a nuisance. Jeremy Impl. Co. v. Com., 106 Va. 482, 56 S. E. 224.

Sec. 4748. Obstructing navigation of Mattaponi or Pamunkey river, how punished.—If any person fell any timber, or make or cause to be made any weir, hedge, or other obstruction, in the channel or in the navigable waters of the Mattaponi and Pamunkey rivers he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars, one-half to go to the informer and the residue to the Commonwealth, and, in addition thereto, may be confined in jail not exceeding six months; but nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent placing fish traps, weirs, and nets in the shoal waters of these rivers below navigable points, unless the same be prohibited by some other section. (Code 1887, § 3869.)

Sec. 4749. Obstructing navigation of Sycamore creek, or passage of fish therein, how punished.—If any person fell any timber, or make or cause to be made any weir or hedge, or put any stakes, brush, fence, or other obstruction in Sycamore Mill creek, in the county of New Kent, leading from low water mark on the Pamunkey river to the mill of R. P. Cooke, on Sycamore Mill creek, so as to obstruct the free passage of boats, canoes,, or other floating vessels, or fish, from coming to said Cooke's mill, and the free passage of water from the mill to the river, he shall be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than fifty dollars, and, in addition, may be confined in jail not less than thirty nor more than ninety days. (Code 1887, § 3870.)

Sec. 4750. Placing weirs in Rappahannock creek, how punished.—If any person set or keep a weir or hedge in Rappahannock creek, in the county of Richmond, in the month of December, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty dollars. (Code 1887, § 3871.)

Sec. 4751. Throwing oyster shells, etc., into waters near landings in certain counties, how punished.—If any person throw oyster shells, clam shells, or other substances, tending to obstruct navigation, into the waters adjacent to the landings in the counties of Accomac, Lancaster, and Northampton, or into the navigable channels leading thereto, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty dollars. (Code 1887, § 3872.)

Sec. 4752. Obstructing navigation of prongs of Big Sandy river, how punished.—If any person fell timber, or roll rocks into, or otherwise obstruct the navigation of, the prongs of Big Sandy river known as Levisa, Russel's, McClure, Crane's Nest, and Pound and Guesses' river, Bear creek, Powel's river, Luna creek, and south fork of Powel's river in Wise and Buchanan counties, he shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty dollars. This section shall not apply to water gates and mill dams. (Code 1887, § 3873.)

Sec. 4753. Land owners in Rockingham county to keep streams flowing through their lands free from obstructions; punishment for failure.—All persons owning lands in the county of Rockingham, lying along the following streams, and between the points on the said streams herein designated—to-wit: On the North river, between the Augusta county line and the town of Bridgewater; on the Briery branch, between the old Cook farm, and where said branch flows into Beaver creek between the head of said stream, and where the same flows into North river, on Dry river, between Rawley springs and where the same flows into North river, and on the north branch of the Shenandoah river, between Coote's store, and the Shenandoah county line, shall keep the channels of the said streams free from fallen timber, drift wood and other obstructions, where said streams flow through their land. If any person violate this section, he shall be fined not less than three nor more than twenty dollars for each week such violation continues. (Code 1887, § 3874; 1899-00, p. 587.)

Sec. 4754. Obstructing Louisa fork of Sandy river, how punished.—If any person place any dam or other obstruction in the Louisa fork of Sandy river so as to prevent the free passage of timber, or any raft or boat, he shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars; and, upon conviction thereof, the court or justice shall order the dam or other obstruction to be removed at his expense. (Code 1887, § 3876.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or justice" found in lines two and three from the bottom of the text, are new. They are inserted because the case may be tried by a justice, and if so, he should have this power.

Sec. 4755. Failure to sound steam whistle on James river, how punished.—If any person having command or control of any steam vessel navigating James river, fail to sound the steam whistle on approaching any bend of said river above City Point, he shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3877.)

Sec. 4756. For the protection of aids to navigation established by the United States light-house board.—Any person or persons who shall moor any vessel or vessels of any kind or name whatsoever or any raft or any part of a raft to any buoy, beacon, or day mark placed in the waters of Virginia by authority of the United States light-house board, or shall in any manner hang on with any vessel or raft or any part of a raft to any such buoy, beacon, or day mark, or shall wilfully remove, damage, or destroy any such buoy, beacon, or day mark, or shall cut down, remove, damage, or destroy any beacon or beacons erected on land in this State by the authority of the said United States light-house board, or through unavoidable accident run down, drag from its position, or in any way injure any buoy, beacon, or day mark as aforesaid and shall fail to give notice as soon as practicable of having done so to the light-house inspector of the district in which said buoy, beacon, or day mark may be located or to the collector of the port, or if in charge of a pilot to the collector of the port from which he comes, shall for every such offense be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed two hundred dollars or by imprisonment not to exceed three months or both; one-third of the fine in each case shall be paid to the informer and two-thirds thereof to the light-house board to be used in repairing the said buoys and beacons.

It shall be unlawful for any vessel to anchor on the range of any rangle lights established by the United States light-house board unless such anchorage is unavoidable, and the master of any vessel so anchoring shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars, one-half of the fine in each case to be paid to the informer and one-half to the State.

The cost of repairing or replacing any such buoy, beacon, or day mark which may have been misplaced, damaged, or destroyed by any vessel or raft whatsoever having been made fast to any such buoy, beacon, or day mark shall, when the same shall be legally ascertained, be a lien upon such vessel or raft and may be recovered against said vessel or raft and the owner or owners thereof in an action of debt in any court of competent jurisdiction in this State.

Any person having charge of any raft passing any buoy, beacon, or day mark who shall not exercise due diligence in keeping clear of it, or if unavoidably fouling it shall not exercise due diligence in clearing it without dragging from it such buoy, beacon, or day mark shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine not to exceed fifty dollars. (1887, p. 450.)

Sec. 4757. The word "road" construed.—In this chapter, the word "road" shall be construed to mean any turnpike, State road, or county road. (Code 1887, § 3878.)

Section 1977 provides a certain width and grade, with authority of board to order a different grade, but this discretionary power does not give authority for establishing a bridleway for horseback travel. Terry v. McClung, 104 Va. 599, 52 S. E. 355.

4773. Acquittal by jury on merits, a bar to further prosecution for the same offense.
4774. When acquittal not a bar to further prosecution for same offense.

4781. When statement by accused as a witness not received as evidence.
4782. How misdemeanors punished.
4783. How term of confinement, or amount of fine, of person convicted of felony is ascertained.
4784. Who to ascertain the punishment in criminal cases tried by jury.

4788. Judges to see that clerk observes, these provisions.

Sec. 4758. Felonies and misdemeanors defined.—Offenses are either felonies or misdemeanors. Such offenses as are punishable with death or confinement in the penitentiary are felonies; all other offenses are misdemeanors. (Code 1887, § 3879.)

For changes in the meaning of the word "felony" and first announcement of the doctrine incorporated in this section, see Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122; also Benton's Case, 89 Va. 573, 16 S. E. 725; Trimble's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 144; Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 644.

A felony is such an offense as may be (not must be) punished by death or confinement in the penitentiary. Benton's Case, 89 Va. 570, 16 S. E. 725.

Sec. 4759. When capital punishment inflicted.—No crime shall be punished with death unless it be directed by statute. (Code 1887, § 3880.)

Sec. 4760. How common law offenses punished.—A common law offense, for which punishment is prescribed by statute, shall be punished only in the mode so prescribed. (Code 1887, § 3881.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 152, section 3.

Sec. 4761. Benefit of clergy disallowed; how petit treason punished.—There shall be no plea of benefit of clergy, nor any distinction between murder and petit treason; but the last mentioned offense shall be punished as murder. (Code 1887, § 3882.)

Sec. 4762. Suicide or attainder.—No suicide, nor attainder of felony, shall work a corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate. (Code 1887, § 3883.)

Sec. 4763. Felony not to merge civil remedy.—The commission of a felony shall not stay or merge any civil remedy. (Code 1887, § 3884.)

Sec. 4764. How principal in second degree and accessaries punished.—In the case of every felony, every principal in the second degree and every accessary before the fact, shall be punished as if he were the principal in the first degree, and every accessary after the fact, shall be confined in jail not more than one year, and fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Code 1887, § 3885.)

Principals in the first degree.—Principals in the first degree are those who are the immediate perpetrators of the act. Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 868; Horton's Case, 99 Va. 848, 38 S. E. 184; Reynolds' Case, 33 Grat. 834.

Principals in the second degree are those who did not with their own hands commit the act, but were present aiding and abetting it. This presence may be actual or constructive. Id.

Aiding and abetting—Mere presence not sufficient.—Mere presence is not sufficient to render one guilty of aiding and abetting the commission of crime. There must be something done or said by him showing his consent to the felonious purpose and contributing to its execution. Kemp's Case, 80 Va. 443; Reynolds' Case, 33 Grat. 834; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 869.

To constitute an aider or abettor it is essential that the aider and abettor share the criminal intent of the principal, and, if a reasonable doubt exists as to the intention of a party in interfering in a fight between two other persons, he cannot be found guilty as an aider and abettor. Horton's Case, 99 Va. 848, 38 S. E. 184.

distance from the house to watch; and the other two obtain admittance into the store-house, kill the owner, and rob the store, and M. shares the booty. As to liability of person assisting suicide, see 8 Va. Law Reg. 924.

Accessories before the fact—Definition.—An accessory before the fact is one absent at the commission of the offense, but who procures, encourages, counsels, or commands another to commit it. Min. Syn. 13.

In order to convict one as accessory before the fact, though it is not now necessary to show that the principal felon is convicted, it is necessary to show that the substantive offense to which he is charged as being accessory has been committed by the principal felon. Hatchett's Case, 75 Va. 932; Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 859.

And if a person has been convicted of subornation of perjury and afterwards the person whom he is alleged to have suborned is acquitted, the court should grant the former a new trial. Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 859.

It is implied by statute that an accessory before the fact shall be tried and convicted as an accessory before the fact, though he shall be punished as if he were a principal in the first degree. Hatchett's Case, 75 Va. 931. And he is not liable to be convicted on an indictment against him as principal. Id.; Thornton's Case, 24 Grat. 669.

Accessory after the fact is one who, knowing a felony to have been committed, receives, relieves, comforts, or assists the felon. Wren's Case, 26 Grat. 952.

The reason.—Why the common law makes such a one a criminal is that the course of public justice is hindered and justice itself is evaded by facilitating the escape of the felon. Wren's Case, 26 Grat. 952.

What constitutes the offense.—(1) The felony must be completed. (2) He must know that the felon is guilty. (3) He must receive, relieve, comfort, or assist him. Wren's Case, 26 Grat. 956.

Implied notice is not sufficient; actual notice must be brought home to the accused. Whether he had such notice is a matter of fact for the jury. Id.

Test for accessory after the fact.—The true test whether one is accessory after the fact is to consider whether what he did was done by way of personal help to the principal with a view of enabling his principal to elude punishment, the kind of help rendered appearing unimportant. Wren's Case, 26 Grat. 952.

The failure of a police officer to make an arrest when he knows that a felony has been committed does not constitute him an accessory after the fact to the felony committed. Wren's Case, 25 Grat. 989, 995; Wren's Case, 26 Grat. 952.

Indictment.—Indictment against an accessory need not aver the conviction of the principal. Williamson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 211. The same count may contain a charge of murder against one and a charge of being an accessory against others. Hawley's Case, 75 Va. 847.

Any evidence is admissible which tends to show the relation of the principal with the alleged accessory. Oliver's Case, 77 Va. 590.

A verdict finding a person guilty of being accessory to a murder must determine the degree of the murder; otherwise it is error. Williamson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 211.

For discussion of the several degrees of guilt, see Min. Syn. 11.

Sec. 4765. Who not deemed accessaries after the fact.—But no person in the relation of husband and wife, parent or grandparent, child or grandchild, brother or sister, by consanguinity or affinity, or servant to the offender, who, after the commission of a felony, shall aid or assist a principal felon or accessary before the Conviction for assault no bar to prosecution for felony. Murphy's Case, 23 Grat. 960.

Identity of person.—The plea must also aver that the defendant is the identical person who was prosecuted once before for the identical offense (Justice's Case, 81 Va. 209, 218); and acquittal of defendant's associate cannot be pleaded as a bar (Williams' Case, 85 Va. 607, 8 S. E. 470).

The first court must have had jurisdiction (Day's Case, 23 Grat. 915); and a pretended judgment of a court in fraud of the jurisdiction of another court cannot bar prosecution before the proper court (Jackson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 501; Dulin v. Lillard, 91 Va. 718, 20 S. E. 821). But see Jones v. Morris, 97 Va. 43, 33 S. E. 377.

Acquittal must be on merits.—It must appear from the record of the first case, or be averred in the plea and proved, that the acquittal was on the merits. Burress' Case, 27 Grat. 934.

Effect on second trial of verdict of guilty in the first trial.—Where offenses of an equal degree are contained in one count, and a verdict of guilty of one of the offenses has been set aside at the instance of the accused, this is a waiver of his jeopardy as to both, and upon a new trial he may be put upon trial upon the whole indictment. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 783, 21 S. E. 495.

But where there are several counts a verdict of guilty on one, saying nothing as to the others, operates as an acquittal upon those counts of which the verdict takes no notice. Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 950; Lithgow's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 297; Page's Case, 9 Leigh 683; Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943; Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627; Richards' Case, 81 Va. 110; Briggs' Case, 82 Va. 554.

And on a new trial this advantage is not waived, whether the verdict is set aside because it is defective or because it is contrary to the evidence. Id.

On a new trial one cannot be tried for a higher offense than that of which he was convicted on the last trial. Section 4918 and notes; also Benton's Case, 91 Va. 790, 21 S. E. 495.

Verdict ascertaining illegal punishment no bar to further prosecution.—A verdict ascertaining a shorter term of imprisonment than the law prescribes will be reversed by the appellate court; but the prisoner will not be discharged, but will be remanded for another trial. See, also, Ex parte Marx, 86 Va. 47, 9 S. E. 475.

Verdict imperfect, no bar.—Discharge of jury after rendering a verdict null and void on account of imperfections therein is no bar to a prosecution under the same or new indictment. Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 951; Gibson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 70, 111.

Generally.—Verdict set aside for variance is no bar to a second indictment for same offense. Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 663; Burress' Case, 27 Grat. 934; Robinson's Case, 32 Grat. 866. Sec. 4775. Offense against two or more statutes or two or more municipal ordinances.—If the same act be a violation of two or more statutes, or of two or more municipal ordinances, a prosecution or proceeding under one of such acts or ordinances shall be a bar to a prosecution under the other or others.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new. In Arrington v. Com., 87 Va. 96, 12 S. E. 224, it was held that the test of former jeopardy is "not whether defendant has already been tried for the same act, but whether he has been put in jeopardy for the same offense. A single act may be an offense against two statutes, and if each statute requires proof of an additi al fact which the other does not, an acquittal or conviction under either statute does not exempt the defendant from prosecution and punishment under the other." And hence, in that case, although the prisoner had committed but a single act, as it violated two statutes, she was convicted under both. The two statutes in the case mentioned ere very similar, and the case presents one of hardship. The same act may be an offense against the State and against the United States, but the general practice has been, by comity, that if the defendant is prosecuted in one jurisdiction, the other does not prosecute. For example, the forging of a national bank note may be prosecuted by the State or the United States, but generally a person prosecuted for such forging in a State court is not prosecuted in the federal court, or vice versa. The court first taking jurisdiction is generally allowed to have exclusive jurisdiction. On the same principle, a person prosecuted under one statute should not for the same act be prosecuted under more than one. There are a great many minor offenses which violate not only State statutes but municipal ordinances. The courts generally hold that a prosecution under one is not a bar to a prosecution under another, but the reasons assigned are far from uniform, and are not satisfactory. Some courts hold that they are two distinct sovereignties; others, that a prosecution under a municipal ordinance is a civil and not a criminal proceeding; and still others, that a city ordinance is a mere by-law or police regulation, and does not punish an offense against the dignity of the State. Beale, in his Criminal Pleading and Practice, says: "The better view in such a case appears to be that punishment under one law bars prosecution under the other." (Beale, Crim. Pl. & Pr., section 68.) Cooley in his Constitutional Limitations, page 242, says the clear weight of authority is the other way, and the monographic note in 92 Am. St. Rep. 100 plainly shows that Cooley is correct. It is not an uncommon thing for a person to be arrested under a municipal ordinance, say, for disorderly conduct, and then when brought before the mayor or police justice, to be fined under several ordinances for different offenses. In some of the States the matter is regulated by statute. See cases referred to in 92 Am. St. Rep., at page 101. The statute as prepared by the revisors extends only to cases where a single act violates two statutes or two ordinances. They are of opinion that it should be extended still further to cases where a single act violates one or more statutes and one or more ordinances. This could be effected by inserting in the section in line two after the word "ordinances" the words "or of one or more statutes and also one or more such ordinances."

Sec. 4776. How accused may be convicted of felony.—No person shall be convicted of felony, unless by his confession of guilt in court, or by his plea, or by the verdict of a jury, accepted and recorded by the court. (Code 1887, § 3895.)

Revisors' Note.—This section as it stood before the revision contained the words "or demurrer" after "plea." At common law a defendant could be convicted of a felony on a demurrer (1 Bish. New Crim. Pro., section 782; Davis' Crim. Law, page 447), but this was never the law in Virginia.

As to confessions of the accused out of court, see note to Schwartz's Case, 27 Grat. 1025, 1033, Va. Rep. Anno.; also the following cases: Moore v. Com., 2 Leigh 701; Earheart v. The doctrine of approvement has never been the law of this state. Oliver's Case, 77 Va. 590; Byrd's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 492.

Sec. 4778. Right of accused to testify.—In any case of felony or misdemeanor, the accused may be sworn and examined in his own behalf, and if so sworn and examined, he shall be deemed to have waived his privilege of not giving evidence against himself, and shall be subject to cross-examination as any other witness; but his failure to testify shall create no presumption against him, nor be the subject of any comment before the court or jury by the prosecuting attorney. (Code 1887, § 3897.)

Revisors' Note.—Under this section as it stood before the revision, some doubt was expressed as to the meaning of the phrase "subject to cross-examination as any other witness." This doubt was as to whether the accused waives his privilege of not testifying against himself and may stop at any stage when a question is asked which would tend to incriminate him. While the revisors did not concur in this doubt, they thought it well to put the language of the section in such form as would settle the question, expressly declaring that if the accused be "so sworn and examined, he shall be deemed to have waived his privilege of not giving evidence against himself."

Sec. 3900 of the Code of 1887 provided that "No person, who is not jointly tried with the defendant, shall be incompetent to testify in any prosecution by reason of interest in the subject-matter thereof." The history of this section is given in Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 718, decided in 1858. At that time the common law disqualification of interest existed. This disqualification on account of interest was removed by Acts 1866-67, p. 615 (now section 6208 of the Code), and the right of an accused person to testify in his own behalf was given by Acts 1885-86, p. 31 (now section 4778 of the Code). As these two sections remove all disqualifications of the defendant to testify, whether jointly tried or not, there was no further need for the existence of section 3900 of the Code of 1887. It has, therefore, been omitted and thereby repealed.

The present statute affirms the doctrine of Price's Case, 77 Va. 393.

If exception to the prosecuting attorney's comment on the prisoner's failure to testify is not taken till after verdict, it is too late, if under all the circumstances a proper verdict has been rendered and the accused not injured. Price's Case, 77 Va. 395; Bull's Case, 14 Grat. 613; Read's Case, 22 Grat. 924; Stoneman's Case, 25 Grat. 905.

Remark of prosecuting attorney to the jury that prisoner had not accounted for his whereabouts at time of homicide nor his flight from the state, without allusion to his failure to testify, comes not within this section. Sutton's Case, 85 Va. 128, 7 S. E. 323.

Remark of prosecuting attorney that "though he had no right to swear any man accused of crime, he had the right to prove his statements," is no violation of this section. Sawyer's Case, 88 Va. 356, 13 S. E. 708.

Sec. 4779. Convicts as witnesses.—Conviction of felony or perjury shall not render the convict incompetent to testify, but the fact of conviction may be shown in evidence to affect his credit. (Code 1887, § 3898.)

Revisors' Note.—Section 3898 of the Code of 1887 is as follows: "Except where it is otherwise expressly provided, a person convicted of felony shall not be a witness, unless he has been pardoned or punished therefor, and a person convicted of perjury shall not be a witness, although pardoned or punished." The revisors were of opinion that conviction of felony or perjury should go to the weight of the evidence and not to the competency of the witness. See section 4495 and revisors' note.

Sec. 4780. Person prosecuted for unlawful gaming disqualified to testify against witness for State; witness for State exempt from such prosecution; compelled to testify, etc.—No person prosecuted for unlawful gaming shall be competent to testify against a witness for the Commonwealth in such prosecution, touching any unlawful gaming committed by him prior to the commencement of such prosecution; nor shall any witness giving evidence, either before the grand jury or the court in such prosecution, be ever proceeded against for any offense of unlawful gaming committed by him at the time and place indicated in such prosecution; but such witness shall be compelled to testify, and for refusing to answer questions, may by the court be fined a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months. (Code 1887, § 3899.)

This section secures full protection to witnesses testifying in prosecution for unlawful gaming, and a witness before the grand jury is not justified in refusing to testify on the ground that his answer will tend to criminate and disgrace him. Kendrick's Case, 78 Va. 490; Temple's Case, 75 Va. 892. See section 4425 and notes.

Sec. 4781. When statement by accused as a witness not received as evidence.—In a criminal prosecution, other than for perjury, or in an action on a penal statute, evidence shall not be given against the accused of any statement made by him as a witness upon a legal examination, unless such statement was made when examined as a witness in his own behalf. (Code 1887, § 3901.)

Under section 22, chapter 195, Code 1873 (the same as this with the exception that the clause, "unless such statement was made when examined as a witness in his own behalf," does not occur therein), it was held: Evidence that the statements of a witness for the accused conflict with the testimony of the accused as delivered on his examination as a witness at a former trial is inadmissible. Kirby's Case, 77 Va. 681, 46 Am. Rep. 747.

Statements made by a person as a witness for the plaintiff upon a legal examination touching a matter in which he is jointly interested with the plaintiff are not excluded under this section when he is subsequently indicted for crime. Hansel v. Com., 118 Va. 803, 88 S. E. 166.

How misdemeanors punished.—A misdemeanor, for which no punishment or no maximum punishment is prescribed by statute, shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or confinement in jail not exceeding twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the jury or of the justice, or of the court trying the case without a jury. (Code 1887, § 3902; 1902-3-4, p. 784.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision it read as follows: "A misdemeanor, for which no punishment is prescribed by statute, shall be punished by fine or confinement in jail, or both, in the discretion of the jury, or of the court trying the case without a jury." It will be observed that the revised section applies as well to those cases where no maximum punishment is prescribed by statute as to those cases where no punishment whatever is elsewhere prescribed, and that in both classes of cases, this section fixes a maximum. The revisors were of opinion that jail sentences of more than one year should not be permitted. There are numerous misdemeanors throughout the Code which are dependent upon this section for their punishment, in the infliction of which much discretion is allowed the court, jury or justice, as the case may be, in order to make the punishment fit the crime, in view of all the circumstances of the case.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 694, 701, 702.

Sec. 4783. How term of confinement, or amount of fine, of person convicted of felony is ascertained.—The term of confinement in the penitentiary, or in jail, of a person convicted of felony, if that punishment is prescribed, and the amount of the fine, if the felony be also punishable by fine, shall be ascertained by the jury, if there be one, or by the court trying the case without a jury, so far as the term of confinement and the amount of the fine are not fixed by law. (Code 1887, § 3903; 1902-3-4, p. 784.)

In this section it appears that there may be felonies which are punished otherwise than by death or confinement in the penitentiary. Quillin's Case, 105 Va. 874, 54 S. E. 333.

Sec. 4784. Who to ascertain the punishment in criminal cases tried by jury.—The punishment in all criminal cases tried by a jury shall be ascertained by the jury trying the same within the limits prescribed by law. (Code 1887, § 3904.)

Revisors' Note.—The proviso annexed to the original act has been omitted, because there are many technical misdemeanors which are insignificant, and it was deemed best to leave the punishment to the tribunal trying the case, without a minimum. As the judge or justice trying the case must necessarily impose the punishment within the limits prescribed by law, the portions of the section referring to the judge and justice have been omitted.

If an indictment be against several, the fine should be several against each defendant (Jones' Case, 1 Call 555), even though the two defendants be man and wife (Ray's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 262). There could not be judgment for fine and costs at one term and for imprisonment at another term. The first judgment is final. Pifer's Case, 14 Grat. 710.

As to the power of the court under the law as it was aforetime to superadd punishment to the fine imposed by the jury in all cases of misdemeanor, whether existing at common law or prescribed by statute, in which punishment by imprisonment was not expressly or by necessary implication taken away by some enactment, see Davis' Cr. Law 471; House's Case, 8 Leigh 755; Pifer's Case, 14 Grat. 710; Crump's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 172; Frye's Case, Id. 19.

How person in jail under capias pro fine released, see section 4952.

Sec. 4785. When person convicted of petit larceny has been before sentenced for like offense, how to be confined.—When a person is convicted of petit larceny, and it is alleged in the indictment on which he is convicted, and admitted, or, by the jury or justice before whom he is tried, found, that he has been before sentenced in the United States for the like offense, he shall be confined in jail not less than thirty days nor more than one year; and for a third, or any subsequent offense, he shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than two years. (Code 1887, § 3907.)

An indictment under this section, charging previous conviction of and sentence for petit larceny, is an indictment for a felony, even though the second count, because of defects, charges only a misdemeanor. Rider's Case, 16 Grat. 499; Pryor's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 479, 26 S. E. 864.

The redress afforded by this section is cumulative merely, and leaves unimpaired the authority of the Commonwealth to prosecute and punish an offender independently for successive offenses of petit larceny, and when it so elects to proceed the punishment of the crime is unaffected by the fact that he may have before been sentenced in the United States for a like offense and the punishment in such case is that prescribed by section 4440. Satterfield v. Com., 105 Va. 867, 52 S. E. 979.

Where an indictment charged that accused had been twice before convicted for a like offense, describing the warrants, which charged that accused did unlawfully take, steal, and carry away, etc., without averring the taking was felonious, held, that the indictment was sufficient in such cases under this section. Id.

The verdict is not defective for failing to show that it was given for having been twice before convicted of like offense where it finds the prisoner guilty "as charged in the indictment." Id.

As to a record showing a previous conviction for petit larceny, see Pryor's Case, 2 Va. Dec. 479, 26 S. E. 864.

See section 5054.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 152, section 25.

Sec. 4786. In convictions for two or more offenses confinement to commence after previous term expires.—When any person is convicted of two or more offenses, before sentence is pronounced for either, the confinement to which he may be sentenced upon the second, or any subsequent conviction, shall commence at the termination of the previous term or terms of confinement. (Code 1887, § 3908.)

The rule of this section was enunciated in Leath's Cases, 1 Va. Cas. 151.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 152, section 26.

Sec. 4787. Clerks to keep registers of descriptive lists of persons convicted of felony, etc.; form of register; photographs of convict may be taken; copy of lists and photographs to be evidence of identity, etc.—The clerk of the circuit court of each county and of the circuit, corporation, or hustings court of each corporation shall keep a register of full and accurate descriptive lists of every person convicted in his own court of felony or other infamous offense. Such register shall be kept written up, well indexed. Each list shall be duly attested by said clerk, and the same shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable hours: provided, however, that in cities which have both a circuit and a corporation court such register shall be kept by the clerk of the corporation court only, but the clerk of the circuit court shall, within ten days from the date of conviction of any person in his court of any felony or other infamous offense, deliver to the clerk of the corporation court for record in said register an attested descriptive list of the persons so convicted in the form herein prescribed. For the service mentioned in this section the said clerks shall each be entitled to a fee of fifty cents, to be paid out of the State treasury.

Whenever directed so to do by the judge or any court in which the case has been tried the sheriff, sergeant, or chief of police of such county or corporation shall cause to be taken the photograph of such convict, and the clerk of said court shall file a copy of such photograph with the records of the case: provided, however, that the costs of taking such photograph shall not be paid out of the treasury of the Commonwealth.

A duly certified and attested copy of such descriptive list and such photograph may be used as prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated or shown in any question of identity.

Such register shall be in the following form:

Name in full and aliases.	Present and last known residence.	Color.	Height, eyes, hair, and marks.	Apparent or known age.	Occupation.	Offenses.	Court in which convicted.	Date of conviction and page of record.	Whether judgment reversed and pardon granted, and date thereof.

Sec. 4788. Judges to see that clerk observes these provisions.— The judges of the respective courts shall take care that the provisions of the preceding section are punctually and properly carried out by their respective clerks. (Code 1887, § 3911; 1902-3-4, p. 784.)

Sec. 4789. Who conservators of the peace may bind to good behavior.—Every judge throughout the State and every justice, commissioner in chancery, notary, and county surveyor while in the performance of the duties of his office within his county or corporation shall be a conservator of the peace, and may require from persons not of good fame security for their good behavior for a term not exceeding one year. It shall be the duty of every conservator of the peace to arrest without a warrant for felonies committed in his presence, or upon reasonable suspicion of felony, and for breaches of the peace and all misdemeanors of whatever character committed in his presence. (Code 1887, § 3912; 1891-2, p 980.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new.

It seems that courts, as well as individual magistrates, are conservators of the peace. Marshall, J., in U. S. v. Burr, 1 Burr's Trial (Phila. Ed.) 79, 80.

The county court had authority to require a party to enter into a recognizance to keep the peace. Welling's Case, 6 Grat. 670.

Sec. 4790. Their duty, on complaint that a crime is intended.—If complaint be made to any such conservator that there is good cause to fear that a person intends to commit an offense against the person or property of another, he shall examine on oath the complainant, and any witness who may be produced, reduce the complaint to writing, and cause it to be signed by the complainant; and if it appear proper, such conservator shall issue a warrant, reciting the complaint, and requiring the person complained of forthwith to be apprehended and brought before him or some other conservator. (Code 1887, § 3913, 3914.)

"Probable cause" (or good cause) is a reasonable ground of suspicion, supported by circumstances sufficiently strong in themselves to warrant a cautious man in his belief that the person accused is guilty of the offense with which he is charged. Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. 388. See, also, Scott & Boyd v. Shelor, 28 Grat. 891.

A warrant directing the "associates" of the person named to be arrested, without mentioning the names of such associates, is illegal and void as to them. Wells v. Jackson, 3 Munf. 458.

The warrant must be executed by a sworn officer, and not by an individual selected by the prosecutor. Wells v. Jackson, 3 Munf. 458.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 153, sections 2, 3.

Sec. 4791. The proceeding when accused appears.—When such person appears, if the conservator, on hearing the parties, consider that there is not good cause for the complaint, he shall discharge the said person, and may give judgment in his favor against the complainant for his costs. If he consider that there is good cause therefor, he may require a recognizance of the person against whom it is, and give judgment against him for the costs of the prosecution, or any part thereof; and, unless such recognizance be given, he shall commit him to jail by a warrant, stating the sum and time in and for which the recognizance is directed. The person, giving judgment under this section for costs, may issue a writ of fieri facias thereon, if an appeal be not allowed; and proceedings thereupon may be according to sections six thousand and thirty and six thousand and thirty-two. (Code 1887, § 3915.)

ment made by the court, attested by the clerk of such court, shall in all cases be received as evidence of their official character. (Code 1887, § 3926.)

Sec. 4802. Their duties and powers.—It shall be the duty of said police to apprehend and carry before a justice, to be dealt with according to law, all persons whom they may be directed by the warrant of a justice to apprehend, or whom they have cause to suspect have violated, or intend to violate any law of the State; and they may execute any search warrant issued by a justice of their county under sections forty-eight hundred and nineteen, and forty-eight hundred and twenty. If such property as is mentioned in said sections be found, the police shall proceed as an officer acting under chapter one hundred and ninety-one of this Code, and they shall have the same authority as a justice to require any person to aid in making an arrest. (Code 1887, § 3927.)

Revisors' Note.—Under this section as it formerly stood, the provision for a search warrant was not in harmony with search warrants provided for in other sections of the Code, hence there has been a change in this respect.

A policeman who does not use more force than necessary to arrest a person engaged in disorderly conduct, and who resists the policeman, is not guilty of an assault and battery. Mesmer's Case, 26 Grat. 976.

Sec. 4803. Duty of justice; may bind to good behavior, etc.—In all cases, arising under the preceding section, the justice, before whom the person so arrested is brought, shall examine into the case and dispose of the same according to law; and, if he think the person so apprehended ought to enter into a recognizance to keep the peace and be of good behavior, he shall require him to do so, and in default thereof such person may be committed to jail. (Code 1887, § 3928.)

Sec. 4804. Appointment of conservator of the peace at watering place, university or college, or manufacturing plant; his jurisdiction.—The circuit court, or the judge in vacation of the circuit court of any county in which any watering place or manufacturing plant, or in which the University of Virginia, or any incorporated college, is located, may, upon the application of the proprietors of such watering place, or such manufacturing plant, or of the board of visitors of such university or other constituted authority of such college, appoint some citizen of the Commonwealth conservator of the peace, who shall hold his office for one year from the time of his appointment, and whose jurisdiction shall extend over the grounds attached to such watering place, manufacturing plant, university, or college within such limits as shall be prescribed in the order appointing such conservator. He shall, within the limits for which he is appointed, have the powers and jurisdiction of any other conservator of the peace. (Code 1887, §§ 3929, 3930; 1901-2, p. 372; 1902-3-4, p. 749.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new, and takes the place of section 3930 of the former Code, as amended. That section has been omitted and repealed as of doubtful constitutionality.

Sec. 4805. Appointment of policeman; bond required.—The court or judge mentioned in the preceding section may also appoint, for the places mentioned in that section, some citizen a policeman, with the powers and duties of a constable, except that he shall not have authority to execute civil process. Before any such policeman as is mentioned in this section shall enter upon the duties of his office, he shall enter into bond with approved security before the county clerk of the county for which he is appointed in the penalty of five hundred dollars, with condition for the faithful discharge of his official duties. (Code 1887, § 3931.)

Revisors' Note.—The provision for an oath has been omitted because covered by section 269. The portion of the section requiring a bond is new. It seemed to the revisors that a bond ought to be required.

CHAPTER 190.

Coroners' Inquests.

Sec.
4806. Upon notice of a sudden, violent, unnatural or suspicious death, what coroner to act; his warrant.
4807. Summons to witnesses.
4808. How warrant and summons executed.
4809. The jury; their oath.
4810. How witnesses compelled to attend; how their evidence taken.
4811. Inquisition of the jury; its form.
4812. Inquisition, evidence, etc., to be returned to court; witnesses to be recognized.
4813. Warrant for arrest of accused, by whom issued and how returnable.
4814. When deceased a stranger, coroner to have body buried; how costs paid; pay of jurors.
4815. Coroner may require physicians to attend inquest; their pay.
4816. Penalty on coroner for failure of duty; where no coroner, justice may act.
4817. Inquest may be taken on Sunday.
4818. Coroners' and constables' fees.

Sec. 4806. Upon notice of a sudden, violent, unnatural or suspicious death, what coroner to act; his warrant.—Upon notice of a sudden, violent, unnatural or suspicious death the coroner of the city of Richmond, if the dead body be in the penitentiary, and in any other case the coroner of the county or corporation in which the dead body is, shall view the body and make inquiry into the circumstances of the said death, and after an inquiry had as aforesaid, if facts are revealed sufficient to create in the mind of the said coroner a reasonable belief that the person whose body he shall have been called to view came to his or her death by murder or manslaughter, or by the contrivance, aiding, procuring, or other misconduct of any person or persons, he shall issue a warrant to the following effect: "..... county (or corporation of .....), to-wit: To the sheriff (or sergeant), or any constable of ..... county (or the corporation of.....): You are required to summon six jurors of the county (or corporation) of ..... to attend before me, a coroner of said county (or corporation), at the dwelling house of ..... (or at a place called .....), in said county (or corporation), at the house of ....., to inquire, upon the view of the body of ..... (or a person unknown), there lying dead, when, how, and by what means he came to his death.

"Given under my hand this ..... day of ....."
(Code 1887, § 3938; 1910, p. 338.)

As to appointment of coroners, bond required, etc., see sections 2815, 2817, 2818, 2819.

For analytical treatment of subject, see 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 118-123. See, also, Mayo's Guide (Ed. 1892) 117-186.

Sec. 4807. Summons to witnesses.—The coroner may issue a summons, directed like the warrant, commanding the officer to summon witnesses to attend before him at such time and place as he may direct. (Code 1887, § 3939.)

Sec. 4808. How warrant and summons executed.—Any such officer to whom the warrant or summons is delivered, shall forthwith execute it, and make return thereof to the coroner at the time and place named therein; if he fail so to execute and return the same without sufficient cause, he shall forfeit twenty dollars; and if any person summoned as a juror fail to attend as required, without sufficient excuse, he shall forfeit ten dollars. (Code 1887, § 3940.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "without sufficient cause," found in line five of the text, are new.

Sec. 4809. The jury; their oath.—If six jurors do not attend, the coroner may require the officer or any other person to summon others. When the full number of six shall have appeared, the coroner, in view of the body, shall administer to them the following oath: "You swear that you will diligently inquire, and true presentment make, when, how, and by what means the person whose body here lies dead, came to his death, and return a true inquest thereof, upon your own knowledge and the evidence before you. So help you God." (Code 1887, § 3941.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 589.

Sec. 4810. How witnesses compelled to attend; how their evidence taken.—Witnesses, on whom the summons before mentioned is served, may be compelled by the coroner to attend and give evidence, and shall be liable in like manner as if the summons had been issued by a justice in a criminal case. They shall be sworn by the coroner before giving evidence to the inquest, and their evidence shall be reduced to writing by him, or under his direction, and subscribed by them respectively. (Code 1887, § 3942.)

See Jackson's Case, 23 Grat. 919.

A justice of the peace, acting as coroner, has authority to commit to jail for trial a person charged by the inquest with felony. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658; Jackson's Case, 23 Grat. 919. See section 4813.

Sec. 4811. Inquisition of the jury; its form.—The jury, after hearing the evidence and making all needful inquiries, shall deliver to the coroner their inquisition, wherein they shall state the name of the deceased (if it be known), the material circumstances attending his death, and if they find that he came to his death by unlawful violence, who were guilty thereof, either as principal or accessary. The inquisition may be to the following effect: "..... county (or corporation) of ....., to-wit: An inquisition taken at ....., in the county (or corporation) of ....., on the ..... day of ....., in the year....., before ....., a coroner of the said county (or corporation), upon the view of the body of ....., (or a person unknown), there lying dead. The jurors, sworn to inquire when, how, and by what means the said ..... (or person) came to his death, upon their oaths do say: (Then insert when, how, and by what person, means, weapon, or instrument he was killed, and any material circumstances). In testimony whereof, the said coroner and jurors have hereto set their hands." (Code 1887, § 3943.)

Sec. 4812. Inquisition, evidence, etc., to be returned to court; witnesses to be recognized.—The coroner shall return to the circuit court of his county or corporation court of his corporation the inquisition, written testimony, and recognizances by him taken; and if the jury find that murder, manslaughter, or assault had been committed on the deceased, shall require such witnesses as he thinks proper to give a recognizance to appear and testify at such court when it sits for the trial of the accused. (Code 1887, § 3944; 1902-3-4, p. 840.)

Sec. 4813. Warrant for arrest of accused, by whom issued and how returnable.—If a person charged with the offense by the inquest be not in custody, the coroner may, for his apprehension, issue a warrant for his arrest in the same manner as a justice. It shall be returnable before a justice and proceeded on as directed by chapter one hundred and ninety-four. If he be in custody, the coroner shall direct the officer having him in charge to take him before a justice of the peace to be proceeded against as provided by chapter one hundred and ninety-two of this Code. But if the coroner be himself a justice, he may proceed under said chapter without giving such a direction. (Code 1887, § 3945.)

Revisors' Note.—As revised, this section expressly gives the coroner the right to issue a warrant for the arrest of the person charged with the offense by the inquest. The last two sentences are new, and provide for the case where the accused is in custody.

In line five of the text "ninety-four" should be "ninety-two," and the General Assembly will be asked to correct this error.

It is too late to object to the regularity of commitment after the prisoner has been regularly examined and sent on for trial, and has been indicted by the grand jury. Wormeley's Case, 10 Gratt. 658, and notes thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.

A justice of the peace acting as coroner has authority to commit to jail for trial a person charged by the inquest with felony. Jackson's Case, 23 Grat. 919.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 154, section 7.

Sec. 4814. When deceased a stranger, coroner to have body buried; how costs paid; pay of jurors.—If the dead person be a stranger, whether an inquest be taken, or the coroner called to view the body think it unnecessary to have an inquest, he shall cause the body to be decently buried. If the coroner certify that he believes the deceased has not sufficient estate in this State to pay the expenses of the burial, the coroner's fees, and the expenses of the inquest (if one was taken), including the pay of the jurors, as hereinafter provided for, they shall, when allowed by the court of the coroner's county or corporation, be paid out of the treasury. In other cases, all such charges shall be paid out of the estate of the deceased, or if the estate be insufficient, by the county or corporation aforesaid, unless the inquest be on the body of a convict in the penitentiary, in which case the same shall be paid out of the treasury after being allowed by the executive. Jurors who serve on a coroner's inquest shall be entitled to receive one dollar for such service, to be paid as the other expenses of inquest are herein above directed to be paid. (Code 1887, § 3946.)

Sec. 4815. Coroner may require physicians to attend inquest; their pay.—In taking an inquest, the coroner may require one or more physicians to attend, and give information and render services incident to his profession useful to the jury; and reasonable compensation therefor shall be allowed, as part of the costs of the inquest. (Code 1887, § 3947.)

Sec. 4816. Penalty on coroner for failure of duty; where no coroner, justice may act.—If a coroner wilfully or negligently fail to perform any duty herein required of him, he shall forfeit one hundred dollars. In case of such failure, or if there be no coroner authorized to act, or none in the neighborhood in which the dead body is found, any justice of the county may act as coroner, and shall be entitled to the same fees, and be subject to the same penalties as a coroner. (Code 1887, § 3948.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "wilfully or negligently," appearing in line one of the text, are new. Without this insertion the section would be more drastic than was probably intended.

Sec. 4817. Inquest may be taken on Sunday.—Under this chapter, proceedings may be had for summoning a jury and witnesses, and an inquest may be held as well on Sunday as any other day. (Code 1887, § 3949.)

Sec. 4818. Coroners' and constables' fees.—A coroner shall have for viewing a dead body, whether an inquest be had or not, three dollars, except where the coroner is a physician and actually makes an examination of the dead body, in which case his fee shall be five dollars, and in the event that the coroner deems it necessary to make an autopsy and does make such autopsy, then he shall be allowed such additional fee as shall seem reasonable to the circuit court of the county or the corporation court of the city in which such autopsy was held; and a sheriff or constable for summoning a coroner's jury and the witnesses shall receive one and a half dollars. (Code 1887, § 3950; 1908, p. 639.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or the corporation court of the city," appearing in line four from the bottom of the text, are new.

CHAPTER 191.

Search Warrants.

Sec.
4819. When justice may issue search warrant for property stolen, etc.
4820. When, and in what other cases, he may issue it.
4821. How warrant directed; what it shall command.
4822. What to be done with the property, etc., seized under it.

Sec. 4819. When justice may issue search warrant for property stolen, etc.—If there be complaint on oath that personal property has been stolen, embezzled, or obtained by false pretenses, and that it is believed to be concealed in a particular house or other place the justice to whom complaint is made, if satisfied that there is reasonable cause for such belief, shall issue a warrant to search such place for the property. (Code 1887, § 3951; 1897-8, p. 399.)

Revisors' Note.—The revisors could see no good reason why a search warrant might not be issued by any justice, hence omitted the provisos and restored the section to what it was in the Code of 1887.

General warrants to search suspected places are illegal and void both by common law and our Bill of Rights, section 10, Constitution 1902.

The landlord of a tenant at will may peacefully enter the premises, but an illegal search for stolen goods makes him a trespasser ab initio. Faulkner v. Alderson, Gilmer 221.

See Gregory's Forms No. 84.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 155, section 1.

Sec. 4820. When, and in what other cases, he may issue it.—On like complaint, on oath, according to the nature of the case, the justice to whom it is made, if satisfied that there is reasonable cause therefor, shall issue a warrant to search specified places for the following things:

First, Counterfeit or spurious coin, forged bank notes, and other instruments or writings, or any tools, machines, or materials for making them;

Second, Any book or other thing containing obscene language, or any print, picture, figure, or description manifestly tending to corrupt the morals of youth, and intended to be sold, loaned, circulated, or distributed, or to be introduced into a family, school, or place of education;

Third, Lottery tickets, or materials unlawfully made, provided, or procured for drawing a lottery;

Fourth, Any gaming apparatus or implements used, or kept and provided to be used, in unlawful gaming, or in any place resorted to for unlawful gaming. (Code 1887, § 3952.)

Sec. 4821. How warrant directed; what it shall command.—Every search warrant shall be directed to the sheriff, sergeant, policeman or constable of the county or corporation in which the place to be searched is, and shall command him to search the place designated either in day or night and seize such stolen property or other things and bring the same and the person in whose possession they are found before a justice or court having cognizance of the case. (Code 1887, § 3953; 1897-8, p. 399.)

Revisors' Note.—With the exception of the insertion of the word "policeman" in line two of the text, this section is as it stood in the Code of 1887, and the amendment of 1897-8, page 399, has been omitted. See Gregory's Forms No. 84.

Sec. 4822. What to be done with the property, etc., seized under it.—If any search warrant be executed by the seizure of property, or of any other of the things aforesaid, the same shall be safely kept by the direction of such justice or court, to be used in evidence; and as soon as may be afterwards, such stolen or embezzled property shall be restored to its owner, and the other things specified aforesaid, burnt or otherwise destroyed under such direction. (Code 1887, § 3954.)

Sec. 4823. Who may issue process of arrest.—A judge of a circuit or corporation court, in vacation as well as in term, or a justice, may issue process for the arrest of a person charged with an offense. (Code 1887, § 3955; 1897-8, p. 398; 1899-00, p. 339; 1901, p. 286; 1902-3-4, p. 841.)

Sec. 4824. When it may issue; what to recite and require.—On complaint of a criminal offense to any such officer, he shall examine, on oath, the complainant and any other witnesses, or when such officer shall suspect that an offense, punishable otherwise than by a fine, has been committed, he may, without formal complaint, issue a summons for witnesses, and shall examine such witnesses; and if he sees good reason to believe that an offense has been committed, shall issue his warrant reciting the offense and requiring the person accused to be arrested and brought before a justice of the county or corporation, and in the same warrant, require the officer to whom it is directed to summon such witnesses as shall be therein named, to appear and give evidence on the examination: provided, that in cities and towns having a police force, the warrant shall be directed "To any policeman of said city (or town)," and shall be executed by the policeman into whose hands it shall come or be delivered: and provided further, that in cases of misdemeanor, where the warrant is issued by a justice or other person lawfully authorized to issue the said warrant in the county wherein the offense has been committed, the warrant shall be made returnable and tried in the magisterial district in which the offense was committed by a justice of the said district unless for good cause shown by affidavit of the defendant, the justice before whom the said warrant is made returnable shall, in his discretion, remove the trial to some point in another magisterial district of the said county. (Code 1887, § 3956; 1897-8, p. 398; 1899-00, p. 339; 1901, p. 286; 1902-3-4, p. 841; 1904, p. 157.)

A description, "A. and his associates," is void as to the latter, if it does not name them. Wells v. Jackson, 3 Munf. 458. Warrants of arrest are required to recite the offense charged, but the same particularity is not expected or required as in indictments. Lacey v. Palmer, 93 Va. 160, 24 S. E. 930, 31 L. R. A. 822, 57 Am. St. Rep. 795.

As to "good cause, probable cause," see section 4790 and notes; Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. 381, 383; Scott v. Shelor, 28 Grat. 891, 905, 906.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 2.

Sec. 4825. When officer may pursue and arrest accused anywhere in the State.—If a person charged with an offense shall, after or at the time the warrant is issued for his arrest, escape from or be out of the county or corporation in which the offense is alleged to have been committed, the officer to whom the warrant is directed, may pursue and arrest him anywhere in the State; or a justice of a county or corporation other than that in which it was issued, on being satisfied of the genuiness thereof, may endorse thereon his name and official character, and such endorsement shall operate as a direction of the warrant to an officer of such justice's county or corporation. (Code 1887, § 3957.)

Although an escape warrant ought to show on the face of it that the person who issued it is a justice of the peace, yet on a habeas corpus sued out by the person arrested under it, if it is proved that he is a justice, the prisoner ought not to be discharged. Jones v. Timberlake, 6 Rand. 678.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699.

Sec. 4826. Before whom he shall be brought.—An officer arresting a person under a warrant for an offense, shall bring such person before and return such warrant to a justice of the county or corporation in which the warrant issued, unless such person be let to bail as hereinafter mentioned, or it be otherwise provided. (Code 1887, § 3958; 1902-3-4, p. 841; 1904, p. 157.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is identical with section 3958 of the Code of 1887. The amendment found on page 157 of the Acts of 1904 has been omitted.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699.

Sec. 4827. When warrant issued in county, etc., other than where trial ought to be, what to be done with accused.—Where a warrant is issued in a county or corporation. other than that in which the charge ought to be tried, the justice before whom the accused is brought, shall, by warrant, commit him to an officer, that he may, and such officer shall, carry him to the county or corporation in which the trial should be, and there shall take him before, and return such warrant to, a justice thereof, unless otherwise provided. (Code 1887, § 3959.)

But where the justice has jurisdiction of his person and of the offense with which he is charged, and hears the charge on its merits, the judgment of the justice acquitting the accused is final and conclusive, and the guilt or innocence of the accused of that charge can never again be called in question. Jones v. Morris, 97 Va. 46-48, 33 S. E. 377.

Sec. 4828. Bail by Justice.—A justice before whom a person charged with a misdemeanor or a felony, if only a light suspicion of guilt falls on him in the latter case, may, pending examination before him, or upon committing such person for trial, admit him to bail. If the offense be a felony, and there is good cause to believe such person guilty, he shall not be let to bail by any justice, nor shall any person in jail under an order of commitment be admitted to bail by any justice, except the one committing him, nor in a less sum than was required by said order. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

For case construing the statute as it was in 1846, see Hamlett's Case, 3 Grat. 82.

As to "good cause," see section 4790 and notes; also Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. 381, 383; Scott & Boyd v. Shelor, 28 Grat. 891, 905, 906. See notes to section 4829.

Sec. 4829. Bail by court or judge.—But a court, or a judge thereof in vacation, in which any person is held and to be tried for a criminal offense, may, upon motion before said court, or upon a petition to the judge thereof in vacation, hear testimony and admit such person to bail before conviction and when such petition is filed before such judge in vacation, he shall at once order such person to be brought before him, that he may hear the petition for bail; if a circuit or corporation court, or a judge thereof in vacation, refuses to admit said person to bail, or require excessive bail, then the Supreme Court of Appeals, or any one judge thereof in vacation, upon petition of said person, shall at once order him to be brought before said court or judge in order that a motion may be made to admit him to bail, and upon such motion the said Supreme Court of Appeals, or judge thereof in vacation, may hear testimony and admit him to bail or remand him to jail. No other court or judge shall admit a person accused of a criminal offense to bail otherwise than is hereinbefore provided, except that such person may be admitted to bail under section forty-eight hundred and thirty-seven, and except also as hereinafter provided. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

A severe and dangerous disease, contracted in prison, and likely to terminate fatally, is good cause for admitting the prisoner to bail. Semmes' Case, 11 Leigh 665. See, also, Archer's Case, 6 Grat. 705.

An acquittal on one of several indictments, found on same transaction, and which might have been included in one indictment, furnishes such a presumption of innocence in the others as entitles him to be bailed. Green's Case, 11 Leigh 677. But the acquittal of the prisoner of passing a counterfeit coin to one man is no ground for bail when he is under indictment for passing a second counterfeit coin to another person on the same day. Summerfield's Case, 2 Rob. 767.

The question of allowing bail on the ground that only a light suspicion of guilt falls on the accused is one for exercise of the sound discretion of the court, and if the court is satisfied that there is material evidence for the Commonwealth that is not before the court, was not before the examining court, or spread upon the record, the court ought not to sustain the motion. Rutherford's Case, 5 Rand. 646.

And the judgment of the examining court and the finding of the bill of indictment by the grand jury are not conclusive evidence against the application, but the court may examine other evidence. Id.

Sec. 4830. Bail by bail commissioner of county.—A bail commissioner of any county shall have the same powers to admit to bail as the circuit court of his said county, or the judge thereof would have, if application as hereinbefore provided had been made to said court or judge; but no application may be made to said bail commissioner after said court or judge has acted upon the application for bail or pending proceedings before said court or judge to obtain bail. If the bail commissioner shall refuse to admit to bail or require excessive bail, then application may be made to said court or judge, and the same proceedings may be had as if application had been made in the first instance to said court or judge. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Sec. 4831. Bail by bail commissioner of adjoining county.—If said bail commissioner and the judge of said court be incapable for any reason of hearing said application, then application may be made to the bail commissioner of an adjoining county to the one in which the said applicant is held for trial, and if bail be refused, or excessive bail be required by said commissioner, then application may be made to the Supreme Court of Appeals, or a judge thereof in vacation as provided by section forty-eight hundred and twenty-nine in cases where the said circuit court, or the judge thereof in vacation, had refused to admit to bail, or had required excessive bail. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Sec. 4832. Bail where judge of corporation court is sick or absent.—If such applicant for bail is held for trial in a corporation court, and said court is not in session, and the judge thereof is sick or absent from the city, then the proceedings to secure bail which would have been proper as hereinbefore stated, before such court or the judge thereof in vacation, shall be allowed before the nearest circuit or corporation court to the city in which such person is held for trial, or the judge thereof in vacation. Upon the refusal of said court or judge to admit to bail, or upon excessive bail being required, like proceedings may be had in the Supreme Court of Appeals, or before a judge thereof in vacation, as if the action had been by the court in which such person is held for trial. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Sec. 4833. When court or judge may increase amount of bail fixed by the bail commissioner.—If the amount of the bail fixed by the bail commissioner be deemed inadequate, the attorney for the Commonwealth of the county in which the accused is held for trial, may, on reasonable notice to the accused, move the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, to increase the amount of such bail. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is new, and should be read in connection with section 4836, which is also new. The objects to be accomplished are manifest, and need no explanation.

Sec. 4834. Procedure.—Any bail commissioner, or any court or judge thereof in vacation, to whom application is made as herein provided, shall at once order said person held for trial to be brought before said commissioner, court or judge, and upon motion shall hear testimony and admit to bail or remand him to jail. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Sec. 4835. Fees of bail commissioner.—The fees of said commissioner shall be double those of a justice of the peace for the trial of a criminal case, and shall be paid out of the treasury. (Code 1887, § 3960; 1895-6, p. 365; 1902-3-4, p. 317.)

Sec. 4836. When bail may be increased, or new sureties required; surety may take indemnity.—Although a party has been admitted to bail, if the amount thereof is subsequently deemed insufficient, or the security taken inadequate, it shall be lawful for the court having jurisdiction to try the case in which the bail was required, or the judge thereof in vacation, or the officer before whom the bail was given, to increase the amount of such bail, or to require new or additional sureties therefor, or both. Any surety in a bail bond or a recognizance for the appearance of one charged with crime may take from his principal collaterals or other security to indemnify such surety against liability.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new. See revisors' note to section 4833.

Sec. 4837. Bail for accused arrested out of county in which offense was committed.—A person charged with a misdemeanor, and to be carried to another county or corporation, shall, if he request it in the county or corporation wherein he is arrested, be brought before a court, judge, or justice thereof. In such case, if he desire it, such court, judge, or justice before whom he is brought, may, without trial or examination, let him to bail, upon taking a recognizance for his appearance before the court or justice having cognizance of the case; the fact of taking which shall be certified, by the court or officer taking it, upon the warrant under which such person was arrested, and the warrant and recognizance shall be returned forthwith to the clerk of the court or to the justice before whom the accused is to appear; to which court or justice, the judge or justice, who issued such warrant, shall recognize or cause to be summoned such witnesses as he may think proper. (Code 1887, § 3961.)

Sec. 4838. When bail-piece to be delivered to bail; its form.—In all cases in which recognizances, at the suit of the Commonwealth, may have been, or shall hereafter be entered into, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court in which, or in the clerk's office of which, any recognizance is filed, to deliver to the bail, on his applying therefor, a bail-piece, in substance, as follows: "A. B. of the county (or corporation) of ....., is delivered to bail, unto C. D. of the county (or corporation) of ....., at the suit of the Commonwealth. Given under my hand, this ..... day of ....., in the year ....." (Code 1887, § 3962.)

Sec. 4839. Power of justice to adjourn case; when to commit accused to jail; when to recognize him.—A justice may adjourn an examination or trial pending before him, not exceeding ten days at one time, without the consent of the accused, and to any place in the county or corporation. In such case, if the accused be charged with a felony, unless it be a case in which only a light suspicion of guilt exists, he shall be committed to jail; otherwise, he may be recognized for his appearance at the time appointed for such further examination or trial, or for want of bail be committed to jail. (Code 1887, § 3963.)

See notes to section 4840.

Cited but not construed in Hill v. Smith, 107 Va. 848, 59 S. E. 475.

Sec. 4840. Proceedings, when accused fails to appear.—If a person recognized to appear before a justice do not appear at the time so appointed, the said justice shall certify the recognizance and the fact of such default to the circuit or corporation court at its next term, and like proceedings shall be had thereon as on breach of a recognizance for appearance before such court. (Code 1887, § 3964.)

As to recognizances for appearance before court, and scire facias thereon, see Com. v. Murray, 2 Va. Cas. 504; Com. v. Craig, 6 Rand. 731; Bias v. Floyd, 7 Leigh 640; Young v. For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 10.

Sec. 4841. When committed, what the order of the justice to state; how accused again brought before him.—If the accused be committed, it shall be by an order of the justice, stating that he is committed for further examination on a day specified in the order, and on that day he may be brought before the justice, by his verbal order to the officer by whom he was committed, or by a written order to a different person. (Code 1887, § 3965.)

A mistake of the justice in the date of the warrant of commitment is no ground for setting aside subsequent proceedings. Murray's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 504.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 11.

Sec. 4842. Examination by the justice.—The justice before whom any person is brought for an offense, shall, as soon as may be, in the presence of such person, examine on oath the witnesses for and against him, and he may be assisted by counsel. (Code 1887, § 3966.)

In a criminal trial the prosecutor may employ counsel to aid the attorney for the Commonwealth, and such counsel will be permitted to aid in the prosecution. Hopper's Case, 6 Grat. 684.

See Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 667.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 12.

Sec. 4843. Witnesses may be separated.—While a witness is under such examination, all other witnesses may, by order of the justice, be excluded from the place of examination, and kept separate from each other. (Code 1887, § 3967.)

See Hopper's Case, 6 Grat. 684.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 13.

Sec. 4844. Their testimony may be reduced to writing and subscribed.—When the justice deems it proper, the testimony of the witnesses may be reduced to writing, and the same, if required by him, shall be signed by them respectively. (Code 1887, § 3968.)

Sec. 4845. When the justice to discharge or not to discharge the accused.—The justice shall discharge the accused if he consider that there is not sufficient cause for charging him with the offense; if he consider that there is sufficient cause to charge the accused with a misdemeanor only, then he shall try the accused for said offense and convict him if he deem him guilty and pass judgment upon him in accordance with the provisions of section forty-nine hundred and eighty-seven just as if the accused had first been brought before him on a warrant charging him with said misdemeanor; if he consider that there is just and sufficient cause for charging the accused with a felony, then he shall commit him to jail or let him to bail under section forty-eight hundred and twenty-eight. He shall require recognizance with or without sureties as he deems proper from all material witnesses against the accused and also for the accused if he desires it. (Code 1887, § 3969; 1895-6, p. 935.)

Sec. 4846. Commitment for trial; recognizance; notice to attorney for the Commonwealth.—When a justice considers that there is sufficient cause for charging the accused with a felony, unless it be a case wherein it is otherwise specially provided, the commitment shall be for trial, and the recognizance be for appearance in the court having jurisdiction of the offense, at such time as the case can be proceeded in before such court. The justice shall return to the clerk of the court, as soon as may be, a certificate of the nature of the offense, showing whether the accused was committed or recognized therefor; and the clerk, as soon as may be, shall inform the attorney for the Commonwealth in said court of such certificate. (Code 1887, § 3970.)

As to sufficient cause, see notes to section 4790; and Spengler v. Davy, 15 Grat. 381, 383; Scott & Boyd v. Shelor, 28 Grat. 891, 905, 906.

The Supreme Court, after discharging prisoner by habeas corpus, because the order of commitment did not sufficiently specify the offense, forthwith remanded him before justice to be further dealt with according to law. Young's Case, 1 Rob. 744; Ex parte Marx, 86 Va. 47, 9 S. E. 475.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 156, section 16.

Sec. 4847. To whom, and when, examination and recognizance to be certified.—Every examination and recognizance for a felony taken under this chapter, shall, by the judge, bail commissioner, or justice taking it, be certified to the clerk of the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city in which the party charged is to be tried, or the witness is to appear, on or before the first day of its next session. If he fail, he may be compelled to do so by attachment, as for a contempt. (Code 1887, § 3971.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "for a felony" have been inserted in line one of the text, as it is manifest that it was not intended that the section should apply to misdemeanors. The verbal changes made were not intended to change the law.

Sec. 4848. Justice may associate other justices; if they disagree whose opinion to prevail.—A justice to whom complaint is made, or before whom a prisoner is brought, may associate with himself other justices of the county or corporation, not exceeding two, and they may together execute the powers and duties before mentioned, but in case of disagreement in opinion, the opinion of the justice to whom the complaint is made, or before whom the prisoner is brought, shall prevail when one justice is so associated with him, but in case there be two justices associated with him, the opinion of the majority shall prevail. (Code 1887, § 3972; 1902-3-4, p. 116.)

Sec. 4849. Person committed for misdemeanor may be discharged on acknowledgment of satisfaction by party injured.—When a person is in jail or under a recognizance to answer a charge of assault and battery or other misdemeanor, or has been indicted for an assault and battery, or other misdemeanor, for which there is no remedy by civil action, unless the offense was committed by or to commit a felony, if the party injured appear before the judge or justice, who made the commitment, or took the recognizance, or before the court in which the indictment is pending, and acknowledge in writing that he has received satisfaction for the injury, such judge, justice, or court may, in his or its discretion, by an order, supersede the commitment, discharge the recognizance, or dismiss the prosecution, upon payment by the defendant of costs accrued to the Commonwealth, or any of its officers. (Code 1887, § 3973.)

Revisors' Note.—This section as it stood before the revision did not provide for a case where there was AN INDICTMENT pending. The revised section does. The words, "upon payment by the defendant of costs accrued to the Commonwealth, or any of its officers," appearing at the end, are new.

Sec. 4850. When and to whom order discharging recognizance, or superseding commitment, to be returned; judgment against accused for costs.—Every order discharging a recognizance shall be filed with the clerk before the session of the court at which the party was to appear, and an order superseding a commitment shall be delivered to the jailor, who shall forthwith discharge the witnesses (if any) and the accused, and against him judgment shall be entered in the said court for the costs of the prosecution. (Code 1887, § 3974.)

Sec. 4852. When and how grand jurors to be selected by judges of circuit courts of counties and corporation or hustings courts of cities; lists to be delivered to clerk; when and how jurors summoned.—The judges of the said courts shall annually, in the month of June, July, or August, select from the male citizens of each county of their respective circuits and in their several cities forty-eight persons twenty-one years of age and upwards, of honesty, intelligence, and good demeanor, and suitable in all respects to serve as grand jurors, who shall be the grand jurors for the county or city from which they are selected for twelve months next thereafter. Such jurors shall be selected in each county from the several magisterial districts of the county, and in each city from the several wards of the cities in proportion to the population thereof, and the judge making the selection shall at once furnish to the clerk of his court in each county of his circuit or in his city a list of those selected for that county or city. The clerk, not more than twenty days before the commencement of each term of his court at which a regular grand jury is required, shall issue a venire facias to the sheriff of his county or sergeant of his city, commanding him to summon not less than twelve nor more than sixteen of the persons selected as aforesaid (the number to be designated by the judge of the court by an order entered of record) to be named in the writ, to appear on the first day of the court to serve as grand jurors. No such person shall be required to appear more than once until all the others have been summoned once, nor more than twice until the others have been twice summoned, and so on: provided, that no male citizen over sixty years of age shall be compelled to serve as a grand juror. The clerk, in issuing the venire facias, shall apportion the grand jurors, as nearly as may be, ratably among the magisterial districts or wards; but the Circuit Court of James City county, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall select the grand jurors for such court from said county and the city of Williamsburg in such proportion from each as he may think proper. (Code 1887, § 3976; 1889-90, p. 90; 1902-3-4, pp. 22, 878.)

Revisors' Note.—Under this section as it stood in the Code of 1887, the venire facias issued by the clerk for a regular grand jury commanded the sheriff or sergeant to summon TWENTY-FOUR persons. Acts 1889-90, p. 90, reduced the number to TWELVE, and this continued to be the number required until the present revision. Under the revised section, the venire facias commands the officer to summon "not less than TWELVE nor more than SIXTEEN of the persons selected as aforesaid (the number to be designated by the judge of the court by an order entered of record)." See the following section, and revisors' note.

This section having been amended in July, 1902, it was not error for the judge, in selecting grand jurors for the August term, to quash a venire issued under the prior law, and to issue a new venire in accordance with the amendment. Nor was it error to summon a regular instead of a special jury, under section 4854. Litton's Case, 101 Va. 838, 44 S. E. 923.

Objection to the mode of summoning a grand jury must be made before a plea to the merits. Curtis' Case, 87 Va. 592, 13 S. E. 73.

See notes to section 4853.

Sec. 4853. Who are qualified; number of grand jury, regular and special.—A regular grand jury shall consist of not less than eleven nor more than sixteen persons, and a special grand jury of not less than six nor more than nine persons. Each grand juror shall be a citizen of this State, twenty-one years of age, and shall have been a resident of this State two years, and of the county or corporation in which the court is to be held one year, and in other respects a qualified juror, and not a constable, or overseer of a road, and, when the grand juror is for a circuit court of a county, not an inhabitant of a city. (Code 1887, § 3977; 1889-90, p. 91; 1902-3-4, p. 878; 1916, p. 764.)

Revisors' Note.—Under the Code of 1887 a regular grand jury consisted of not less than sixteen nor more than twenty-four persons, and a special grand jury of not less than six nor more than nine persons. The number of the regular grand jury was reduced by Acts 1889-90, p. 91, to not less than nine nor more than twelve persons, and this continued to be the law until the present revision. The revised section provides that a regular grand jury shall consist of not less than ELEVEN nor more than SIXTEEN persons. See the preceding section increasing the number to be summoned. The changes in this and the preceding section were made because the revisors were of opinion that larger grand juries, especially for the larger counties and cities, would be conducive to law enforcement, although, of course, more expensive.

Requisites for grand juror.—The phrase, "in other respects a qualified juror," must be interpreted according to the common-law and statutory requirements for jurors. The common-law requirement is that they should be probi aut liberi et legales homines. Therefore it is a good exception at common law to one returned on a grand jury that he is an alien or a minor, or was not returned by proper officer, or that he was returned at the instance of the prosecutor. Also infamy is a good cause for challenge to a juror, or that he hath been convicted of treason, felony, perjury, etc. Booth's Case, 16 Grat. 519, 527.

For present statutory requirements, see sections 5984 et seq.

Census enumerators, appointed under a law of Congress, may be members of the grand jury (Strother's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 187); also a naturalized citizen of the United States or a native citizen of any other state domiciled in Virginia (Towles' Case, 5 Leigh, 743); but not an alien (Cherry's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 20). As to freeholder under the old law serving on grand jury, see Kerby's Case, 7 Leigh, 747.

Formerly, ordinary keepers and owners and occupiers of grist-mills were ineligible to serve as grand jurors, but they were made eligible by the amendment of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 764).

Persons over sixty years of age are not disqualified from serving on grand juries, though they are exempted from service if they choose to claim the exemption. Booth's Case, 16 Grat. 519.

A supervisor of a county who, under certain circumstances, has supervision and control over the roads in his district, is not an "overseer of roads," within the meaning of this section. Cook's Case, 114 Va. 882. 77 S. E. 608.

Generally.—This section is not repugnant to articles 5 and 14 of the amendments to the United States Constitution. Hausenfluck's Case, 85 Va. 702, 8 S. E. 683.

Objection to mode of summoning grand jury or to the qualification of particular grand jurors must be made by a plea in abatement at a preliminary stage of the case and before a plea to the merits. Cherry's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 20, and note; Long's Case, Id. 318; Kerby's Case, 7 Leigh, 747; Booth's Case, 16 Grat. 519, 523; Moran's Case, 9 Leigh, 651; Curtis' Case, 87 Va. 590, 13 S. E. 72; Early's Case, 86 Va. 921, 11 S. E. 795.

Objections as aforesaid cannot be raised for the first time in appellate court. Taylor's Case, 90 Va. 109, 17 S. E. 812.

And this plea in abatement is waived by pleading to the general issue alone. Early's Case, 86 Va. 921, 11 S. E. 795. But it is admissible although another plea in abatement was at the same time pleaded and issue joined thereon. Long's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 318.

For objection to the method of constituting a grand jury not sustained, see Mesmer's Case, 26 Grat. 976.

Cited in Litton's Case, 101 Va. 833, 44 S. E. 923.

Under this section, as amended (1889-90, p. 91), special or regular grand jury may find indictment for murder. Lyle v. Com., 88 Va. 396, 13 S. E. 802.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 157, section 3.

Sec. 4854. When special grand jury may be ordered; by whom and how.—A special grand jury may be ordered at any time by a circuit court of a county or corporation, or corporation or hustings court of a corporation, or the judge thereof in vacation, the jurors to be summoned from a list furnished by the judge, and where a grand jury, regular or special, has been discharged, the court, during the term, may impanel another grand jury, which may be a special grand jury. A special grand jury may be summoned for and impanelled at a special term of the court as well as at a regular term. (Code 1887, § 3978; 1902-3-4, p. 878; 1904, p. 92.)

No venire facias is required to summon a special grand jury. Robinson's Case, 88 Va. 903, 14 S. E. 627.

Where one of the grand jury finding an indictment was incompetent, and for that reason the grand jury was dismissed and the indictment quashed, the court may direct a special grand jury to be summoned at the same term, and an indictment found by this grand jury is valid. Shinn's Case, 32 Grat. 899.

The fact that two of the jurors who were members of the grand jury which found the indictment against the defendant had served on another special grand jury at the same term of the court did not disqualify them to serve upon the grand jury which found the indictment. Richardson's Case, 76 Va. 1007.

Under this section and section 4851 special grand juries may be summoned and impaneled at any regular or special term of the court when so ordered by the judge. Wright's Case, 114 Va. 872, 77 S. E. 503.

Sec. 4855. How deficiency of jurors supplied.—If a sufficient number of grand jurors do not appear, the court may order the deficiency to be supplied from the bystanders, or from a list furnished by the judge to the sheriff or sergeant. (Code 1887, § 3979.)

Plea in abatement will not lie to an indictment, for that the court, if sufficient number of the jurors summoned are not in attendance, (1982) causes the required number to be returned from the county at large. Richardson's Case, 76 Va. 1007.

If it be discovered that one of the grand jurors lacks the legal qualifications, the court must discharge him and order another to be sworn in his place. Burton's Case, 4 Leigh 645, 26 Am. Dec. 337; Richardson's Case, 76 Va. 1007.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 157, section 4.

Sec. 4856. Foreman of grand jury; his oath, and oath of other jurors.—From among the persons summoned who attend, the court shall select a foreman, who shall be sworn as follows: "You shall diligently inquire, and true presentment make, of all such matters as may be given you in charge, or come to your knowledge, touching the present service. You shall present no person through prejudice or ill-will, nor leave any unpresented through fear or favor, but in all your presentments you shall present the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God." The other grand jurors shall afterwards be sworn as follows: "The same oath that your foreman has taken on his part, you and each of you shall observe and keep on your part. So help you God." (Code 1887, § 3980.)

It appears that this section is merely declaratory of the common law. See 11 Va. Law Reg. 544.

See Gregory's Forms, Nos. 585, 586.

Sec. 4857. When new foreman or juror may be sworn in.—If the foreman or any grand juror, at any time after being sworn, fail or be unable to attend, another may be sworn in his stead. (Code 1887, § 3981.)

Sec. 4858. Judge to charge grand jury.—The grand jury, after being sworn, shall be charged by the judge of the court, and shall then be sent to their room. (Code 1887, § 3982.)

Failure to charge grand jury does not vitiate an indictment found by them. The provision is directory only. Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 802, 22 S. E. 352.

It appears that this section is merely declaratory of the common law. See 11 Va. Law Reg. 544.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 157, section 6.

Sec. 4859. Duties of grand jury.—The grand jury shall inquire of and present all felonies, misdemeanors, and violations of penal laws, committed within the jurisdiction of the respective courts wherein they are sworn; except that no presentment shall be made of a matter for which there is no corporal punishment, but only a fine, where the fine is limited to an amount not exceeding five dollars. (Code 1887, § 3983.)

It appears that this section is merely declaratory of the common law. See 11 Va. Law Reg. 544.

Cited but not construed in Wells' Case, 107 Va. 834, 57 S. E. 588.

Sec. 4860. How indictments found and presentments made.—At least nine of a regular grand jury and five of a special grand jury must concur in finding or making an indictment or presentment.

Digitized by Google

They may make a presentment or find an indictment upon the information of two or more of their own body, or on the testimony of witnesses called on by the grand jury, or sent to it by the court. If only one of their number can testify as to an offense, he shall be sworn as any other witness. When a presentment or indictment is so made or found, the names of the grand jurors giving the information, or of the witnesses, shall be written at the foot of the presentment or indictment. (Code 1887, § 3984; 1889-90, p. 91.)

Revisors' Note.—Under section 3984 of the Code of 1887 the concurrence of at least twelve of a regular grand jury was necessary in finding or making an indictment or presentment. This was in conformity with sections 3976 and 3977 of that Code. When these sections were amended by Acts 1889-90, p. 91, section 3984 was amended also, and the concurrence of at least SEVEN of a regular grand jury was necessary from the time of the amendment to the present revision. In consequence of the changes made in the revised sections 4852 and 4853, section 4860 now provides for a concurrence of at least NINE of a regular grand jury.

The provision that "if only one of their number can testify as to an offense, he shall be sworn as any other witness" is new, but not intended to change the existing law.

The provision that the names of the witnesses upon whose evidence the grand jury make their indictment shall be written at the foot of the indictment or presentment is merely directory, and not mandatory. Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 802, 22 S. E. 352; Dever's Case, 10 Leigh 685; Williams' Case, 5 Grat. 702; Shelton's Case, 89 Va. 450, 16 S. E. 355; Clopton's Case, 109 Va. 813, 63 S. E. 1022.

The omission of the names of the witnesses in the indorsement of an indictment will not operate to exclude such witnesses from testifying at the trial. Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 853.

Indorsement on separate sheet enveloping indictment, indictment not vitiated. Burgess' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 483.

In reference to the number who must agree, see Sayers' Case, 8 Leigh 722, 725.

Under Acts 1869-70, p. 550, chapter 397, section 4, it was held that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it must be presumed that the indictment was found at a term when a jury might lawfully consist of only eight members (a special grand jury). Price's Case, 21 Grat. 855.

As to the right of the accused to appear before the grand jury, see Editorial, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 228.

Sec. 4861. Indictments ignored may be sent to another grand jury; what irregularities not to vitiate indictment, etc.—Although a bill of indictment be returned not a true bill the same or another bill of indictment against the same person, for the same offense, may be sent to, and acted on, by the same or another grand jury. No irregularity in the time or manner of selecting the jurors, or in the writ of venire facias, or in the manner of executing the same, shall vitiate any presentment, indictment, or finding of a grand jury. (Code 1887, § 3985.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "the same or," found in line two of the text, are new, but not supposed to change the existing law.

Digitized by Google

Sec. 4862. Penalties on officers and jurors for failure of duty.—A court, whose officer fails without good cause, when it is his duty, to summon a grand jury and return a list of their names, shall fine him twenty dollars. A person summoned, and failing to attend a court as a grand juror, shall be fined by said court not less than five dollars, unless, after being summoned to show cause against the fine, he give a reasonable excuse for his failure. (Code 1887, § 3986.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "without good cause," found in line two of the text, are new.

Sec. 4863. Pay and mileage of grand jurors.—Every person who serves upon a grand jury shall receive the same compensation and mileage allowed jurors in civil cases by section six thousand and seven, and the same shall be paid out of the county or corporation levy. (Code 1887, § 3987.)

Sec. 4864. Commissioners, sheriffs, constables, etc., to give information of violation of penal laws to attorney for the Commonwealth.—Every commissioner of the revenue, sheriff, constable, or other officer shall give information of the violation of any penal law to the attorney for the Commonwealth, who shall forthwith institute and prosecute all necessary and proper proceedings in such case, whether in the name of the Commonwealth or of a county or corporation, and may in such case issue or cause to be issued a summons for any witness he may deem material to give evidence before the court or grand jury. It shall, however, be unlawful for any attorney for the Commonwealth to go before any grand jury during their deliberations except when duly sworn to testify as a witness, but he may advise the foreman of the grand jury or any member or members thereof in relation to the discharge of their duties. (Code 1887, § 3988.)

This section makes it duty of sheriff to give information of violation of any penal law to Commonwealth's attorney, and this duty necessarily carries with it the implied power to investigate, inquire into, and ascertain if an offense has been committed. Under section 788, Rev. St. U. S. [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 608], United States marshal has same powers. Carico v. Wilmore (D. C.), 51 Fed. 198.

An indictment will not be quashed because the attorney for the Commonwealth appeared before the grand jury when not sworn as a witness, where it appears from the evidence that he did not advise them to find the indictment, did not know of their finding until the presentment was made, and was not in the room when they had the indictment under consideration. Mullin's Case, 115 Va. 945, 79 S. E. 324.

Sec. 4865. Form of prosecutions.—Prosecutions for offenses against the Commonwealth, unless otherwise provided, shall be by presentment, indictment, or information. (Code 1887, § 3989.)

As to indictments, presentments, etc., generally, see Min. Syn. 249-255; note to Boyle's Case, 14 Grat. 674, 676, Va. Rep. Anno.

As to the distinction between presentments and indictments, see Towles' Case, 5 Leigh 743; Jones' Case, 19 Grat. 481; also Min. Syn. 250; Christian's Case, 7 Grat. 637.

The presentment, not the time of filing the information upon it, is the date of the prosecution. Christian's Case, 7 Grat. 631.

Presentment on indictment of a grand jury must be brought into court by them, and publicly presented and recorded. Cawood's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 527; Simmons' Case, 89 Va. 156, 15 S. E. 386; McKinney's Case, 8 Grat. 589; Shifflet's Case, 14 Grat. 652; Price's Case, 21 Grat. 846.

Presentment need not appear on the record book in extenso. Tiernan's Case, 4 Grat. 545.

Presentments for misdemeanors need not conclude "against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth." Section 106 of the Constitution requiring such conclusion applies only to indictments. Bracy v. Com., 119 Va. 867, 89 S. E. 144.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 1.

Sec. 4866. When information filed; prosecution for felony to be by indictment.—An information may be filed upon a presentment or indictment by a grand jury, or upon a complaint in writing verified by the oath of a competent witness; but no person shall be put upon trial for any felony, unless an indictment shall have first been found by a grand jury in a court of competent jurisdiction. If the accused be in custody, or has been recognized or summoned to answer such presentment, indictment, or information, no other process shall be necessary; but the court may, in its discretion, issue process to compel the appearance of the accused. (Code 1887, § 3990.)

Revisors' Note.—An act was passed in 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 728) authorizing attorneys for the Commonwealth to supply lost, destroyed or stolen indictments. The revisors omitted this act from the Code, and it has therefore been repealed. While they were of opinion that the act might prove of substantial value in some instances, on the whole they did not consider its value great enough to offset its dangers.

Foundation for information—Quashed indictment.—A quashed indictment is insufficient foundation for a rule upon the party to show cause why an information should not be filed against him. Ayres' Case, 6 Grat. 668.

Presentment, though technically defective, is a good foundation for an information. Christian's Case, 7 Grat. 631; also Bishop's Case, 13 Grat. 785.

Under this section an information filed not upon the basis of a presentment, indictment, or complaint in writing, verified by oath of a competent witness, is insufficient. Wilson's Case, 87 Va. 94, 12 S. E. 108; Christian's Case, 7 Grat. 637; Ayres' Case, 6 Grat. 668.

Presentment—Requisites as foundation for information.—A presentment of a grand jury, to be a proper foundation for an information, must contain every matter necessary to render the act imputed to the defendant unlawful, and the supposed offense must be described with at least reasonable certainty. Bishop's Case, 13 Grat. 785.

Digitized by Google

Upon presentment for assault and battery it is not irregular to try the case without filing information. Towles' Case, 5 Leigh 743.

As to amendment of information, see Lodge's Case, 6 Grat. 699; Williamson's Case, 4 Grat. 554.

Lost indictment.—In a prosecution for a felony or misdemeanor, if the indictment is lost at any time before trial, though after arraignment and plea, the party cannot be tried. Bradshaw's Case, 16 Grat. 507, 86 Am. Dec. 722. But see 10 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 418.

A felony cannot be prosecuted by information. Barrett's Case, 9 Leigh 665; Matthews' Case, 18 Grat. 989.

Indorsement by foreman not necessary.—It is not necessary that a bill, in order to be made a good indictment, should have on it an indorsement by the grand jury or foreman that it is a true bill. It is sufficient that the bill was actually found to be a true bill; that such finding was announced in court by clerk on the return, and with the acquiescence of the grand jury. White's Case, 29 Grat. 824, 828; Price's Case, 21 Grat. 846, 855, 862.

And so the indorsement, "A true gun," cannot invalidate indictment. White's Case, 29 Grat. 824.

Generally.—The construction put upon the former statute in Matthews' Case, 18 Grat. 989, is confirmed by the present statute.

Denial of a motion to quash an information on the ground that it was not founded on a complaint in writing sworn to by a competent witness as required by this section, cannot be review. Quillin's Case, 105 Va. 874, 54 S. E. 333.

Sec. 4867. Name of prosecutor to be written on indictment, etc., for misdemeanor; when required to give security for costs.—In a prosecution for a misdemeanor the name of the prosecutor if there be one and the county or corporation of his residence shall be written at the foot of the presentment, indictment or information when it is made, found, or filed, and in case the grand jury that brings in such presentment or indictment or the attorney for the Commonwealth that files such information fail to write the name of a prosecutor at the foot of the presentment, indictment, or information, then the name of a prosecutor may be entered of record as such by the court on the motion of the defendant or the Commonwealth's attorney at any time before the judgment. And for good cause the court may require a prosecutor to give security for the costs, and if he fails to do so dismiss the prosecution at his costs. (Code 1887, § 3991; 1895-6, p. 35.)

Prosecutor in assault and battery competent witness.—A prosecutor, in an information or indictment for assault and battery, who is liable for the costs, is a competent witness for the Commonwealth. Baker's Case, 2 Va. Cas., 353; Gilliam's Case, 4 Leigh 688, Hart's Case, 2 Rob. 822.

What is sufficient evidence of one being prosecutor and liable for costs. Dove's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 29.

After verdict the prosecutor cannot be allowed to show by parol evidence that he was called on by the grand jury, and did not voluntarily give the information. Id.

Statute not penal.—This section is not a penal statute. Therefore, in interpreting the same, there is no reason why we should stick to the letter. Wortham's Case, 5 Rand. 672.

Statute does not apply to one compelled to inform.—A volunteer informer ought to be made prosecutor, and liable for costs in case of failure; but one who is compelled to be an informer cannot be considered a prosecutor. Wortham's Case, 5 Rand. 669.

Digitized by Google

This provision not a sine qua non to indictment.—The provision that the name of the prosecutor shall be written on the foot of the presentment, etc., is directory only, and failure to comply therewith does not vitiate the presentment, etc. Porterfield's Case, 91 Va. 802, 22 S. E. 352. See note to section 4860; Thompson's Case, 88 Va. 45, 49, 13 S. E. 304; also Shelton's Case, 89 Va. 450, 16 S. E. 355; Dever's Case, 10 Leigh 685; Williams' Case, 5 Grat. 702.

If, in the opinion of the court, public justice requires that the prosecution should proceed, it may refuse to dismiss the indictment, though the prosecutor be insolvent and security for costs be not given. Hill's Case, 9 Leigh 601.

Indictment quashed—Costs against prosecutor.—Under Act Feb. 17, 1823 (Sess. Acts 1823, p. 12), it was held that where an indictment is quashed because of incapacity of one of the grand jurors the court should give judgment for the costs against the prosecutor. St. Clair's Case, 1 Grat. 556.

Generally.—See Wortham's Case, 5 Rand. 669.

Under former law requiring the occupation to be stated, held a plea in abatement of an indictment for a misdemeanor, alleging that the prosecutor is not a laborer, but a husbandman, is bad on demurrer. Haught's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 3.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 2.

Sec. 4868. When judgment for costs against him.—If any proceeding for an offense, had or moved at the instance of a prosecutor, be dismissed, or the accused discharged from accusation, the court or justice before whom the proceeding is, may give judgment against the prosecutor in favor of the accused for his costs. (Code 1887, § 3992.)

See notes to section 4867.

Sec. 4869. What sufficient statement in indictment for perjury or subornation of perjury.—In an indictment or accusation for perjury or subornation of perjury, it shall be sufficient to state the substance of the offense charged against the accused, in what court or by whom the oath was administered which is charged to have been falsely taken, and to aver that such court or person had competent authority to administer the same, together with proper averments to falsify the matter wherein the perjury is assigned, without setting forth any part of any record or proceeding at law or equity, or the commission or authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed; but nothing herein shall be construed to allow, without the consent of the accused, a part only of any record, proceeding, or writing to be given in evidence on the trial of such indictment or accusation. A distinct allegation, averment, or statement in any part of the indictment that the defendant did corruptly swear falsely, or did, on the occasion mentioned in the indictment, commit wilful perjury, shall be a sufficient allegation of the falsity of the oath alleged to have been taken. (Code 1887, § 3993.)

Revisors' Notes.—The last sentence is new, and the object of it is to meet the objection to the indictment sustained in Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272. While not intending in any way to criticise the holding in that case, it would seem that the former law was defective in not providing for the contingency which there arose. The defendant had a fair and impartial trial, but because the charge of the falsity of the oath was contained in the concluding part of the indictment instead of in the charging part, the court felt compelled to give him a new trial.

The common law indictment for perjury is no longer necessary. Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 831, 24 S. E. 272, changing rule in Lodge's Case, 2 Grat. 580.

It is not now necessary to set forth the facts to show the jurisdiction of the court over the case. Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 832, 24 S. E. 272, overruling Pickering's Case, 8 Grat. 628, 56 Am. Dec. 158. But the day in which the perjury was committed must be truly laid. Rhodes' Case, 78 Va. 692, 696.

Indictment held bad in Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 835, 24 S. E. 272; Thomas' Case, 2 Rob. 795; Roach's Case, 1 Grat. 561. See revisors' note above. See, also, sections 4493, 4494 and notes thereto; also note to Boyle's Case, 14 Grat. 674, 676, Va. Rep. Anno.; Id., 50th head, p. 665 (bottom paging).

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 4.

Sec. 4870. In prosecution for embezzlement any number of offenses may be charged if committed within six months; what description of money sufficient in prosecution for embezzlement: what for larceny.—In a prosecution against a person accused of embezzling or fraudulently converting to his own use bullion, money, bank notes, or other security for money it shall be lawful in the same indictment or accusation to charge and thereon to proceed against the accused for any number of distinct acts of such embezzlements or fraudulent conversions which may have been committed by him within six months from the first to the last of the acts charged in the indictment; and it shall be sufficient to allege the embezzlement or fraudulent conversion to be of money without specifying any particular money, gold, silver, note, or security, and such allegation, so far as it regards the description of the property, shall be sustained if the accused be proved to have embezzled any bullion, money, bank note, or other security for money although the particular species be not proved.

And in a prosecution for the larceny of United States currency or for obtaining United States currency by a false pretense or token, or for receiving United States currency knowing the same to have been stolen, it shall be sufficient if the accused be proved guilty of the larceny of national bank notes or United States treasury notes, certificates for either gold or silver coin, fractional coin, currency, or any other form of money issued by the United States government, or of obtaining the same by false pretense or token, or of receiving the same knowing it to have been stolen although the particular species be not proved. (Code 1887, § 3994; 1897-8, p. 638.)

In Leftwich's Case, 20 Grat. 716, it was held that an indictment charging the obtaining of "United States currency" was bad, since that was a general term, and not a sufficient description. In consequence of this decision this section was enacted (February 28, 1874); and afterwards it was held that the words "national currency of the United States" were equivalent to the phrase in the statute. Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 965.

The indictment is for the stealing of six dollars of "U. S. treasury notes." The certificate of the facts was that A. was holding "some money," etc. The facts certified do not sustain the verdict. Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555. See, also, Fay's Case, 28 Grat. 912, 921, where the indictment charged larceny of notes of United States currency amounting to $208, while the evidence showed that prisoner received $50 in cash and "promises to pay," the balance in monthly instalments, and the verdict against the prisoner was reversed.

The charge of larceny of three notes of United States currency, of the value of twenty dollars, is the equivalent of the charge of larceny of three notes, one for ten dollars, and two for five dollars each. Holly's Case, 113 Va. 769, 75 S. E. 88.

In indictment for larceny of money, it is sufficient to describe it as United States currency. Holly's Case, 113 Va. 769, 75 S. E. 88.

Sec. 4871. In prosecution for forgery, unnecessary to set forth copy of forged instrument.—In a prosecution for forging or altering any instrument or other thing, or attempting to employ as true any forged instrument or other thing, or for any of the offenses mentioned in chapter one hundred and eighty, it shall not be necessary to set forth any copy or fac simile of such instrument or other thing; but it shall be sufficient to describe the same in such manner as would sustain an indictment for stealing such instrument or other thing, supposing it to be the subject of larceny. (Code 1887, § 3995.)

It is sufficient to charge that the defendant forged a public record, describing it so plainly as to identify the record charged to have been forged. It is not incumbent upon the Commonwealth to state all the facts necessary to show that the document alleged to be a public record was in point of fact such a record. Coleman's Case, 25 Grat. 865, 878, 23 Am. Rep. 711.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 6.

Sec. 4872. In prosecution for offense relating to property, what proof of ownership sufficient.—In a prosecution for an offense committed upon, relating to, or affecting real estate, or for stealing, embezzling, destroying, injuring, or fraudulently receiving or concealing any personal estate, it shall be sufficient to prove that, when the offense was committed, the actual or constructive possession, or a general or special property, in the whole or any part of such estate, was in the person or community alleged in the indictment or other accusation to be the owner thereof. (Code 1887, § 3996.)

There must be satisfactory proof that the property stolen was the property of the person stated in the indictment. Jones' Case, 17 Grat. 563; Prather's Case, 85 Va. 127, 7 S. E. 178. See, also, note on "Larceny," Johnson's Case, 24 Grat. 555, Va. Rep. Anno., and note to Boyle's Case, 14 Grat. 674, Va. Rep. Anno.

In an indictment for larceny the name of the owner must be stated; and if it appears that the person so stated was a married woman at the time of the larceny, it was [formerly] error, and the prisoner must be acquitted. Hughes' Case, 17 Grat. 565, 94 Am. Dec. 498.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 7.

Sec. 4873. Where intent an ingredient of offense, what allegation thereof sufficient.—Where an intent to injure, defraud, or cheat is required to constitute an offense, it shall be sufficient, in an indictment or accusation therefor, to allege generally an intent to injure, defraud, or cheat, without naming the person intended to be injured, defrauded, or cheated; and it shall be sufficient, and not be deemed a variance, if there appear to be an intent to injure, defraud, or cheat the United States, or any State, or any county, corporation, officer, or person. (Code 1887, § 3997.)

This section applies to an indictment for an attempt to poison. The word "injure" is more apposite to the offense of poisoning or attempting to poison than to forgery, cheating, and the like offenses. Davis' Case, 99 Va. 838, 38 S. E. 191.

On an indictment for attempt to poison a person who is named "and other persons," the wife of the prisoner may be called to testify against him that the attempt was directed against her also, as she may be one of the persons not necessary to be named under this section. Davis' Case, 99 Va. 838, 38 S. E. 191.

A charge that a forgery of bank notes was committed with intent to injure "citizens of the Commonwealth to the jurors unknown," without setting out the intent to injure a person or body politic by name, is good after verdict. Ervin's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 337.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 8.

Sec. 4784. Unnecessary allegations may be omitted.—All allegations, unnecessary to be proved, may be omitted in any indictment or other accusation. (Code 1887, § 3998.)

This section should be numbered 4874, not 4784.

Under this section it is not only unnecessary to prove the length and depth of the wound as alleged in the indictment, but even that it was in the same part of the body in which it is alleged to have been. Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708, 715.

Cited but not construed in Tisdale's Case, 114 Va. 866, 77 S. E. 482.

See notes to section 4875; also Sledd's Case, 19 Grat. 819.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 9.

Sec. 4875. What defects in indictments not to vitiate them.—No indictment or other accusation shall be quashed or deemed invalid for omitting to set forth that it is upon the oaths of the jurors, or upon their oaths and affirmation; or for the insertion of the words "upon their oath," instead of "upon their oaths"; or for not in terms alleging that the offense was committed "within the jurisdiction of the court," when the averments show that the case is one of which the court has jurisdiction; or for the omission or misstatement of the title, occupation, estate, or degree of the accused, or of the name or place of his residence; or for omitting the words "with force and arms," or the statement of any particular kind of force and arms; or for omitting to state, or stating imperfectly, the time at which the offense was committed, when time is not the essence of the offense; or for failing to allege the kind or value of an instrument which caused death, or to allege that it was of no value; or for omitting to charge the offense to be "against the form of the statute or statutes;" or for the omission or insertion of any other words of mere form or surplusage. Nor shall it be abated for any misnomer of the accused; but the court may, in case of a misnomer appearing before or in the course of a trial, forthwith cause the indictment or accusation to be amended according to the fact. (Code 1887, § 3999.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "kind or," found in line fourteen of the text, are new. In Jones v. Com., 86 Va. 950, 12 S. E. 950 (murder), it was held that the kind of instrument must be stated. In Jackson v. Com., 96 Va. 107, 30 S. E. 452 (malicious wounding), it was said that it need not be stated. Johnson v. Com., 111 Va. 877, 69 S. E. 1104 (murder) seems to concede that the kind of instrument should be stated. Seeing no special reason for stating the kind of instrument, the revisors' made the change above in order to make it clear that the kind of instrument need not be stated.

Effect of section.—These provisions of the Code dispense with the necessity of formal allegations in an indictment, and declare that no indictment or other accusation shall be quashed or deemed invalid for any of certain enumerated cases. So far as these provisions extend, they cure the indictment against objection, however raised, and they seem to extend to most, if not all defects of form. Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708, 711.

Jurisdiction.—It is not sufficient to aver that the offense was committed "within the jurisdiction of the court," which is a conclusion of law, but the indictment should state the fact which gives the court jurisdiction, e. g., that the offense charged was committed in the city of Roanoke. Early's Case, 93 Va. 767, 24 S. E. 936. It is necessary to aver and prove the place where the offense is alleged to have been committed. Id.; Anderson's Case, 100 Va. 860, 42 S. E. 865; Fitch's Case, 92 Va. 824, 24 S. E. 272.

In an indictment for malicious assault, it is not necessary that the indictment should charge the particular locality in a county or city, but it is always sufficient if charged to have been committed within such county or corporation. Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat. 807, 810, 36 Am. Rep. 795; Richard's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 1, 3; Taylor's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 94.

If the county is not alleged with sufficient certainty, it is error for which judgment will be reversed. Bell's Case, 8 Grat. 600.

Though the name of the county be left blank in the margin of an indictment for misdemeanor, it is enough if the county be stated in the body of the indictment. Tefft's Case, 8 Leigh 721.

"Within the jurisdiction of the court."—In this part of the section the language of Act 1847-48 is varied to embrace cases which may be prosecuted out of the county or corporation in which the offense was committed; as, for example, where residents of Virginia fight a duel out of the state. Rep. Rev. 1849, p. 1013, note.

Indictment quashed for uncertainty of place, Bell's Case, 8 Grat. 600.

Mode of stating time.—No mode of stating the time of an offense in an indictment or presentment can vitiate it. Sledd's Case, 19 Grat. 813; Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708. Expression of date in figures is good. Lazier's Case, Id.; Cady's Case, 10 Grat. 779. As a general rule, time of commission of offense, as laid in indictment, is not material. Rhodes' Case, 78 Va. 692.

Time of the essence.—Where an act done between two dates is by law not a felony, while if done before the first or after the second it is a felony, time is of the essence of the offense, and must be stated in the indictment. Cool's Case, 94 Va. 799, 26 S. E. 411.

Time not of the essence—Selling liquor.—An indictment for selling intoxicating liquors without license need not state the exact time of the sale, as time is not of the essence. Arrington's Case, 87 Va. 96, 12 S. E. 224, 10 L. R. A. 242; Savage's Case, 84 Va. 584, 5 S. E. 563.

For the old requirement, "contra forman statuti, see Chiles' Case, 2 Va. Cas. 260.

Surplusage.—If the statement in the commencement of the indictment of the name of the court and the term at which the indictment was found is not surplusage, it is useless. Bell's Case, 8 Grat. 600.

The only proper indorsement on an indictment is "a true bill" or "not a true bill," with the name of the foreman; and anything more is not a part of the finding of the grand jury, but mere surplusage. Such additions, therefore, will not vitiate the indictment, even though incorrect or inconsistent with the indictment. Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 724.

An indictment for keeping an ordinary without license, if good in other respects, is not vitiated by the addition that the defendant continued to keep the ordinary from the day stated to another subsequent day. The continuando is mere surplusage. Burner's Case, 13 Grat. 778.

An indictment charging that the defendant, on a day and time specified, kept an ordinary without obtaining a license to do so, is sufficient without setting out the facts of his furnishing for compensation lodging, etc. Burner's Case, 13 Grat. 778.

The record of the finding of the grand jury, saying, "In commission of rape," which was on the indictment, is mere surplusage. Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 724.

In an indictment containing three counts, if the conclusion of the count charging the defendants as guilty of murder is not correct, it is not essential to the indictment, and may be struck out as surplusage. Hawley's Case, 75 Va. 847.

Conclusions of law, summing up the offense unnecessarily, may be regarded as surplusage, and as such disregarded. Hawley's Case, 75 Va. 850.

An indictment for murder, which describes the wound in one place as above the nipple of the left breast, and subsequently as below the nipple of the left breast, is not void for repugnancy and inconsistency, as the latter recitation is surplusage. Robertson's Case, 20 S. E. 362, 1 Va. Dec. 851.

An indictment for murder charges the wound to have been inflicted on the 9th of December, of which wound the person wounded died on the said 14th day of December. The word "said" is surplusage, and its insertion not a fatal defect. Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708.

Misnomer—Amendment.—The court may, in the absence of defendant, who failed to appear, though duly summoned, amend the indictment against S. C., and make it read "S. S., alias S. C." Shiflett's Case, 90 Va. 386, 18 S. E. 838.

Misnomer cured. Adkinson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 513.

Inserting wrong name not misnomer.—By mistake a wrong name is inserted in an indictment for misdemeanor, though the record of the court and indorsement on the indictment shows the correct name. The indictment cannot be amended by striking out the wrong name and inserting the name of the person intended. Buzzard's Case, 5 Grat. 694. For present law on subject of amendments, see three following sections.

Amendment generally.—Except for misnomer this section does not authorize the amendment of an indictment. Hatcher & Shaw v. Com., 106 Va. 827, 55 S. E. 678. But see three following sections.

Statutory offense.—If an indictment for a statutory offense, by following the language of the statute, charges expressly, or by necessary implication, every fact necessary to constitute the offense, it is sufficient. Helfrick's Case, 29 Grat. 844. See especially Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 974. See, also, Duff's Case, 92 Va. 770, 23 S. E. 643; Boyd's Case, 77 Va. 52.

An indictment upon a statute should state all the circumstances which constitute the definition of the offense in the act, so as to bring the accused precisely within it. Rose's Case, 116 Va. 1023, 82 S. E. 699; Wiseman's Case, 117 Va. 906, 83 S. E. 1052.

When the facts stated may all be true, and the accused still not be guilty of the offense intended to be charged against him, he cannot be convicted. Rose's Case, 116 Va. 1023, 82 S. E. 699.

Felonies—Necessary averment—"Feloniously."—All the offenses for which the penalty is confinement in the penitentiary are felonies, and the indictment for such an offense must describe it as having been done "feloniously." Randall's Case, 24 Grat. 644; Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122; Trimble's Case, Id. 143; Taylor's Case, 20 Grat. 825; Thompson's Case, Id. 724, 729; Early's Case, 86 Va. 924, 11 S. E. 795; Peas' Case, 2 Grat. 636. For reason, see Peas' Case, supra.

Conclusion of indictment.—The indictment must conclude "against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth," and the same rule is applicable to each count thereof. Brown's Case, 86 Va. 466, 10 S. E. 745; Early's Case, 86 Va. 921, 11 S. E. 795; Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 724; Carney's Case, 4 Grat. 546. But this rule has no application to presentments for misdemeanors. Bracy v. Com., 119 Va. 867, 89 S. E. 144.

Mala grammatica non vitiat.—Bad punctuation does not vitiate an indictment. Webster's Case, 80 Va. 598.

Description of notes insufficient.—An indictment charging prisoner with stealing certain papers of the value of $110, not otherwise describing the papers charged to have been stolen, is fatally defective. Robinson's Case, 32 Grat. 866.

How to take advantage of defective form of pleading.—In criminal cases, defects of form in pleading may be taken advantage of by general demurrer (Jackson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 501); or by special demurrer (Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708). See section 6115.

Provisos of statute.—In an indictment it is not necessary to allege that the defendant is not within the benefit of the provisos of the statute, though the purview should expressly notice them. Hill's Case, 5 Grat. 682; Hendricks' Case, 75 Va. 943.

Ownership of house burned.—Indictment for the burning of a certain storehouse, not adjoining or occupied with the dwelling house of one S., sufficiently describes the storehouse as the property of S. Butler's Case, 81 Va. 159; Speers' Case, 17 Grat. 570.

The joinder of two or more offenses in one count is not permitted. Sprouse's Case, 81 Va. 374.

When superior court will quash indictment.—In general, it rests in the sound discretion of the court whether it will quash an indictment. Nevertheless, if the fact for which the defendant has been examined by the examining court cannot be ascertained by the record of that court, but can only be ascertained by testimony dehors, it is the duty of the superior court to quash indictment. McCaul's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 271.

In felonies the court will, on motion of prisoner, quash the indictment only where the court has no jurisdiction, where no indictable offense is charged, or where there is some other substantial and material defect. In other cases he will be left to his demurrer, motion in arrest of judgment, or writ of error. Bell's Case, 8 Grat. 600.

Attempt to commit offense—General terms not sufficient.—An indictment for an attempt to commit offense ought to allege some act done by the defendant of such a nature as to constitute an attempt to commit the offense mentioned in the indictment. Clark's Case, 6 Grat. 675. If no criminal offense is charged, the court may, on motion of defendant, quash the indictment. Huff's Case, 14 Grat. 648.

If one count in an indictment be good, there is no error in overruling motion to quash. Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627; Huffman's Case, 6 Rand. 685 (2d Ed. 769); Vance's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 162.

Generally.—Cited but not construed, Johnson's Case, 111 Va. 877, 69 S. E. 1104; Tisdale's Case, 114 Va. 866, 77 S. E. 482; Shiflett's Case, (No. 1), 114 Va. 876, 77 S. E. 606.

Sec. 4876. Amendment of indictments for misdemeanors.—An amendment of any defect in an indictment or presentment for a misdemeanor that does not change the nature of the offense charged, may be made by the court before which the trial is had, at any time before judgment is entered; but if such amendment operates as a surprise to the defendant, he shall be entitled, upon request, to a continuance of the case. (Code 1887, § 4011.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is new, in consequence of which section 4011 of the Code of 1887 has been omitted. That section was as follows: "No exception shall be allowed for any defect or want of form in any presentment, indictment, or information mentioned in either of the two preceding sections, [sections 4009 and 4010 of the Code of 1887], but the court shall give judgment thereon, according to the very right of the case."

Sec. 4877. Amendment of indictments for treason or felony before the defendant pleads.—At any time before the defendant pleads, a defective indictment for treason or felony may be amended by the court before which the trial is had that does not change the character of the offense charged. After such amendment has been made, the defendant shall be arraigned on the indictment as amended, and the trial shall proceed as if no amendment had been made; but if such amendment operates as a surprise to the defendant, he shall be entitled, upon request, to a continuance of the case.

Revisors' Note.—It has been the policy of the State to have criminal cases as well as civil cases tried on their merits, and as far as possible to ignore mere formal defects. This is well illustrated by the powers given the court on appeals in misdemeanor cases under section 4089. The revisors have adopted the same policy with reference to all crimes so far as objections apply only to technical difficulties. It is desirable, indeed it is essential, that one accused of crime shall have a fair trial on the facts and merits of his case, but he has no right to insist upon mere technical objections. The revisors were of opinion that all charges of felony should be preferred by a grand jury, and while the court should not be given the power to prefer a charge, yet when the charge has been preferred by the grand jury, they could see no reason why the court might not make such changes in the way of amendments which do not change the nature of the offense charged. There is no constitutional requirement that prosecutions for felonies shall be by indictment. The changes allowed by the section do not go to the extent of allowing the court to prefer an entirely new and different charge, but they do allow the court to make such changes as may be deemed technical, and other changes arising out of variance between the allegations and the proof, or which would result in mere delay without substantial benefit to the accused. If the amendment or alteration does not change the nature of the offense charged, there would appear to be no good reason why it may not be made. This section is taken in part from section 58 of the Criminal Code of South Carolina. Every substantial right of the accused, so far as could be anticipated, has been preserved.

Sec. 4878. Amendment of indictments for treason or felony, after the defendant pleads, for defects of form, or for variance.—If there be any defect in form in any indictment for treason or felony, it shall be competent for the court in which the case is pending for trial, after the defendant pleads, to amend the said indictment, provided such amendment does not change the nature of the offense charged; and if, on the trial of any case, there shall appear to be any variance between the allegations of the indictment and the evidence offered in proof thereof, it shall be competent for the court before which the trial is had to amend the said indictment, according to the proof, provided such amendment does not change the nature of the offense charged; and after such amendment the indictment as amended shall be read to the accused, and he shall be allowed to plead anew, if he so desires, and the trial shall proceed in all respects, and with the same consequences, as if no variance had occurred, unless such amendment shall operate as a surprise to the defendant, in which case the defendant shall be entitled, upon request, to a continuance of the cause.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new. See revisors' note to preceding section.

Sec. 4879. When judgment not to be arrested or reversed.—Judgment in any criminal case shall not be arrested or reversed upon any exception or objection, made after a verdict, to the indictment or other accusation, unless it be so defective as to be in violation of the Constitution. (Code 1887, § 4000.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision it read as follows: "Judgment in any criminal case, after a verdict, shall not be arrested or reversed upon any exception to the indictment or other accusation, if the offense be charged therein with sufficient certainty for judgment to be given thereon, according to the very right of the case." The new language is intended to be broader than the old, preserving, however, as it must, constitutional rights.

Statute of criminal jeofails—Interpretation.—For the strictness required in indictments before the statute, the defects which it cures, and the interpretation thereof, see Peas' Case, 2 Grat. 637-641.

Object of statute.—It was not intended to produce carelessness or laxity of pleading, but merely to cure those defects which the overnicety of courts had introduced into the common law, and which did not put the rights of the Commonwealth or accused in jeopardy. Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 126; Old's Case, 18 Grat. 930; Ervin's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 337.

Errors not cured by the statute.—Omission to state owner of property alleged to have been stolen or that it belonged to a person unknown. Barker's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 122. Omission, in charging misbehavior and corruption against the justices of the county court, to state the scienter that they knew what they did was wrong. Jacobs' Case, 2 Leigh 709. Omitting, in an indictment for rescuing property from sheriff's bailee, to state that the defendant knew that he was such bailee. Israel's Case, 4 Leigh 675. Failure of indictment or any count thereof to conclude, "Against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth." Early's Case, 86 Va. 921, 11 S. E. 795; Thompson's Case, 20 Grat. 724; Carney's Case, 4 Grat. 546.

Where no offense is charged in an indictment the appellate court cannot look to the evidence to see whether the offense intended to be charged has been proved, but must render judgment in favor of the accused. Rose's Case, 116 Va. 1023, 82 S. E. 699.

Where no offense is charged the appellate court will reverse the judgment against the accused, though no motion in arrest of judgment was made in the trial court. Rose's Case, 116 Va. 1023, 82 S. E. 699.

Errors cured by the statute.—Reference made in the indictment to notes said to be forged, and appending the same thereto, instead of setting out the tenor of said notes in the body of the indictment. Ervin's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 340. For various defects in an indictment for forgery of bank notes cured by statute, see Ervin's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 340. Except some technical words, as "feloniously," the words of the statute may be substituted by synonymous terms; e. g., "voluntarily" by "willfully." Trimble's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 143. Dull's Case, 25 Grat. 965.

For essentials of an indictment under statute, see Dull's Case, 25 Grat 967; Howel's Case, 5 Grat. 664; Hampton's Case, 3 Grat. 590; Cousins' Case, 19 Grat. 807; Boyd's Case, 77 Va. 54; Duff's Case, 92 Va. 770, 23 S. E. 643.

Indictment charging no offense.—When in the indictment or presentment no offense is charged at all, much less charged with sufficient certainty for judgment to be given thereon, according to the very right of the case, the appellate court will not look to the evidence to see whether the offense has been proved, but must render judgment in favor of the accused. Old's Case, 18 Grat. 931. See, also, Boyd's Case, 77 Va. 54.

Sec. 4880. Accused discharged from imprisonment, if not indicted in time.—A person in jail on a criminal charge shall be discharged from imprisonment, if a presentment, indictment, or information be not found or filed against him before the end of the second term of the court at which he is held to answer, unless it appear to the court that material witnesses for the Commonwealth have been enticed or kept away, or are prevented from attendance by sickness or inevitable accident, and except, also, in the case provided in section forty-nine hundred and nine; and in those cases where such criminal charge is one of felony, the second term of the court shall be construed to mean the second term thereof at which a grand jury was impaneled; but in all other cases of a criminal charge, it shall have no such restricted meaning. A discharge under the provisions of this section, shall not, however, prevent a re-incarceration after a presentment or indictment has been found. (Code 1887, § 4001.)

Digitized by Google

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new. The object of the statute was merely to prevent keeping a person in jail without preferring a charge against him, but some doubt was expressed, under the section as it stood before the revision, as to whether he could be re-incarcerated after the charge had been preferred. This doubt is put at rest by this addition.

"Term" means actual session.—The word "term" ought to be construed to mean, not the stated time when the court should be held, but the actual session of the court. Santee's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 363; Cawood's Case, Id. 546; Brown v. Hume. 16 Grat. 463; Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 679; Lovett's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 74.

Prisoner sent on during term—What term is excluded.—When during a term of the court accused is sent on for indictment, that term is not considered one of the two terms at which he must be indicted. Glover's Case, 86 Va. 382, 10 S. E. 420, overruling Hall's Case, 78 Va. 678. See, also, Bell's Case, 8 Grat. 600; Jones' Case, 19 Grat. 478, in accord with Glover's Case.

Interpretation of statute.—The statute should be construed distributively—reddendo singula singulis. "Presentment" and "information" refer to misdemeanors only, while "indictment" refers to felonies also. Jones' Case, 19 Grat. 482.

If the offense be a felony, it is necessary, therefore, that an indictment (not information) be found against the prisoner "before the end of the second term of the court in which he is held to answer," etc. Jones' Case, 19 Grat. 482.

First indictment in time—Trial on later indictment.—Under this section it suffices that any indictment be found against the accused before the end of the second term at which he is held to answer, though he be actually tried upon an indictment found after that time. Waller's Case, 84 Va. 492, 5 S. E. 364; Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 661.

A case in which the prisoner was indicted in the county court, elected to be tried in the circuit court, which dismissed the case for want of jurisdiction; prisoner at next term of county court was indicted for same offense; and it was held he was not entitled to be discharged under this statute. Dulin's Case, 91 Va. 718, 20 S. E. 821.

Enumeration of exceptions not exclusive.—The exceptions or excuses for failure to try the prisoner, enumerated in the statute, are not intended to exclude others of a similar nature or in pari ratione. Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 662.

Generally.—Cited, but not construed, Forbes' Case, 90 Va. 551, 19 S. E. 164; Hall's Case, 78 Va. 678. See section 4926 and notes.

Sec. 4881. What process to be awarded against accused on indictment, etc.—When an indictment or presentment is found or made, or information filed, the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall award process against the accused to answer the same, if he be not in custody. Such process, if the prosecution be for a felony, shall be a capias; if it be for a misdemeanor, for which corporal punishment may be inflicted, it may be a capias or summons, in the discretion of the court or judge; in all other cases, it shall be, in the first instance, a summons, but if a summons be returned executed and the defendant do not appear, or be returned not found. the court or judge may award a capias. (Code 1887, § 4003.)

Statute a remedial one.—This statute is a remedial one, and governs the procedure in crimes committed before the passage, but tried afterwards, as by its passage no existing right was taken away or impaired, and no additional burden placed upon the prisoner. Jones' Case, 86

Va. 661, 10 S. E. 1005. See, also, Wilson's Case, 86 Va. 666, 10 S. E. 1007.

No preliminary examination before justice of the peace required.—There was at one time some confusion as to the necessity of sending one under indictment for a felony before a justice of the peace for a preliminary examination. Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 733, 764; Jackson's Case, 23 Grat. 919; Shelly's Case, 19 Grat. 653; Wright's Case, Id. 626; Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 950; Butler's Case, 81 Va. 161; Jones' Case, 86 Va. 662, 10 S. E. 1005. By Acts 1885-6 the law required that the prisoner should be sent before the justice of the peace to be examined; but in the present statute that requirement is omitted, and, therefore, since May 1, 1888, the accused need not have such preliminary examination. Jones' Case, 86 Va. 661, 665, 10 S. E. 1005.

How infant appears.—Upon a presentment against an infant for a misdemeanor, the infant has a right to appear and defend himself in person or by attorney, and it is error to assign him a guardian, and to try the case on a plea pleaded for him by a guardian. Word's Case, 3 Leigh 743.

Generally.—See Towles' Case, 5 Leigh 743; McClenegan's Case, 3 Hen. & M. 575, 1 Va. Cas. 155; Goode's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 200.

If accused be in custody already when indictment is found, a formal warrant of arrest is unnecessary. Waller & Boggs' Case, 84 Va. 492, 494, 5 S. E. 364.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 14.

Sec. 4882. How awarded, directed, returnable, and executed.—Section six thousand and fifty-five shall apply to process in criminal, as well as in civil cases; and the court may, in the same case against the same person, award at the same time, or different times, several writs of summons or capias directed to officers of different counties or corporations. An officer having a capias under which the accused is let to bail, shall give a certificate of the fact, which shall protect him against any other capias which may have been issued for the same offense. A summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the party in person, and the clerk issuing such summons shall deliver or transmit therewith as many copies thereof as there are persons named therein, on whom it is to be served. (Code 1887, § 4004.)

Sec. 4883. Capias to hear judgment for a misdemeanor unnecessary; judgment may be entered in absence of accused, and order made for his arrest; powers, duties, etc., of officer under such order.—No capias to hear judgment shall be necessary in any prosecution for a misdemeanor, but the court may proceed to judgment in the absence of the accused; and, if such judgment requires confinement in jail, the court may make such order as may be necessary for the arrest of the person against whom such judgment is, and for the execution thereof. The proceedings upon such order shall conform, as nearly as may be, to those upon a capias to hear judgment, and all officers charged with its execution shall have the same powers, be charged with the same duties, and be subject to the same responsibilities, as provided by law in case of a capias to hear judgment. (Code 1887, § 4076.)

This statute displaces the rule of the common law that judgment for corporal punishment can be pronounced against a man only when he is personally present. Shiflett's Case, 90 Va. 388, 18 S. E. 838. See, also, Price's Case, 33 Grat. 819, 36 Am. Rep. 797.

Sec. 4884. Clerks to mail process to officers in other counties, etc.—The clerk of every court shall forward, by mail, all process issued for the Commonwealth, directed to the officer of any county or corporation other than his own, and pay the postage thereon, which, on being duly certified by the court, shall be paid out of the treasury. (Code 1887, § 4005.)

Sec. 4885. Where process of arrest issued during term may be executed.—When process of arrest in a criminal prosecution is issued from a court during its session, either against a party accused or a witness, the officer to whom it is directed or delivered may execute it in any part of the State. (Code 1887, § 4006.)

Sec. 4886. To whom person arrested may be delivered.—An officer who, under a capias from a court, arrests a person accused of an offense not bailable, or for which bail is not given, shall deliver the accused to such court, if sitting, or to the jailor thereof, who shall receive and imprison him. (Code 1887, § 4007.)

Sec. 4887. Person arrested to answer indictment, etc., or to hear judgment on, etc., for misdemeanor, or on attachment, may be bailed by officer; in what sum; recognizance to be returned to court; penalty for failure, or for insufficient bail.—A person arrested on a capias, to answer, or hear judgment on, a presentment, indictment, or information for a misdemeanor (other than such as is mentioned in section forty-six hundred and seventy-six), or on an attachment (other than an attachment to compel the performance of a judgment, or of an order or decree in a civil case), may be admitted to bail by the officer who arrests him, the said officer taking a recognizance in such sum, not being less than two hundred dollars, unless by general or special order of the court a less sum be authorized, as he, regarding the case and estate of the accused, may deem sufficient to secure his appearance, before the court from which the process issued, at the time required thereby. The officer shall return the recognizance to said court on or before the return day of such process. If without sufficient cause he fail to make such return, he shall forfeit twenty dollars; and if he take insufficient bail, he shall be fined at the discretion of a jury. (Code 1887, § 4008.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "in a civil case," found in line six of the text, are used in lieu of "in chancery." In the last sentence, the words "without sufficient cause," are new. The forfeiture should not take place if the failure to make the return was for sufficient cause, and many sufficient causes may be conceivable.

Sec. 4888. When information need not be filed, but a summons issued; when and how judgment given.—No information need be filed on a presentment of an offense for which there is no punishment but a fine or forfeiture, limited to an amount not exceeding twenty dollars; but a summons to answer such presentment may be issued against the accused; and if it be served ten days before the return day thereof, and he do not appear, judgment may be rendered against him for the penalty. If he appear, the court may, unless he demand a jury, hear and determine the matter, and give judgment thereon. (Code 1887, § 4009.)

See Webb's Case, 2 Leigh 721.

Sec. 4889. Process on indictment or presentment for misdemeanor.—On any indictment or presentment for a misdemeanor, process shall be issued immediately. If the accused appear and plead to the charge, the trial shall proceed without delay, unless good cause for continuance be shown. If, being summoned, he fail to appear and plead, and the indictment or presentment be founded on any provision of chapter one hundred and eighty-five, or on a violation of any provision of the laws relating to the public revenue, the court may render judgment in the same manner as if he had confessed the charge in court; and if the offense be punishable by a fine not fixed by law, a jury shall be impaneled to assess the same. But on indictment or presentment for any other misdemeanor, after the summons has been executed ten days, the court may either award a capias or proceed to trial, in the same manner as if the accused had appeared and pleaded not guilty. (Code 1887, §§ 4010, 4012.)

Revisors' Note.—Section 4010 of the Code of 1887 provided that "On any indictment or presentment (NOT EMBRACED IN THE PRECEDING SECTION) FOUNDED ON ANY PROVISION OF CHAPTER ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-SEVEN OR ON A VIOLATION OF ANY PROVISION OF THE LAWS RELATING TO THE PUBLIC REVENUE, process shall be issued immediately." The capitalized words have been omitted in this connection, and process is to be issued immediately on any indictment or presentment for a misdemeanor. Many persons indicted for misdemeanors escape where process is made returnable to the next term. Especially is this true in border counties, where the person indicted can easily flee into another Commonwealth. Provision is made for a continuance if good cause be shown. If the indictment or presentment be founded on any part of chapter 185 (chapter 187 of the former Code), or on a violation of the revenue laws, the revised section prescribes the procedure which conforms to the former law.

Upon indictment for carrying on a lottery business, accused "appears and pleads to the charge," and moves for a continuance. Held not error to deny the motion. Lawrence's Case, 86 Va. 573, 10 S. E. 840.

Prisoners under indictment under section 4576 for a disturbance of religious worship may be tried in their absence. Shiflett's Case, 90 Va. 386, 18 S. E. 838.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 20, 22.

Sec. 4890. What not to work discontinuance.—There shall be no discontinuance of any criminal prosecution by reason of the failure of the court to award process, or to enter a continuance on the record. (Code 1887, § 4013.)

A case stands continued without order, and failure to enter order of continuance works no discontinuance. Harrison's Case, 81 Va. 491; Sand's Case, 20 Grat. 800; Cleek's Case, 21 Grat. 781; Hill's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 61; Varner's Case, Id. 62; Gourd's Case, Id. 470.

In continuing a case it is no error to pass over a term. Bolanz's Case, 24 Grat. 31; Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 800.

The omission to file an information at the same term of the court at which the rule is made absolute, and leave given to file it, is no discontinuance of the prosecution. Varner's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 62.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 158, section 23.

Sec. 4891. Outlawry abolished.—No proceeding of outlawry shall hereafter be instituted or prosecuted. (Code 1887, § 4014.)

Hale's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 241; Hagerman's Case, Id. 244.

Sec. 4892. How summons against a corporation to answer indictment, etc., is served; proceedings, if it fail to appear and plead; how expense of publication is certified, paid, and taxed in costs.—A summons against a corporation to answer an indictment, presentment, or information may be served as provided in sections six thousand and sixty-three and six thousand and sixty-four; and if the defendant after being so served, fail to appear, the court may proceed to trial and judgment, without further process, as if the defendant had appeared and pleaded not guilty. And where, in any such case, publication of a copy of the process is required according to the said sections, the expense of such publication may be certified by the court to the Auditor of Public Accounts, and shall be paid out of the treasury of the Commonwealth; but the same shall be taxed with other costs, and collected from the defendant, if judgment be for the Commonwealth, and be paid into the treasury by the officer collecting the same. (Code 1887, § 4015.)

Sec. 4893. Criminal offenses committed in counties and in cities not having corporation courts to be tried in circuit courts; when and by whom venire facias issued in case of felony.—The circuit courts, except where otherwise provided, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction for the trial of all presentments, indictments, and informations for offenses committed within the counties, and within the cities which may not have corporation courts, of their respective circuits, and also of all presentments, indictments, and informations pending in the county court on the first day of February, nineteen hundred and four.

The clerk of the court in which the trial of a case of felony is to be had shall, as soon as may be, issue a writ of venire facias, directed to the officer of the said court, requiring him to summon jurors for such trial from a list to be furnished him as provided in section forty-eight hundred and ninety-five. When an indictment is found against a person for felony, the accused, if in custody, or if he appear according to his recognizance, shall, unless good cause be shown for a continuance, be arraigned and tried at the same term. (Code 1887, § 4016; 1893-4, p. 270; 1902-3-4, p. 881; 1904, p. 15.)

Object of the statute.—The provision of this section that "the accused shall, unless good cause be shown for a continuance, be arraigned and tried at the same term," was enacted to procure the accused the speedy trial guaranteed by the Constitution. Article 1, section 8, Const. 1902; Benton's Case, 90 Va. 331, 18 S. E. 282; Hall's Case, 89 Va. 171, 15 S. E. 517.

Good cause for continuance—Prejudice not.—Prisoner may move for continuance before arraignment; but affidavits of prevalence of bitter and general prejudice against him do not of themselves constitute good grounds for continuance. Joyce's Case, 78 Va. 287.

Refusal to consider motion for continuance till after arraignment held to be error as the law was in regard to election of trial in circuit court. Anderson's Case, 84 Va. 77, 3 S. E. 803.

No time is required to elapse between the commission of an offense and the trial of a prisoner therefor, and the mere fact that a prisoner was indicted and put upon trial for rape forty-eight hours after its alleged commission is no ground for reversal. Wright's Case, 114 Va. 872, 77 S. E. 503.

Digitized by Google

Skipping a term.—In continuing case on prisoner's motion, skipping a term is not error. Bolanz's Case, 24 Grat. 31.

Generally.—The following cases have reference to the provision of the old law, allowing one indicted for a felony, for which he might be punished with death, to elect to be tried in the circuit court: Sutton's Case, 85 Va. 128, 7 S. E. 323; Anderson's Case, 84 Va. 77, 3 S. E. 803; Stoneham's Case, 86 Va. 523, 10 S. E. 238; Howel's Case, 86 Va. 817, 11 S. E. 238; Early's Case, 86 Va. 921, 11 S. E. 795; Drier's Case, 89 Va. 529, 16 S. E. 672; Mitchell's Case, 89 Va. 826, 17 S. E. 480; Nicholas' Case, 91 Va. 747, 21 S. E. 364; Whitehead's Case, 19 Grat. 640; Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860.

Under this section as amended by Acts 1893-4, p. 270, county courts had exclusive original jurisdiction of all felonies committed within their respective counties, and the prisoner no longer had the right to elect to be tried in the circuit court. Gilligan's Case, 99 Va. 816, 818, 37 S. E. 962.

No preliminary examination before justice of the peace necessary. See Jones' Case, 86 Va. 661, 665, 10 S. E. 1005; also section 4881 and notes.

See Dulin's Case, 91 Va. 721, as to the effect of the amendment of 1893-94, page 270.

Sec. 4894. On trial for felony, accused to be present; when court may enter plea for him, and trial go on.—A person tried for felony shall be personally present during the trial. If when arraigned he will not plead or answer, and do not confess his guilt, the court shall have the plea of not guilty entered, and the trial shall proceed as if the accused had put in that plea. But for the purposes of this section, a motion for a continuance, whether made before or after arraignment, shall not be deemed to be part of the trial. (Code 1887, § 4017.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new. In Kibler v. Com., 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858, it was held that the defendant was not prejudiced by such a motion made in his absence before arraignment. In Benton v. Com., 91 Va., at p. 794, 21 S. E. 495, it was intimated that he need not be present when such motion was made after arraignment. See also what is said in O'Boyle v. Com., 100 Va. 785, 40 S. E. 121, and 8 Va. L. Reg., note, p. 107. The very fact that the case is continued shows there was no trial. The defendant is entitled to be present during the trial, but there is no good reason for making it necessary for him to be present when a motion for continuance is made. The above addition settles the question.

Presence must be shown by record—Right cannot be waived.—In a prosecution for felony the accused must be arraigned and must plead in person, and in all subsequent proceedings he must appear in person, not by attorney, and this must be shown by the record, nor can it be waived. Sperry's Case, 9 Leigh 623, 33 Am. Dec. 261; Jones' Case, 87 Va. 63, 12 S. E. 226; Gilligan's Case, 99 Va. 816, 829, 37 S. E. 962; Longley's Case, 99 Va. 807, 37 S. E. 339; Hooker's Case, 13 Grat. 763; Jackson's Case, 19 Grat. 664; Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 845; Bond's Case, 83 Va. 581, 3 S. E. 149; Shelton's Case, 89 Va. 453, 16 S. E. 355; Snodgrass' Case, 89 Va. 687, 17 S. E. 238.

If it may be inferred from the record that the prisoner was present that is sufficient, though it is not formally stated that he was present (Benton's Case, 91 Va. 794, 21 S. E. 495; Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 848; Sperry's Case, 9 Leigh 623, 33 Am. Dec. 261; Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 845; Gilligan's Case, 99 Va. 816, 37 S. E. 962); and the record having recited that he was present, the presumption would be that he remained until the court adjourned for the day, unless the contrary is made to appear either directly or by necessary intendment (Williams' Case, 93 Va. 769, 25 S. E. 659).

The statement that the prisoner was arraigned seems to imply, ex vi termini, that he was personally present. Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 851.

When at the end of the record of the proceedings of the court on the day of the conviction it is stated, "And thereupon the accused was remanded to jail," this is conclusive that he had been personally present during all the proceedings had that day. Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 788.

"This case was continued for the defendant" does not show that he was personally present. Shelton's Case, 89 Va. 450, 16 S. E. 355.

Motion for a new trial—Prisoner's presence.—If, in the absence of the prisoner, motion for a new trial is made and overruled, and afterwards during same term, in his presence, the overruling is rescinded, and he is invited to renew the motion, but refuses, the irregularity is thereby cured. Hooker's Case, 13 Grat. 763; Bond's Case, 83 Va. 581, 3 S. E. 149.

Statement of counsel after judgment.—After judgment it is not error to hear the statement of counsel for the prisoner in his absence that he has no bills of exception to offer. Gilligan's Case, 99 Va. 816, 37 S. E. 962.

Presence of prisoner—Jury sent to their room.—It is not necessary for the prisoner to be present when the jury is called and sent to their room, to consider of their verdict, the jury afterwards returning into court, and, in his presence, rendering their verdict. Jones' Case, 79 Va. 215; Lawrence's Case, 30 Grat. 845.

Signing order.—Prisoner need not be present when orders are signed, as this is no step in the prosecution. Weatherman's Case, 91 Va. 796, 22 S. E. 349.

Continuance when prisoner is not present.—Before arraignment the prisoner need not be present when his case is continued. Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858; Anderson's Case, 84 Va. 77, 3 S. E. 803; Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860. See, also, O'Boyle's Case, 100 Va. 785, 40 S. E. 121, where it is held that it is not error to continue an indictment against prisoner for felony in his absence, if the prisoner is not prejudiced. See note, 3 Va. Law Reg. 107. See the statute as amended by present revision.

Reading evidence.—If the evidence of a witness on the trial, which has been reduced to writing, or any part of it, is read to the jury in the absence of the prisoner, it is error for which the verdict will be set aside. Jackson's Case, 19 Grat. 656.

View by jury of place where crime was committed.—This is held to be no part of trial in New York. See 4 Va. Law Reg. 776. See section 6013.

Where trial, interrupted by a sudden fit and the removal of the prisoner, was resumed upon his restoration, and return into court, this was not error. Curtis' Case, 87 Va. 589, 13 S. E. 73.

Presence of accused not necessary in misdemeanor.—In misdemeanors the personal presence of the defendant is not necessary at the trial; a verdict and judgment for the fine may be found and rendered in his absence, and after the term he can neither move for a new trial nor in arrest of judgment. But until final judgment he can so move. Pifer's Case, 14 Grat. 710, 713. See, also, Price's Case, 33 Grat. 819, 36 Am. Rep. 797, and section 4076 and note.

Generally.—Discussed, 12 Va. Law J. 489.

Sec. 4895. Venire facias in case of felony; what to command; number of persons to be summoned, and how selected.—The writ of venire facias in case of felony shall command the officer to whom it is directed to summon twenty persons of his county or corporation, to be taken from a list furnished him by the clerk issuing the writ, who are qualified in all respects to serve as jurors, to attend the court wherein the accused is to be tried on the first day of the next term thereof, or at such other time as the court or judge may direct. At one term of the court only one jury shall be summoned, unless the court or judge thereof otherwise direct; and the jury so summoned may be used for the trial of all the cases which may be tried at that term, both felonies and misdemeanors.

The list mentioned in this section shall contain the names of twenty-four persons drawn for that purpose by the clerk of the court or his deputy from the names and box provided for by sections fifty-nine hundred and eighty-eight and fifty-nine hundred and ninety of this Code. Such drawing shall be in the presence of the judge of the court, or in his absence of one of the commissioners in chancery provided for by section fifty-nine hundred and ninety-two of this Code, and a reputable citizen not connected with the accused or the prosecutor, or, in a case of homicide, with the deceased, who shall be called upon for that purpose by the clerk conducting the drawing. If the presence of the commissioner cannot be obtained, the drawing shall be in the presence of two reputable citizens not connected as aforesaid and called upon by the clerk. The clerk shall notify the commissioner of the time his attendance is desired, and it shall be his duty to attend at such time at the clerk's office. The drawing, except as herein otherwise provided, shall conform as near as may be to the mode prescribed for drawing juries in civil cases.

For good cause shown in any felony case the judge of the court, in term time or vacation, may direct more than twenty-four names to be drawn and placed on the list, and more than twenty persons to be summoned. He shall in such cases specify the number of names to be drawn and the number of persons to be summoned; the number drawn shall not be more than four in excess of the number to be summoned.

If there is drawn from the box the name of a person who has died, removed from the county or city or is related to the accused or to the prosecutor, or, in a case of homicide, to the deceased, or who is known to the clerk or other persons attending the drawing, if the case be in a circuit court of a county, to live within two miles of the place where the crime is charged to have been committed, such name shall not be placed on the list as they are drawn, and when twenty-four names have been so placed the drawing shall cease, and a copy of said list shall at once be made and signed by the clerk and the persons attending the drawing, which copy shall be filed in the clerk's office.

No irregularity in any writ of venire facias or in the drawing, summoning, returning, or impanelling of jurors, or in making out or copying or signing or failing to sign the list or in drawing more persons than four in excess of the number to be summoned, shall be cause for summoning a new panel or for setting aside a verdict or granting a new trial, unless objection thereto specifically pointed out, was made before the jury was sworn, and unless it appears that such irregularity, or error, or failure, was intentional or such as to probably cause injustice to the Commonwealth or to the accused; and no judgment shall be arrested or reversed for the failure of the record to show that there was a venire facias, unless made a ground of exception in the trial court, before the swearing of the jury. (Code 1887, §§ 4018, 4027, 4029; 1895-6, p. 264; 1899-00, pp. 566, 672; 1902-3-4, p. 882; 1904, p. 16.)

Revisors' Note.—This section increases the venire facias from sixteen to twenty persons, and the list from twenty to twenty-four. These changes are made in view of the revised section 4898 allowing the Commonwealth four peremptory challenges and the accused four. Before the revision the Commonwealth was allowed no peremptory challenges in felony cases, as to which see revisors" note to section 4898.

Attention is called to the fourth paragraph of this section, changing, in counties, the distance which a juror must live from the place where the crime was committed from three miles to two miles. The three-mile limit was frequently the cause of delay and inconvenience, and the purpose of the reduction is to decrease this in part.

The last paragraph is substantially a combination of the last paragraph of section 4018 of the Code of 1887, as amended by Acts 1904, p. 16, and Acts 1893-4, p. 494, amending section 3156 of that Code. The latter act provided that "This act shall apply to jurors and juries in all cases, criminal as well as civil." So far as the latter act was applicable to civil cases it is now section 6002, and so far as it was applicable to criminal cases, it is contained in the combination referred to, hence as section 6002 now stands, this sentence is omitted.

Section 4027 of the former Code was omitted and thereby repealed in view of the fact that section 4895 of this Code provides for only one jury in a case unless otherwise directed.

Section 4029 of the Code of 1887 was also omitted in the revision and thereby repealed. The effect of this repeal was probably to take away from persons jointly indicted for felony the right to separate trials. This question should not be left in doubt. At common law the defendants had no such absolute right, and it is presumed the repeal of the statute restored the common law. See Lewis' Case, 25 Grat. 938, 942. The General Assembly will therefore be asked to pass an act giving to persons jointly indicted for a felony the right to elect to be tried separately.

Interpretation.—The provisions of this and the following section are imperative and essential, and the accused is entitled to demand strict compliance with them. Omission of such compliance is error. Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555; Whitehead's Case, 19 Grat. 640; Richard's Case, 81 Va. 110; Honesty's Case, Id. 283; Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 847, 41 S. E. 951.

This section and the following apply only to the summoning of jurors from county or corporation in which the trial is had. Clark's Case, 90 Va. 360, 18 S. E. 440.

The trial judges should see that the statutory provisions in reference to the selection of jurors are strictly complied with. The fact that it may sometimes be inconvenient to the court, or cause delay in the trial of a cause is no sufficient reason why the statutes should not be rigidly enforced. Patrick's Case, 115 Va. 933, 78 S. E. 628.

Objection that record does not show that there was a venire must be made before jury is sworn. It was held that "a venire facias was an indispensable process to summon a jury in a felony case, although the writ itself is not part of the record, unless made so by bill of exceptions or otherwise. And the record must show that the jury were brought in under a venire. And failure of the accused to object to the want of a venire before the swearing of the jury does not preclude him from objecting afterwards. He may even do so for the first time in the appellate court." Myers' Case, 90 Va. 786, 20 S. E. 152; Spurgeon's Case, 86 Va. 652, 10 S. E. 979; Vawter's Case, 87 Va. 245, 12 S. E. 339; Jones' Case, 87 Va. 63, 12 S. E. 226; Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555; Coleman's Case, 84 Va. 1, 3 S. E. 878. But see last paragraph of section 4895 as it now reads which declares that "no judgment shall be arrested or reversed for the failure of the record to show that there was a venire facias, unless made a ground of exception in the trial court before the swearing of the jury." See Jones' Case, 100 Va. 847, 41 S. E. 951. For a somewhat similar provision relating to civil cases, see section 6002.

A general objection to a writ of venire facias in a felony case is sufficient to raise any objection apparent on face of record, and failure of counsel to point out such errors as they have knowledge of will not deprive the prisoner of his objection on a writ of error. Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 41 S. E. 951, note 8 Va. L. Reg. 351. But see last paragraph of section 4895 as it now reads. Objections must be specifically pointed out.

Drawing, summoning, etc., of jurors.—It is clear from this section and section 5992 that the judge should designate a commissioner who is not the deputy clerk in whose presence the drawing must be made. Ashloch's Case, 108 Va. 877, 6 S. E. 752.

If any person whose name is drawn from the box is for any cause (other than those designated in this section) not a competent person to sit on the jury, that is a question for the court not the clerk, idem.

There is no authority for the presence of the attorney for the Commonwealth when juries are to be drawn in felony cases. Patrick's Case, 115 Va. 933, 78 S. E. 628.

A general order made by a court, of its own motion, directing the clerk, in drawing the list of names thereafter for the trial of criminal cases, to draw the names of thirty persons, made before the offense for which the accused was tried had been committed, was in violation of the provisions of this section, and a venire drawn pursuant to such order should be quashed. Patrick's Case, 115 Va. 933, 78 S. E. 628.

Where the clerk, under a general order of the judge of the court, applicable to all cases arising after its entry, drew the names of thirty persons, instead of twenty (now twenty-four), as required by this section, his action was an intentional irregularity, and is not within the curative provisions of this section. Patrick's Case, 115 Va. 933, 78 S. E. 628.

It is error to draw more than twenty names (now twenty-four) without showing good cause therefor, and it is also error, when the number drawn is more than four in excess of the number to be summoned, when more than twenty (now twenty-four) persons are ordered to be drawn and summoned. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625.

Where one venire facias had been quashed and the method adopted by the judge for obtaining the names for the second venire clearly indicated an intention to secure the names of the veniremen under the first venire, this constitutes reversible error. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625. But the mere fact that a trial judge quashed the writ of venire facias issued by another judge incompetent to try the case, but used the same names in the new writ issued by himself, could not render them unsuitable. Waller's Case, 84 Va. 492, 5 S. E. 364; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 851; Poindexter's Case, Id. 766; Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat.

807, 36 Am. Rep. 795; Drier's Case, 89 Va. 531, 16 S. E. 672; Snodgrass' Case, 89 Va. 683, 17 S. E. 238.

Though the order for a writ of venire facias in a felony case directs the sheriff to summon the entire list drawn, it will not be quashed for that reason, in the absence of any evidence that the accused was or could have been prejudiced thereby. Hardy's Case, 110 Va. 910, 67 S. E. 522.

The court entered an order that "for good reasons shown" forty persons be drawn, at least thirty-six of whom be summoned. Thereupon the clerk issued a writ of venire facias directing the sheriff to summon all forty. Held, no error unless it be shown accused was prejudiced. Hardy's Case, 110 Va. 910, 67 S. E. 522.

An objection to the action of the trial court in not directing a venire facias to be issued to complete the panel when a sufficient number of jurors was not obtained from the persons summoned and in attendance, comes too late after verdict. Patrick's Case, 115 Va. 933, 78 S. E. 628.

This section was clearly not intended as a protection to the party to be tried, but to give the sheriff a certain discretion to be used if he did not summon all the jurors drawn, provided the number not summoned did not exceed four. Hardy's Case, 110 Va. 910, 67 S. E. 522.

An indictment against accused was pending in a court when a venire facias was issued for the trial of a third person under indictment for a felony. At time of issuance of writ the accused was in another State though not a fugitive. Held, that he could not complain because the jury summoned under the writ was used for his trial. Bennett v. Com., 106 Va. 834, 55 S. E. 698.

Where a venire facias was issued for a jury for the trial, during the terms of each of three felony cases, including that of the defendant, and defendant was tried by a jury composed of persons thus summoned, such proceeding sufficiently complies with section 4895. Prince's Case, 89 Va. 330, 15 S. E. 863.

An objection that jurors summoned in a criminal case were not free from exception cannot be made in the appellate court, where it does not appear that the objection was made in the trial court, or that the accused was injured thereby. Barnes' Case, 92 Va. 794, 23 S. E. 784.

Objection cannot be made for the first time in the appellate court that a person served on the jury without being selected by the court or summoned by the sheriff. Short v. Com., 90 Va. 98, 17 S. E. 786.

List to be furnished by clerk.—This section should be strictly complied with, and a writ of venire facias directing the officer to summon sixteen (now twenty) persons from a list furnished him by the judge, instead of the clerk, was properly quashed. This section requires the writ to command the officer to summon sixteen (now twenty) persons from a list of twenty (now twenty-four) furnished by the clerk. Hoback v. Com., 104 Va. 871, 52 S. E. 575.

As to the former provisions on this subject, see Coleman's Case, 84 Va. 1, 3 S. E. 878; Spurgeon's Case, 86 Va. 652, 10 S. E. 979; Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555; Williams' Case, 85 Va. 607, 8 S. E. 470. See last paragraph of section 4895.

A letter from the judge directing the clerk to summon thirty first-class men for the first day of the term to serve as venire-men is insufficient to authorize the clerk to draw a list of that number. Hoback v. Com., 104 Va. 871, 52 S. E. 575.

Under the Code of 1887, which required the list to be twenty it was held not improper for the number of persons contained in such list to exceed twenty. Drier's Case, 89 Va. 529, 16 S. E. 672; Sands' Case, 21 Grat. 871; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 845. But see Vawter's Case, 87 Va. 245, 12 S. E. 339, and the comments thereon in Drier's Case, 89 Va. 529, 16 S. E. 672; Jones' Case, 100 Va. 849, 41 S. E. 951.

But a venire facias which directs the summoning of a different number of jurors from that required by the statute is a void process, and there can be no valid trial thereunder. Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 41 S. E. 951; Spurgeon's Case, 86 Va. 652, 10 S. E. 979. Section 3156 of the Code of 1887, as amended (Acts 1893-4, p. 494), (corresponding to the last paragraph of section 4895) does not apply. Jones' Case, 100 Va. 842, 847, 848, 41 S. E. 954; note 8 Va. L. Reg. 351.

Where writ commanded sheriff to summon forty persons and no objection was made until after verdict, it was decided that an objection at that time was too late. Lyle's Case, 88 Va. 396, 13 S. E. 802.

Objection to juror for illegal execution of venire—Whole venire set aside.—If the prisoner objects to a juror, on the ground that the venire facias was illegally executed, and the court sustains the objection, it is proper to set aside the whole return and direct another venire facias. Epes' Case, 5 Grat. 676.

Venire varying language of statute—When not error.—The language of the venire facias was "* * * * when the felony was committed," instead of the language of the statute, "* * * * when the offense is charged to have been committed." This is not error. Poindexter's Case, 33 Grat. 766; Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat. 807, 36 Am Rep. 795; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 845; Puryear's Case, 83 Va. 51, 1 S. E. 512.

Objection to juror before he is sworn—After trial.—When the prisoner excepts to a juror before he is sworn, it is a matter of right to be adjudged by the court; when he excepts after trial for cause existing before the juror was elected and sworn, it is a matter addressed to the discretion of the court, and the court must consider the whole case and be satisfied that justice has been done. Dilworth's Case, 12 Grat. 698, 65 Am. Dec. 264; Jones' Cases, 1 Leigh 598; Heath's Case, 1 Rob. 735; Hailstock's Case, 2 Grat. 564; Curran's Case, 7 Grat. 619.

Objection to juror for cause existing before he was sworn.—It has been repeatedly held that a new trial will not be granted in a criminal case for matter that is a principal cause of challenge to a juror, which existed before he was elected and sworn as such juror, but which was unknown to the prisoner till after verdict, and which could not have been discovered before the jury was so sworn by the exercise of ordinary diffigence, unless it appear that the prisoner suffered injustice from the fact that such juror served upon the case. Smith's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 6; Poore's Case, Id. 474; Kennedy's Case, Id. 510; Brown's Case, Id. 516; Hughes' Case, 5 Rand. 655; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598; Heath's Case, 1 Rob. 735; Hailstock's Case, 2 Grat. 564; Curran's Case, 7 Grat. 619; Dilworth's Case, 12 Grat. 689, 65 Am. Dec. 264; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 634; State v. Greer, 22 W. Va. 824; Simmons v. McConnell, 86 Va. 500, 10 S. E. 838; Gray's Case, 92 Va. 777, 22 S. E. 858; Thompson's Case, 8 Grat. 637.

Direction as to remoteness mandatory—And constitutional.—The direction in section 4018 of the Code of 1887 that the list should be of persons "residing remote from the place where the offense is charged to have been committed" was mandatory, and the writ was defective, and should have been quashed if it was omitted. And it was not a violation of the Bill of Rights. Whitehead's Case, 19 Grat. 640; Richards' Case, 81 Va. 110; Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555. Under the present section "if the case be in a circuit court of a county" the names of persons who live "within two miles of the place where the crime is charged to have been committed" are not to be placed on the list.

Objection to the juror for nonremoteness—How made.—When one juror has been summoned from too near scene of crime, objection should be made to him, and not to the array. Lawrence's Case, 81 Va. 484; Prince's Case, 89 Va. 330, 15 S. E. 863; Craft's Case, 24 Grat. 602.

Remote from corporation—Adjoining county.—In the sense of the law, all parts of the adjoining county, outside the limits of a corporation, are remote from the place where the offense is alleged to have been committed, if it is alleged to have been committed within the limits of the corporation. Craft's Case, 24 Grat. 602; Lawrence's Case, 81 Va. 484.

Qualifications for jury.—See section 5984, which by section 4927

is made to apply to jurors and juries in all cases, criminal as well as civil.

The phrase in section 4895, "qualified in all respects to serve as jurors," comprehends all things essential to the qualification of jurors by the common law, where unaltered, or by the statute in force. Wash's Case, 16 Grat. 530, 537.

Juror incompetent for affinity or consanguinity.—On a trial for arson the nephew of the deceased wife of the person whose house was burned, if she left children, is an incompetent juror. Jacques' Case, 10 Grat. 690. The fact that uncle of juror is remotely connected by marriage with kindred of the prosecutrix is no disqualification. Doyle's Case, 100 Va. 808, 40 S. E. 925.

Objection to juror for constitutional disability—When should be made.—Objection to a juror for disability created by the Constitution comes too late after verdict. Puryear's Case, 83 Va. 51, 1 S. E. 512; Poindexter's Case, 33 Grat. 766; Hite's Case, 96 Va. 495, 31 S. E. 895; Simmons' v. McConnell, 86 Va. 494, 10 S. E. 838. Nor can objection be made after juror is sworn, unless by leave of court. Spurgeon's Case, 86 Va. 652, 10 S. E. 979.

A person who is qualified to vote by the Constitution of Virginia is a competent juror, though he is disabled from holding office by the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States. Sands' Case, 21 Grat. 871; Chahoon's Case, 20 Grat. 733.

If a person has the constitutional qualification of a voter, though he has not been registered and has not voted, he is a qualified juror. Craft's Case, 24 Grat. 603.

Persons over sixty not disqualified to serve as jurors.—Persons over sixty years of age are not disqualified to serve on grand juries, though they are exempted from service if they choose to claim the exemption. Booth's Case, 16 Grat. 519.

Member of grand jury finding indictment incompetent—Objection.—Member of the grand jury finding the indictment is incompetent as a juror. Dilworth's Case, 12 Grat. 689, 65 Am. Dec. 264; Hunter v. Matthews, 12 Leigh 228; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 648. But if the objection is not taken until after the verdict it will not be set aside on this ground, unless it appears from the whole case that the juror was biased against the prisoner, who therefore has not had an impartial trial. Bristow's Case, supra.

A person on grand jury exempt from serving on jury.—A person serving on the grand jury is not in attendance in the sense of section 4896, and it is not error to refuse to place him on the panel or examine him on his voir dire. Short's Case, 90 Va. 96, 17 S. E. 786.

Juror need not now be a freeholder.—A writ directing the officer to summon freeholders who owned property of a certain value ought to be quashed, as it contains a qualification which the law does not require. Wash's Case, 16 Grat. 530.

Under Acts 1845-6, a juror in a criminal case was required to be a freeholder in the county to the officer of which the venire facias was directed. Day's Case, 3 Grat. 629. It was unnecessary for the record to show that the jury were freeholders. Stephen's Case, 4 Leigh 679.

Under the same state of the law, a juror who had been rejected because he said that he was not a freeholder returned into court before completion of the panel, and said he was mistaken, that he was a freeholder; he was held a lawful juror. Hendrick's Case, 5 Leigh 707.

Colored man cannot demand mixed jury.—A colored man indicted for a felony is not entitled to demand that the jury be made up of both white and colored persons. Lawrence's Case, 81 Va. 484; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 845; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 313, 25 L. Ed. 667.

Decided opinion.—He who has formed and expressed a decided opinion that the prisoner is guilty or innocent of the offense for which he is about to be tried, whether that opinion be formed on the evidence of the witnesses whose evidence he has heard on a former trial, conversation with witnesses, or common report, is not fit to sit upon his trial.

For preconceived opinions and circumstances not making one incompetent to serve as a juror, see Maile's Case, 9 Leigh 661; Moran's Case, Id. 651; Sprouce's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 375; Pollard's Case, 5 Rand. 659.

A decided opinion, based upon rumors, by one who declares himself unprejudiced, and able to give accused a fair trial, does not render one incompetent to serve as juror. Moran's Case, supra.

Decided opinion formed from conversation with prosecutor.—A juror who had conversed with the prosecutor, the most material witness for the Commonwealth, and upon his statement of the facts had formed, and still entertained, a decided opinion, was incompetent, though he stated that he would give the prisoner a fair trial; that he was not prejudiced against him; and that he would decide according to the evidence. Armistead's Case, 11 Leigh 663, 37 Am. Dec. 633.

Legal opinion does not render one incompetent.—The formation of a legal opinion upon facts previously presented to his mind does not render a person incompetent as a juror. Heath's Case, 1 Rob. 735.

Hypothetical declarations are not opinion, e. g., "If the prisoner killed the man he ought to be hanged," and they do not make one incompetent to serve on jury. Hughes' Case, 5 Rand. 655.

A juror's having expressed himself before the jury was empaneled, as determined to punish a prisoner if taken on the jury, not from any malice towards him, but from an opinion of his conduct, is no ground for setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial. Curran's Case, 7 Grat. 619; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 646; Dilworth's Case, 12 Grat. 692, 698, 65 Am. Dec. 264; Simmons v. McConnell, 86 Va. 500, 10 S. E. 838.

Objection to juror—Improperly overruled—Not cured by being stricken off by prisoner.—If a prisoner's objection to a juror is improperly overruled, the error is not cured by the juror's name stricken off from the panel by the prisoner or his not being drawn as one of the twelve who are to try the prisoner. Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. Dec. 314.

Exception to juror at first overruled—Juror afterwards set aside.—The prisoner objects to a juror, and his objection is overruled, and he excepts. After the panel is made up, but before the prisoner has exercised his right of challenge, the court, on the motion of the attorney for the Commonwealth, out of abundant caution, sets aside the juror. This is not error. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658.

Juror set aside on motion of Commonwealth—Can prisoner except?—Quære, if setting aside a person called upon the venire on motion of the attorney for the Commonwealth is a ground for exception by the prisoner. Clore's Case, 8 Grat. 607.

Jurors' perjuring themselves—When court may examine into.—(2014)

Whether the jury perjured themselves on their voir dire may be examined into by the court after verdict, if the prisoner alleges that he had no knowledge thereof till verdict had been rendered. Heath's Case, 1 Rob. 735.

Power of court to summon bystander on jury.—A circuit court has the right and power, on the trial of an indictment for felony, to compel a venireman or bystander called on to serve on a jury on the trial to be sworn on his voir dire, and to answer proper questions touching his fitness as a juror in the particular case. Stockley's Case, 10 Leigh 678.

If the original venire be exhausted without completing the panel, the court may order any number of persons to be summoned from the bystanders it may think necessary, and if the sheriff, from want of time or other cause, fails to summon the whole number, his return is valid for as many as are summoned. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658; Robinson's Case, 88 Va. 900, 14 S. E. 627; Jones' Case, 1 Leigh 598.

Challenges—When accused may except to decision of court.—The decision of a court allowing a challenge on the part of the Commonwealth, or disallowing a challenge on the part of the accused, whether such challenge be a principal challenge or a challenge to the favor, is matter of exception on the part of the accused. Montague's Case, 10 Grat. 767.

Challenges allowed the Commonwealth.—Formerly in felony cases no challenge was allowed the Commonwealth except for cause. It was therefore held that the cause should be shown, and should be a good and legal cause for the exclusion of the juror; otherwise it should be overruled. Montague's Case, 10 Grat. 767.

Under the present Code, the Commonwealth is allowed four peremptory challenges. Section 4898.

After a juryman has been selected and sworn, the court may, in its discretion, allow the prisoner to challenge him for cause, and strike him from the panel. Tooel's Case, 11 Leigh 714.

Sec. 4896. When another venire facias may issue, and the panel be completed from bystanders or list; fine of juror for non-attendance.—In any case of felony, where a sufficient number of jurors to constitute a panel of twenty free from exception cannot be had from those summoned and in attendance, the court may direct another venire facias, and cause to be summoned from the bystanders, or from a list to be furnished by the court, so many persons as may be deemed necessary to complete the said panel, or when the venire facias, or panel, has been quashed for any cause, the court may direct another venire facias, and cause to be summoned from the bystanders, or from a list to be furnished by the court, so many persons as may be deemed necessary to obtain a panel of twenty, free from exception, and the venire thus summoned may be used for the trial of all criminal cases to be tried at that term, both felonies and misdemeanors, in the same manner as if the venire had been obtained according to the provisions of section four thousand and eighteen.

If any person summoned under any venire facias authorized by this chapter fail to attend, as required, without sufficient excuse, he shall be fined by the court not less than five nor more than twenty dollars. (Code 1887, § 4019.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is made to conform to the preceding as to the panel—twenty instead of sixteen. The latter part of the first paragraph of the section is new and provides what the court may do when the venire facias or panel has been quashed for any cause.

Formerly this section did not obtain where the first writ under section 4895 had been quashed, but only gave authority to complete the panel after the return of a valid writ. Hoback v. Com., 104 Va. 871, 52 S. E. 575.

See notes to preceding section.

Sec. 4897. Court or judge may cause venire facias to issue at any time for trial of felony.—Any court in which a person accused of felony is to be tried, or the judge of such court in vacation, may at any time cause a venire facias to issue for his trial. (Code 1887, § 4020; 1910, p. 203.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is identical with section 4020 of the Code of 1887 and the amendment of 1910 (Acts 1910, p. 203) has been omitted. The revisors deemed the original statute preferable.

See Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658, 684; also Wilson's Case, 86 Va. 666, 10 S. E. 1007.

Sec. 4898. Challenges of jurors; how many allowed; how tried.—In every case of felony, the Commonwealth shall be allowed four peremptory challenges and the accused four, and in every case of misdemeanor, whether on an appeal from a justice or an original trial, the Commonwealth and the prisoner shall each be allowed one peremptory challenge. No other challenges shall be allowed except for cause. All challenges shall be tried by the court in which they are made. (Code 1887, § 4021.)

Revisors' Note.—Before the revision, no challenge of a juror was allowed the Commonwealth in felony cases, except for cause. The same right of peremptory challenge existed in selecting juries in cases of misdemeanor as was allowed in civil cases. See section 4048 of the Code of 1887 as last amended by Acts 1904, p. 124. The revised section above allows the Commonwealth four peremptory challenges and the accused four in felony cases, and in misdemeanor cases, the Commonwealth and the prisoner are each given one peremptory challenge. In giving the Commonwealth the right of peremptory challenge in felony cases, this Code follows the principle contained in the criminal laws of almost every state in the Union. See also sections 4895, 4900 and 4927, and revisors' notes.

Challenges for cause are: (1) Propter defectum.—Those are for want of necessary qualifications, either common law or statutory. See notes to section 4895, also sections 5984-5985 and notes.

(2) Propter affectum.—Here there is prima facie evidence of malice or of commitment to one side or the other.

That the juror is opposed to capital punishment, see section 4899; Clore's Case, 8 Grat. 614, 615. And the rule holds where the juror is opposed to inflicting capital punishment on circumstantial evidence. Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 791.

the prisoner by improperly setting aside a competent juror, but the law will presume prejudice to the prisoner. Montague v. Com., 10 Grat. 767.

See section 4495.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 4.

Sec. 4899. When person opposed to capital punishment disqualified.—A person, whose opinions are such as to prevent his convicting any one of an offense punishable with death, shall not be allowed to serve as a juror on a trial for such offense. (Code 1887, § 4022.)

See notes to section 4898, and Clore's Case, 8 Grat. 614; Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 791.

Sec. 4900. How panel selected and jury constituted; how trial had upon plea of guilty without a jury.—In every case of a felony, there shall be selected from the persons summoned, as aforesaid, a panel of twenty persons, free from exception, from which panel the Commonwealth may strike four and the accused four, and the remaining twelve shall constitute the jury for the trial of the accused. The striking off of jurors shall be done alternately, the Commonwealth beginning. If either the accused or the attorney for the Commonwealth fail to strike off any, or if they strike off a less number than above allowed, twelve of the panel, or of those remaining thereon, shall be selected by lot who shall constitute the jury, provided, however, that upon a plea of guilty, tendered in person by the accused, and with the consent of the attorney for the Commonwealth, entered of record, the court shall hear and determine the case without the intervention of a jury. In such cases the court shall have and exercise all the powers, privileges, and duties given to juries by sections forty-seven hundred and sixty-seven, forty-seven hundred and eighty-three, forty-nine hundred and eighteen, forty-nine hundred and twenty, forty-nine hundred and twenty-one, and forty-nine hundred and twenty-two, or any other statute relating to crimes and punishments. (Code 1887, § 4023; 1902-3-4, p. 882.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been made to conform to the revised sections 4895 and 4898.

Strict compliance to these provisions required.—This section is imperative and essential. The accused is entitled to demand strict compliance therewith. Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555. See, also, Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 787, 798.

Objection improperly overruled—Effect.—If a prisoner's objection to a juror is improperly overruled, the error is not cured by the juror's name being stricken off from the panel by the prisoner or his not being drawn as one of the twelve who are to try the prisoner. Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 727, 60 Am. Dec. 314.

"Free from exception"—Failure of record—When objection must be taken.—The record shows that sixteen persons were selected (the panel is now twenty), but fails to show that they were free from exception. No objection was made in the trial court at any time to this irregularity, nor does it appear that the accused was injured by it. Objection comes too late in appellate court. Barnes' Case, 92 Va. 794, 801, 23 S. E. 784. See 4895, last paragraph.

Drawing lots to constitute jury.—After panel has been completed the jury may be selected from the remaining sixteen, either by drawing by lot four who shall be discharged, or the twelve who shall constitute the jury. Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 634. Under the section as it now reads the panel is composed of twenty persons, and the section otherwise conforms to sections 4895 and 4898.

Generally.—As to the mode of selecting jury under former statutes, see Gibson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 111; Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 735, 60 Am. Dec. 314; Bristow's Case, 15 Grat. 634; Sands' Case, 21 Grat. 871; Mitchell's Case, 33 Grat. 845; Hall's Case, 80 Va. 555; Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 787; Richards' Case, Id. 110; Honesty's Case, Id. 283; Fry's Case, 82 Va. 334.

Sec. 4901. When and how jurors summoned from another county or corporation.—In a criminal case in any court, if qualified jurors, not exempt from serving, cannot be conveniently found in the county or corporation in which the trial is to be, the court may cause so many of such jurors, as may be necessary, to be summoned from any other county or corporation by the sheriff or sergeant thereof, or by its own officer, from a list to be furnished either by the trial judge or by the judge of the circuit court of the county, or the corporation court of the city, from which the said jurors are to be summoned. (Code 1887, § 4024.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, it seemed to leave it entirely to the officer executing the writ as to who should be summoned, as the section did not prescribe the method. The latter part is therefore new.

In the exercise of the power conferred by this law, the trial court must of necessity have a great deal of discretion, and the appellate court ought not to reverse the judgment for error in this respect, unless it be plain that such discretion has been improperly used. Chahoon's Case, 21 Grat. 833; Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658, 672, 673; Sands' Case, 21 Grat. 871, 882-884.

The court may properly refuse to summon jury from another county because of local prejudice until effort to obtain impartial jury has failed. Puryear's Case, 83 Va. 51, 1 S. E. 512.

It is not error to direct jurors to be summoned from two counties or corporations at the same time. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658, 672, 673.

The jurors summoned from another county must fulfill the same legal requirements as other jurors. Dowdy's Case, 9 Grat. 736, 60 Am. Dec. 314.

In directing jurors to be summoned from another county the court may make an order directing its officers to summon them, or may direct the clerk to issue a venire facias requiring the officer to summon them. Craft's Case, 24 Grat. 602.

Where a venire facias is directed to sheriff of another county to summon a jury, a list need not be furnished him. Clark v. Com., 90 Va. 360, 18 S. E. 440. But see the statute as amended by the present revision.

It must be made to appear in some manner that it is reasonably necessary to send to another county for a jury in order to obtain qualified jurors. Richard's Case, 107 Va. 881, 59 S. E. 1104.

The trial court, under this section, must of necessity be allowed a wide discretion and the Supreme Court will not reverse the judgment of the lower court unless it plainly appears that such discretion has been improperly exercised. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625.

See Souther's Case, 7 Grat. 673, 684.

Sec. 4902. When jury not to be kept together; when so kept to be boarded; rate of board; how paid.—In any case of felony, where the punishment cannot be death or confinement in the penitentiary for more than ten years, the jury shall not be kept together unless the court otherwise direct.

When the jury are so kept together, the court shall direct its officers to furnish them with suitable board and lodging when so confined, the expense thereof not exceeding fifty cents for breakfast, fifty cents for dinner, fifty cents for supper, and fifty cents for lodging, to be paid out of the treasury of the State, when so allowed by the court. (Code 1887, § 4025; 1893-4, p. 223; 1908, p. 239; 1914, p. 485.)

What record must show.—It must affirmatively appear from the record that, in the prosecution of felonies enumerated in this section, the jury, when not in the presence of the court, were kept in custody of the sheriff or other proper officer. Barnes' Case, 92 Va. 795, 803, 23 S. E. 784. But where the record shows that at the beginning of the trial of a criminal case all the officers in charge were duly sworn with the usual oath to keep the jury during the trial when absent from the court it is sufficient, and is unnecessary to show that such oath was administered upon each adjournment. Reed's Case, 98 Va. 818, 36 S. E. 399.

Separation, effect upon verdict.—Separation does not per se annul a verdict (Thompson's Case, 8 Grat. 637; Philips' Case, 19 Grat. 485; Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 830; McCarter's Case, 11 Leigh 633); although two early cases seem to hold the contrary, viz.: McCaul's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 271; Overbee's Case, 1 Rob. 756. But a more recent case decides that when the offense is not punishable with death or (at present) more than ten years' confinement in the penitentiary, an objection that the jury was allowed to separate has no merit, though the court may have ordered that they be boarded at a hotel during the trial. Jones' Case, 79 Va. 213.

When the indictment consists of several counts for cognate offenses, and the sum of the penalties for the different counts is more than ten years' imprisonment, though the penalty for no one count is more than ten years, allowing the jury to separate is error. Johnson's Case, 102 Va. 927, 46 S. E. 789.

But the separation out of the custody and control of the officer is prima facie sufficient to vitiate a verdict, and it is incumbent upon the Commonwealth to refute that presumption by disproving all probabilities or suspicions of tampering. Philips' Case, 19 Grat. 540, 541; Barnes' Case, 92 Va. 803, 23 S. E. 784. See, also, Epes' Case, 5 Grat. 676; Tooel's Case, 11 Leigh 714; Jones' Case, 79 Va. 213; also Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745; McCarter's Case, 11 Leigh 633; Thompson's Case, 8 Grat. 637, 638.

For separation not sufficient to vitiate verdict, see McCarter's Case, 11 Leigh 633; Thompson's Case, 8 Grat. 637.

It was held under a statute similar to this in People v. Adams (Cal.), 66 L. R. A. 247, that the fact that sheriff divided jury in three groups and locked them in separate rooms on different floors would not entitle defendant to a new trial unless prejudice was affirmatively shown. See note 10 Va. Law Reg. 1028.

Jurors may separate before panel is complete.—In empaneling a jury there is no necessity to keep jurymen who have been elected and sworn together and separate from other persons, under charge of sheriff, until the whole number shall be elected and sworn. Tooel's Case, 11 Leigh 714; Burr's Trial, p. 382; Martin's Case, 2 Leigh 745; Epes' Case, 5 Grat. 676; Dilworth's Case, 12 Grat. 705, 65 Am. Dec. 264.

The separation before the whole jury had been empaneled of an absconding juryman from his fellows, and his subsequent association with them, though he was afterwards struck from the panel, does not vitiate the verdict. Tooel's Case, 11 Leigh 714.

For comment upon keeping jury together before the panel is completed, see 10 Va. Law Reg. 170.

Deputy sheriff a witness.—The fact that the deputy sheriff, who was in charge of the jury sometimes, was a witness in the case is not sufficient grounds for setting aside the verdict. Read's Case, 22 Grat. 925, 945; Reed's Case, 98 Va. 818, 36 S. E. 399.

Generally.—Cited in 14 Va. Law Reg. 497.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 6.

Sec. 4903. New juror may be sworn in place of one disabled; when court may discharge jury.—If a juror, after he is sworn, be unable from any cause to perform his duty, the court may, in its discretion, cause another qualified juror to be sworn in his place; and in any criminal case, the court may discharge the jury, when it appears that they cannot agree in a verdict, or that there is a manifest necessity for such discharge. (Code 1887, § 4026.)

Prior to the act of 1848 the power of the court to discharge juries upon their non-agreement was confined to cases of misdemeanors (Fells' Case, 9 Leigh 613; Williams' Case, 2 Grat. 570, 44 Am. Dec. 403; Dye's Case, 7 Grat. 662); but since that act, which embodied the present statute, there is no doubt of the power of the court, in any criminal case, when satisfied that the jury could not agree, to withdraw a juror, without consent on part of the prisoner, and to discharge the jury and continue the case (Wright's Case, 75 Va. 915; Jones' Case, 86 Va. 742, 10 S. E. 1004).

And the discharge of the jury is no bar to a second indictment and trial for the same offense. Walton's Case, 32 Grat. 855, 864; Wright's Case, 75 Va. 915; Jones' Case, 86 Va. 742, 10 S. E. 1004. See section 4774 and notes. But see 7 Va. Law Reg. 498.

If the court improperly discharge the jury without consent of the prisoner, he is entitled to be discharged from the prosecution. Williams' Case, 2 Grat. 568, 44 Am. Dec. 403; Fells' Case, 9 Leigh 613; 7 Va. Law Reg. 499.

The practice of finally adjourning the court without noticing the jury or of discharging them simultaneously with the final adjournment of the court, approved. Williams' Case, 2 Grat. 568, 44 Am. Dec. 403.

The modern idea and practice is that whenever the judge is convinced that the jury cannot agree, he may discharge them at his discretion. 10 Va. Law Reg. 414, and note.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 7.

Sec. 4904. Peremptory challenges restricted; how exercised in case of disagreement.—Persons, indicted for felony, who elect to be tried jointly, shall be allowed to strike from the panel not more than four; but should the accused not agree as to the jurors to be stricken from the panel, the four jurors to be stricken off shall be ascertained by lot. (Code 1887, § 4028.)

But this statutory right of election given to the accused is subject to the right of the Commonwealth, which still exists, to try the accused severally, notwithstanding they may elect to be tried jointly. Curran's Case, 7 Grat. 619, 627; Lewis' Case, 25 Grat. 941; Barnes' Case, 92 Va. 802, 23 S. E. 784; McWhirt's Case, 3 Grat. 594, 46 Am. Dec. 196; Kemp's Case, 18 Grat. 981.

Sec. 4905. Counsel for the Commonwealth and the prisoner may make opening statement in all cases.—On the trial of any case of felony or misdemeanor and before any evidence is submitted on either side counsel for the Commonwealth and for the prisoner, respectively, shall have the right to make an opening statement of their case to the jury. (1891-2, p. 872.)

Either party has a right to make an opening statement, but neither is obliged to exercise this right. The attorney for the Commonwealth may waive it. Johnson's Case, 111 Va. 877, 69 S. E. 1104.

Sec. 4906. Courts may exclude from all trials of felony or misdemeanor cases any or all persons whose presence is not deemed necessary.—In the trial of all criminal cases, whether the same be felony or misdemeanor cases, the court may, in its discretion, exclude from the trial any or all persons whose presence is not deemed necessary. (1899-00, p. 882.)

Cited but not construed in Doyle's Case, 100 Va. 814, 40 S. E. 925.

Sec. 4907. Defendant allowed to plead several matters of law or fact.—The defendant in any criminal prosecution may plead as many several matters, whether of law or fact, as he shall think necessary, and he may file pleas in bar at the same time with pleas in abatement, or within a reasonable time thereafter, but the issues on the pleas in abatement shall be first tried; but the defendant shall not be convicted of a felony except as provided in section forty-seven hundred and seventy-six.

Revisors Note.—This section is new, and is an adaptation of section 6107 (section 3264 of the Code of 1887) to criminal procedure. In practice there has never been any real difficulty about this, but it has time and again been made a question as to whether section 3264 of the former Code was applicable to criminal cases. The purpose of the new section is to put the question beyond doubt.

Sec. 4908. Accused while insane not to be tried.—No person shall, while he is insane, be tried for a criminal offense. (Code 1887, § 4030.)

The burden of proving insanity in a criminal case is on the prisoner. Hite's Case, 96 Va. 489, 31 S. E. 895. See, also, Miller v. Rutledge, 82 Va. 863, 1 S. E. 202; Porter v. Porter, 89 Va. 118, 15 S. E. 500; Dejarnette's Case, 75 Va. 867; Baccigalupo's Case, 33 Grat. 807, 36 Am. Rep. 795; Boswell's Case, 20 Grat. 860; 1 Va. Law Reg. 932. If the evidence is of such a character as merely to produce a doubt on the minds of the jury as to prisoner's sanity, it is not sufficient to establish that defense. Hite's Case, supra.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 9.

Sec. 4909. When sanity of accused to be tried; if sane, trial to proceed; if insane when offense committed, or at trial, what the court to do.—If, prior to the time for trial of any person charged with crime, either the court or the attorney for the Commonwealth has reason to believe that such person is in such mental condition that his confinement in a hospital for the insane is necessary for proper care and observation, the said court or the judge thereof may, after hearing evidence on the subject, commit such person to the department for the criminal insane under such limitations as it may order, pending the determination of his mental condition. The superintendent shall, from time to time, or as often as the court may require, inform the court of the condition of the said person while confined in the hospital.

If a court, in which a person is held for trial, see reasonable ground to doubt his sanity at the time at which, but for such doubt, he would be tried, it shall suspend the trial until a jury inquires into the fact as to such sanity. Such jury shall be impaneled at its bar. If the jury find the accused to be sane at the time of their verdict, they shall make no other inquiry, and the trial in chief shall proceed. If they find that he is insane at the time of their verdict, they shall further inquire whether or not he was insane at the time of the alleged offense. If they find that he was insane at the time of the alleged offense, the court may dismiss the prosecution and shall order him to be removed thence to one of the State hospitals for the insane of this State, there to be detained until he is restored to sanity. If they find that he was not insane at the time of the alleged offense, but is now insane, the court shall commit him to jail, or order him to be confined in one of the said State hospitals for the insane until he is so restored that he can be put upon his trial. (Code 1887, § 4002, 4031.)

Revisors' Note.—The first paragraph of this section is taken from the first fourteen lines of section 1682 of the Code of 1887, as amended by Acts 1914, page 542. The residue of the amendment mentioned has been omitted. The last sentence of this paragraph of section 4909 is taken from the second paragraph of the act aforesaid. The omission referred to was made because the examination therein referred to was deemed unnecessary. Provision for disposition of insane persons after restoration to sanity is made by section 1045.

The second paragraph of section 4909 is taken from section 4031 of the Code of 1887, with some slight change suggested by Acts 1914, page 542, amending section 1682 of the Code of 1887.

Plea of "not guilty" puts sanity of accused in issue.—The sanity of one accused of crime is put in issue by his plea of "not guilty," and a verdict of "guilty" is a finding that the accused was sane at the time the offense was committed. Unless something transpires after the trial causing the court to have reasonable doubt as to his sanity, the court should refuse to empanel another jury to determine the question of his sanity. Stover's Case, 92 Va. 787, 22 S. E. 874.

Discussed, 6 Va. Law J. 127.

Sec. 4910. Disposition of persons who become insane after conviction; duties of sheriff or sergeant as provided for in this and the preceding section.—If, after conviction and before sentence of any person, the court see reasonable ground to doubt his sanity, it may impanel a jury to inquire into the fact as to his sanity, and sentence him, or commit him to jail or to a hospital for the insane, according as the jury may find him to be sane or insane. If any person, after conviction of any crime, or while serving sentence in the State penitentiary, or in any other penal institution, or in any reformatory or elsewhere, is declared by a jury or commission of insanity to be insane, he shall be committed by the court to the department for the criminal insane at the proper hospital, and there kept until he is restored to sanity; and the time such person is confined in the department for the criminal insane at the proper hospital shall be deducted from the term for which he was sentenced to such penal institution, reformatory or elsewhere.

The sheriff or sergeant of the court by which any of the orders as provided for in this and the preceding section, shall have been made, or the proper officer of the penitentiary or reformatory, shall immediately proceed in the manner directed by section one thousand and twenty-two to ascertain whether a vacancy exists in the department for the criminal insane at the proper hospital, and until it is ascertained that there is a vacancy, such person shall be kept in the jail of such county or corporation, or in such custody as the court may order, or in the penitentiary, or in the reformatory in which he is confined, until there is room in the department for the criminal insane at the said hospital. Any person whose care and custody are herein provided for shall be taken to and from the hospital to which he was committed by an officer of the penal institution having custody of him, or by the sheriff or sergeant of the county or corporation whose court issued the order of commitment, and the expenses incurred in such removals shall be paid by such penal institutions, county or corporation. (Code 1887, § 4032.)

Revisors' Note.—The first sentence of this section is taken from the Code of 1887, section 4032. The residue of the section is taken from section 1682 of the Code of 1887 as amended by Acts 1914, page 542. No material change in either by the revision.

Sec. 4911. When accused to be taken from hospital and committed to jail.—When the superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane shall give notice to the clerk of the court, in pursuance of section one thousand and forty-five, such clerk shall issue a precept to the officer of said court, requiring him to bring the said prisoner from the hospital and commit him to jail. (Code 1887, § 4033.)

Sec. 4912. Sentence or trial of prisoner, when restored to sanity. When a prisoner is brought from the hospital and committed to jail, or when it is found by the verdict of another jury that a prisoner, whose trial or sentence was suspended by reason of his being found to be insane, has been restored, if convicted, he shall be sentenced; and if not, the court shall proceed to try him as if no delay had occurred on account of his insanity. (Code 1887, § 4034.)

Sec. 4913. Verdict of acquittal by reason of insanity to state the fact; court may commit the defendant to hospital for insane.—

When the defense is insanity of the defendant at the time the offense was committed, the jury shall be instructed, if they acquit him on that ground, to state the fact with their verdict. If the jury so find the court shall thereupon, if it deem his discharge dangerous to the public peace or safety, order him to be committed to one of the State hospitals for the insane until he becomes sane. (Code 1887, § 4035.)

Sec. 4914. When and how venue may be changed.—A circuit court may, on motion of the accused or of the Commonwealth, for good cause, order the venue for the trial of a criminal case in such court to be changed to some other circuit or corporation court, and in like manner the court of a corporation may order the venue to be changed to some other corporation or circuit court. Such motion when made by the accused may be made in his absence upon a petition signed and sworn to by him, which petition may, in the discretion of the judge, be acted on by him in vacation; and, whenever the mayor of any city, or the sheriff of any county, shall call on the Governor for military force to protect the accused from violence, the judge of the corporation court of the city, or the circuit court of the county having jurisdiction of the offense, shall, upon a petition signed and sworn to by the accused, whether he be present or not, at once order the venue to be changed to the corporation court of a city or the circuit court of a county sufficiently remote from the place where the offense was committed to insure the safe and impartial trial of the accused. (Code 1887, § 4036; 1902-3-4, p. 882; 1904, pp. 18, 307.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, it provided that "A circuit or corporation court may, on the motion either of the accused or of the attorney for the Commonwealth, or without such motion for good cause, order the venue for the trial of a criminal case in such court to be changed," etc. This language would indicate that the venue might be changed on a motion either of the Commonwealth or the accused without showing any cause whatever, or the venue might be changed for good cause without any motion from either party. Section 8 of the Constitution guarantees to every one accused of crime a trial by an impartial jury of his vicinage, and certainly so far as the Commonwealth is allowed to have a change of venue without cause, this language would be clearly unconstitutional. Taking into consideration all the circumstances, the revisors were of opinion that the language should be modified. As modified, the present section allows a change of venue, on motion of the accused or of the Commonwealth, FOR GOOD CAUSE.

What motion must precede motion for change of venue.—A motion for a jury from another county should always precede a motion for a change of venue, and this not having been done, and an impartial jury having in fact been obtained in the county, the conclusive presumption is that the motion for a change of venue was unfounded. Waller's Case, 84 Va. 492, 496, 5 S. E. 364; Joyce's Case, 78 Va. 289; Wright's Case, 33 Grat. 880. See, also, A. & D. R. Co. v. Reiger, 95 Va. 422, 28 S. E. 590.

Where the motion is based upon the ground that an impartial jury cannot be obtained in the county or corporation, the conclusive presumption from the fact that an impartial jury has subsequently been secured in the county is that such motion was unfounded. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625.

It is the general rule that a motion for a jury from another county or corporation should precede the motion for a change of venue. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625.

Where the ground for an application for a change of venue in a criminal case is that there exists such prejudice and excitement against the accused at the proposed place of trial as to endanger fairness of trial, it is not necessary that the application should have been preceded by a motion for a jury from another county or corporation. Uzzle's Case, 107 Va. 919, 60 S. E. 52.

When trial court will not be reversed.—The trial court, under this section, must of necessity be allowed a wide discretion, and it is the established rule that the Supreme Court will not reverse the trial court unless it plainly appears that such discretion has been improperly exercised. Looney's Case, 115 Va. 921, 78 S. E. 625.

A trial court will not be reversed for refusing a change of venue in a criminal case when the affidavits of prisoner and his counsel represent the hostility to the prisoner as existing in one corner of the county, and it appears that little or no difficulty was experienced in getting a jury and the condition at the time of the trial did not warrant the apprehensions expressed in the affidavits. Bowles' Case, 103 Va. 816, 48 S. E. 527.

A trial court will not be reversed for refusing to order a jury from another county when it appears that an impartial jury was in fact obtained in the county fixed for the trial. Bowles' Case, 103 Va. 816, 48 S. E. 527.

Affidavit of prisoner not sufficient—Must be affidavit of disinterested individuals.—The mere affidavit of the prisoner of his fears or belief that he cannot obtain a fair trial in the county is not sufficient to sustain the motion for change of venue; he must show by independent and disinterested testimony such facts as make it appear probable at least that his fears and belief are well founded. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 658, 672; Boswell v. Flockheart, 8 Leigh 364. But when such facts are shown by the prisoner, and not opposed or explained by the Commonwealth, no arguments of inconvenience or delay should be allowed to stand in the way of a fair trial. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 672.

Change of venue—What is not ground for.—The fact that subscription papers had been circulated to employ counsel to aid the prosecution, and that they had been signed by twenty or thirty persons, is not sufficient ground, of itself, for a change of venue. Wormeley's Case, 10 Grat. 674. Nor is excitement, accompanied by wild talk, but not by threats, a good ground. Id.

Plea to jurisdiction—Effect.—A plea to the jurisdiction of the county to which the venue has been changed is bad on demurrer. Vance's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 162.

Nor can the array of the jury be challenged because they were summoned by the sheriff of the said county. Id.

Generally.—Cited but not construed, Jones' Case, 111 Va. 862, 69 S. E. 953.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 15.

Sec. 4915. Court may admit accused to bail; if not bailed, what to be done with him.—When the venue is so changed, the court making the order may admit the accused to bail, and shall recognize the witnesses and the accused (if admitted to bail, and the bail be given) to appear on some certain day before the court to which the case is removed; if the accused be not admitted to bail, or the bail required be not given, the court shall remand him to its own jail, and order its officer to remove him thence to the jail of the court to which the case is removed, so that he shall be there before the day for the appearance of the witnesses. (Code 1887, § 4037.)

A prisoner having been arraigned and having pleaded in the county in which the offense was committed, need not be arraigned nor required to plead in the county to which venue is changed. Vance's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 162.

For West Virginia decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 16.

Sec. 4916. Duty of clerk of the court ordering change of venue; how court, to which the case is removed, to proceed.—The clerk of the court, which orders a change of venue, shall certify copies of the recognizances aforesaid, and of the record of the case, to the clerk of the court to which the case is removed, who shall thereupon issue a venire facias, directed to the officer of such court; and such court shall proceed with the case as if the prosecution had been originally therein; and for that purpose the certified copies aforesaid shall be sufficient. (Code 1887, § 4038.)

Sec. 4917. When judge cannot sit on trial; how another judge procured to try the case.—When the judge of a circuit or city court, in which a prosecution is pending, is connected with the accused or party injured, or so situated in respect to the case as in his opinion to render it unfit that he should preside at the trial, he shall enter the fact of record, and thereupon the Governor shall, as provided by section fifty-eight hundred and ninety-eight, designate another judge of a circuit court or of a city court of a city of the first class to try the case. (Code 1887, § 4039; 1902-3-4, p. 882.)

Sec. 4918. When accused found guilty of only part of offense charged, how sentenced; if new trial granted, for what trial to be.—If a person indicted of felony be by the jury acquitted of part and convicted of part of the offense charged, he shall be sentenced for such part as he is so convicted of, if the same be substantially charged in the indictment, whether it be felony or misdemeanor. If the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted the accused, he shall not be tried for any higher offense than that of which he was convicted on the last trial. (Code 1887, § 4040.)

Historical.—The latter part of this section makes statutory the decision in Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 953. Following that decision the General Assembly changed the ruling in the Stuart Case, and the statute declared that if a verdict be set aside on motion of the accused and a new trial awarded him, he should, on such new trial, be tried as if the former verdict had not been found. (Acts 1877-8, p. 344). Under the last mentioned act Briggs v. Com., 82 Va. 554, was decided. The revisors of the Code of 1887, however, changed the statute of 1877-8 and substituted the provision now contained in the section which, as stated, makes statutory the decision in the Stuart Case, supra. See Cate's Case, 111 Va. 837, 69 S. E. 520.

Lesser offense—Rule.—To ascertain whether a party can be convicted of a lesser offense under this section, the first question must always be whether it is substantially charged. If the principal felony is one that always necessarily includes the lesser offense, then every indictment for the principal felony substantially charges the lesser offense. Hardy's Caase, 17 Grat. 615.

Indictment—Malicious wounding—Conviction of lesser offense.—Though the indictment is for malicious cutting, etc., (a felony), the assault and battery being charged in it, the prisoner may be acquitted of the felony and convicted of the misdemeanor. Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Montgomery's Case, 98 Va. 843, 36 S. E. 371.

A case in which an indictment for robbery justified a conviction of assault and battery. Hardy's Case, 17 Grat. 592, 599.

Conviction of unlawful shooting is a conviction of a felony, though punished by imprisonment in jail and fine, and after reversal of the sentence a second trial may be had for the felony, and not merely for a misdemeanor, notwithstanding this section.. Forbes' Case, 90 Va. 550, 19 S. E. 164.

Higher offense—Rule for determining.—As a general rule, the maximum of punishment must determine whether offenses, when compared with each other, are of higher or lower or equal degree. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 791, 21 S. E. 495.

Houseebreaking in the nighttime, with intent to commit larceny and grand larceny, are of equal degree. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 792, 21 S. E. 495.

One convicted of murder in the second degree cannot be convicted on second trial for same offense of murder in the first degree. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 791, 21 S. E. 495, overruling Briggs' Case, 82 Va. 554.

If a man be indicted for rape and convicted of attempt to commit, and the verdict is set aside, he cannot be re-tried for rape. Cate's Case, 111 Va. 837, 69 S. E. 520.

Conviction on one count of indictment—Acquittal on the other.—It is settled law in this state that where there are several counts in an indictment, and the jury find the accused guilty upon one of the counts, saying nothing as to the others, the verdict operates as an acquittal upon the counts of which the verdict takes no notice, and the court should enter a judgment accordingly. Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 953; Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943; Richards' Case, 81 Va. 116; Hicks' Case, 86 Va. 231, 9 S. E. 1024, 19 Am. St. Rep. 891; Lithgow's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 297; Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627; Livingston's Case, 14 Grat. 606; Briggs' Case, 82 Va. 558. See section 4923 and notes thereto.

See note of Burton and Conquest's Case, 108 Va. 892, 62 S. E. 376, cited under section 4393.

Sec. 4919. What verdict to specify, when jury find accused guilty of murder; if guilt confessed, duty of court.—If a person indicted for murder be found by the jury guilty thereof, they shall in their verdict fix the degree thereof and ascertain the extent of the punishment to be inflicted within the bounds prescribed by sections forty-three hundred and ninety-four and forty-three hundred and ninety-five. If the accused confess the indictment to be true, the court shall ascertain the extent of the punishment within the same bounds, and give sentence accordingly. (Code 1887, § 4041.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been materially changed. Formerly, it provided that the jury should in their verdict find whether the defendant was guilty of murder in the first or second degree. The changes in sections 4894 and 4895 make it necessary specifically to provide that the jury "shall in their verdict fix the degree thereof and ascertain the extent of the punishment to be inflicted within the bounds prescribed by sections 4394 and 4395."

A verdict which finds a person indicted as being accessory to murder, to be guilty thereof, but does not determine whether he is guilty as accessory to murder in the first degree, is erroneous, and ought to be set aside and a venire facias de novo awarded. Williamson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 211.

As to what constitutes murder in the first degree and what murder in the second degree, see section 4393 and notes.

See note of Burton and Conquest's Case, cited under section 4393.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 19.

Sec. 4920. On indictment for homicide, or malicious shooting, etc., with intent to kill, of what accused may be found guilty.—On an indictment for felonious homicide, the jury may find the accused not guilty of the felony, but guilty of involuntary manslaughter. And on any indictment for maliciously shooting, stabbing, cutting or wounding a person, or by any means causing him bodily injury, with intent to kill him, the jury may find the accused not guilty of the offense charged, but guilty of maliciously doing such act with intent to maim, disfigure, or disable, or of unlawfully doing it, with intent to maim, disfigure, disable, or kill such person. (Code 1887, § 4042.)

Indictment for "malicious" cutting, etc., jury may find prisoner guilty of "unlawful" cutting, etc. Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Hoback's Case, 28 Grat. 922.

Under a common law indictment for murder, the prisoner may be found guilty of murder in the first or second degree or manslaughter. Livingston's Case, 14 Grat. 592; Bull's Case, Id. 613, 620; Miller's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 310; Vance's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 162; Wicks' Case, Id. 387; Cluverius' Case, 81 Va. 848; Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 26 S. E. 858.

See notes to section 4918.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 20.

Sec. 4921. When, in prosecution for grand larceny, accused may be found guilty of, and sentenced for, petit larceny.—In a prosecution for grand larceny, if it be found that the thing stolen is of less value than fifty dollars, the jury may find the accused guilty of petit larceny; and in a prosecution for petit larceny, though the thing stolen be of the value of fifty dollars or more, the jury may find the accused guilty; and in either case he shall be sentenced for petit larceny. (Code 1887, § 4043.)

Discrepancies, as to the value of property stolen, between the indictment and evidence are contemplated by this section. Holly's Case, 113 Va. 769, 75 S. E. 88.

The charge of larceny of three notes of the value of twenty dollars, is the equivalent to the charge of larceny of three notes, one for ten dollars, and two for five dollars each. Holly's Case, 113 Va. 769, 75 S. E. 88.

It is not indispensable that the jury should, in terms, find the value of the thing stolen. If they find the accused guilty of petit larceny, it is sufficient. Poindexter's Case, 6 Rand. 667; Walker's Case, 1 Leigh 574.

Sec. 4922. On indictment for felony, accused may be convicted of an attempt; effect of general verdict of not guilty.—On an indictment for felony, the jury may find the accused not guilty of the felony, but guilty of an attempt to commit such felony; and a general verdict of not guilty, upon such indictment, shall be a bar to a subsequent prosecution for an attempt to commit such felony. (Code 1887, § 4044.)

A man indicted for rape may be convicted of attempt to rape and this operates as an acquittal of the charge of rape. Under section 4918 he cannot be re-tried for rape if the verdict is set aside, but may be tried for the attempt. Cates' Case, 111 Va. 837, 69 S. E. 520.

Prisoners under indictment for robbery were found guilty of assault and battery; the finding was held valid. Hardy's Case, 17 Grat. 596.

Refusal to instruct the jury that if they believed from the evidence that the prisoner intended to commit a felony, but before committing it he voluntarily abandoned it, they were to find him not guilty, and instructing them that on an indictment for felony prisoner might be found guilty of an attempt to commit a felony, held not error. Glover's Case, 86 Va. 382, 10 S. E. 420; Givens' Case, 29 Grat. 830; Mings' Case, 85 Va. 638, 8 S. E. 474.

See section 4767 and notes.

Sec. 4923. Judgment on general verdict of guilty, if any count good.—When there are several counts in the indictment, one or more of which are faulty, the accused may demur to the faulty count or counts, or move the court to instruct the jury to disregard them. If he does neither, and a general verdict of guilty is found, judgment shall be entered against the accused, if any count be good, though others be faulty, unless the court can plainly see that the verdict could not have been found on the good count. If he demurs to the faulty count, or moves the court to instruct the jury to disregard it, and his demurrer or motion is overruled, and there is a general verdict of guilty, and it cannot be seen on which count the verdict was founded, if the jury has been discharged, it shall be set aside; but if it is manifest that it could not have been found on the bad count, the verdict shall be allowed to stand. (Code 1887, § 4045.)

Revisors' Note.—The changes made in this section are for reasons set forth at length in Burks' Pl. and Pr., section 301, pp. 550-554, too lengthy to be here inserted in full. The corresponding section in civil cases is 6258.

There was formerly some confusion as to how far the common law rule as to bad counts applied (Kirk's Case, 9 Leigh 627; Mowbray's Case, 11 Leigh 643; Clere's Case, 3 Grat. 615); but the effect of this section (enacted first in 1848) is to make the common law rule applicable to all criminal cases, whatever be the mode or measure of punishment. The accused is effectually protected from injury by the right given him of having the faulty counts excluded. Shiflett's Case, 14 Grat. 673; Rand's Case, 9 Grat. 750.

If the court should refuse, to the prejudice of the prisoner, to instruct the jury to disregard the faulty count, it would be error. Rand's Case, 9 Grat. 750; Cooke v. Thornton, 6 Rand. 8; Roe v. Crutchfield, 1 Hen. & M. 361.

As to conviction on one count being an acquittal on all the rest, if no mention be made of them in verdict, see notes to section 4918, and the following cases: Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Page's Case, 26 Grat. 943; Stuart's Case, 28 Grat. 950; Richards' Case, 81 Va. 110; also Mowbray's Case, 11 Leigh 643.

Sec. 4924. Verdict and judgment, when jury agree as to some, and disagree as to others.—When two or more persons are charged and tried jointly, the jury may render a verdict as to any of them as to whom they agree. Whereupon judgment shall be entered according to the verdict; and as to the others, the case shall be tried by another jury. (Code 1887, § 4046.)

Several prisoners having been tried together for the same felony, and found guilty, the court may grant a new trial to one of them, and render a judgment against the others. Kemp's Case, 18 Grat. 969.

In the case of the indictment of two persons for conspiracy to prosecute another for larceny, the jury cannot find either party guilty, unless they believe from the evidence that there was an agreement of mind between the two to do the matters and things charged in the indictment. Jones' Case, 31 Grat. 836. In such case the judgment may be reversed as to the one who appeals, without reversing the judgment against the other, who did not apply for a new trial. Id.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 159, section 24.

Sec. 4925. Suspension of judgments.—Except where authorized by statute, no court, judge or justice shall suspend the entry or execution of a judgment in any criminal case.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new. It is not believed that this power of suspension existed, but as it had been often exercised, it was deemed best to forbid it expressly. Ex parte United States, 242 U. S. 27, 37 Sup. Ct. 72, 61 L. Ed. 129. A suspension is authorized by section 4486 in certain cases.

Sec. 4926. Within what time an indictment for felony must be tried or accused be forever discharged.—Every person against whom an indictment is found charging a felony and held in any court for trial, whether he be in custody or not, shall be forever discharged from prosecution for the offense if there be three regular terms of the circuit or four of the corporation or hustings courts in which the case is pending after he is so held without a trial unless the failure to try him was caused by his insanity or by the witnesses for the Commonwealth being enticed or kept away or prevented from attending by sickness or inevitable accident, or by continuance granted on the motion of the accused, or by reason of his escaping from jail or failing to appear according to his recognizance, or of the inability of the jury to agree in their verdict, or where there be no court held at the regular term, or where there is court held and for any reason it would be injudicious in the opinion of the court to have jurors and witnesses summoned for that term, which reason shall be specially spread upon the records of the court; but the time during the pendency of any appeal in any appellate court shall not be included as applying to the provisions of this section. (Code 1887, § 4047; 1893-4, p. 464; 1902-3-4, p. 883.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "whether he be in custody or not," found in line three of the text, are new. It is not believed that these words change the existing law (Davis v. Davis, 112 Va. 904, 73 S. E. 946), but whether they do or not, their insertion was deemed proper, as trials should not be unduly postponed.

Object of statute.—The object of the statute is to insure speedy trials. Wadley's Case, 98 Va. 803, 35 S. E. 452. And if the statutory number of terms elapse without a trial he is entitled to his discharge, unless it is shown that the case was continued for some one of the reasons enumerated in the statute. Nicholas' Case, 91 Va. 744, 21 S. E. 364.

This legislative interpretation of the constitutional provision for a speedy trial has been repeatedly sanctioned by the courts. Benton's Case, 91 Va. 786, 21 S. E. 495; Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 661; Brown v. Epps, 91 Va. 726, 21 S. E. 119, 27 L. R. A. 676; Nicholas' Case, 91 Va. 741, 21 S. E. 364.

"Term."—The word "term" ought to be construed to mean, not the stated time when a court should be held, but the actual session of the court. Santee's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 363; Cawood's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 547.

What terms to be counted.—The term at which a prisoner is indicted for a felony is not to be counted as one of the terms contemplated by this section. The terms to be counted are those after the prisoner has been indicted and held for trial. Kibler's Case, 94 Va. 804, 811, 26 S. E. 858; Bell's Case, 7 Grat. 646, 8 Grat. 600; Glover's Case, 86 Va. 387, 10 S. E. 420; Davis' Case, 89 Va. 133, 15 S. E. 388; Hall's Case, 78 Va. 678, is overruled in this respect. See Glover's Case, 86 Va. 388, 10 S. E. 420.

And though a prisoner has been arrested and committed to jail, or gives bail to appear and does appear, or is brought into court on the first day of the term, that term is not to be counted. Sands' Case, 20 Grat. 800.

The statutory number of terms must be while the case is pending in the trial court, and not in another court from which, during the pendency, the Legislature takes the jurisdiction. Dulin's Case, 91 Va. 718, 20 S. E. 821. See, also, Jones' Case, 19 Grat. 478.

The second indictment being for the same act of embezzlement as the first, and the prisoner having been indicted, tried, and convicted in time, and the verdict set aside for variance, the second indictment was proper and in time. Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 663; Vance's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 162.

To the prisoner's plea that he had been held for trial more than the statutory number of terms after indictment, the replication that during that period prisoner had been convicted, and the conviction reversed, and that he had been held till reversal for punishment, not for trial, sufficient. Smith's Case, 85 Va. 924, 9 S. E. 148.

Exceptions—Enumeration of some not exclusion of others.—In enumerating certain exceptions, it was not intended to exclude others of a like nature. Wadley's Case, 98 Va. 803, 35 S. E. 452, 5 Va. Law Reg. 821; Adcock's Case, 8 Grat. 661.

Exceptions not enumerated—Injunction from federal court.—Where the trial was prevented by an injunction from a federal court, obtained at the instance of the prisoner, the prisoner is not entitled to be discharged from prosecution under this statute. Wadley's Case, 98 Va. 802, 35 S. E. 452, 5 Va. Law Reg. 821.

Continuance on the ground of not having time to try case is not within the exceptions. Green's Case, 1 Rob. 731.

Sec. 4927. Jurors in case of misdemeanor.—Jurors drawn or summoned under chapter two hundred and forty-nine shall be jurors as well for the trial of cases of misdemeanor as of civil cases, and all the provisions of that chapter except the provisions of section six thousand and two and six thousand and twelve, and that provision of section six thousand and seven, which directs the compensation and mileage of jurors to be paid out of the county or corporation levy (which excepted provisions shall apply exclusively to jurors and juries in civil cases), shall extend as well to jurors and juries in cases of misdemeanor as to jurors and juries in civil cases. And sections fifty-nine hundred and eighty-four, fifty-nine hundred and eighty-five, fifty-nine hundred and ninety-seven, six thousand, six thousand and one, six thousand and eight, six thousand and nine, six thousand and ten, six thousand and thirteen and six thousand and fourteen shall apply to jurors and juries in all cases, criminal as well as civil: provided, however, that in all cases of misdemeanor upon a plea of guilty, tendered in person by the accused, and with the consent of the attorney for the Commonwealth, entered of record, the court shall, and upon a plea of not guilty, with the consent of the accused, given in person, and of the attorney for the Commonwealth, both entered of record, the court, in its discretion, may hear and determine the case without the intervention of a jury. In all such cases the court shall have and exercise all the powers and duties vested in juries by any statute relating to crimes and punishments. Jurors drawn or summoned under this chapter may be used as jurors for the trial of cases of misdemeanor, and of civil cases as well as of cases of felony. Seven jurors shall constitute a panel in the trial of misdemeanors, but the jury therefor shall be composed of five.

No officer shall be allowed more than one fee for executing writs of venire facias on the same persons for the same term of court. (Code 1887, § 4048; 1902-3-4, p. 883; 1904, p. 124.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, it provided that "Seven jurors shall constitute a jury in each case of misdemeanor tried by a jury." The revised section makes the panel seven, but the jury is to be composed of FIVE. Section 8 of the Constitution allows a minimum of five, and this was deemed sufficient for misdemeanors. Formerly, this section also stated that "The same right of peremptory challenge shall exist in selecting juries in cases of misdemeanor as is allowed in civil cases." In consequence of the change made in section 4898, this sentence has been omitted.

See the sections referred to and notes.

Sec. 4928. Compensation and mileage of jurors in criminal cases; when and by whom paid.—Every person summoned as a juror in a criminal case shall be entitled to one dollar and fifty cents for each day's attendance upon the court and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile for each mile of travel, by most direct route, in going to and returning from court; the amount allowed for mileage, however, in no case to exceed one dollar per day; provided, however, that each juror summoned from one county or city to try a criminal case in another county or city shall, for his services, receive one dollar and fifty cents for each day's attendance upon the court and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile of travel for each mile traveled, by most direct route, in going to and returning from the place of trial, but should the juror summoned attend, but not be called upon to serve, he shall be entitled to receive the mileage herein provided and one dollar per day for each day's attendance on the court. If the same person attend as a juror in more than one criminal case on the same day, he shall receive compensation and mileage in only one case. Amounts for attendance and mileage provided for in this section shall be paid out of the treasury of the State except as hereinafter provided.

And when during the same day a person has served as a juror, for which he is entitled to be paid out of the public treasury, and has also served as a juror, for which he is entitled to be paid out of the county or corporation levy, the court shall divide equally the pay and mileage for such day between the State and the county or corporation; and it shall be the duty of the sheriff of the circuit or sergeant of the corporation (or hustings) court, at the term of the court during which an allowance is made or has been made under this section, to furnish the clerk of such court with a statement showing the number and names of the jurors in attendance upon the court, and the number of miles, respectively, of travel, as aforesaid. In every case the claim of the juror, for attendance and for mileage, as aforesaid, shall be verified by his affidavit. (Code 1887, § 4049; 1887-8, p. 18; 1914, p. 485.)

section sixty-two hundred and fifty-three. (Code 1887, § 4050; 1902-3-4, p. 627.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section is new. Section 6253, in the last sentence thereof, expressly enacts that, "This section shall apply to criminal cases as well as to civil cases," so that in both civil and criminal cases the practitioner has the election. See revisors' note to section 6253.

How criminal cases reviewed.—Criminal cases are reviewed by writ of error only; the right of appeal or of supersedeas does not extend to them. Temple's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 163; Crowe's Case, Id. 126; Vawter's Case, Id. 127. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1058.

Time when bill of exceptions may be taken.—The practice is to give notice that the point is saved, and in jury trials this notice must be given before verdict, although the bill of exceptions may be drawn and signed at any time during the term, but not after the term. 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 915; Page v. Clopton, 30 Grat. 429; Winston v. Giles, 27 Grat. 530, 535. But see section 6252. Nothing appearing in the record to show irregularity in the proceedings, it is to be taken as importing absolute verity, and presumptions of irregularity are not permitted. Anderson's Case, 100 Va. 860. 42 S. E. 865, and cases cited.

And although the record in a criminal case recite permission to defendant to tender his bill of exceptions within thirty days from the rising of the court, it will be assumed, nothing appearing to the contrary, that the bill of exceptions was tendered and signed in term time, and not in vacation, the latter being unauthorized (at that time). Anderson's Case, 100 Va. 860, 42 S. E. 865, 8 Va. Law Reg. 660 (note).

Objection on account of improper remarks made by counsel in his address to the jury should be made at the time, and the court requested to instruct the jury to disregard them. Such objections come too late after verdict. Wickham v. Turpin, 112 Va. 236, 70 S. E. 514.

Bill of exceptions—Duty of judge—Mandamus.—When a bill of exceptions is tendered which does not fairly state the truth of the case, it is the duty of the judge, with the aid of counsel, to settle the bill, and when settled to sign it, and if he refuses to do this mandamus will lie to compel him. Page v. Clopton, 30 Grat. 415; Collins v. Christian, 92 Va. 732, 24 S. E. 472; Taliaferro v. Franklin, 1 Grat. 334.

It is error for the court to refuse to certify either the facts or the evidence. Powell v. Tarry's Adm'r, 77 Va. 250; Dillard v. Dunlop, 83 Va. 761, 3 S. E. 383. See Taliaferro v. Franklin, 1 Grat. 332, and note thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.; Collins v. Christian, 92 Va. 732, 24 S. E. 472, 2 Va. Law Reg. 107.

As to the effect of failure of judge to sign bill of exceptions within prescribed time on account of absence from the state, see Lengelsen v. McGregor, 10 Va. Law Reg. 19, 23, and note.

Counsel need not agree.—It is error to require, as a condition precedent to certifying the evidence that counsel for the plaintiff and defendant must agree in the statement of evidence. Dillard v. Dunlop, 83 Va. 762, 3 S. E. 383.

Lack of time—Lapse of memory no excuse.—Lack of time or lapse of memory is no excuse for a judge's refusal to certify the evidence on the trial of a cause before him. Powell v. Tarry's Adm'r, 77 Va. 250; Dillard v. Dunlop, 83 Va. 762, 3 S. E. 383.

Mandamus—Answer—Replication—Issue of fact.—If, on application for a mandamus to compel a judge to sign a bill of exceptions, he answers that he refused to sign the bill because it did not state the truth of the case, and the relator traverse this answer, an issue of fact is presented, to be determined upon the evidence, whether the bill did correctly set forth the truth of the case. Collins v. Christian, 92 Va. 731, 93 Va. 1, 24 S. E. 472; also 2 Va. Law Reg. 107 (note), where it is said that Collins v. Christian settles the question raised in Page v. Clopton.

How bill of exceptions in criminal cases should be framed.—A bill of exceptions in a criminal case, upon the refusal of the court to grant a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence, is to be framed in the same way as the bill of exceptions in civil cases to the like refusal. Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717. See, also, Bennett v. Hardaway, 6 Munf. 125; Rohr v. Davis, 9 Leigh 30. See, also, section 6252 and notes.

To avoid confusion it is better to take separate bills to each ruling of the trial court, yet it is allowable to put all exceptions in one bill if set forth with particularity. Brown v. Hall, 85 Va. 146, 7 S. E. 182. See note to Collins v. George, 10 Va. Law Reg. 34.

What appellate court will regard.—An appellate court cannot regard anything as a part of the record unless it is made so by a bill of exceptions or by order of the court. Lawrence's Case, 14 Va. Law J. 55, 86 Va. 573, 10 S. E. 840; Magarity v. Shipman, 82 Va. 806, 1 S. E. 381.

When the plea of errors in arrest of judgment sets forth matter making no part of the record, it will not avail the prisoner. Cohen's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 158; Angel's Case, Id. 231; Campbell's Case, Id. 314; Morris' Case, 9 Leigh 636.

When appellate court will reverse verdict.—The verdict will not be reversed unless the evidence is plainly insufficient to warrant the verdict. Oneale's Case, 17 Grat. 582; Kates' Case, Id. 561; Vaiden's Case, 12 Grat. 717; Hill's Case, 2 Grat. 594; Pryor's Case, 27 Grat. 1009; Coleman's Case, 84 Va. 1, 3 S. E. 878; Prather's Case, 85 Va. 122, 7 S. E. 178; Roadcap's Case, 88 Va. 896, 14 S. E. 625; Pitsnogle's Case, 91 Va. 808, 22 S. E. 351, 50 Am. St. Rep. 867. For rule of decision of appellate court, see section 4937 and notes.

Generally.—For particular grounds for reversal of judgment by writ of error and cases thereon, see Min. Syn. 306, 307; also Matthews Crim. Dig. (3d Ed.) 317.

As to bills of exception, see 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 897, 912, 918. See, also, section 6252 and notes thereto; Stoneman's Case, 25 Grat. 887, Va. Rep. Anno. (note).

See Gregory's Forms, Nos. 294, 295.

Sec. 4930. When execution of sentence to be suspended.—If a person sentenced by a circuit or corporation court to death or confinement in the penitentiary ask for time to apply for a writ of error, the said court shall postpone the execution of its sentence until a reasonable time beyond the first day of the next term of the Supreme Court of Appeals, not exceeding thirty days after that day. In any other criminal case, wherein judgment is given by any court, and in any case of judgment for a contempt, to which a writ of error lies, the court giving such judgment may postpone the execution thereof for such time and on such terms as it deems proper. And for misdemeanor after conviction and sentence, or the execution thereof is suspended in accordance with this section, or for any other cause, the court, or the judge thereof in vacation may, in the discretion of such court or judge, let the prisoner to bail in such penalty and for appearance at such time as the nature of the case may require. A writ of error from the Supreme Court of Appeals shall lie to any such judgment refusing bail or requiring excessive bail. (Code 1887, § 4051; 1887-8, p. 347; 1902-3-4, p. 627; 1916, p. 390.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, it provided that "IN ANY CASE after conviction and sentence," etc., the court or judge might let the prisoner to bail. This language included felonies as well as misdemeanors. The revisors were of opinion that in felony cases the prisoner should not be let to bail after conviction and sentence, and in the revised section the words "for misdemeanors" are used in lieu of "in any case." The last sentence takes the place of the last paragraph of the section as found in Acts 1916, p. 890.

A recognizance taken under this section must comply with the conditions of section 4973. Cannon's Case, 96 Va. 575, 32 S. E. 33.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 160, section 2.

Sec. 4931. Writs of error in criminal cases, where lie; when for accused, when for Commonwealth.—A writ of error shall lie in a criminal case to the judgment of a circuit court or the judge thereof, or of a corporation court, from the Supreme Court of Appeals. It shall lie in any such case for the accused, and if the case be for the violation of law relating to the State revenue, it shall lie also for the Commonwealth. (Code 1887, § 4052; 1897-8, p. 622; 1902-3-4, p. 628.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or for the violation of a law therein declared to be unconstitutional," formerly appearing near the end of this section, were declared unconstitutional in Com. v. Willcox, 111 Va. 849, 69 S. E. 1027, and have been stricken out. See section 4773.

Where the defense in a prosecution for unlawful sale of liquor is that the defendant had a right under the revenue laws to sell it at the place where sold, the case involved a violation of the law relating to the State revenue within the provisions of this section. An appeal will therefore lie on the part of the Commonwealth. Goodwin's Case, 109 Va. 828, 64 S. E. 54.

The proceeding for abatement of a nuisance, in whatever form it may be prescribed by statute, is a criminal proceeding. White v. King, 5 Leigh 726, 729. See Com. v. Willcox, 111 Va. 849, 69 S. E. 1027; see, also, 6 Va. L. Reg. 243; 13 Va. 74.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 160, section 3.

Sec. 4932. Where to lie to judgments for contempt of court.—To a judgment for a contempt of court a writ of error shall lie to the Supreme Court of Appeals. This section shall also be construed to authorize a writ of error to a judgment of a circuit court rendered on appeal from a judgment of a justice for contempt. (Code 1887, § 4053; 1902-3-4, p. 628; 1908, p. 294.)

Power to supervise contempt cases given by statute.—Unless the power to supervise is given by statute, a commitment for contempt is not subject to review in any other court, not even by habeas corpus. Wells' Case, 21 Grat. 504. See, also, Cromwell's Case, 95 Va. 254, 28 S. E. 1023.

By Acts 1897-8, p. 548 (amending section 3768 of the Code of 1887, section 4521 of this Code) a writ of error lay to all judgments for contempt, and this provision of the act was constitutional. Trimble's Case, 96 Va. 818, 32 S. E. 780. Thus the rule of the original section 4053 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to the above section) and of Well's Case, 21 Grat. 504, was changed; but Acts 1904, p. 309, amended section 3768 of the Code of 1887, and repealed Acts 1897-8, p. 548, so that the rule as to appeal in contempt cases is as stated in section 4932, as amended above.

Contempt cases reviewed only by writ of error.—The judgment in a contempt proceeding can be reviewed only by writ of error. B. & O. R. R. v. City of Wheeling, 13 Grat. 40. See, also, Stokeley's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 330; Dandridge's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 408; Wells' Case, 21 Grat. 501.

Generally.—Cited but not construed in Forbes v. State Council, 107 Va. 853, 60 S. E. 81, 14 Va. Law Reg. 492.

Sec. 4933. How petition for writ of error prepared; transcript of record to accompany it; writ of certiorari, when and by whom awarded.—Any party for whom a writ of error lies may apply therefor on petition, which shall assign errors. With the petition there shall be a transcript of the record of so much of the case wherein the judgment complained of is, as will enable the court or judge to whom the petition is to be presented, properly to decide on such petition, and enable the court, if the petition be granted, properly to decide the questions that may arise before it. Upon a suggestion of a diminution of the record, a writ of certiorari may be awarded by the court, or judge in vacation. (Code 1887, § 4054.)

The record must affirmatively show that all the essential formalities in the procedure have been complied with, and a failure to do so constitutes error on the face of the record, of which advantage may be taken on a writ of error, although objection was not made by the accused in the trial court. Spurgeon's Case, 14 Va. Law J. 144, 86 Va. 652, 10 S. E. 979.

Sec. 4934. To whom petition presented.—The petition, in a case wherein a writ of error lies from the Supreme Court of Appeals, may be presented to the said court, or, in the vacation of the said court, to any judge thereof. (Code 1887, § 4055.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section as it appears in the Code of 1887 relating to writs of error from the circuit court has been omitted. Since the abolition of county courts, there is no case in which a writ of error lies from a circuit court. APPEALS lie from justices of the peace to the circuit court in some cases, but no writ of error lies from the circuit court to a justice of the peace, the latter not being a court of record. See as bearing on this, Southern Ry. Co. v. Hill, 106 Va. 501, 56 S. E. 278.

A writ of error awarded during term to a judgment in a case of felony may be made returnable to any day of the term. Lazier's Case, 10 Grat. 708.

See 13 Va. Law Reg. 74.

Sec. 4935. When writ of error allowed, and to operate as a supersedeas; if denied by a judge of Court of Appeals in vacation, court may allow it.—Any court or judge to whom a petition is duly presented, if of opinion that the judgment complained of ought to be reviewed, may allow a writ of error, which may operate as a supersedeas thereto, if the court or judge awarding it so direct, on such terms and conditions as the said court or judge may prescribe. But the denial of a writ of error by a judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals, in the vacation of the court on petition presented to him, shall not prevent the allowance of the writ by the said court, if by it deemed proper, on presentation of the petition to the said court at its next term. (Code 1887, § 4056.)

A writ of error in a criminal case does not of itself have the effect of a supersedeas; in each case the court will direct by an indorsement that it shall have that effect, if it is proper. Conner's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 30. See Kemp's Case, 18 Grat. 969, 971.

See 13 Va. Law Reg. 74.

Sec. 4936. Where writs of error docketed and heard; issue of summons and supersedeas; how process against Commonwealth served.—All cases in which a writ of error is awarded by the Supreme Court of Appeals, or a judge thereof, shall be docketed, heard, and determined in the said court. The clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals wherein a case is docketed shall issue a summons against the parties interested other than the petitioner that they may be heard, and also issue any supersedeas which may be awarded. Where the Commonwealth is defendant in error, if the case be in the Supreme Court of Appeals, process shall be served on the Attorney-General. (Code 1887, § 4057; 1902-3-4, p. 628.)

See 13 Va. Law Reg. 74.

Sec. 4937. Decision of appellate court.—The court, from which a writ of error lies, shall affirm the judgment, if there be no error therein, and reverse the same in whole or in part, if erroneous, and enter such judgment as the court, whose error is sought to be corrected, ought to have entered; or remand the cause and direct a new trial; affirming in those cases where the voices on both sides are equal. (Code 1887, § 4058.)

Verdict varying from judgment—Venire de novo.—In this case the general court reversed the judgment, because it varied from the verdict; and, the verdict being illegal in ascertaining a term of imprisonment shorter than that prescribed by law, the court set aside that verdict and awarded a venire de novo. Nemo's Case, 2 Grat. 558. See, also, Jones' Case, 20 Grat. 855; Gibson's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 111; Smith's Case, Id. 327; Percival's Case, 4 Leigh 686; Mills' Case, 7 Leigh 751; Scott's Case, 5 Grat. 697; Hatton's Case, 3 Grat. 623; Marshall's Case, 5 Grat. 663, 693.

No offense charged—Judgment reversed.—Where the presentment does not charge the offense, the appellate court will reverse the judgment against the accused. Old's Case, 18 Grat. 915.

Defective indictment—Prisoner in penitentiary.—Proceedings on a writ of error, where the judgment is reversed for defect in the indictment, and the prisoner, being in the penitentiary, is brought up before the general court by habeas corpus, and remanded for new trial. Barker's Case. 2 Va. Cas. 122.

A case in which the general court reversed the judgment of the circuit superior court, and entered such judgment as the latter ought to have rendered, changing the judgment only as to solitary confinement, and making it conform to the statute. Brooks' Case, 4 Leigh 669.

Affirmation by voices on both sides being equal.—A point in a cause in which the judges of the court of appeals are equally divided stands affirmed by virtue of this section, as well as where it is a ruling of the court below in the progress of the cause as where it is the final judgment of the court in the case; and this decision is final and irreversible, and cannot be changed upon a second appeal in the cause. Chahoon's Case, 21 Grat. 822, 80 Grat. 733, 738. See notes to section 6365.

Sec. 4938. Provisions which apply to criminal as well as civil cases.—Sections sixty-three hundred and fifty-six, sixty-three hundred and fifty-seven, sixty-three hundred and seventy-two and thirty-four hundred and eighty-six shall apply as well to criminal as to civil cases: provided, that in a felony case in the Supreme Court of Appeals if the plaintiff in error file with the clerk of the said court an affidavit that he is unable to pay or secure to be paid the costs of printing the record in the case the printing shall be done as if the costs had been paid and the clerk shall not be required to account for and pay the same into the treasury; but if the said costs be not paid or secured to be paid and upon the hearing of the case the judgment of the court below be wholly affirmed by the Supreme Court of Appeals the said court in affirming shall also give judgment in behalf of the Commonwealth against the plaintiff in error for the amount of the said costs to be taxed by its clerk. (Code 1887, § 4059; 1895-6, p. 102.)

See Burk's Address, 2 Barton Law Pr. (2 Ed.), 1389.

Sec. 4939. How judgment of appellate court certified and entered.—The judgment of the Supreme Court of Appeals shall be certified to the court to whose judgment the writ of error was allowed, which court, or the clerk thereof in vacation, shall cause the same to be entered on its order book as its own judgment. (Code 1887, § 4060; 1902-3-4, p. 628.)

The provision of this section is substantially complied with by simply transcribing the judgment of the appellate court on the order book of the trial court. Reed's Case, 98 Va. 817, 36 S. E. 399, 6 Va. Law Reg. 323.

Sec. 4940. Execution of judgment in cases of felony.—Sentence of death, except for insurrection or rebellion, shall not be executed sooner than thirty days after the sentence is pronounced. (Code 1887, § 4061.)

Sec. 4941. Death chamber; who to execute death sentence.—The Superintendent of the State Penitentiary, at Richmond, is hereby authorized and directed to provide and maintain a permanent death chamber within the confines of said penitentiary, and which said death chamber shall have all the necessary appliances for the proper execution of felons by electrocution. In said death chamber shall be executed all felons upon whom the death penalty has been imposed, for offenses committed on or after June twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and eight. Each execution shall be conducted by the said superintendent or some assistant or assistants designated by him. (1908, p. 684.)

Revisors' Note.—This and the six following sections make no change IN THE LAW as it existed before the revision, except it is now provided by section 4946 that the body of the person executed shall not be delivered to relatives where the execution was for rape or attempt to rape. (2040)

Sec. 4942. Transfer of convict to penitentiary; how death sentence executed; who to be present.—The clerk of the court in which is pronounced the sentence of death against any felon shall, as soon as may be, after such sentence, deliver a certified copy thereof to the Superintendent of the Penitentiary at Richmond. Not more than thirty nor less than fifteen days before the time fixed, in the judgment of the court, for the execution of said sentence, the Superintendent of the Penitentiary shall cause to be conveyed to the said penitentiary such condemned felon in the manner now prescribed by law for the conveyance of felons sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary, and the superintendent, in his discretion, may appoint more than one guard to convey the condemned felon, and the expenses of such guard or guards shall be paid in the manner and under the requirements now prescribed by law for the conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary. The said superintendent, or the assistants appointed by him, shall, at the time named in said sentence, cause the said felon under sentence of death to be electrocuted until he is dead, unless a suspension of execution be ordered. At the execution there shall be present the superintendent, or an assistant, the surgeon of the penitentiary or his assistant, and a number of respectable citizens numbering not less than six nor more than twelve. The counsel for the convict and a minister of the gospel may be present. (Code 1887, § 4063; 1908, p. 684; 1910, p. 571.)

Sec. 4943. Certificate of the execution of death sentence.—The superintendent shall certify the fact of the execution of the condemned felon to the clerk of the court by which such sentence was pronounced, who shall file such certificate with the papers of the case and enter the same upon the records of the case. (Code 1887, § 4064; 1908, p. 684.)

Sec. 4944. Reprieve, writ of error, or stay of execution of sentence; how notice served; subsequent process; how served; resentence; new trial.—Should the condemned felon, while in the custody of the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, be granted a reprieve by the Governor, or obtain a writ of error from the Supreme Court of Appeals, or should the execution of the sentence be stayed by any competent judicial proceeding, notice of such reprieve or such writ of error or stay of execution shall be served upon the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, as well as upon the condemned felon, and the said superintendent shall yield obedience to the same. In any subsequent proceeding the mandate of the court having regard to the condemned felon, shall be served upon the Superintendent of the Penitentiary as well as the said felon. Should the said felon be resentenced by the court, then the proceedings shall be as hereinabove provided under the original sentence. Should a new trial be granted such condemned felon after he has been conveyed to the penitentiary, then he shall be conveyed back to the place of trial by such guard or guards as the superintendent may direct, their expenses to be paid as is now provided by law for the conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary. (1908, p. 684.)

Sec. 4945. Publication of details of execution.—No newspaper or person shall print or publish the details of the execution of criminals. Only the fact that the criminal was executed shall be printed or published. (1908, p. 684.)

Sec. 4946. Disposition of body of convict electrocuted.—Upon application of the relatives of the person executed, the body after execution shall be returned to their address and at their cost, except where the execution was for rape or attempt to rape. (1908, p. 684.)

Sec. 4947. Manner of execution of death sentence for crimes committed before June twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and eight.—The manner of execution of the sentence of death when imposed on account of crimes committed before June twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and eight, shall be in accordance with sections four thousand and sixty-two, four thousand and sixty-three, and four thousand and sixty-four of the Code of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, which are continued in force for this purpose.

Revisors' Note.—Section 8 of the Act of 1908 (Acts 1908, p. 684) provided that "Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to change or alter the manner of execution of the sentence of death when imposed on account of crimes, committed before this act goes into effect." The act became effective June 26, 1908.

Under section 4062 Code 1887, it was held that judgment in a criminal case would not be set aside because it failed to appoint an executioner of the sentence. Russell's Case, 78 Va. 400.

Sec. 4948. Transportation of convicts to the penitentiary.—Every person sentenced by a court to confinement in the penitentiary shall, as soon as may be, be conveyed to the penitentiary in the manner hereinafter provided. The clerk of the court in which the person is sentenced shall forthwith transmit to the Superintendent of the Penitentiary a copy of the judgment, and if he fail to do so he shall forfeit one hundred dollars. Upon receiving such copy the Superintendent of the Penitentiary shall dispatch a guard to the county or corporation with a warrant directed to the sheriff authorizing him to deliver the convict, whose duty it shall be to take charge of the said person and convey him to the penitentiary. If because of the number of persons to be conveyed to the penitentiary or because there is reason to apprehend an attempt to rescue the superintendent shall deem it necessary he may dispatch more than one guard and make provision for the employment by the guard of persons to assist him in the performance of his duty. The superintendent shall be entitled to receive from the State Corporation Commission such certificates of transportation as he may require in executing the provisions of this section, and other expenses incurred by him in the execution thereof he shall pay, the same to be allowed him in the settlement of his accounts: provided, that the superintendent may in any proper case require the sheriff of any county or the sergeant of any corporation to deliver such convict at a railway station designated by the superintendent, to be there delivered to his authorized agent, and for such services the court of such county or corporation shall allow the said sheriff a reasonable compensation, to be paid out of the public treasury. (1895-6, p. 236.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "State Corporation Commission," found in the last sentence are used in lieu of "Auditor of Public Accounts." See section 3738, et seq.

Sec. 4949. How sentence of confinement in jail until fine paid is executed; limitation of confinement.—If a person sentenced to be confined in jail a certain time and afterwards until he pay a fine and costs of prosecution, fail to pay such fine and costs before the end of said term, he shall continue in confinement until the same be paid or his discharge be ordered by the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, or he be released by reason of the expiration of the limitation for such confinement prescribed by law. (Code 1887, § 4071; 1895-6, p. 686.)

Under Code of 1849 it was held: "Where a party is imprisoned under a capias pro fine for fine and costs he can only obtain his discharge from imprisonment by paying the fine and costs. But the term of his imprisonment is limited by Code 1849, chapter 209, section 17" (same as section 4949), Webster's Case, 8 Grat. 702.

As to the old law in regard to insolvent debtor's oath discharging the person taking it, see Quinling's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 494; Chapman's Case, 1 Va. Cas. 138.

See Shiflett's Case, 90 Va. 389, 18 S. E. 838.

Sec. 4950. When and how prisoner hired out to pay fine.—If any person be sentenced to confinement in jail until he pay a fine and the costs of prosecution, or be confined in jail under a capias pro fine, the sheriff of the county or the sergeant of the corporation in whose jail he is confined, may, with the assent in writing of the prisoner, hire him for such length of time, not exceeding six months, as may be agreed on, to any person who will agree to pay the whole fine and costs. (Code 1887, § 4072.)

Sec. 4951. The obligation to be taken from hirer; where returned; how endorsed by clerk; to have effect of judgment; prisoner refusing to keep contract to be remanded to jail: liability of obligors not affected thereby.—The officer shall take from the hirer an obligation to the Commonwealth, with surety, for the payment of the fine and costs, and return the same forthwith to the clerk's office of the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city in whose jail the prisoner is confined. The clerk shall endorse on the obligation the date of its return, and, from the time it is returned it shall have the force and effect of a judgment, but no execution shall issue thereon until after motion upon notice to the obligors therein. If the prisoner refuse to comply with the contract of hiring, on the affidavit of the hirer a capias pro fine may issue, and the prisoner be remanded to jail. Such refusal shall not affect the liability of the obligors in such obligation, but any part of the fine or costs that is paid shall be a credit thereon. (Code 1887, § 4073; 1902-3-4, p. 628.)

Sec. 4952. How person confined in jail by court or justice until fine is paid, or under capias pro fine, released.—When a person is confined in jail by order of any court or justice until he pay a fine and the costs of prosecution, or the costs where there is no fine, or under a capias pro fine, on application to the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city where confined, or to the judge thereof in vacation, such court, or judge in vacation, as the case may be, if to such court or judge it shall appear proper, may order the person to be released from imprisonment without the payment of the fine and costs, or costs where there is no fine, and he shall not thereafter be imprisoned for failure to pay the fine and costs or costs in that case: but the attorney for the Commonwealth of said county or city shall have five days' notice of such application. (Code 1887, § 4074; 1895-6, p. 686; 1902-3-4, p. 628.)

If the physical condition of the defendant is such that further imprisonment would be of serious detriment to his health, that is a matter to be addressed to the court which convicted him, or the judge in vacation. If it shall appear proper, he may be released from prison "without the payment of the sum mentioned in the execution." Until this is done in the mode prescribed by law, he is liable to all the penalties which the Commonwealth may lawfully enforce. Wilkerson v. Allan, 23 Grat. 10, 20.

Sec. 4953. How person confined in jail by court or justice until fine is paid released; limitation of confinement.—If a person is confined in jail by order of any court or justice until his fine and costs, or costs where there is no fine, are paid, or under a capias pro fine, such confinement shall not exceed ten days when the fine and costs, or costs where there is no fine, are less than five dollars, when less than ten dollars it shall not exceed twenty days, when less than twenty-five dollars it shall not exceed one month, when less than fifty dollars it shall not exceed two months, and in no case shall the confinement exceed three months. The jailer upon commitment shall note the amount of fine and costs, or costs where there is no fine, and the date of commitment, and shall, without further order or direction, release the defendant from jail promptly upon the expiration of the limitation above prescribed, and said defendant shall not thereafter be imprisoned for failure to pay the fine and costs, or costs, in that case; but nothing herein or in the preceding section shall prevent the issue of a writ of fieri facias after such release from jail. (Code 1887, § 4075; 1895-6, p. 686.)

From this section it appears that the fines and costs are not satisfied by the imprisonment, which is but a means of enforcing payment, and the punishment is not complete until the judgment of the court has been fully discharged. Quillin's Case, 105 Va. 874, 54 S. E. 333.

CHAPTER 197.

Taxation and Allowance of Costs in Criminal Cases.

Sec.
4954. When jailor to summon guard for jail; allowance therefor by court.
4955. When paid by county or corporation; when by the State.
4956. Medical attendance, medicines, and clothing for prisoners in jail, and allowance to analytical chemist.
4957. Allowance to witnesses.
4958. When prosecutor to pay witnesses.
4959. When Commonwealth pays witnesses in case of misdemeanor.
4960. Compensation to officer for services in certain cases, where no other compensation is provided.
4961. By whom certificate of allowance to be made; vouchers to accompany it.
4962. What entry of certificate of allowance to state.
4963. Justice, etc., to certify to clerk costs of proceedings in criminal cases before them.
4964. Clerk to make up statement of the whole cost, and issue execution therefor.
4965. Claims not presented in time, to be disallowed.
4966. Of fees of attorneys for the Commonwealth.

Sec. 4954. When jailor to summon guard for jail; allowance therefor by court.—When ordered by the court to do so, or it is in his own opinion necessary for the safe-keeping of a prisoner under charge of, or sentence for, crime, the jailor shall summon a sufficient guard, and the circuit court of the county, or the corporation court of the city in which the jail is, may allow therefor so much as it deems proper, not exceeding one dollar per day for each man. (Code 1887, § 4077.)

Revisors' Note.—For an act affecting this section, see Acts 1918, chapter 164, p. 302.

Sec. 4955. When paid by county or corporation; when by the State.—The said circuit or corporation court, before certifying any allowance, shall inquire into the condition of the jail; if it appear that a guard was necessary, because of the insecurity of the jail, it shall order the allowance to be certified to the board of supervisors of the county or council of the corporation, and it shall be chargeable to such county or corporation; but if otherwise, and the guard was necessary, the allowance shall be certified for payment out of the treasury. (Code 1887, § 4078.)

Sec. 4956. Medical attendance, medicines, and clothing for prisoners in jail, and allowance to analytical chemist.—A court may appoint a physician to attend prisoners in its jail, and make him a reasonable allowance, not exceeding seventy-five cents per day for each day he attends a patient. When he attends more than one patient a day, there may be allowed fifty cents per day for each additional patient. A court may, when a person in its jail charged with or convicted of an offense is unable to provide himself with necessary medicines, or with sufficient clothing, allow for such medicines; and may direct the jailor to provide him clothing, and allow therefor not exceeding ten dollars in one year. It may also make an allowance, not to exceed twenty-five dollars, as compensation to any physician or analytical chemist for making an analysis to discover poison in any criminal case. Allowances under this section shall be paid out of the treasury, except that no allowance shall be made or paid for medicines furnished such prisoner unless the account therefor is certified by the physician for the jail to be correct, and where clothing is obtained for prisoners worked in the chain gang of any city or town, such clothing shall be paid for out of the treasury of such county, city, or town. (Code 1887, § 4079; 1901-2, p. 758; 1902-3-4, p. 21.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, the word "county" appeared before "city," found in line two from the bottom of the text. Chain gangs for counties having been abolished (see revisors' note to section 2088) this word has been omitted. The second paragraph of the act of 1902-3-4 has been eliminated as having served its purpose.

As to duty of jailer in regard to heating jail, see Price v. Smith, 93 Va. 18, 24 S. E. 474.

Sec. 4957. Allowance to witnesses.—Sections thirty-five hundred and twenty-nine to thirty-five hundred and thirty-two, inclusive, shall apply to a person attending as a witness, under a recognizance or summons in a criminal case, as well as to a person attending under a summons in a civil case, except that, in a criminal case, a witness who travels over fifty miles to the place of attendance, shall have for each day's attendance one dollar, instead of fifty cents; and a person residing out of this State, who attends a court therein as a witness, shall be allowed by said court a proper compensation for attendance and travel to and from the place of his abode, the amount of the same to be fixed by the said court. (Code 1887, § 4080.)

Sec. 4958. When prosecutor to pay witnesses.—The sum to which a witness is entitled, who attends for the Commonwealth, and any other legal charges incurred in a case wherein there is a prosecutor, shall be paid by such prosecutor as if he were plaintiff in the case, unless there be a judgment against the defendant. (Code 1887, § 4081.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 161, section 5.

Sec. 4959. When Commonwealth pays witnesses in case of misdemeanor.—Payment shall not be made out of the treasury to a witness attending for the Commonwealth in any prosecution for a misdemeanor unless it appears that the sum to which the witness is entitled cannot be obtained (if it be a case wherein there is a prosecutor and the defendant is convicted) by reason of the insolvency of the defendant, or if it be a case in which there is no prosecutor by reason of the acquittal or insolvency of the defendant or other cause: provided, that not more than three witnesses shall be paid out of the State treasury in any case of misdemeanor tried before a justice. (Code 1887, § 4082; 1897-8, p. 829.)

Sec. 4960. Compensation to officer for services in certain cases, where no other compensation is provided.—A sheriff or other officer, for traveling out of his county or corporation to execute process in a criminal case, and doing any act in the service thereof, for which no other compensation is provided, shall receive therefor, out of the treasury, such compensation as the court from which the process issued may certify to be reasonable. When in a criminal case an officer or any person renders any other service, for which no specific compensation is provided, the court in which such case is, may allow therefor what it deems reasonable, and such allowance shall be paid out of the treasury from the appropriation for criminal charges on the certificate of the court stating the nature of the service. This section shall not prevent any payment under section twenty-one hundred and seventy-six, which could have been made if this section had not been enacted. (Code 1887, § 4083.)

Revisors' Note.—In line seven of the text the words "or any person" have been inserted, so as not to restrict the allowance to an OFFICER.

Sec. 4961. By whom certificate of allowance to be made; vouchers to accompany it.—The certificate required by section thirty-five hundred and four, shall, when the payment is to be to a clerk, be from the court whereof he is clerk, and when it is to be to a sheriff or other officer, from the court in which the prosecution is, or to which a justice shall certify, as hereinafter mentioned. Any other expense incident to a proceeding in a criminal case which is payable out of the treasury otherwise than under the preceding section, or under section twenty-one hundred and seventy-six, shall be certified by the court. If it be a justice exercising jurisdiction, it shall be certified by such justice to the circuit or corporation court before which he qualified, which court shall certify the same, if it appears to be correct, to the Auditor. With the certificate of allowance there shall be transmitted to the Auditor of Public Accounts the vouchers on which it is made. The court, in passing upon any account for fees or expenses required to be certified by it under this section, before certifying the said account, may, in its discretion, require proof of the correctness of any item thereof, notwithstanding the affidavit of the party in whose favor such account is. In all cases the justice of the peace shall file with his account a copy of the warrant on which his proceedings were had. (Code 1887, § 4084; 1897-8, p. 709.)

Revisors' Note.—The third sentence of this section is new, and there are some consequential changes. See discussion of former section in 18 Va. Law J. 405.

Sec. 4962. What entry of certificate of allowance to state.—The entry of such certificate of allowance shall state how much thereof is on account of each person prosecuted. (Code 1887, § 4085.)

Sec. 4963. Justice, etc., to certify to clerk costs of proceedings in criminal cases before them.—A justice, before whom there is any proceeding in a criminal case, shall certify to the clerk of the court of his county or corporation, and a judge or court before whom there is, in a criminal case, any proceeding preliminary to conviction in another court, upon receiving information of the conviction from the clerk of the court wherein it is, shall certify to such clerk all the expenses incident to such proceedings, which are payable out of the treasury. (Code 1887, § 4086.)

Sec. 4964. Clerk to make up statement of whole cost, and issue execution therefor.—In every criminal case, the clerk of the court in which the accused is convicted, or, if the conviction be before a justice, the clerk to which the justice certifies as aforesaid, shall, as soon as may be, make up a statement of all the expenses incident to the prosecution, including such as are certified under the preceding section, and execution for the amount of such expenses shall be issued and proceeded with; and chapter one hundred and two shall apply thereto in like manner as if, on the day of completing said statement, there was a judgment in such court in favor of the Commonwealth against the accused for the said amount as a fine. (Code 1887, § 4087.)

Where there is a judgment in favor of the Commonwealth for a fine and costs, the writ of capias pro fine may issue for the fine and the costs; but where the judgment is for the costs without a fine, the writ is not a proper process to enforce the judgment. Webster's Case, 8 Grat. 702.

The costs and expenses for which the convict's estate was made liable by the enactment of this statute were those with which the Commonwealth was chargeable, such as jail fees, charges for dieting, guards and transportation accruing before conviction, compensation to witnesses to jurors, fees to constables for arresting accused and summoning witnesses. Anglea's Case, 10 Grat. 705.

Sections 3504, 3505. 3506, 3508 provide for the payment out of the treasury of fees in criminal cases to attorney for the Commonwealth, clerk, justice, sheriff, etc., thereby changing the statute upon which was founded. Anglea's Case, 10 Grat. 705.

Under this section the accused, in every criminal case, is liable for the costs of his conviction, without any formal entry of the judgment therefor. The clerk of the court is required to make up a statement of all expenses incident to the prosecution and to issue execution therefor as though judgment had been rendered therefor in favor of the Commonwealth against the accused as a fine. The costs are no part of the punishment of the accused, but are given simply to reimburse the State for necessary expenditures in the enforcement of its violated laws. Com. v. McCue's Executors, 109 Va. 302, 63 S. E. 1066.

A prisoner convicted of felony, and obtaining a writ of error from the Court of Appeals, where the judgment is affirmed, is not responsible for the fees of the clerk or the Attorney-General. Finch's Case, 14 Grat. 643.

Laws of costs are not to be interpreted as penal laws, and payment of costs is no part of the sentence of the court; therefore a pardon by the Governor of one convicted of felony does not release him from costs for which an execution had previously issued. Anglea's Case, 10 Grat. 696, 701, 702.

For modes of recovering fines and enforcing payment into treasury, see chapter 102.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 161, section 11.

Sec. 4965. Claims not presented in time, to be disallowed.—If by reason of the failure of a person to present his claim in due time, a sum be not included in such execution, which would have been included if so presented, such claim, unless there be good cause for the failure, shall be disallowed. (Code 1887, § 4088.)

Sec. 4966. Of fees of attorneys for the Commonwealth.—No fee to an attorney for the Commonwealth shall be payable out of the treasury, unless it be expressly so provided. (Code 1887, § 4089.)

Sec. 4967. Judges to set criminal cases for trial.—It shall be the duty of the judge of each circuit and corporation court to fix a day of his court when the trial of criminal cases will commence, and to make such general or special order in reference thereto, and to the summoning of witnesses, as may seem proper; but this section shall not be so construed as to deprive the court of the right to proceed with the trial of any case at the same term at which an indictment is found, provided the defendant is in actual custody or out on bail. (1889-90, p. 79; 1902-3-4, p. 862.)

This statute is merely directory, and an omission to comply with it is no ground to set aside a verdict. Hall's Case, 89 Va. 171, 15 S. E. 517.

The object of this requirement is to insure a speedy trial, for the benefit of the accused no less than for the Commonwealth. Hall's Case, 89 Va. 171, 15 S. E. 517; Benton's Case, 90 Va. 328, 332, 18 S. E. 282.

Sec. 4968. Proceedings against Indians.—In a criminal case against an Indian, or a person of Indian descent, the proceeding shall be as against a white person. (Code 1887, § 4090.)

See Scott's Case, 10 Grat. 749.

Sec. 4969. Attorney for Commonwealth may issue summons for witnesses in criminal cases; provisions which apply to criminal as well as civil cases; exception.—In a criminal case, a summons for a witness may be issued by the attorney for the Commonwealth. Section sixty-two hundred and seventeen and the sections following to sixty-two hundred and twenty-two, inclusive, shall apply to a criminal as well as a civil case in all respects, except that a witness in a criminal case shall be obliged to attend, and may be proceeded against for failing so to do, although there may not previously have been any payment, or tender to him of anything, for attendance, mileage, or tolls. (Code 1887, § 4091.)

Sec. 4970. Appointment of special prosecuting attorneys.—In any case of felony or misdemeanor pending in any circuit or corporation court of this State in which the Commonwealth's attorney is so situated that it is improper or impossible for him to act, the court, of its own motion, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall have authority to appoint a special prosecuting officer for that case, who shall have all the powers and privileges of the regular Commonwealth's attorney and receive the same compensation. (1897-8, p. 929; 1899-00, p. 85; 1902-3-4, p. 567.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "or impossible" found in line four of the text are new.

Sec. 4971. Prosecution of criminal cases removed from the State to the Federal courts under section six hundred and forty-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States; costs.—Where any person indicted in the courts of this State for a violation of its laws, has his case removed to the district court of the United States under section six hundred and forty-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, it shall be the duty of the attorney for the Commonwealth for the county or city in which any such indictment is found to prosecute any such case in the United States District Court to which the same shall be so removed, and for his services in this behalf he shall be paid a fee of fifty dollars for each case tried by him in such United States District Court, and mileage at the rate now allowed by law to the members of the General Assembly for all necessary travel in going to and returning from such court, to be paid on his account when approved by the Attorney-General.

A per diem of one dollar and fifty cents for each day of actual attendance upon such United States District Court and mileage of five cents a mile for every mile of necessary travel in going to and returning from such court shall be paid out of the treasury to each witness for the Commonwealth in every such case upon accounts therefor against the Commonwealth, certified by the attorney for the Commonwealth prosecuting such case and approved by the Attorney-General.

It shall not be the duty of the Attorney-General to appear for the Commonwealth in such cases unless he can do so without interfering with the efficient discharge of the duties imposed upon him by law; but he may appear with the attorney for the Commonwealth prosecuting such case in any case when the interests of the Commonwealth may in his judgment require his presence.

The Auditor of Public Accounts shall from time to time draw his warrants upon the treasury in favor of the parties entitled to be paid the above compensation and expenses, or their assigns, upon bills certified and approved as above prescribed. (1902-3-4, p. 64.)

Sec. 4972. Recognizance to be required in case of bail.—A court, judge, or justice, letting any person to bail, shall require recognizance to be given. (Code 1887, § 4092.)

Revisors' Note.—The word "justice" is new.

Cited, but not construed, Cannon's Case, 96 Va. 575, 32 S. E. 33.

Sec. 4973. How recognizances payable; penalty and condition; when surety required; when dispensed with; what order of court to state.—Recognizances in criminal cases shall be payable to the Commonwealth of Virginia. Every recognizance under this chapter or under chapter one hundred and eighty-nine and the chapters following to one hundred and ninety-seven, inclusive, shall be in such sum as the court or officer requiring it may direct. If it be to answer for a misdemeanor or if required of a witness it shall be with or without security as the court or officer may direct; but in all other cases shall be with security deemed sufficient by the court or officer taking it. The condition when it is taken of a person charged with a criminal offense shall be that he appear before the court, judge, or justice before whom the proceedings on such charge will be at such time as may be prescribed by the court or officer taking it to answer for the offense with which such person is charged, and when it is taken of a witness in a case against any such person shall be that he so appear to give evidence on such charge, and in either case shall be that the person or witness shall not depart thence without the leave of said court, judge, or justice; when taken for any other purpose than to appear so to answer or give evidence it shall be with condition that the person of whom it is taken shall keep the peace and be of good behavior for such time not exceeding one year as the court or officer requiring it may direct; and if such court or officer direct, it may, when taken of a person so charged, be with condition for so keeping the peace and being of good behavior in addition to the other conditions of his recognizance. And when such recognizance is taken by a court of a person to answer a charge or of a witness to give evidence it shall be sufficient for the order of the court taking said recognizance to state that the party or parties recognized were duly recognized in such sum as the court may have directed with such surety as the court may have accepted for his or their appearance before such court at such time as may have been prescribed by the court to answer for the offense with which such person is charged or to give evidence, as the case may be. (Code 1887, § 4093; 1895-6, p. 254; 1897-8, p. 846.)

What recognizance must show.—The recognizance should show on its face that the condition it contains is to do some act for the performance of which such an obligation may be properly taken, and that the court or officer before whom it is taken has authority to act in cases of that general character. Cannon's Case, 96 Va. 573, 576, 32 S. E. 33; Archer's Case, 10 Grat. 638; Bias v. Floyd, 7 Leigh 640.

Condition of recognizance in criminal case—Noncompliance with statute.—A recognizance, with condition that the principal shall "personally appear in this court on the first day of the next term, and surrender himself into custody, and not depart thence without the leave of this court," is void, because not a substantial compliance with this section requiring him "to answer for the offense" with which he is charged. Com. v. Fulks, 94 Va. 585, 587, 27 S. E. 498.

And so a recognizance "to answer the judgment of this court" is not in compliance with this section. Cannon's Case, 96 Va. 573, 32 S. E. 33.

The condition of a recognizance that the accused shall "do and receive what should be enjoined him by the court" is without authority and void. Bias v. Floyd, 7 Leigh 640, 648.

Same—Substantial compliance.—The condition of a recognizance of one accused of felony was for his personal appearance "to answer the charge against him." This substantially complies with this section. Allen's Case, 90 Va. 356, 18 S. E. 437. See, also, Archer's Case, 10 Grat. 627; Bolanz's Case, 24 Grat. 31. Also see section 4981 and notes.

Generally.—For objections to the form of a recognizance not invalidating the same, see Gedney's Case, 14 Grat. 318.

Sec. 4974. Every recognizance to contain waiver.—Every recognizance hereafter made or taken shall include such a waiver as is required by section two hundred and seventy-nine in relation to the bonds therein mentioned, and though such waiver be not expressed in the recognizance it shall be deemed to be included therein in like manner and with the same effect as if it was so expressed. (1889-90, p. 6.)

Sec. 4975. How recognizance taken for insane person or one under disability.—A recognizance which would be taken of a person but for his or her being insane, or a minor, may be taken of another person, and, without further surety, if such other person be deemed sufficient. (Code 1887, § 4094.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or a married woman," formerly appearing in this section, have been omitted in view of chapter 207.

Sec. 4976. Person failing to give recognizance to be committed to jail; when discharged.—A person not giving, and for whom no other person gives, a recognizance required shall be committed to jail. He shall be discharged therefrom when such recognizance is given before the court or a conservator of the peace; or, if it be to appear and give evidence, when such evidence is given; or, if it be to keep the peace and be of good behavior, when the period for which it was required has elapsed; or, in any case, when the discharge of such person is directed by the court in whose jail he is. (Code 1887, § 4095.)

See 16 Va. L. Reg. 549.

Sec. 4977. Where recognizance taken out of court to be sent.—A person taking a recognizance out of court shall forthwith transmit it to the clerk of the court for appearance before which it is taken; or, if it be not for appearance before a court, to the clerk of the circuit court of the county, or corporation court of the city in which it is taken, and it shall remain filed in the clerk's office. (Code 1887, § 4096; 1902-3-4, p. 623.)

Sec. 4978. Where default recorded; how process issued on recognizance; when copy may be used in place of original.—When a person, under recognizance in a criminal case, either as party or witness, fails to perform the condition thereof, if it be to appear before a court, his default shall be recorded therein, if to appear before a justice, his default shall be entered by the justice in the book required to be kept by him under section six thousand and twenty-four of this Code, and the justice shall notify the attorney for the Commonwealth of the same. The process on every recognizance shall be issued from the court before which the appearance was to be; or, if it be not for such appearance, from the court in which it is taken, or (when taken out of court), in whose office the recognizance remains filed; and in a proceeding in one court on a recognizance entered in another, a copy thereof shall be evidence in like manner as the original would have been if entered in the court wherein the proceeding is. (Code 1887, § 4097.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of the first sentence pertaining to justices is new.

For an act relating to bail bonds and recognizances of soldiers and sailors, see Acts 1918, chapter 228, p. 408.

Process on recognizance—Sci. fa.—Demurrer.—A demurrer to sci. fa. upon a recognizance of special bail is regular practice. Garland v. Ellis, 2 Leigh 555; Wood's Case, 4 Rand. 329.

Sci. fa. defective.—A scire facias, which was issued on a recognizance, and which merely set forth that the defendant had failed to perform the condition of the said recognizance, without stating how or in what manner he had broken his recognizance, is defective, and ought to be quashed. Randolph v. Brown, 2 Va. Cas. 351.

Purpose of sci. fa.—When returnable.—The purpose of a writ of scire facias is to give notice of an application for award of execution. The writ may be returnable at rules in the office, or in court. It is not necessary to send the case to rules, because it does not require a declaration or a rule to plead. Bolanz's Case, 24 Grat. 31, 38. See sections 4888, 6055.

Sci. fa. founded upon recognizance, not on judgment against principal.—A scire facias against special bail is founded upon the recognizance, as the gist of the action, not upon the original judgment against the principal. Garland v. Ellis, 2 Leigh 555, 557.

When one sci. fa. may be sued out against several bail.—Where, in a joint action against three obligors, three several persons undertake, by several recognizances, as special bail for each, one sci. fa. cannot be sued out against the three several bail. Garland v. Ellis, 2 Leigh 555. But when the the principal and bail have bound themselves, though severally, by one and the same instrument, they may be proceeded against in one and the same writ. Gedney's Case, 14 Grat. 318, 330; Garland v. Ellis, supra, distinguished, Id. See, also, Bias v. Floyd, 7 Leigh 640; Randolph v. Brown, 2 Va. Cas. 351.

Of course, the sci. fa. must treat the recognizance as several, and not joint, and the judgment must be several. Caldwell's Case, 14 Grat. 701.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 162, section 7.

Sec. 4979. Surety discharged on payment of amount, etc., into court.—A surety in a recognizance may, after default, pay into the court from which the process has issued, or may issue thereon, the amount for which he is bound, with such costs as the court may direct, and be thereupon discharged. (Code 1887, § 4098.)

Sec. 4980. How penalty remitted.—When in an action or scire facias on a recognizance the penalty is adjudged to be forfeited the court may on an application of a defendant remit the penalty or any part of it and render judgment on such terms and conditions as it deems reasonable. (Code 1887, § 4099; 1891-2, p. 562.)

Our courts at common law possessed and exercised a power of discharging recognizance before the same was adjudged to be forfeited. This statute has extended this power. Caldwell's Case, 14 Grat. 698, 707; Craig's Case, 6 Rand. 731.

For circumstances, such as sickness of principal, on account of which the court may spare the recognizance and decline to award the scire facias, see Craig's Case, 6 Rand. 731.

It is a good defense to the scire facias that the performance of the recognizance was legally impossible; e. g., where the principal cognizor had been confined in the penitentiary. Caldwell's Case, 14 Grat. 698, 702. Likewise an act of God preventing the performance is a good defense. Id. 703.

As to defenses insufficient to relieve sureties in recognizances, see Archer's Case, 10 Grat. 627; Bolanz's Case, 24 Grat. 31.

Defenses to sci. fa. on recognizance may be made by plea, by petition, or by motion. Caldwell's Case, 14 Grat. 698.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 162, section 9.

Sec. 4981. Defects in form of recognizance not to defeat action or judgment.—No action or judgment on a recognizance shall be defeated or arrested by reason of any defect in the form of the recognizance, if it appear to have been taken by a court or officer authorized to take it, and be substantially sufficient. (Code 1887, § 4100.)

It is not necessary to aver the existence of the particular facts which show that the court or officer had authority to take it. Archer's Case, 10 Grat. 627.

The recognizance should not bind the party to do more than answer the particular charge. Bias v. Floyd, 7 Leigh 640.

Abbreviation of name of county in caption of recognizance, if there be no difficulty in ascertaining the county intended, is not error. Gedney's Case, 14 Grat. 318.

If it does not appear by record that the court or officer had any authority to take the recognizance, the recognizance is defective. Hamlett's Case, 3 Grat. 82; Wood's Case, 4 Rand. 329.

See notes to section 4973, and the following cases: Fulks' Case, 94 Va. 585, 27 S. E. 498; Allen's Case, 90 Va. 536, 18 S. E. 437; Cannon's Case, 96 Va. 573, 32 S. E. 33.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 162, section 10.

Sec. 4982. How surety in recognizance may surrender principal, and be discharged from liability.—A surety in a recognizance may at any time take his principal and surrender him to the court or judge before whom the recognizance was taken; or, if it was taken by a court which is not in session, or by a justice, to the judge of such court, or a justice of the county or corporation in which it was taken; whereupon said surety shall be discharged from liability for any act of the principal subsequent thereto. (Code 1887, § 4101.)

Sec. 4983. The proceeding, when surety surrenders accused.—If the surrender be before a judge or justice, he shall give the surety a certificate thereof, and the accused may be let to bail anew for the residue of the term, or to appear as before required, and on failure so to recognize, shall be committed to jail as in other cases of failure to give bail. If the surrender be to the court, it shall take such order as it deems proper. (Code 1887, § 4102.)

Sec. 4984. Fine on juror summoned on inquest and failing to attend.—The name of any person summoned by an officer, and failing to attend, as a juror upon an inquest out of court, shall be returned by such officer to the next term of the court from which the process issued requiring such jury; or, if there be no such process, to the next term of the court of such officer's county or corporation.

Such court shall fine such person, unless he have a reasonable excuse for his failure, not less than two nor more than twenty dollars. (Code 1887, § 4103.)

Sec. 4985. No fine to be imposed on juror, witness, or other person, unless present, or failing to appear after service of a rule.—No court or justice shall impose a fine upon a juror, witness, or other person, for disobedience of its process or any contempt, unless he either be present in court or before a justice at the time, or shall have been served with a rule, returnable to a certain time, requiring him to show cause why the fine should not be imposed, and shall have failed to appear and show cause. (Code 1887, § 4104.)

Morris v. Creel, 1 Va. Cas. 333, conforms to the rule of the statute.

Persons who intentionally conceal themselves from the sheriff, who is endeavoring to serve upon them a subpoena to attend the grand jury as witnesses, are not guilty of contempt. Deskins' Case, 4 Leigh 685. See Gregory's Forms No. 266.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 162, section 14.

Sec. 4986. Enforcement of forfeitures.—Any forfeiture incurred by a violation of sections forty-six hundred and seventy-six, forty-six hundred and ninety-three and forty-six hundred and ninety-four, may be enforced under chapter one hundred and thirty-one in like manner as a forfeiture may be enforced thereunder for a violation of any of the provisions of chapters one hundred and twenty-seven, one hundred and twenty-eight and one hundred and thirty, except as follows: First, Section thirty-three hundred and sixty-eight, and so much of section thirty-three hundred and seventy-two as relates to section thirty-three hundred and sixty-eight, shall not apply to the case; Second, There shall be no publication of the notice in a newspaper as required by section thirty-three hundred and sixty-seven; Third, If the forfeiture was incurred within the jurisdictional limits of a corporation having a corporaton or hustings court, the information shall be filed in such court and the notice posted at the front door of the court house of said corporation; Fourth, Any money, condemned as forfeited, shall not be sold, but shall be disposed of by the court in like manner as the proceeds of forfeited property condemned and sold. TITLE 42.

Concurrent Jurisdiction of Justices.

CHAPTER 199.

Concurrent Jurisdiction of Justices for the Trial of Offenders in Certain Cases.

Sec.
4987. What criminal offenses police justices and justices of the peace may try.
4988. Providing trial justice in all counties having a population in excess of three hundred persons per square mile as shown by United States census; prescribing his jurisdiction in both civil and criminal matters, and fixing his compensation.
4989. Right of appeal to court in ten days; accused to be committed to jail unless let to bail; justice to return papers to clerk; circuit, corporation and hustings court to have the right to amend the warrant or issue a new warrant.
4990. How appeal tried.
4991. When judgment for costs given against prosecutor.
4992. To dispense with formal warrants in certain cases before the police justices and justices of the peace.

Sec. 4987. What criminal offenses police justices and justices of the peace may try.—The several police justices and justices of the peace, in addition to the jurisdiction exercised by them as conservators of the peace, shall, except for offenses arising under chapter one hundred and eighty-four, have concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts of the counties and the corporation courts of the cities of the State, in all misdemeanor cases occurring within their jurisdiction; in all which cases the punishment shall be the same as the said courts are authorized to impose: Provided, that in any city in which there is a police justice, or in any county in which there is a trial justice appointed under section forty-nine hundred and eighty-eight, the powers and jurisdiction conferred by this section shall not be exercised by any other justice of such city or county, except when acting for and in the stead of the police justice or trial justice according to law. Each justice of the peace, in counties in which there is no trial justice, and each police justice or trial justice, may try, or procure some other justice to try, every case of the kind mentioned in this section which is brought before him, and the same may be tried upon a warrant; or he, in his discretion, may make an examination into the offense and proceed according to the provisions of chapter one hundred and ninety-two. (Code 1887, § 4106; 1893-4, p. 431; 1895-6, p. 624; 1897-8, p. 289; 1899-00, p, 838; 1902-3-4, p. 615.)

Revisors' Note.—As will be observed from the citations at the end of this section, section 4106 of the Code of 1887 has been amended by the General Assembly at numerous sessions. Under the Code of 1887 justices had concurrent jurisdiction with the county and corporation courts of many enumerated misdemeanors. The amendment of 1895-6, p. 924, gave justices EXCLUSIVE ORIGINAL JURISDICTION of all misdemeanor cases occurring within their jurisdiction. Lacey v. Palmer, 93 Va. 160, 24 S. E. 930, 31 L. R. A. 822, 57 Am. St. Rep. 795, 2 Va. L. Reg. 94. The amendment of 1897-8, p. 289, conferred on justices concurrent jurisdiction in some enumerated misdemeanors, and exclusive original jurisdiction in all other misdemeanors. The subsequent amendments retained the same principle. The last amendment was by Acts 1910, p. 424. Under this act also justices had concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit and corporation courts in some enumerated misdemeanors, and exclusive original jurisdiction of most misdemeanors. The revised section re-enacts the principle of the Code of 1887, but contains broader language, giving the several police justices and justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts of the counties and corporation courts of the cities in all misdemeanor cases occurring within their jurisdiction, except offenses arising under chapter 184 (Intoxicating Liquors); and the section conforms to section 4988 as to the trial justices mentioned in that section. The revisors were of opinion that the reinstatement and extension of the principle of the Code of 1887 would be of great benefit to the Commonwealth in the enforcement of law and order, apart from a probably decreased expense, since appeals from justices are in a measure reduced. Section 4927 of this Code provides that "Seven jurors shall constitute a panel in the trial of misdemeanors, but the jury therefor shall be composed of five."

Constitutional Provision.—In Miller's Case, 88 Va. 618, 14 S. E. 161, 342, 979, 15 L. R. A. 441, the original section 4106 of the Code of 1887, giving to the several public justices and justices of peace concurrent jurisdiction with the county and corporation courts over certain offenses, was declared unconstitutional. See Const. 1869, article 1, section 10. This case was expressly overruled in Brown v. Epps, 91 Va. 726, 21 S. E. 119, 27 L. R. A. 676, and then a constitutional amendment was passed, investing the General Assembly with the power to dispense with jury trials in all criminal offenses, "not punishable with death or confinement in the penitentiary" (1 Va. Law Reg. 24); and this provision is found in the Constitution of 1902, section 8.

Amendment of section.—For statement of amendments of this section, see revisors' note above.

Generally.—For what is sufficient record of the finding of an indictment of a person presented by the grand jury for misdemeanor, which indictment was certified to the police justice of the city, see Watt's Case, 99 Va. 872, 39 S. E. 706.

Upon an indictment for a felony in a county (now circuit) or corporation court the accused may be acquitted of the felony, but found guilty of a misdemeanor Reynold's Case, 94 Va. 816, 27 S. E. 427. See 2 Va. Law Reg. 95, 858; 3 Va. Law Reg. 17.

In quite a number of cases our statutes submit it to the discretion of the jury whether an offense shall be punished with confinement in the penitentiary or in the jail or by fine only. The doctrine seems clearly established that in such cases, whatever may be the verdict of the jury, the offense is always to be deemed a felony. Min. Syn. 17; Canada's Case, 22 Grat. 899; Benton's Case, 89 Va. 572, 16 S. E. 725. The act of 1895-6, p. 924, giving justices of the peace exclusive jurisdiction of misdemeanors, did not apply to this class of cases, but the county (now circuit) and corporation courts retained jurisdiction thereof. Forbes' Case, 90 Va. 550, 19 S. E. 164; Reynolds' Case, 94 Va. 816, 27 S. E. 427.

This section applied as to misdemeanors such as occurred "within their jurisdiction." Agner's Case, 103 Va. 813, 48 S. E. 493.

In Jernigan v. Com., 104 Va. 850, 52 S. E. 361, it was held that sections 2071 and 2073 of the Code of 1887, imposing penalties for unlawful hunting, fishing, etc., constituted a criminal offense of the misdemeanor class, and an appeal from a justice would lie to the Circuit Court irrespective of the amount of the penalty imposed.

Under this section as it stood in 1915 police justices in cities had exclusive original jurisdiction of prosecutions for conducting houses of ill-fame, and it was held that no consent or waiver on the part of the accused could confer jurisdiction on the corporation courts. Eddy v. Com., 119 Va. 873, 89 S. E. 899.

A justice can exercise only such jurisdiction as it expressly conferred upon him and although jurisdiction may be conferred to impose penalties for violation of statutes or ordinances, yet such jurisdiction is ousted as soon as it is made to appear that the right to impose the penalty involves a bona fide claim to real estate. Martin v. Richmond, 108 Va. 765, 62 S. E. 800. (Decided under the law as it existed in May, 1907).

This section, as amended in 1910 conferred jurisdiction upon police justices for the trial of offenses against city ordinances, although there was involved a bona fide claim of title to real estate. Richmond v. Sutherland, 114 Va. 688, 77 S. E. 470. This amendment (Acts 1910, p. 424) does not appear in the present section.

Prohibition is the appropriate remedy to prevent a justice from exceeding his jurisdiction. Martin v. Richmond, 108 Va. 765, 62 S. E. 800.

See notes to the next section.

Sec. 4988. Providing trial justice in all counties having a population in excess of three hundred persons per square mile as shown by United States census, prescribing his jurisdiction in both civil and criminal matters, and fixing his compensation.—In all counties in this State having a population greater than three hundred inhabitants per square mile, as shown by United States census, there may be appointed by the judge of the circuit court for such counties, and each two years after the first appointment, a trial justice for such counties, if in his discretion he deem it necessary, who shall be a practicing attorney resident in said county.

The said trial justices shall have concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace in all civil cases, and from the decision of said trial justices the same right of appeal shall lie to the circuit court of such counties as now lies from said justices of the peace.

The said trial justices shall have in criminal cases the same jurisdiction for their respective counties as is now, or may hereafter be vested by general laws in the police justices of cities, but nothing in this section shall be construed to interfere with or abridge the rights of justices of the peace to issue, and to receive their fees therefor warrants and subpoenas in criminal cases, which said warrants and subpoenas shall be returnable before said trial justices for action thereon.

The justices of the peace in all counties affected by this section shall, upon the appointment and qualification of said trial justices, make returnable before said trial justices all processes issued by them in criminal cases, and said trial justices are required to sit at the county seats of their respective counties for the hearing of all cases which may be brought before them.

The compensation of each of the said trial justices is hereby fixed at the sum of one thousand dollars per annum, to be paid by the counties for which they are appointed.

The clerk of the circuit court of each county affected by this section shall serve as clerk to the said trial justice appointed for his county, and shall receive for his services the same fees as are now or may hereafter be provided by law for similar services rendered to the circuit court for such county. All controversies involving twenty dollars or over may be removed to the circuit court as in other cases before justices of the peace. (1912, p. 685.)

Revisors' Note.—In addition to various changes in phraseology, this section changes the law in one respect. The act provided that the compensation of the trial justices should be paid "as are the salaries and allowances of judges of the circuit courts of this State." The revised section provides that the compensation shall be paid "by the counties for which they are appointed." As a SALARY is provided for and the benefits are largely local, it seemed to the revisors that the change was proper and desirable. As the counties affected will have to pay the expense they will be more directly interested in determining the necessity for the appointment of a trial justice.

The act from which this section is taken was held constitutional and valid. Ex parte Settle, 114 Va. 715, 77 S. E. 496.

Sec. 4989. Right of appeal to court in ten days; accused to be committed to jail unless let to bail; justice to return papers to clerk; circuit, corporation and hustings court to have the right to amend the warrant or issue a new warrant.—Any person convicted by a justice under the provisions of sections forty-nine hundred and eighty-seven and forty-nine hundred and eighty-eight shall have the right, at any time within ten days from such conviction, to appeal to the circuit court of the county or corporation or hustings court of the corporation, as the case may be. When an appeal is taken at the time the judgment is rendered, the accused shall, unless let to bail, be committed to jail by the justice until the next term of such court, and the witnesses recognized to appear at the same time. When an appeal is taken subsequent to the entry of the judgment of conviction, the justice shall enter the allowance of the appeal on the warrant, and he, or the circuit court of the county or corporation or hustings court of the corporation, or the judge thereof, as the case may be, may admit the accused to bail.

The justice shall forthwith return and file papers with the clerk of the court, whether the appeal be applied for or not. Upon the trial of the warrant in the circuit court of the county or corporation or hustings court of the corporation, the court shall have authority upon its own motion, or upon the request either of the attorney for the Commonwealth, or for the accused, to amend the form of the warrant in any respect in which it appears to be defective. But when the warrant is so defective in form that it does not substantially appear from the same what is the offense with which the accused is charged, or even when it is not so seriously defective, the judge of the court having examined on oath the original complainant, if there be one, or if he sees good reason to believe that an offense has been committed, then without examination of witnesses may issue under his own hand his warrant, reciting the offense and requiring the defendant in the original warrant to be arrested and brought before him. Upon the arrest of the defendant on the new warrant and his production or appearance in court the trial shall proceed upon the new warrant. Where there is an amendment of the original warrant the trial shall proceed on the amended warrant. But whether the warrant is amended or new warrant is issued, the court before proceeding to trial on the same may grant a continuance to the Commonwealth, or to the prisoner upon such terms as to costs as may be proper under the circumstances of the case.

Where a warrant is amended or a new warrant is issued the costs already accrued shall be taxed against the defendant, if he is ultimately convicted, as a part of the costs arising under the new or amended warrant. But the Commonwealth shall not be liable for the costs of the defendant. (Code 1887, § 4107; 1897-8, p. 292; 1902-3-4, p. 616.)

When a person is tried by a justice of the peace for petit larceny and convicted, he has an absolute right of appeal to the county (now circuit) court, and in that court the cause is to be heard de novo upon the evidence, and the accused is entitled to be tried by a jury as in cases originating in that court. In such a case it is error for the county (now circuit) court to reverse the judgment of the justice, and render the case to the justice to be tried by him, and any subsequent trial of the case by the justice is null and void. Read's Case, 24 Grat. 618.

In Combs' Case, 95 Va. 88, 27 S. E. 817, it was held that appeals from the decision of justices of the peace in misdemeanor cases must be taken at the time of the rendition of the judgment appealed from, and not afterwards; but Acts 1897-8, p. 292, changed this rule, and allowed ten days, as does the present statute.

Under this section an unrestricted right of appeal to county (now circuit) or corporation courts is secured where the accused can demand a jury, but the trial and judgment must, in the first instance, in misdemeanors, be before the justice. Lacey v. Palmer, 93 Va. 174, 24 S. E. 930. This case was decided under an act giving justices exclusive original jurisdiction in all misdemeanor cases. This is no longer true.

A trial court of its own motion, after the evidence is all in, may direct the Commonwealth's attorney to change the warrant on an appeal from a justice from larceny to an attempt to obtain money under false pretenses. While it would have been more regular to have made the change before the trial began, yet if no motion for continuance is made and it does not appear that the prisoner was prejudiced, the irregularity is harmless. Robinson's Case, 111 Va. 844, 69 S. E. 514.

A justice's court is not a court of record, and the indorsement by a justice on a warrant tried by him, "Fine and costs paid," is not conclusive on that point, and will not deprive a defendant of his right of appeal when no such payment has in fact been made. Com. v. Bass, 113 Va. 760, 74 S. E. 397.

Under this section, a corporation court, on an appeal from a justice of the peace, has ample power to correct any formal objections there may be to the warrant, and the accused cannot be permitted to go to trial upon such a warrant, and, after verdict and judgment, for the first time object to informalities in the warrant. Flint's Case, 114 Va. 820, 76 S. E. 308.

Under the broad powers given the judge of the trial court by this section, the court in this case could have issued a warrant in the exact words of the warrant on which the defendant was being tried and no objection could have been made. Robinson v. Com., 118 Va. 785, 87 S. E. 553.

A defendant was convicted by a police justice of a violation of a city ordinance prohibiting the keeping of houses of ill-fame. After an appeal to the corporation court of the city had been matured, the police justice wrote a warrant charging her with a violation of section 4548 of the Code, and that warrant was substituted for the original warrant. This change in the record was made without the knowledge or consent of the defendant, and was not discovered until after the trial. Defendant was tried in the corporation court on the substituted warrant and convicted. On writ of error it was held, under the law as it then stood, that there was no authority in law for such practice, with or without the consent of the accused. As there had been no conviction before the police justice of an offense under section 4548, but simply of a violation of the city ordinance, the provisions of section 4989, as to amendments and changes in the warrant had no application, and the corporation court was without jurisdiction. Eddy v. Com., 119 Va. 873, 89 S. E. 899.

Cited but not construed in Well's Case, 107 Va. 834, 57 S. E. 588; Ragsdale v. Danville, 116 Va. 484, 82 S. E. 77.

See notes to section 4987.

Sec. 4990. How appeal tried.—The appeal shall be tried without formal pleadings in writing, and the accused shall be entitled to trial by a jury in the same manner as if he had been indicted for the offense in said court. (Code 1887, § 4108.)

It is too late, after conviction in the county (now circuit) court, for the accused to except to the absence of any indorsement of an appeal on the warrant by the police. Harrison's Case, 81 Va. 491, 494.

While formal pleadings are by the statute dispensed with on a trial where an appeal has been taken from a justice, the charge of the offense must be sufficiently clear and specific to inform the accused of the precise offense with which he is charged, but where the warrant clearly and distinctly charged unlawful selling of liquor, etc., to a certain person, on a certain day, and within a certain magisterial district, and in a certain county, the same is sufficiently definite. Harding v. Com. 105 Va. 858, 52 S. E. 832.

See notes to section 4988.

Sec. 4991. When judgment for costs given against prosecutor.—In every case of acquittal by a justice, if he believe the charge was made maliciously, and without probable cause, he may render judgment for the costs against the prosecutor. (Code 1887, § 4109.)

Sec. 4992. To dispense with formal warrants in certain cases before the police justices and justices of the peace.—In any case where a person has been arrested for a misdemeanor by a police officer of any city or town while in the discharge of his duty as such police officer, it shall not be necessary for any justice of the peace or police justice to issue any warrant for such person, but he shall proceed to try the same without a warrant, unless the person so arrested, in person or by counsel, shall demand that the charges against him be reduced to writing in the form of a warrant. Venable, recorded in the Chancery Court of the city of Richmond, in deed book one hundred and twenty-seven C, page four hundred and seventy-one, together with all the rights reserved in said deed, and the pipes and fixtures for conveying water to that institution, and a certain one-half acre lot at the corner of Byrd and First streets (number seven hundred and thirty), fronting on the west line of First street one hundred and sixty-three feet and four inches, running back on the south side of Byrd street one hundred and thirty feet, it being the lot deeded by Karr's heirs to the Commonwealth, shall remain the property of the Commonwealth for the use of the said penitentiary. Sec. 4994. Penitentiary to be for confinement of State convicts; United States prisoners may be also confined therein; upon what terms.—The penitentiary house shall continue, under the name of "The Penitentiary," to be appropriated to the confinement of convicts sentenced to confinement therein by the courts of this Commonwealth. Persons sentenced to imprisonment by a court of the United States, held in Virginia, for a term of three years or more, may also be confined therein, with the approbation of the superintendent and Governor (which approbation shall be recorded in the entry made upon such convict's admission), and be safely kept and employed, pursuant to the rules of the prison, so far as is not inconsistent with such sentence, until discharged by due course of the laws of the United States: Provided, that the United States shall pay half-yearly, at the rate of thirty cents per day, for the imprisonment and support of every such convict, and proper medical charges. Sec. 4995. Biennial report of its condition.—The condition of the penitentiary shall be examined and reported on biennially by a joint committee of the General Assembly. (Code 1887, § 4112.)

Sec. 4996. Board to prescribe rules, etc.; how posted.—The board, with the approval of the Governor, may, from time to time, prescribe rules, not contrary to law, for the preservation of the property at, and the health of the convicts in, the penitentiary, and the government of the interior thereof. Printed copies of such of the said rules as relate to the government and punishment of the convicts, and of any provisions of law which the said board, with the approval of the Governor, may direct, shall be posted up in at least six conspicuous places of the interior of the penitentiary. (Code 1887, § 4113; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 4997. Record of conviction of convicts and register to be kept.—The clerk of the penitentiary shall file and preserve a copy of the judgment furnished by the clerk of the court of conviction of each convict, and keep a register describing him, the term of his confinement, for what offense, and when received into the institution. (Code 1887, § 4114; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 4998. Appointment of committee of convict's estate.—When a person is convicted of a felony and sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary or to the State convict road force for one year or more his estate, both real and personal, if any he has, shall, on motion of any party interested, be committed by the circuit or corporation court of the county or city in which his estate, or some part thereof is, to a person selected by the court, who after giving bond before the said court, in such penalty as it may prescribe, shall have charge of said estate until the convict is discharged from confinement. (Code 1887, § 4115; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, this section began as follows: "When a person, other than a married woman having no separate estate, is sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary for more than one year, his estate," etc. This language has been changed somewhat. There is no longer need for exceptions in cases of married women. (See chapter 207). The section is applicable where the sentence is for ONE YEAR OR MORE in lieu of MORE THAN ONE YEAR.

Quære, as to whether this section applies to a citizen of this state confined in the penitentiary of another state. Guarantee Co. v. National Bank, 95 Va. 484, 28 S. E. 909.

At common law a person convicted of felony was disabled from suing, but not from being sued. Id.

See notes to section 4999.

Sec. 4999. His powers and liabilities.—Such committee may sue and be sued in respect to all claims or demands of every nature in favor of or against such convict, and any other of the convict's estate, and he shall have the same right of retaining for his own debt as an administrator would have. No action or suit on any such claim or demand shall be instituted by or against such convict after judgment of conviction, and while he is incarcerated.

All actions or suits to which he is a party at the time of his conviction shall be prosecuted or defended, as the case may be, by such committee after ten days' notice of the pendency thereof, which notice shall be given by the clerk of the court in which the same are pending. (Code 1887, § 4116.)

Revisors' Note.—The language of this section has been changed so as to be IN TERMS very much more comprehensive than formerly, and to make statutory the construction put upon the language of the former statute by the case of Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106. The section goes further and prohibits any such action or suit as therein mentioned from being brought by or against the convict after judgment of conviction and WHILE HE IS INCARCERATED. If at the time of conviction he is a party to any action or suit, it is the duty of the clerk to notify his committee and of his committee to prosecute or defend the suit or action. For service of process on convicts in divorce cases, see section 6042. As to powers and duties of committees of insane, epileptic, feeble-minded persons and idiots, see section 1054.

The common law rule permitting suit against a person in confinement under conviction of felony was repealed by implication by chapter 202 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to this chapter), and all suits must now be in the name of his committee. Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106.

Under this section the committee may bring any suit that is necessary for the protection or recovery of the convict's estate, and be sued with respect to any cause of action which may exist with respect to the convict. Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106.

Sec. 5000. Maintenance of convict's family; wife's portion.—The committee shall allow (subject to the claims of creditors) a sufficient maintenance out of the convict's estate, for his wife and family, if any; the wife to be entitled, so long as he is confined, to the profits of such portion of his estate as she would have if he had died intestate. (Code 1887, § 4117.)

Discussed in Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106.

Sec. 5001. Committee to render accounts of his trust; his compensation.—The committee shall render accounts of his trust, and may be made to account therefor; shall be entitled to compensation for his services, and may forfeit his right thereto, in the same manner as if he were administrator or guardian. (Code 1887, § 4118.)

Sec. 5002. Delivery of estate to convict, when discharged.—Every such committee shall deliver such estate, as he is liable for at that time, to the convict on his discharge, or to his real and personal representatives on his death, before being discharged, (Code 1887, § 4119.)

Sec. 5003. When estate committed to sheriff or sergeant.—If any person, so appointed, refuse the trust, or fail to give bond as aforesaid, the court, on like motion, shall commit the estate to the sheriff of the county, or sergeant of the corporation, who shall be Discussed in Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106.

Sec. 5004. When and how real estate of convict sold.—The real estate of such convict may be leased or sold, when necessary for the payment of his debts, in the same manner as the real estate of an insane person in the hands of a committee. And any such real estate or the real estate in which such convict is interested with others, infants or adults, may be sold, exchanged for other real estate, or may be encumbered for the purpose of borrowing money to be used to erect buildings or other improvements on the same, in the same manner as the real estate of an insane person in the hands of a committee. (Code 1887, § 4121; 1908, p. 538.)

Discussed in Merchant v. Shry, 116 Va. 437, 82 S. E. 106.

Sec. 5005. Superintendent to keep account of all expenses incurred in delivering convicts to penitentiary.—The superintendent of the penitentiary shall keep a strict account of all expenditures incurred by extra guard hire and all other expenses such as may be necessary for the safe delivery of said convicts to the prison, and he shall make an annual itemized report of same. (1895-6, p. 859.)

Sec. 5006. How convicts to be treated, when brought to penitentiary.—Every convict, when first brought to the penitentiary, shall be washed, cleaned, and kept in a separate lodging, until the surgeon certifies that he is fit to be put among the other prisoners; and the clothes he wore shall either be destroyed, or purified, and preserved until he is dischargd and then returned to him. (Code 1887, § 4122.)

Sec. 5007. Male prisoners to subscribe to rules, etc.; how refractory, etc., convicts provided for; disposition of insane.—Before any male prisoner shall be permitted to labor in the shops, or elsewhere out of his room, he shall make and subscribe such promise of obedience and fidelity to the rules and orders of the institution, as shall be prescribed by the board and approved by the Governor, and it shall be the duty of the superintendent, as far as practicable, to provide suitable employment in separate rooms for the refractory and obstinate and for those of disordered mind, or who, for any cause, are unfit to be congregated in the shops. If at any time there is reasonable ground to doubt the sanity of a convict, the superintendent shall report it to the Governor, who shall order such convict to be brought before the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond, which is hereby charged with the trial of the fact as to his sanity, by a jury impaneled for that purpose, and if the jury find him insane, he shall be transferred to one of the State hospitals for the insane, as provided in sections one thousand and twenty-two to one thousand and twenty-five, inclusive; and section one thousand and twenty-seven, and when restored to sanity he shall be returned to the penitentiary in the manner prescribed in section four thousand nine hundred and eleven. (Code 1887, § 4123; 1891-2, p. 508; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5008. Males and females to be kept separate; how clothed; infants.—The male and female convicts shall be kept separate from each other, and the males shall have their heads and beards close shaven, or shorn once a fortnight and oftener, if need be. Every convict shall be clothed at the public expense in a distinctive uniform for each sex, made of coarse material. An infant accompanying a convict mother to the penitentiary, or born after her imprisonment therein, shall be returned, on attaining the age of four years, to the county or city from which the mother came, to be disposed of as the circuit court of said county, or the hustings or corporation court of said city, having jurisdiction, may order. (Code 1887, § 4124; 1891-2, p. 509; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Revisors' Note.—For "An act to provide for the disposition of infants of convict mothers," see Acts 1918, chapter 276, p. 457.

Sec. 5009. Labor of convicts.—The convicts shall be kept to the hardest labor suitable to their sex and fitness, and such of them, as need it, instructed in some mechanical art. (Code 1887, § 4125.)

Sec. 5010. Social intercourse, etc., to be regulated by directors.—Social intercourse, conversation, and acquaintance between the convicts, shall be regulated by the board of directors of the penitentiary. (Code 1887, § 4126.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, this section provided that "Social intercourse," etc., "shall be prevented as far as may be, and silence constantly observed by them, as far as possible." The revised section enacts that these matters shall be regulated by the board.

Sec. 5011. Diet of convicts.—The convicts shall be fed on bread of Indian meal, or other coarse bread, and have one meal a day of coarse meat. The board of directors may change or regulate the diet for good cause. (Code 1887, § 4127.)

Sec. 5012. Change of diet by superintendent; police of hospital and cells; rules for employment of convicts, and as to visitors.—The superintendent may, when he deems it necessary, and shall, when the surgeon so advises, change the diet, and adapt it to the health or condition of the convicts or any of them, or he may allow extra diet to those who need it. He shall cause the hospital and all the cells and rooms of the prison to be whitewashed (by convicts qualified for the business) twice a year, or oftener, and the floors to be washed as often only as may be necessary for health and comfort. The board of directors shall prescribe, by rules and regulations, the hours within which the convicts shall be employed at the respective branches of business carried on in the institution, and the time they shall labor in each day, and also the times and conditions upon which persons may visit the interior of the penitentiary. (Code 1887, § 4128.)

Sec. 5013. Privileges for the sick; hospital steward; surgeon to have control of hospital department.—The superintendent may, or, when the surgeon so recommends, shall, allow the convicts at stated times to walk for the benefit of their health, in the yard, but in the presence or view of the superintendent or an assistant. The superintendent shall, on the application of the surgeon, detail from among the convicts one man to act as hospital steward. The surgeon shall have control of the hospital department, and shall have the right to adopt and enforce such sanitary regulations as he may deem necessary, and the board of directors shall approve. (Code 1887, § 4129.)

Sec. 5014. Superintendent may employ convicts in working on public buildings, etc., at Richmond, etc.—The superintendent shall, at the discretion and under the direction of the Governor, employ them at Richmond or elsewhere in the State, in improving, repairing, or working on the public buildings, grounds and property, or cultivating grounds for the use of the penitentiary. (Code 1887, § 4130; 1916, p. 700.)

Sec. 5015. May employ them at Hollywood and Oakwood cemeteries.—He shall have authority to furnish to the Hollywood and Oakwood memorial associations, from time to time, as may be necessary, a sufficient force of convict labor to keep in order the graves and sections wherein are buried the Confederate soldiers of the army of Northern Virginia in said cemeteries. (Code 1887, § 4131.)

Sec. 5016. Directors of penitentiary to make rules and regulations for the safekeeping and conduct of prisoners.—The board of directors of the penitentiary shall make and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper for the safekeeping of the convicts, their food, sleeping apartment, and for the regulation of their general conduct and behavior, and prescribe such punishments for violation of said rules as may seem reasonable and proper, but the punishment when inflicted shall not be cruel or inhuman. (Code 1887, § 4142, 4143; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is based on section 4142 and 4143 of the Code of 1887. The latter section was amended by Acts 1902-3-4, p. 294. The revised section contains the principle enacted by section 5010 above, the revisors being of opinion that larger discretion should be given the board in such matters. It is provided, however, that the punishment when inflicted shall not be cruel or inhuman.

See Acts 1918, p. 474.

Sec. 5017. Record to be kept of conduct of convicts; to have credit for good conduct; record of punishment, etc., of convicts; inspection of same.—The superintendent shall keep a record of the conduct of each convict. and for every month that a convict appears by such record to have faithfully observed the rules and requirements of the prison and not to have been subjected to punishment there shall, with the consent of the Governor, be deducted from the term of service of such convict ten days; but, for any violation of prison rules punishable by stripes, or for escape or attempted escape from custody, the convict found guilty of such violation, or of such escape or attempted escape, shall forfeit all good conduct allowance earned by him up to that time. Every time any convict is punished, the name of the offender, the offense, a full and detailed description of the punishment, the time when the offense was committed, and when punishment inflicted, shall be recorded in a register provided for the purpose. Said register shall be monthly inspected by the board of directors of the penitentiary and examined and reported upon biennially by a joint committee of the General Assembly. (Code 1887, § 4144; 1916, p. 551.)

Revisors' Note.—See Acts 1918, p. 474.

Sec. 5018. Record, etc., to be submitted to Governor.—The superintendent shall submit said record and deduction to the Governor, when required by him, that the same may be considered in the exercise of such executive clemency on behalf of any convict as he may deem conducive to the interest of the prison, and promotive of the reformation and welfare of the convicts. (Code 1887, § 4145.)

Sec. 5019. When term of confinement to commence.—The term of confinement in jail or in the penitentiary for the commission of a crime shall commence and be computed from the date of the judgment, unless such judgment is suspended at the instance of the defendant. (1916, pp. 499, 721.)

Revisors' Note.—The first act cited at the end of this section provided that persons sentenced to confinement in jail or in the penitentiary should have deducted from their terms all time actually spent by them in jail awaiting trial, or pending removal to the penitentiary after trial and sentence, or pending appeal, etc. The second act cited provided for deduction from the term of confinement of persons sentenced to the penitentiary of the number of days such persons may have been held in jail because of quarantinne regulations, etc. The revised section materially changes the first act cited, in that it does not allow credit for time spent in jail awaiting trial, nor for time spent in confinement pending an appeal. The jury, or court trying the case, usually takes into consideration, where it is proper to do so, the length of time the accused has been in jail and there should be no further credit therefor given. The prisoner should not have credit for time spent in jail at his instance. By applying for a writ of error he takes his chances of an affirmance of the judgment, and to allow credit for the time pending an appeal would offer a premium to apply for appeals and in some cases might result in keeping him in jail in idleness during the whole, or a very large part, of the time for which he is sentenced.

Sec. 5020. What to be posted in each cell.—The superintendent shall cause a copy of sections five thousand and sixteen, five thousand and seventeen and five thousand and eighteen to be posted in the cell of each convict. (Code 1887, § 4146.)

Sec. 5021. Allowance to convict on his discharge.—The board, in its discretion, may allow a convict, on his discharge, not exceeding ten dollars. The superintendent shall furnish to convicts, when discharged, proper certificates of transportation to the county or city from which such convict was sent, over any road or transportation line embraced in the schedule furnished by the State Corporation Commission; and, if he need it, a suit of coarse clothing. (Code 1887, § 4147; 1902-3-4, p. 620.)

Sec. 5022. Duty of surgeon to notify superintendent, when absent from Richmond.—The surgeon to the penitentiary shall visit the penitentiary once at least every day, and oftener when there are cases of sickness requiring it, or when he is called on to attend by the superintendent. Before leaving the city of Richmond at any time, he shall notify the superintendent of his intention and the time he expects to be absent, and what physician may be called on to officiate for him in his absence. The surgeon shall render to the convicts all surgical and medical aid which may be requisite. (Code 1887, §§ 4148, 4149.)

Sec. 5023. Hospital room; hospital record.—A room suitable for the purpose shall be set apart, in which sick convicts shall be kept, when the surgeon so prescribes. There shall be a book in which shall be entered the name of each convict put in the hospital, and the time that he goes in and comes out of it. (Code 1887, § 4150.)

Sec. 5024. Weekly examination of hospital; annual report of directors.—One of the directors, in such order as the board may direct, shall once a week visit the hospital with the superintendent, and the two shall make a report of the treatment and condition of the sick. The annual report of the board shall show the condition of the health of the convicts. It shall state the number in the hospital every month from each ward, the disease of each person put in the hospital, and the number of deaths in each ward. (Code 1887, § 4151.)

Sec. 5025. Who may enter interior of penitentiary; visitors not to converse with convicts.—The Governor, members of the General Assembly, ministers of any religious denomination for performing religious service, and the officers and others having duties or business therein may go into the interior of the penitentiary. Any person who shall obtain a permit to do so from the Governor may also visit the same. The board of directors shall prescribe the time and conditions on which all other persons may enter the interior of the penitentiary. There shall be no conversation between a visitor and a convict unless special license therefor be given by the Governor or superintendent. (Code 1887, § 4152; 1891-2, p. 509.)

Sec. 5026. How board of directors may apply means of penitentiary.—The board of directors may apply the means of the institution to repair and enlarge the shops, and increase the number of cells when required. They shall cause to be done in the penitentiary any work which can be done therein, towards effecting the improvements or repairs mentioned in section five thousand and fourteen. (Code 1887, § 4153.)

Sec. 5027. Meeting of board; quorum; their duties and powers; when board may remove superintendents, etc., and appoint successors.—A majority of the directors shall constitute a quorum. They shall meet regularly once a week at the penitentiary and quarterly at the prison farm, and at the first meeting in each month at the penitentiary the respective superintendents shall submit their reports, and they may meet at such other times as the respective superintendents may request or any three of the directors may think necessary. It shall be their duty once in three months to inspect the penitentiary and prison farm and make a report of their condition to the Governor, which report shall embrace a synopsis of the monthly reports of the superintendents for the three months preceding said inspection. It shall also embrace a statement of the institutions as to health and general management, and such other matters as may seem to them of sufficient interest to be contained therein; and especially shall they report at any time any malfeasance in office, or manifest incompetency in the discharge of their duties, on the part of the superintendent or any other officer.

The board shall investigate any misbehavior, incapacity, neglect of official duty, or acts performed without authority of law, on the part of the superintendents or surgeons, and if in their judgment there be sufficient cause therefor, they shall forthwith remove the said officer, and at once appoint a successor to fill the unexpired term.

Said board shall have a general supervision over the penitentiary, prison farm, and the officers thereof, and see that the laws for their government are observed.

The respective superintendents, for good cause, shall remove all other officers and employees of the penitentiary and prison farm, and fill their unexpired terms, subject to the approval of the board of directors. (Code 1887, § 4154; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5028. Power of board in investigating; duty of clerk; how witness paid.—When an investigation is ordered by the board as to a matter concerning the penitentiary, or the conduct of persons connected therewith, the clerk of the penitentiary, by order of the board, may issue a summons, directed to the sheriff of the county of Henrico, or to the sheriff or sergeant of the city of Richmond, commanding him to summon any person to attend at the penitentiary on a certain day, to give evidence before the board, and may administer an oath to such person. The board shall have like powers, under sections sixty-two hundred and twenty and sixty-two hundred and twenty-one, as if it was a court whose clerk had issued the summons. And the clerk of the penitentiary shall make such entry as would, under section thirty-five hundred and twenty-nine, if the attendance was before a court, be made by the clerk thereof. The sum to which the witness is entitled shall be paid out of the funds of the institution. (Code 1887, § 4155; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5029. Annual inventory.—Three or more of the directors shall, at the end of each fiscal year, attend the taking of the inventories of the goods and stock on hand at the penitentiary and prison farm. (Code 1887, § 4156; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5030. Annual report of board to be laid before General Assembly.—The board shall annually, before the first of October, make a report to the Governor, to be laid before the General Assembly, showing the expense to the State of the penitentiary and prison farm for the previous fiscal year, and their condition at the end of such year, the manner in which the rules have been executed, and their effect, and making any proper suggestions as to the discipline and organization of the penitentiary and prison farm. (Code 1887, § 4157; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5031. Clerk of penitentiary; his duties.—The clerk of the penitentiary shall keep the journal of the board of directors, record their proceedings as they may direct, and copy such papers as they or the superintendent may order. He shall attend at the penitentiary daily, and compare the ward and delivery books, and see that the entries therein are correctly made. He shall keep regular books of account, exhibiting the proper receipts and disbursements of the institution, make the tables and documents accompanying the reports of the superintendent, and perform all duties required by the rules of the institution, or the orders of the board or superintendent. (Code 1887, § 4158.)

Sec. 5032. Directors of the penitentiary to employ assistant clerks when needed, or to apportion the clerical work of the penitentiary among those now employed; compensation.—The superintendent is hereby authorized, with the approval of the board of directors of the penitentiary, to employ such assistant clerks as the needs of the service may require, or he may apportion the clerical work of the penitentiary among those now employed, regulating their compensation therefor, but the same shall in no case exceed the amount appropriated for that purpose. (1899-00, p. 1238; 1902-3-4, p. 248.)

Revisors' Note.—In addition to slight changes in phraseology, the second proviso of the act last cited at the end of this section has been omitted. This subject is governed by the provisions of the general appropriation bill.

Sec. 5033. Where superintendent may reside, his fuel, etc.; his duties.—The superintendent may reside in one of the dwelling houses on the penitentiary grounds fronting on Belvidere street, and shall be allowed his fuel, water, and gas. He shall be the chief executive officer of the penitentiary, and shall direct its internal police and management, subject to the control of the board of directors. The assistant superintendent may reside in the other of the two houses on said ground, and shall be allowed his fuel, water, and gas. (Code 1887, § 4159; 1891-2, p. 509; 1902-3-4, p. 299.)

Sec. 5035. (1901, p. 311.)

Sec. 5037. Moneys received to be paid into treasury; how paid out.—He shall, at the end of each month, or oftener if the board direct, pay all money received by him into the treasury to the credit of the penitentiary fund, and the same shall be paid out on the order of the superintendent, approved by the board. (Code 1887, § 4164.)

Revisors' Note.—This section was section 4164 of the Code of 1887, but it appears in Acts 1891-2, p. 510, as section 4163. It was repealed by Acts 1902-3-4, p. 685. It is not believed that this repeal was intentional. As found in this Code it is identical with section 4163 of Acts 1891-2, p. 510. The only change made by the act last cited was to insert the words, "or oftener if the board direct."

Sec. 5038. Annual general account of superintendent; how made up; what to show.—The Superintendent of the Penitentiary shall, at the end of each fiscal year, state a general account between the State and the penitentiary for such year, charging the latter with the value of the tools, machinery, fixtures, and materials on hand at the commencement of the year; the rations furnished for the convicts; the salaries of all the officers, and all the contingent expenses of the penitentiary; and crediting it with the work and repairs done by the convicts on the prison and other public property; other work of the convicts; the clothing furnished the convicts; and the value of the tools, machinery, fixtures, and materials on hand at the end of the year; with all other debits and credits necessary to show a true account of the institution with the State. (Code 1887, § 4165.)

Sec. 5039. To be examined etc., by directors.—The said account shall be laid before the board of directors, and, when approved by them and balanced, be made a part of their annual report. (Code 1887, § 4166.)

Sec. 5040. Employment of guard; their number and duties; how dismissed; right of guard and officers to carry weapons; absentees, etc.—The Superintendent of the Penitentiary may employ a guard not exceeding forty-nine persons as the exterior and interior guard of the penitentiary, who shall each take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of his office, and shall perform such duties as the superintendent, subject to the control of the board, may direct. Any person so employed may be dismissed from service by the superintendent, with the approval of the board. It shall be lawful for any officer or guard to carry sufficient weapons to prevent escapes, suppress rebellion, and for self-defense, and to use the same against any convict for such purpose. The superintendent may adopt regulations, approved by the board, under which leave of absence may be granted to an officer, keeper, or member of the guard. If any absentee furnishes satisfactory evidence to the superintendent that his absence was unavoidable from sickness, his full pay may continue during such absence, not exceeding twenty days in any one year, and beyond that time at the rate of fifteen dollars per month, not exceeding three months. (Code 1887, § 4167; 1891-2, p. 510; 1893-4, p. 929; 1902-3-4, p. 299.)

And each guard employed at the prison farm shall have during the year fifteen days' vacation, without deduction of pay, to be on consecutive days, or at stated periods, in the discretion of the superintendent of the prison farm. (Code 1887, § 4168; 1899-00, p. 930; 1901-2, p. 362; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Sec. 5042. Convicts employed outside of penitentiary to be guarded.—While the convicts are employed in any work on the public grounds, or property outside of the penitentiary, they shall be attended by a sufficient guard, detailed therefor by the superintendent, and be subject to his orders. (Code 1887, § 4169.)

Sec. 5043. Reward for convict escaping; how paid.—If any convict escape from the penitentiary, or from the custody of the superintendent, he may offer a reward for the apprehension and redelivery of such convict, not exceeding five hundred dollars; one-half thereof to be paid by the institution, and the other by the superintendent, his assistants, and the interior guard, in proportion to the amount of their salaries. (Code 1887, § 4170.)

Sec. 5044. Who not entitled to it.—None of said officers shall be entitled to any such reward or any part of it, unless expressly authorized by the superintendent. (Code 1887, § 4171.)

Sec. 5045. Tasking convicts; how compensation for work done beyond task fixed and paid.—The superintendent, with the consent and advice of the board, may establish a system of tasking the convicts in the different wards of the penitentiary, when it can be done, and allow to any convict a reasonable compensation for work done beyond his task, which shall be placed to his credit, and paid to him when he is discharged from prison; or, if he request that a portion, or all of it, be paid to his family or near relatives, the superintendent may do so at any time during his imprisonment; or, if he so desire, it may be paid to him, from time to time, in provisions or other articles selected from a standing list, to be prepared by the superintendent, and approved by the board, said articles to be purchased by the superintendent, as provided in section five thousand and thirty-five and charged to the convicts at cost. The amount to be allowed for work done shall be fixed by the superintendent, with the approval of the board. (Code 1887, § 4173; 1891-2, p. 511; 1902-3-4, p. 294.)

Revisors' Note.—See Acts 1918, p. 474.

Sec. 5046. Convict in the penitentiary whose term expires on Sunday or legal holiday discharged on the preceding day.—Whenever the term of any convict in the penitentiary of Virginia shall expire on Sunday or any legal holiday, the Superintendent of the Penitentiary shall have authority to discharge this convict on the day immediately preceding said Sunday or legal holiday. (1899-00, p. 293; 1901-2, p. 567.)

Sec. 5047. Penitentiary farm.—There shall be a surgeon for the penitentiary farm appointed by the board, whose compensation shall be at the rate of fifty dollars per month and board for himself and horse. A superintendent appointed by the board, whose compensation shall be one thousand dollars per annum and board for himself and family, and who shall have charge of the cultivation of the farm, and shall perform such other duties as may be assigned him, all under the direction of the board. The said superintendent, subject to the approval of the board, shall appoint and may remove such guards as may be necessary, whose compensation shall be thirty dollars per month and their board. The pay of the said superintendent, surgeon and guards shall be monthly upon the certificate of the superintendent, on warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts. All laws for the government of the penitentiary shall be in force on said farm, so far as applicable, and the same discipline enforced there as in the penitentiary. The said superintendent shall, at the end of each fiscal year, take an inventory and make out a general account between the State and farm for such year, charging the latter with the value of the stock, tools, implements, materials and supplies, including provisions and clothing on hand at the commencement of the year, and the cost of the same bought during the year, the salaries of officers and guards and all other expenses of the farm; and crediting it with work done by the convicts on the buildings and permanent fixtures on the farm, the value of the stock, tools, implements, etc., on hand at the end of the year, the value of all products furnished the penitentiary, all moneys received for the sale of such products and all other debits and credits necessary to show a true account of the farm with the State. All costs of lease, erection of buildings and other expenses of said farm, not otherwise provided for, shall be paid out of the net earnings of the penitentiary, by warrants drawn on the treasurer, upon the order of the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, approved by the board. (1893-4, p. 556; 1902-3-4, p. 247; 1908, p. 659.)

Sec. 5048. Raising and training of bloodhounds for police purposes.—It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of the Penitentiary to procure, upon the most advantageous terms possible, one male and two female bloodhounds of suitable breed, which he shall keep on the penitentiary farm for breeding purposes. He shall have them and their progeny properly cared for and trained to track criminals. He shall, upon the order of the circuit court or board of supervisors of any county, or upon the like order of the corporation court, or the council of any city, furnish to the sheriff of such county, or to the sergeant of such city, free of charge, such bloodhounds as may be necessary and can be safely spared from said farm. The expense of transporting such bloodhounds shall be borne by the county or city ordering them. Whenever the supply of such bloodhounds shall exceed the demand for the same under the foregoing provisions of this section, the superintendent is authorized to sell the surplus ones to other parties, and he shall account for the revenue derived therefrom as part of the annual revenues of the penitentiary fund. (1902-3-4, p. 235; 1910, p. 331.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the two acts cited. The revised section is intended to make clear who has the right to demand the hounds, and to show that they are intended for permanent use.

For note of case upon admissibility of evidence of the fact that bloodhounds went from the scene of the crime to the defendant's home, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 430.

It has been decided in a number of cases that bloodhound evidence is admissible under proper conditions. See Richardson v. State, 145 Ala. 46, 41 So. 82; Pedigo v. Com., 103 Ky. 41, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 1723, 44 S. W. 143, 82 Am. St. Rep. 566, 42 L. R. A. 432; Denham v. Com., 119 Ky. 508, 27 Ky. L. Rep. 171, 84 S. W. 538; Baum v. State, 27 Ohio Cir. Ct. Rep. 569; Parker v. State, 46 Tex. Crim. 461; 3 Ann. Cas. 893, 80 S. W. 1008, 108 Am. St. Rep. 1021.

But in order that such testimony be admissible there must be preliminary proof of such character as to show that reliance may reasonably be placed upon the accuracy of the trailing attempted to be proved. Davis v. State, 46 Fla. 137, 35 So. 76.

But see Brott v. State, 70 Neb. 395, 97 N. W. 593, 63 L. R. A. 789, and article entitled, "Bloodhound Evidence." Law notes, April 1914, p. 3.

For rules as to the admissibility of bloodhound evidence, see Spears v. State, 92 Miss. 613; State v. Adams, 85 Kan. 435, 116 Pac. 608, 35 L. R. A. (N. S.) 870; State v. Freeman, 146 N. C. 615, 60 S. E. 986.

Crimes by Convicts.

5049.	What acts committed by a convict confined in the penitentiary or being in custody of an officer thereof, amount to felony.	5050.	What conspiracy by convicts a felony.

Sec. 5049. What acts committed by a convict confined in the penitentiary or being in custody of an officer thereof, amount to felony.—A convict confined in the penitentiary, or in custody of an officer thereof, shall be deemed guilty of felony if he kill, wound, or inflict other bodily injury upon an officer or guard of the penitentiary; or escape from the penitentiary or such custody; or break, cut, or injure any building, fixture, or fastening of the penitentiary, or any part thereof, for the purpose of escaping or aiding any other convict to escape therefrom, or rendering the penitentiary less secure as a place of confinement; or make, procure, secrete, or have in his possession, any instrument, tool, or thing for the said purpose, or with intent to kill, wound, or inflict bodily injury as aforesaid; or resist the lawful authority of an officer or guard of the penitentiary for the said purpose, or with such intent. (Code 1887, § 4174.)

A convict is, until the time of his imprisonment has expired or he has been pardoned, in contemplation of law, in the penitentiary, though he may have been hired out to work on a railroad or the like in a distant county, and the laws relating to convicts in the pentitentiary apply to him. Ruffin's Case, 21 Grat. 790. See section 5053.

The principles of the Bill of Rights have reference to freemen, and not to convicted felons. Ruffin's Case, 21 Grat. 790.

A convicted felon has only such rights as statutes may give him. Id.

See Ryan's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 467.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 164, section 1.

Sec. 5050. What conspiracy by convicts, a felony.—Any three or more convicts so confined, or in such custody, who conspire together to commit any offense mentioned in the preceding section, shall be deemed guilty each of felony. (Code 1887, § 4175.)

Sec. 5051. Punishment for said offenses.—A convict guilty of such killing as is mentioned in section five thousand and forty-nine, or of any act therein mentioned, from which death ensues to such officer or guard, shall be punished with death. For any other offense mentioned in either of the two preceding sections, a convict, unless he be under a sentence of confinement for life, shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years after the end of the term for which he shall then be subject to confinement. If he be under sentence for life, he shall be kept in solitary confinement not exceeding ten days each month for such length of time as the board of directors of the penitentiary shall determine. (Code 1887, § 4176.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence changes the latter part of the section as it stood before the revision. That part read as follows: "and, whether he be under such sentence for life or not, he shall be kept in solitary confinement for such portion of the term of his confinement in the penitentiary as may be fixed by the jury, not being more than one-half nor less than one-twelfth part of the time that he may be confined therein, after being sentenced under this chapter, which solitary confinement may commence immediately on his being so sentenced, but shall not exceed a month at any one time." This change was made necessary because if the prisoner is serving a life sentence, the proportion of his confinement as required by the words quoted could not be arrived at.

The provisions of this statute apply to convicts, wherever the crime may be committed. Ruffin's Case, 21 Grat. 790.

Sec. 5052. If convict commit any other felony, how punished.—If a convict in the penitentiary commit any felony, (other than is provided for in the three preceding sections), which is punishable by confinement therein or with death, he shall suffer the same punishment as if he had been discharged before committing it. (Code 1887, § 4178.)

CHAPTER 202.

Proceedings in Criminal Cases Against Convicts.

Sec.
5053. Jurisdiction for trial of convicts.
5054. When a convict who has been before sentenced to the penitentiary, has not been sentenced to additional term of confinement, what superintendent to do.
5055. Proceedings for trial of offenses committed in penitentiary may be at regular or special term.
5056. Issue of process; how grand jury selected and summoned.
5057. Duty of judge, when indictment found.
5058. Proceedings same as in trial of other felonies.

Sec. 5053. Jurisdiction for trial of convicts.—All criminal proceedings against convicts in the penitentiary shall be in the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond; but when convicts are employed upon any work of public or private improvement in any county in the State the criminal proceedings against them may be in the circuit court of the county in which the convict is so employed or in the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond. (Code 1887, § 4179; 1887-8, p. 521; 1893-4, p. 734; 1902-3-4, p. 686.)

This section held constitutional and valid in King v. Lynn. 90 Va. 345, 18 S. E. 439.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 165, section 1.

Sec. 5054. When a convict who has been before sentenced to the penitentiary has not been sentenced to additional term of confinement; what superintendent to do.—When a person convicted of an offense, and sentenced to confinement therefor in the penitentiary, is received therein, if it shall come to the knowledge of the Superintendent of the Penitentiary that he has been sentenced to a like punishment in the United States prior to the sentence he is then serving, the superintendent shall give information thereof without delay to the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond. The said court shall cause the convict to be brought before it, to be tried upon an information filed, setting forth the several records of convictions and alleging the identity of the prisoner with the person named in each. The prisoner may deny the existence of any such records, or that he is the same person named therein, or both. Either party may, for good cause shown, have a continuance of the case for such reasonable time as may be fixed by the court. The existence of such records, if denied by the prisoner, shall be first determined by the court, and if it be found by the court that such records exist, and the prisoner say that he is not the same person mentioned in such records, or remains silent, his plea, or the fact of his silence, shall be entered of record, and a jury of bystanders shall be impaneled to inquire whether the convict is the same person mentioned in the several records. If they find that he is not the same person, he shall be remanded to the penitentiary; but if they find that he is the same person, or if he acknowledge in open court, after being duly cautioned, that he is the same person, the court may sentence him to further confinement in the penitentiary for a period of not exceeding five years, if he has been once before sentenced in the United States to confinement in the penitentiary; but if he has been twice sentenced in the United States to such confinement, he may be sentenced to be confined in the penitentiary for such additional time as the court trying the case may deem proper. This section, however, shall not apply to successive convictions of petit larceny. (Code 1887, § 3905, 3906, 4177, 4180, 4181, 4182, 4183; 1916, pp. 34, 35.)

Revisors' Note.—This section takes the place of section 3905 and 3906 of the Code of 1887, as amended by Acts 1916, pp. 34, 35, and sections 4177, 4180, 4181, 4182 and 4183 of the former Code. The revised section makes one material change in the law. Under it the subject of prior conviction cannot be made a matter of inquiry on the trial of the principal offense. ALL proceedings are to be had in the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond. It seemed to the revisors unfair to the prisoner, when on trial for a felony, to prejudice his case by alleging and proving on that trial a former conviction at another time and place. The revised section gives the convict an opportunity to deny the existence of the records upon which he is charged. As to successive convictions of petit larceny, see section 4785.

In proceedings under this section the continuance of the case at several successive terms, in the absence and without the consent of the convict, furnishes no ground of objection to the judgment. Brooks' Case, 2 Rob. 845.

The cumulative punishment provided by sections 3905 and 3906 of the Code of 1887 for habitual offenders was held to apply solely to cases where the accused was indicted and prosecuted for offenses punishable by confinement in the penitentiary and not to indictments and prosecutions for capital felonies. Wright's Case, 109 Va. 847, 65 S. E. 19; criticized 15 Va. Law Reg. 328.

As to identity of persons in criminal cases, see note Va. Rep. Anno., 2 Rob. 842 (bottom paging); also Nicholas' Case, 91 Va. 751, 21 S. E. 364; McBride's Case, 95 Va. 818, 30 S. E. 454; Smith's Case, 21 Grat. 809; Hopper's Case, 6 Grat. 684; Waller's Case, 84 Va. 492, 5 S. E. 364.

For cases under the former law, see Rand's Case, 9 Grat. 738; Edwards' Case, 78 Va. 39, 49 Am. Rep. 377; White's Case, 79 Va. 611; Wright's Case, supra.

This section does not apply to successive convictions of petit larceny. See last sentence thereof. See section 4785; Stover's Case, 92 Va. 780, 22 S. E. 874, 1 Va. L. Reg. 601, 607, and note.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 165, sections 2 and 3.

Sec. 5055. Proceedings for trial of offenses committed in penitentiary may be at regular or special term.—Upon a complaint in writing, and under oath, presented to the said circuit court, or the judge thereof in vacation, that any convict in the penitentiary has committed an offense punishable under chapter two hundred and one, proceedings may be had for the said offense, either at a regular term of the court, or at a special term, to be appointed by its order, or by a warrant of the judge, directed to the clerk of the court, who shall give notice of such special term to the attorney for the Commonwealth and other officers of the court. (Code 1887, § 4184.)

Sec. 5056. Issue of process; how grand jury selected and summoned.—The clerk shall issue all necessary process; and a special grand jury shall be summoned by the officer of the court, from a list of names furnished by the judge thereof, to attend at the time appointed in such warrant, or at such other time as the court may direct. (Code 1887, § 4185.)

In trial of a convict, hired by railroad from the Governor under act of Assembly, April 23, 1870, for a crime committed in Bath county, where he was working for said railroad, the circuit court of Richmond refused to remand him to Bath county for trial, or to send to said county for jury to try him. Not error. Ruffin's Case, 21 Grat. 790, 798. See notes to sections 5049, 5051.

Sec. 5057. Duty of judge, when indictment found.—The judge of said court, when an indictment is found aganist the convict, shall issue a warrant to the superintendent, to bring him before the court, as well as any other persons confined in the penitentiary, who are required as witnesses on either side, and cause a venire facias to issue for his trial. (Code 1887, § 4186.)

Sec. 5058. Proceedings same as in trial of other felonies.—The proceedings, trial, and judgment shall be had, pronounced, and executed as in other cases of prosecutions for offenses punishable with death, or confinement in the penitentiary. (Code 1887, § 4187.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, this section began as follows: "In any such prosecution, any convict in the penitentiary shall be a competent witness for or against the accused." As conviction of crime no longer affects the competency of witnesses, this sentence has been omitted. See section 4779. The exception at the end of the section as it appears in the Code of 1887 has been omitted in view of sections 4941 to 4946 of this Code.

TITLE 44.

Fugitives from Justice, and the Governor's Authority in Criminal Cases.

CHAPTER 203.

Extradition of Fugitives from Justice from Foreign Nations and Other States; and the Governor's Authority to Offer Rewards for Arrests, Grant Pardons, Commute Capital Punishment, and Remit Fines.

Sec.
5059. Governor to surrender fugitive from foreign nation on requisition of President of United States.
5060. Discretion in Governor to deliver fugitive without such requisition; when delivery made; what evidence required; how expense defrayed.
5061. Surrender of fugitives from other States.
5062. When a justice may issue warrant of arrest; where officer may execute it; before whom accused to be brought.
5063. Proceeding before the justice after arrest.
5064. The justice to inform Governor; his duty.
5065. If accused appear before the court as ordered, he shall be discharged, unless, etc.; when and by whom he may be retaken into custody.
5066. Complainant liable for costs, etc.; jailor, if not paid, may discharge accused.
5067. When fugitive to be detained here.
5068. Rewards for arrest of persons convicted of or charged with offenses.
5069. Power of Governor to pardon; commutation of capital punishment.
5070. To whom return on warrant of Governor to be made.

Sec. 5059. Governor to surrender fugitive from foreign nation on requisition of President of United States.—The Governor shall whenever required by the executive authority of the United States, pursuant to the Constitution and laws thereof, deliver over to justice any person found within the State, who is charged with having committed any crime without the jurisdiction of the United States. (Code 1887, § 4188.)

Sec. 5060. Discretion in Governor to deliver fugitive without such requisition; when delivery made; what evidence required; how expense defrayed.—The Governor, though not so required, may, in his discretion, deliver over to justice any person found within the State, who is charged with having committed, without the jurisdiction of the United States, any crime, except treason, which by the laws of this State, if committed therein, is punishable with death or confinement in the penitentiary; such delivery shall only be made on the requisition of the duly authorized officers or agents of the government, within the jurisdiction of which the crime is charged to have been committed; and the Governor shall require such evidence of the guilt of the person so charged, as would be necessary to justify his apprehension and commitment for trial had the crime charged been committed within this State. The expense of apprehension and delivery shall be defrayed by those to whom the delivery is made. (Code 1887, § 4189.)

Sec. 5061. Surrender of fugitives from other States.—Any person charged in another State of this Union with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found within this State, shall on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, made in the manner prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States, be delivered up, according to the said Constitution and laws, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime. (Code 1887, § 4190.)

As to the defense in extradition proceedings that the person charged with the crime was insane and therefore incapable of committing the crime, see Editorial 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 229.

Sec. 5062. When a justice may issue warrant of arrest; where officer may execute it; before whom accused to be brought.—Whenever any person is found within this State, charged with treason, felony, or misdemeanor, committed in any other State, any justice may, upon complaint on oath, or other satisfactory evidence, that such person committed the offense, issue a warrant to bring the person so charged before the same or some other justice within the State: and the officer, to whom such warrant is directed, may execute the same in any county or corporation in the State, and bring the party, when arrested, before any justice of the same or any other county or corporation. (Code 1887, § 4191.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or misdemeanor" found in line three of the text, are used in lieu of "or other crime." This eliminates any question as to the character of the "other crime."

Sec. 5063. Proceeding before the justice after arrest.—When any person shall have been arrested and brought before a justice, under the provisions of the preceding section, and it shall appear to the justice before whom the person charged is brought that there is reasonable cause to believe that the complaint is true, he shall, if he would have been bailable by a justice, in case the offense had been committed in this State, be required to enter into a recognizance, with sufficient surety, in a reasonable sum, to appear before the circuit court of the county, or the corporation court of the city, of the justice before whom he is brought, on the first day of the next term thereof, or at a future day of said term, or at a future day before the judge of said circuit or corporation court in vacation, allowing a reasonable time to obtain the warrant of the executive and to abide the order of the court, and if such person do not enter into such recognizance, he shall be committed to jail, and be there detained until the day named by the said justice in his warrant of commitment, when he shall be brought before the court or judge, which date shall be put in the mittimus when said party is committed to jail. The recognizance, if any, together with the warrant and proceedings thereon, shall be returned to the clerk of said court without delay, and if the prisoner has been held to appear before the judge of the court in vacation, the clerk shall immediately notify said judge, but if he is held to the first day of the next term of the court, or to any future day of said term, the clerk shall docket said case at the head of the criminal docket, and if the person entering into the recognizance fail to appear according to the conditions thereof, his default shall be entered of record, and like proceedings be had as in cases of other recognizance entered into before a justice; but if such person would not have been bailable by a justice in case the offense had been committed in this State, he shall be committed to jail, and there detained until the day so appointed for his appearance before the said court, or judge thereof in vacation, and like proceedings thereon shall be had as is hereinbefore provided, where he is committed for failing to give bail. (Code 1887, § 4192.)

Revisors' Note.—The revised section enters more into detail in dealing with the duties of justices than was formerly the case. This is done because before the revision many justices simply sent the alleged fugitive to jail after arrest for an unlimited period. The revised section does not limit the justice in the time for which the person shall be committed, but provides that a REASONABLE TIME shall be allowed to obtain the warrant of the executive of the foreign state. This reasonable time would vary according to the distance of the foreign state from Virginia. The section also confers powers upon the judge of the circuit or corporation court in vacation, and imposes certain duties on the clerk. The object of the revised section is to accelerate the handling of this class of cases as much as possible.

Sec. 5064. The justice to inform Governor; his duty.—The justice, by whom such person is so recognized or committed, shall immediately, by letter, apprise the Governor of the fact, who shall thereupon communicate the same to the executive of the State, where the crime is charged to have been committed. (Code 1887, § 4193.)

Sec. 5065. If accused appear before the court as ordered, he shall be discharged, unless, etc.; when and by whom he may be retaken into custody.—If the person so recognized or committed, shall appear before the court on the day ordered, he shall be discharged, unless he shall be demanded by some person authorized by the warrant of the Governor to receive him, or unless the court see cause to commit him, or to require him to enter into a new recognizance for his appearance on some other day; and if, when ordered, he do not enter into such recognizance, he shall be committed and detained as before. But whether the person so charged shall be recognized, committed, or discharged, any person authorized by the warrant of the Governor may, at all times, take him into custody, and the same shall be a discharge of the recognizance, if any, and shall not be deemed an escape. (Code 1887, § 4194.)

Sec. 5066. Complainant liable for costs, etc.; jailor, if not paid, may discharge accused.—The complainant in such case shall be answerable for all the actual costs and charges, and for the support in jail of any person so committed, and if the charge for his support in jail shall not be paid, the jailor may discharge him. (Code 1887, § 4195.)

Sec. 5067. When fugitive to be detained here.—No person under prosecution for any offense, alleged to be committed within this State, shall be delivered up to the executive authority of another State, or of the United States, until such prosecution shall have been determined, and the person prosecuted shall have been punished, if condemned; nor shall any person, under recognizance to appear as a witness in any such prosecution, be so delivered up, until said prosecution be determined. Nor shall any person, who was in custody upon any execution, or upon process in any suit, at the time of his arrest for a crime charged to have been committed without the jurisdiction of this State, be so delivered up, without the consent of the plaintiff in such execution or suit, until the amount of such execution shall have been paid, or until such person shall be otherwise discharged from such execution or process. (Code 1887, § 4196.)

Sec. 5068. Rewards for arrest of persons convicted of or charged with offenses.—The Governor may offer a reward for apprehending and securing any person convicted of an offense or charged therewith, who shall have escaped from prison, or for apprehending and securing any person charged with an offense, who, there is reason to fear, cannot be arrested in the common course of proceeding. But no such reward shall be paid to any sheriff, sergeant, or other officer who arrests such person by virtue of any process in his hands to be executed. The Governor may also offer a reward for the detection and conviction of the person guilty of an offense, when such offense has been committed, but the person guilty thereof is unknown. (Code 1887, § 4197.)

The Legislature has not by general laws conferred the power to offer rewards for arrest of persons convicted of or charged with an offense upon municipalities (Winchester v. Redmond, 93 Va. 711, 717, 25 S. E. 1001, 58 Am. St. Rep. 822); nor upon the city of Winchester by charter (Id.).

Cited but not construed Buek v. Nance, 112 Va. 28, 70 S. E. 515.

Sec. 5069. Power of Governor to pardon; commutation of capital punishment.—The Governor shall not grant a pardon in any case before conviction. In any case in which he shall exercise the power conferred on him by the Constitution to commute capital punishment, he may issue his order to the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, requiring him to receive and confine (and the superintendent shall receive and confine) in the penitentiary, according to such order, the person whose punishment is commuted. To carry into effect any commutation of punishment, the Governor may issue his warrant directed to any proper officer; and the same shall be obeyed and executed. (Code 1887, § 4198.)

Digitized by Google

Conditional pardon—Authority of the Governor.—The Governor of Virginia has authority under the Constitution to grant a conditional pardon to a prisoner convicted of a felony. Const., section 73.

Kind of condition.—The condition annexed to a pardon must not be impossible, immoral, or illegal; but it may, with the consent of the prisoner, be any punishment recognized by statute, or by common law as enforced in this state. Lee v. Murphy, 22 Grat. 789, 12 Am. Rep. 563.

Conditional pardon—Substituting less for greater punishment—Consent of prisoner.—Though the warrant of the Governor speaks of commuting the punishment, yet if it substitutes a less for a greater punishment, and is intended to be done and is done with the consent of the prisoner, it will be considered a pardon, and not a commutation of the punishment. Lee v. Murphy, 22 Grat. 789, 12 Am. Rep. 563.

Commutation—Conditional pardon.—In this state the executive is only authorized to commute capital punishment, whereas he may grant conditional pardons in all cases legally involving an exercise of the pardoning power. Lee v. Murphy, 22 Grat. 789, 798, 12 Am. Rep. 563.

Governor may pardon after verdict and before judgment.—Under a constitutional provision exactly the same as in Const. 1902, section 73, it was held that the Governor had authority to pardon a person convicted of a felony by the verdict of the jury, before sentence was passed upon him by the court. Blair's Case, 25 Grat. 850.

Pardon remitting imprisonment, but not fine.—Under Code of 1860, it was held that the Governor had no authority to remit a fine of prisoner convicted of a misdemeanor, who was fined and sentenced to four months' imprisonment in jail. The effect of a pardon was to remit the four months' imprisonment, but it did not affect the remaining part of the judgment, and he may be taken in execution by a capias pro fine. Wilkerson v. Allan, 23 Grat. 10, 20.

Sec. 5070. To whom return on warrant of Governor to be made.—Any officer, to whom any order or warrant of the Governor is directed, shall make return thereof to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who shall preserve the same in his office. (Code 1887, § 4201.)

Sec. 5071. A license required for every marriage; how marriage solemnized.—Every marriage in this State shall be under a license and solemnized in the manner herein provided. (Code 1887, § 2222.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the first few words of section 2222 of the Code of 1887, without change. For residue of that section, as enlarged, see section 5082.

Statute mandatory.—No marriage or attempted marriage, if it took place in this state, can be held valid here unless shown to have been under a license and solemnized according to our statute. The language of the statute is mandatory, and not merely directory. Offield v. Davis, 100 Va. 250, 40 S. E. 910. For criticism of this opinion, see 8 Va. Law Reg. 40; also for adverse view, see 6 Va. Law Reg. 437, 511, 598, 609; also, Conston v. Quander, 1 Va. Dec. 283. See revisors' note to section 5082.

Sec. 5072. By whom license to be issued.—Every license for a marriage shall be issued by the clerk of the circuit court of the county, or of the corporation court of the city in which the female to be married usually resides, or his deputy; and in case she is not a resident of the State, then by the clerk of the circuit court of the county or of the corporation court of the city in which the marriage is to be solemnized, or his deputy; or, if the office of the clerk be vacant, or if from any cause neither the clerk nor his deputy is able to issue the license, it may be issued by the judge of the circuit court of such county, or of the corporation court of such city, who shall make return thereof to the clerk as soon as there may be one. (Code 1887, § 2216; 1895-6, p. 104; 1902-3-4, p. 662.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the first part of section 2216 as found in Acts 1902-3-4, p. 662, with the changes hereinafter mentioned. While there is a general statute (section 2701) allowing deputy clerks to discharge any of the official duties of their principals unless it be some duty the performance of which by a deputy is expressly forbidden by law, it was deemed expedient in this instance to provide specially that the license may be issued by a deputy clerk.

Before the revision it was provided that "if the office of the clerk be vacant, or if from any cause the clerk is unable to issue the license," it may be issued "by the judge of the circuit court of such county, OR THE MAYOR OF SUCH CORPORATION," etc. The capitalized words have been omitted, and now if neither the clerk nor his deputy is able to issue the license, "it may be issued by the judge of the circuit court of such county, or of the corporation court of such city."

Sec. 5073. Validation of former marriages.—All marriages of females residing within jurisdiction of a corporation court, which were solemnized prior to February first, nineteen hundred and four, by virtue of a license issued by the clerk of the court of the county wherein a city was or is situated, shall be as valid as if such license had been issued by the clerk of such corporation court. (Code 1887, § 2216; 1895-6, p. 104; 1902-3-4, p. 662.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the second proviso of section 2216 of the former Code as last amended by Acts 1902-3-4, p. 662. That act was approved December 12, 1903, and went into effect immediately. There was an act approved January 11, 1904, which also went into effect immediately, and which made as valid all licenses issued by a clerk of a county court on or after December 12, 1903, and prior to February 1, 1904, as if they had been issued by the clerk of the circuit court of the county under the act approved December 12, 1903. It will be observed from reading the acts that they validated different classes of licenses. The revised section uses the language of the second proviso of Acts 1902-3-4, p. 662, but inserts the date February 1, 1904. Acts 1902-3-4, p. 921, is not put in the Code, but its repeal does not invalidate those licenses. This would probably be true independently of statute, but section 8 of the Code puts it beyond doubt. County courts did not go out of existence until February 1, 1904 (See section 7 of Schedule of Constitution) hence it is proper that the date in the revised section should be February 1, 1904.

Sec. 5074. The certificate to be issued by the clerk with license; the return to be made by persons celebrating the marriage; the clerk to furnish to the attorney for the Commonwealth list of those failing to make return; the record of certificate of marriage to be prima facie evidence.—The clerk issuing any marriage license shall at the time ascertain from the party obtaining such license, as near as may be, the date and place of the proposed marriage, the full names of both parties, their ages and condition before marriage (whether single, widowed or divorced), their race, whether white or colored, the places of their birth and residence, the names of their parents and the occupation of the husband, and make a certificate thereof and deliver it, together with the license, to the person entitled thereto.

It shall be the duty of every minister or other person celebrating such marriage, within thirty days after the same has been celebrated, to return such license and certificate of the clerk, together with his own certificate of the time and place at which the said marriage was celebrated, to the clerk who issued the said license. Any minister or other person celebrating such marriage violating the provision of this section shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars for each offense.

It shall be the duty of every clerk issuing marriage licenses on the first day of February of each year to furnish to the Commonwealth's attorney of his county or city a list of all marriage licenses issued for the year just preceding the first day of January last past that have not been returned by the minister or other person celebrating the marriage, and for failure to perform the duty required by this section the clerk shall be liable on conviction to a fine of twenty dollars.

It shall be the duty of the Commonwealth's attorney for each county and city, upon the receipt of such list from the clerk, to have such person or persons as he may think proper summoned before the next regular grand jury of his county or city to ascertain the name of the minister or other person celebrating such marriage and failing to return such license and certificate to the clerk, together with the certificate of such minister or other person celebrating such marriage.

When the said certificate of such minister or other person celebrating such marriage is returned to the clerk, and recorded as provided in section five thousand and seventy-six, the record thereof shall be prima facie evidence in all courts of this Commonwealth of the facts stated therein. (Code 1887, § 2229; 1899-00, p. 283; 1902-3-4, p. 501; 1910, p. 36.)

Sec. 5075. Registration of license and certificate.—An abstract of every license and of the certificate required by the preceding section, setting out in convenient tabular form all the circumstances stated in said license and certificate, shall be entered on the "Marriage Register" required by section five thousand and ninety-two, at the time the license is issued, if that be practicable; if not, as soon thereafter as practicable. (Code 1887, § 2217.)

Revisors' Note.—Instead of requiring the license to be registered as formerly, the present section requires an abstract of the license and certificate to be entered in the marriage register. This was taken substantially from section 2230 of the Code of 1887, and is consequently omitted from the next succeeding section of this Code.

Sec. 5076. Clerk to file license and certificate, and index names of parties.—The clerk to whom such license and certificate are returned, shall file and preserve the same in his office, and, within twenty days after receiving the same, enter upon the marriage register the minister's certificate, and the name of the person signing the certificate, and make an index of the names of both of the parties married; which may be done by additions, in appropriate columns, to the record made at the time of issuing the license. (Code 1887, § 2230.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to section 5075.

Sec. 5077. Marriages out of State; how certified and recorded.—If at the time of celebrating any marriage out of this State, either or both of the parties thereto be a resident or residents of this State, a certificate or statement thereof, verified by the affidavit of any person present at such celebration, may be returned to the clerk of the court of the county or city in which the husband resides, if he be such resident, and if he be not such resident, to the clerk of the county or city in which the wife resides, and an abstract thereof shall be recorded by him in the manner prescribed in the preceding section. (Code 1887, § 2231.)

Marriage is a civil contract. Its existence is provable like any other fact. Registry certificate, or persons present at its celebration need not be produced. In a criminal prosecution deliberate admissions and acts of a prisoner coupled with cohabitation is sufficient evidence to convict him. Womack v. Tankersley, 78 Va. 242.

Where the existence of the marriage is the issue, the rule of evidence is the same in civil as in criminal cases, and the decision must be upon the weight of the evidence, and where the lower court has so decided, the Supreme Court of Appeals will not reverse it. Id.

Sec. 5078. When consent of parent or guardian necessary; how given.—If any person intending to marry be under twenty-one years of age, and has not been previously married, the consent of the father or guardian, or if there be none, of the mother of such person, shall be given either personally to the clerk or judge, or in writing suscribed by a witness, who shall make oath before the clerk or judge that said writing was signed or acknowledged in his presence by such father, guardian, or mother, as the case may be, or the writing shall be acknowledged before a notary public or some person authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds under the laws of this State, which acknowledgment shall be properly certified by such officer. If there be no father, guardian, or mother, or if such person be abandoned by his or her parents, the judge of the circuit court of the county or of the corporation court of the city wherein the female resides, may, either in term or vacation, on the application of the person intending to marry, properly certified, authorize a marriage license to be issued as required. (Code 1887, § 2218; 1889-90, p. 115; 1893-4, p. 976.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision the words "or mayor" appeared after "judge" in lines four and six of the text. These words have been stricken out. Formerly, also, acknowledgments were allowed to be taken before postmasters in the counties. The other officers before whom acknowledgments may be taken are so numerous and so convenient, that this provision with reference to postmasters has been omitted. The revised section also conforms to the present court system.

As the law was previous to the Code of 1849, the clerk had no authority, when applied to for a marriage license, to examine a witness on oath as to the age of the parties (Williamson's Case, 4 Grat. 554), but that authority is given by the statute as it now stands (Maybush's Case, 29 Grat. 857).

Sec. 5079. How a minister is authorized to celebrate the rites of marriage.—When a minister of any religious denomination shall produce before the circuit court of any county or city or before the corporation court of any city in this State, or before the judge of either of said courts in vacation, proof of his ordination and of his being in regular communion with the religious society of which he is a reputed member, such court, or the judge thereof in vacation, may make an order authorizing such minister to celebrate the rites of matrimony in this State, upon the execution by such minister of a bond in the penalty of five hundred dollars, with surety, conditioned according to law, before either of such courts, or before the judge of either of such courts in vacation, or before the clerk of either of such courts. (Code 1887, § 2219; 1908, p. 41; 1910, p. 573; 1916, p. 42.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 261.

Sec. 5080. Courts may appoint other persons for the purpose.—The circuit and corporation courts of this State which deem it expedient may appoint one or more persons, resident in the county or city for which such court is held, to celebrate the rites of marriage within the same, and upon any person, so appointed, giving such bond as is required of an ordained minister, may make a like order authorizing him to celebrate the rites of marriage in such county or city, as the case may be. Any order made under this or the preceding section may be rescinded at any future term. (Code 1887, § 2220; 1906, p. 445.)

Sec. 5081. Solemnization of marriage between persons of religious society having no ordained minister.—Marriages between persons belonging to any religious society which has no ordained minister, may be solemnized by the persons and in the manner prescribed by and practiced in any such society. (Code 1887, § 2221.)

Sec. 5082. When marriages not void for want of authority in person solemnizing it or for defective license.—No marriage solemnized under a license issued in this State by any person professing to be authorized to solemnize the same shall be deemed or adjudged to be void, nor shall the validity thereof be in any way affected on account of any want of authority in such person, or any defect, omission or imperfection in such license, if the marriage be in all other respects lawful, and be consummated with a full belief on the part of the persons so married, or either of them, that they have been lawfully joined in marriage. (Code 1887, § 2222.)

Revisors' Note.—The first few words of this section as it formerly stood are made section 5071. Whatever may be the weight of authority elsewhere, it was held in Offield v. Davis, 100 Va. 250, 40 S. E. 910, that common law marriages are void in Virginia. The revisors saw no reason for changing that interpretation of the statute, but it was suggested that if the provision requiring a license is mandatory, other provisions in connection with the license may possibly also be regarded as mandatory, and that many marriages entered into bona fide and in the honest belief that everything proper had been performed, might be declared void, and innocent persons made to suffer. In order to meet this contingency, it is provided that there shall always be a license (see section 5071), but that if the marriage is celebrated under a license, no "defect, omission or imperfection in such license" shall render the marriage void, where the parties, or either of them, bona fide believed that they were entering into a valid marriage.

Sec. 5083. Fee for celebrating marriage.—Any person authorized to celebrate the rites of marriage shall be paid by the husband a fee of one dollar in each case. Any person exacting a greater fee shall forfeit to the party aggrieved fifty dollars. (Code 1887, § 2223.)

Sec. 5084. Marriage within certain degrees prohibited.—No man shall marry his mother, grandmother, stepmother, sister, daughter, granddaughter, half-sister, aunt, son's widow, wife's daughter or her granddaughter, or step-daughter, brother's daughter, or sister's daughter. If any man has prior to June fifteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, married his brother's widow or the widow of his brother's or sister's son or his uncle's widow, or his son's widow or step-daughter, such marriage is hereby declared to be legal and valid and exempt from the penalties prescribed by existing laws. (Code 1887, § 2224; 1895-6, p. 22; 1902-3-4, p. 662; 1910, p. 437.)

Formerly it was forbidden to marry a brother's widow. Com. v. Perryman, 2 Leigh 717. Also deceased wife's sister. Kelly v. Scott, 5 Grat. 479.

As to punishment for marrying within the prohibited degrees, see section 4540. As to what marriages void, see sections 5087, 5088.

Sec. 5085. The same.—No woman shall marry her father, grandfather, step-father, brother, son, grandson, half-brother, uncle, daughter's husband, husband's son, or his grandson or step-son, brother's son, sister's son, or husband of her brother's or sister's daughters. (Code 1887, § 2225; 1895-6, p. 197; 1902-3-4, p. 662.)

Sec. 5086. Prohibition continued notwithstanding dissolution of marriage.—In the cases mentioned in the two preceding sections, in which the relationship is founded on a marriage, the prohibition shall continue in force, notwithstanding the dissolution of such marriage by death or by divorce, unless the divorce be for a cause which made the marriage originally unlawful or void. (Code 1887, § 2226.)

Sec. 5087. What marriages are void without decree.—All marriages between a white person and a colored person, and all marriages which are prohibited by law on account of either of the parties having a former wife or husband then living, shall be absolutely void, without any decree of divorce, or other legal process. (Code 1887, § 2252.)

As to marriages between a white person and a negro, McPherson's Case, 28 Grat. 939; Kinney's Case, 30 Grat. 858, 32 Am. Rep. 690; Jones' Case, 80 Va. 538; Scott v. Raub, 88 Va. 721, 14 S. E. 178.

As to punishment for the crime, see sections 4540, 4546, and notes.

A marriage between a white man and a woman who is of less than one-fourth negro blood, however small the lesser quantity may be, is legal. A woman whose father was white, whose mother's father was white, and whose great great-grandmother was of brown complexion is not a negro in the sense of the statute. McPherson's Case, 28 Grat. 939; Jones' Case, 80 Va. 538. As to who are colored persons under present law, see section 67.

It seems that the marriage of a white woman to a negro would furnish good cause for committing her children by a former marriage to the Children's Home Society. Moon v. Children's Home Society, 112 Va. 737, 72 S. E. 707; note 17 Va. Law Reg. 692.

Sec. 5088. What marriages are void from time declared or time of conviction.—All marriages which are prohibited by law on account of consanguinity or affinity between the parties, and all marriages solemnized when either of the parties was insane, or incapable from physical causes of entering into the marriage state, shall, if solemnized within this State, be void from the time they shall be so declared by a decree of divorce or nullity, or from the time of the conviction of the parties, under section forty-five hundred and forty. (Code 1887. § 2252.)

Sec. 5089. Marriage of persons leaving the State to evade the law.—If any persons, resident in this State, one of whom is a white person and the other a colored person, or one of whom has a former husband or wife living, or who are within the degree of relationship of consanguinity or affinity within which marriages are prohibited by the law of this State, shall, with the intention of returning to reside in this State, go into another State or country and there intermarry, and return to and reside in this State, cohabiting as man and wife, such marriage shall be governed by the same law, in all respects, as if it had been solemnized in this State. (Code 1887, § 2253.)

Negro and white person going out of state to marry.—While the forms and ceremonies of marriage are governed by the laws of the place where the marriage is celebrated, the essentials of the contract depend upon and are governed by the laws of the country where the parties are domiciled at the time of the marriage, and in which the matrimonial residence is contemplated. Therefore the rule that a marriage valid where celebrated is valid everywhere has no application to a marriage entered into in a foreign country in contravention of the public policy and statutes of the country of the parties which pronounce marriage between them not only absolutely void, but criminal. Kinney's Case, 30 Grat. 858, 32 Am. Rep. 690; Greenhow v. James, 80 Va. 636, 56 Am. Rep. 603, citing Brook v. Brook, 9 H. L. Cas. 223. See, also, section 4540, 4546, and notes.

Discussed in ex parte Kinney (U. S. Cir. Ct.) 3 Va. Law J. 370, Fed. Cas. No. 7,825.

Cited but not construed, Moon v. Children's Home Society, 112 Va. 737, 72 S. E. 707; note 17 Va. Law Reg. 692.

Sec. 5090. When marriage of party under age of consent void without decree of divorce; age of consent.—In case of a marriage solemnized when either of the parties was under the age of consent, if they shall separate during such non-age, and not cohabit afterwards, the marriage shall be deemed void, without any decree of divorce, or other legal process. The age of consent of the male shall be fourteen years, and of the female twelve years. (Code 1887, § 2254.)

Sec. 5091. When colored persons not married to be deemed husband and wife; their children legitimated.—Where colored persons prior to the twenty-seventh day of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, agreed to occupy the relation to each other of husband and wife, and were cohabiting together as such at that date, whether the rites of marriage had been celebrated between them or not, they shall be deemed husband and wife, and be entitled to the rights and privileges, and subject to the duties and obligations of that relation in like manner, as if they had lawfully married; and all their children shall be deemed legitimate, whether born before or after said date. And where the parties had ceased to cohabit before the twenty-seventh day of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, in consequence of the death of the woman, or from any other cause, all the children of the woman, recognized by the man to be his, shall be deemed legitimate. (Code 1887, § 2227.)

Statute applies to all colored persons.—This statute applies to all classes of colored persons, irrespective of the degree of color (notwithstanding section 67); also to those who were born free. Francis v. Francis, 31 Grat. 283; Scott v. Raub, 88 Va. 724, 729, 14 S. E. 178.

To what cases statute does not apply.—The statute does not apply to cases where the cohabitation was a purely meretricious connection. There must have been a bona fide agreement, express or implied, between the parties to live together as man and wife. Patterson v. Bingham, 101 Va. 372, 43 S. E. 609; Francis v. Tazewell, 120 Va. 319, 91 S. E. 202.

How relation may be established—conduct.—It is not necessary that there shall be evidence of an actual agreement to take each other as man and wife, but the relation may be established by the acts, conduct, and conversation of the parties. Francis v. Francis, 31 Grat. 283; Womack v. Tankersley, 78 Va. 242. Compare Offield v. Davis, 100 Va. 263, 40 S. E. 910.

When the existence of the marriage is the issue, the rule of evidence is the same in civil as in criminal proceedings, and the decision must be on the weight of evidence. It may be established not only by the marriage register or certificate, or persons present at its celebration, but also by deliberate admissions and acts of parties, coupled with cohabitation and recognition. Womack v. Tankersley, 78 Va. 242.

Under this section it is not necessary to prove an agreement in terms, that the parties will take one another as husband and wife, but the fact of the relation existing may be established by the acts, conduct and conversation of the parties. Lemons v. Harris, 115 Va. 809, 80 S. E. 740.

The recognition required to legitimate colored children of parents who had ceased to cohabit prior to the enactment of this section (February 27, 1866) might occur prior to such enactment. Fitchett v. Smith's Adm'r, 78 Va. 524, 527.

Abandonment.—The voluntary abandonment before February 27, 1866, of the purpose to marry, is not within the meaning of the words "any other cause." Patterson v. Bingham, 101 Va. 372, 43 S. E. 609.

Two slaves agreed to occupy the relation to each other of husband and wife, and in pursuance of that agreement cohabited together prior to February 27, 1866. Children were born of the union and were always acknowledged by the man as his children. Subsequently the man left home. On returning he discovered that his wife was enciente by another man, and he abandoned her, afterwards marrying another woman. It was insisted that the conduct of the man and woman amounted to a mutual abandonment of their former relations, and that their children were not within the protection of this section, and were illegitimate. Held, that neither husband nor wife, nor indeed both acting in concert, could by abandonment or other act dissolve the bond of the pre-existing marriage; but if that were possible, or even if the marriage had been dissolved by a decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, it could in no wise have affected the legitimacy of the children. (Section 5270.) Francis v. Tazewell, 120 Va. 319, 91 S. E. 202.

Children born before enactment of section included.—The children of colored persons living together as husband and wife at the time of the enactment of this section are deemed legitimate, whether born before or after such enactment, and whether any sort of marriage ceremony had taken place between the parents or not. Smith v. Perry, 80 Va. 563. In such cases the question of bastardy must be considered as in any case where bastardy is alleged as to a child born during coverture, or born before and recognized afterwards. Smith v. Perry, 80 Va. 563.

Generally.—For note of case under a statute similar to this, holding statute not to be binding upon a man who has become domiciled in another state, see 10 Va. Law Reg. 831.

For further provisions concerning legitimated children, see sections 5269, 5270.

Discussed, 1 Va. Law J. 641.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 63, section 8.

Sec. 5092. Register of marriages.—The county clerk of every county and the clerk of every corporation court shall keep a book, to be called the marriage register. (Code 1887, § 2228; 1902-3-4, p. 662.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "marriage register" are used in lieu of "register of marriages."

Sec. 5093. How bond of minister forfeited.—If any minister, authorized to celebrate rites of marriage under section five thousand and seventy-nine, shall fail to comply with section five thousand and seventy-four, the condition of his bond shall be deemed to be thereby broken, and he shall also be subject to the penalty hereinbefore prescribed for such failure. (Code 1887, § 2232.)

Sec. 5094. Penalty on clerks for neglect of duty.—If any clerk of a court or county clerk fail to perform any duty required of him under this chapter, he shall forfeit ten dollars for every such offense. (Code 1887, § 2220; 1902-3-4, p. 663.)

The reference to the Code of 1887 should be to section 2250, not 2220.

Sec. 5095. Bureau of Vital Statistics to supply forms and instructions.—The Bureau of Vital Statistics shall furnish the clerk of every circuit court of a county and of every corporation court of a city with all forms and instructions which it may deem necessary or proper for carrying the provisions of this chapter into effect. (Code 1887, § 2251.)

Revisors' Note.—This duty was formerly placed upon the Auditor of Public Accounts, but since the establishment of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, it more properly belongs to that bureau. See chapter 66. The words, "and every commissioner of the revenue," formerly appearing in this section, have been stricken out.

Auditor required to turn over to the State Bureau of Vital Statistics certain marriage, birth and death records. Acts 1918, chapter 118, p. 226.

Sec. 5096. Copy of register of marriages to be sent by clerks to Bureau of Vital Statistics.—On or before the first day of March in each year, the clerk of every circuit court of a county and of every corporation court of a city shall transmit to the Bureau of Vital Statistics a copy of his marriage register, and so much of his record, made at the time of issuing such licenses, as is not contained in his

said marriage register, which was taken by him within the year next preceding the first day of January, distinguishing by appropriate columns or notes the licenses issued in which the minister's certificate of marriage has not been returned, and the licenses containing such certificate. (Code 1887, § 2239.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "Bureau of Vital Statistics" are used in lieu of "Auditor of Public Accounts." See revisors' note to preceding section.

Sec. 5097. Bureau to make abstracts of marriages for General Assembly.—Such copies shall be filed and preserved in the office of the said bureau, and from them the said bureau shall prepare annually an abstract of marriages in each county and city, and make a report upon said registration to the General Assembly at each regular session. (Code 1887, § 2240; 1902-3-4, p. 662.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to section 5095.

Sec. 5098. Registers to be evidence.—The said books to be kept by the clerks, and copies of the same (or of any part thereof) certified by the clerk lawfully having the custody thereof, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein set forth in all cases. (Code 1887, § 2241.)

As to other evidence of marriage, see 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 274; Brown v. Brown, 2 Va. Dec. 308, 24 S. E. 238; and Eldred v. Eldred, 97 Va. 606, 34 S. E. 477.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 63, section 27.

Sec. 5099. Fees of clerks.—There shall be allowed to the clerks three cents for every marriage reported to them by those required by law to do so, to be paid out of the treasury on the warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts, to be issued to the clerks severally entitled thereto, upon the certificate of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the return of the copies required by section five thousand and ninety-six. (Code 1887, § 2242.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section has been made to conform to the changes made in section 5096.

5108. Order of publication against non-resident defendant.
5109. Testimony may be required to be given orally; how certified; same footing as deposition.
5110. When divorce for adultery not to be granted.

5112. Divorce from bed and board, what the court may decree; effect thereof.
5113. Dissolution of bond of matrimony; neither party to marry for six months.
5114. When court may restrain guilty party from marrying again.
5115. When and how a decree for divorce from bed and board may be revoked, or may be merged into a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony.
5116. To prohibit advertising of any offer to obtain divorces.

Sec. 5100. Suit to annul a marriage.—When a marriage is supposed to be void for any of the causes mentioned either in section five thousand and eighty-seven, five thousand and eighty-eight, five thousand and eighty-nine or five thousand and ninety, either party may, except as is provided in the next section, institute a suit for annulling the same; and, upon due proof of the nullity of the marriage, it shall be decreed to be void by a decree of divorce or nullity. (Code 1887, § 2255.)

Sec. 5101. Exception to the preceding section.—A party who, at the time of such marriage as is mentioned in section five thousand and ninety, was capable of consenting, with a party not so capable, shall not be permitted to institute a suit for the purpose of annulling such marriage. (Code 1887, § 2255.)

Sec. 5102. Suit to affirm a marriage.—When the validity of any marriage shall be denied or doubted by either of the parties, the other party may institute a suit for affirming the marriage, and upon due proof of the validity thereof, it shall be decreed to be valid, and such decree shall be conclusive upon all persons concerned. (Code 1887, § 2256.)

Sec. 5103. Divorces from bond of matrimony.—A divorce from the bond of matrimony may be decreed:

For adultery;

For natural or incurable impotency of body existing at the time of entering into the matrimonial contract;

Where either of the parties subsequent to the marriage has been sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary of this State or of any other State of the United States or to confinement in a penitentiary of the United States, and cohabitation has not been resumed after such confinement (in which case no pardon granted to the party so sentenced shall restore such party to his or her conjugal rights);

Where, prior to the marriage, either party, without the knowledge of the other, had been convicted of an infamous offense;

Where either party charged with an offense punishable with death or confinement in the penitentiary has been indicted, is a fugitive from justice, and has been absent for two years;

Where either party wilfully deserts or abandons the other for three years such divorce may be decreed to the party abandoned; and

Where, at the time of the marriage, the wife without the knowledge of the husband, was with child by some person other than the husband;

Or prior to such marriage had been, without the knowledge of her husband, a prostitute, such divorce may be decreed to the husband.

But no such divorce shall be decreed if it appears that the party applying for the same has cohabited with the other after knowledge of such conviction of an infamous offense, or a husband has cohabited with the wife after the knowledge of the fact that she was with child or had been a prostitute as aforesaid. (Code 1887, § 2257; 1893-4, p. 425; 1916, p. 69.)

Adultery.—A married man's going into a brothel, especially if when there he shuts himself up in a room with a strumpet, is, if unexplained, sufficient proof of adultery. Throckmorton v. Throckmorton, 86 Va. 768, 11 S. E. 289; Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 307.

Adultery may be proved by circumstantial evidence, such as visiting house of ill-fame, being shut up with an unchaste woman, etc., even in face of the denial of defendant and particeps criminis. Musick v. Musick, 88 Va. 12, 13 S. E. 302.

Evidence of going into house of ill-fame considered. Musick v. Musick, 88 Va. 12, 13 S. E. 302.

A bill for divorce a vinculo, on grounds of adultery, charging simply that the defendant "has been guilty of adultery on many occasions," is bad on demurrer. While the name of the person with whom the adultery was committed need not be stated, the bill should state time, place, and circumstances, so as to enable the defendant to disprove the charge. Miller v. Miller, 92 Va. 196, 23 S. E. 232, and 2 Va. Law Reg. 70; Lile's Notes to 1 Min. 64; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 333.

received with caution. Throckmorton v. Throckmorton, 86 Va. 768, 11 S. E. 289.

See, also, section 5110.

Desertion.—The abandonment or desertion which is cause for divorce a vinculo differs from that which is cause for divorce a mensa in nothing only save duration. Harris v. Harris, 31 Grat. 13, 28; 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 291.

Desertion is a breach of matrimonial duty and consists of the actual breaking off of the matrimonial cohabitation. Hairston v. Hairston, 117 Va. 207, 84 S. E. 15.

Desertion can only be justified by showing such conduct on the part of the deserted party as would entitle the other to a divorce a mensa. Hairston v. Hairston, 117 Va. 207, 84 S. E. 15.

The desertion to justify a decree for an absolute divorce must be a wilful desertion, without justification or excuse, and the court to which the evidence is submitted can only determine whether or not such desertion is wilful by having all the facts and circumstances fully and frankly presented. The policy of the law is against divorce by consent, and full and satisfactory evidence should be required to guard against such divorces. Walker v. Walker, 120 Va. 410, 91 S. E. 180.

A wife left her husband without cause, stayed away more than three years, declared she would never return to him, though he endeavored to induce her to do so. Held, the husband is entitled to a divorce for desertion. Lee v. Lee, 112 Va. 719, 72 S. E. 689.

Where a bill alleges that the defendant "wilfully abandoned and deserted the complainant without just cause or excuse therefor, and still continues in such desertion and abandonment," and from the evidence submitted a separation by mutual consent or because of the fault of either of the parties may just as well be inferred as a desertion by the defendant, such evidence falls far short of proving the allegations of the bill. Walker v. Walker, 120 Va. 410, 91 S. E. 180. See 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 871.

For a case in which a suit for desertion was brought within three years of the dismissal of a prior suit for desertion between the same parties, see Hairston v. Hairston, 117 Va. 207, 84 S. E. 15.

For a case in which the facts were held sufficient to decree a divorce, see Johnson v. Johnson, 117 Va. 504, 85 S. E. 475.

Sec. 5104. Divorces from bed and board.—A divorce from bed and board may be decreed for cruelty, reasonable apprehension of bodily hurt, abandonment or desertion. (Code 1887, § 2258.)

Cruelty—What constitutes.—The cruelty which authorizes a divorce a mensa et thoro is anything that tends to bodily harm, and thus renders cohabitation unsafe, or that involves danger of life, limb, or health. Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 320; Trimble v. Trimble, 97 Va. 217, 33 S. E. 531. There may be cases in which the husband, without violence, actual or threatened, may render the marriage state impossible to be endured. Id.; Myers v. Myers, 83 Va. 806, 6 S. E. 630; also 5 Va. Law

Reg. 124; Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 168; Kinsey v. Kinsey, 90 Va. 16, 17 S. E. 819. If the husband permits inmates of his house to treat his wife with cruelty, the cruelty is his, and she may leave his home without furnishing him with cause for divorce. Hutchins v. Hutchins, 93 Va. 68, 24 S. E. 903.

That a husband is rude and dictatorial in his speech to his wife, exacting in his demands upon and sometimes unkind and negligent in his treatment of her even when she was sick and worn and weary in watching and nursing their sick child, is no legal grounds for her leaving him. Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 168.

A malicious charge of adultery, standing alone, is not sufficient to justify a divorce, but, enhanced by other things, is an act of gross cruelty. Owens v. Owens, 96 Va. 191, 31 S. E. 72.

On the subject of cruelty, see 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 281, 282; 5 Va. Law Reg. 124; Barton, C. Pr. (2 ed.) 329-332.

Condonation of former cruelty—Effect of.—Condonation of former acts of cruelty is no bar to bringing them forward when the continuance of the cruelty has rendered it no longer condonable. Owens v. Owens, 96 Va. 195, 31 S. E. 72. But see 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 282.

Abandonment and desertion.—To entitle a husband or wife to a divorce a mensa et thoro, the abandonment must consist in (1) the actual breaking off of matrimonial cohabitation with, (2) the intent to abandon and desert in the mind of the party so acting. The intent is the gist of the matter. Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 43; Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 168; Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 307. The intent to desert, being once shown, will be presumed to continue till the contrary appears. Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 43.

No particular period is prescribed in which the desertion shall continue to entitle a party to a divorce a mensa et thoro. Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 47; Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 172. See, also, 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 285.

Desertion consists of the actual breaking off of matrimonial cohabitation, coupled with an intent to desert in the mind of the offender. Crounse v. Crounse, 108 Va. 108, 60 S. E. 627.

Desertion can only be justified by showing such conduct on the part of the deserted party as would entitle the other to a divorce a mensa. Nothing short of this will justify wilful desertion or a continuance of it. Idem.

When a wife asked permission to return and the permission was not granted by the husband, he thereupon, in contemplation of law, deserted her. Tutwiler v. Tutwiler, 118 Va. 724, 88 S. E. 86.

It is the duty of the husband, when his wife leaves him although she may not have been forced to leave on account of his cruelty and violence, then and afterwards to seek a reconciliation and to invite her to return. Tutwiler v. Tutwiler, 118 Va. 724, 88 S. E. 86.

For circumstances of a separation of husband and wife, held not to amount to desertion on the part of the wife, see Devers v. Devers, 115 Va. 517, 79 S. E. 1048.

Pleading and proof.—In a suit for divorce, facts constituting cruelty and not merely the pleader's conclusion from unrelated facts, should be charged with reasonable certainty. Haynor v. Haynor, 112 Va. 123, 70 S. E. 531.

If answer under oath be not waived, the answer under oath furnishes evidence for the defendant in divorce cases as in other cases. Haynor v. Haynor, 112 Va. 123, 70 S. E. 531.

While a husband cannot be said to desert his wife because of separation from her pending a suit by him for divorce, if there was a consummated act of desertion by him before he instituted his suit, she may prove it in a suit by her for divorce for desertion. Craig v. Craig, 118 Va. 284, 87 S. E. 727.

Decree for maintenance.—A wife who voluntarily abandons her husband should not have a decree for separate maintenance unless her abandonment of him was necessary and without fault on her part. Haynor v. Haynor, 112 Va. 123, 70 S. E. 531. See section 5107 and notes.

Sec. 5105. Jurisdiction of suits to affirm or annul marriages, or to obtain divorces; when such suits are maintainable.—The circuit and corporation courts, on the chancery side thereof, and every court of this State exercising chancery jurisdiction, shall have jurisdiction of suits for annulling or affirming marriages, and for divorces. No suit for annulling a marriage or for divorce shall be maintainable, unless one of the parties has been domiciled in this State for at least one year preceding the commencement of the suit; nor shall any suit for affirming a marriage be maintainable, unless one of the parties be domiciled in this State at the time of bringing such suit. The suit, in either case, shall be brought in the county or corporation in which the parties last cohabited, or (at the option of the plaintiff), in the county or corporation in which the defendant resides, if a resident of this State, and if not a resident, in the county or corporation in which the plaintiff resides. (Code 1887, § 2259.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "and every court of this state exercising chancery jurisdiction," found in lines two and three of the text, are new.

Sec. 5106. How instituted and conducted.—Such suit shall be instituted and conducted as other suits in equity, except that the bill shall not be taken for confessed, nor shall a divorce be granted on the uncorroborated testimony of the parties or either of them; and, whether the defendant answer or not, the cause shall be heard independently of the admissions of either party in the pleadings or otherwise; and no process or notice in such proceedings shall be served in this State, except by officers authorized to serve the same.

Costs may be awarded to either party as equity and justice may require. (Code 1887, § 2260; 1902-3-4, p. 98.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "nor shall a divorce be granted on the uncorroborated testimony of the parties, or either of them," found in lines three and four of the text, are new. See revisors' note to section 6210.

An important change has been made in the omission of the words, "and all depositions, when taken in this state, shall be before a commissioner in chancery," formerly appearing at the end of the first sentence. These words were put into the section by the amendment of 1902-3-4, p. 98, as was also the provision limiting to officers the right to serve process or notice. The revisors were of opinion that the latter provision should be retained (see also section 6042) but that the former furnished no material protection and could be safely dispensed with. Furthermore, no necessity was seen for requiring such depositions WHEN TAKEN IN THIS STATE to be taken before a commissioner in chancery with no such restriction out of the state.

It is an established maxim that a divorce is never to be decreed upon confession of the parties merely, without auxiliary proof. 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 281; Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 50.

A divorce will never be granted upon consent, or on the default of the party charged, but only on proof of the charge alleged. Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 43, 50. But where the answer is responsive to the allegation of the bill, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of it as in other cases in equity. Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 307; Throckmorton v. Throckmorton, 86 Va. 769, 11 S. E. 289.

Pending a suit for divorce, husband and wife drew up an agreement to live separately and to divide their property. The agreement was confirmed by the court, and the divorce decreed after argument by counsel. The fact that the decree confirmed the agreement did not make it a decree on the admission of the parties. Marshall v. Baynes, 88 Va. 1040, 14 S. E. 978.

Admissions of plaintiff competent evidence to support averments of answer. Cralle v. Cralle, 79 Va. 182.

The object of this statute is to prevent a divorce from being obtained by the collusion of the parties. Neither the common law nor the statutory enactment excludes proof of the admission and statement of the parties. When collusion is proved not to exist, admission, whether verbal or contained in letters, is peculiarly satisfactory evidence, especially so when the letters were written or the verbal statements made without reference to the controversy touching the divorce. 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 294; Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 50; Cralle v. Cralle, 79 Va. 186; 7 Va. Law Reg. 134. But see Hampton v. Hampton, 87 Va. 148, 12 S. E. 340. See, also, article 18 Va. L. Reg. 1. Under this Code husband and wife are competent witnesses in all divorce suits. For changes made by the present revision, see revisors' note above and also revisors' note to section 6210.

Where depositions were suppressed because taken before a justice instead of a commissioner, it was not error to refuse to permit them to be re-taken where it clearly appears that they could not have effected the result of the litigation. Johnston v. Johnston, 116 Va. 678, 82 S. E. 694. It is no longer necessary for depositions in divorce cases to be taken before a commissioner in chancery.

Sec. 5107. What orders the court may make pending the suit; allowances for maintenance of the woman, etc.—The court in term or the judge in vacation may, at any time pending the suit, in the discretion of such court or judge, make any order that may be proper to compel the man to pay any sums necessary for the maintenance of the woman and to enable her to carry on the suit, or to prevent him from imposing any restraint on her personal liberty, or to provide for the custody and maintenance of the minor children of the parties during the pendency of the suit, or to preserve the estate of the man, so that it be forthcoming to meet any decree which may be made in the suit, or to compel him to give security to abide such decree. (Code 1887, § 2261.)

The trial court cannot make an "order to compel the man to pay any sums necessary for the maintenance of the woman," etc., pending appeal from decree rendered in same suit for alimony. Cralle v. Cralle, 81 Va. 773.

A wife having left her husband without good legal grounds is not entitled to alimony, and in a suit by him for a divorce for abandonment, he is entitled to the child of the marriage, although a female and only three years of age. Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 168.

The allowance, in the case in judgment, to the wife, of the sum of $225.00 payable in three monthly instalments for suit money, and of $150.00 for counsel fees, is a reasonable allowance. Craig v. Craig, 118 Va. 294, 87 S. E. 731.

Sec. 5108. Order of publication against non-resident defendant.—When in a suit for divorce, either a vinculo matrimonii or a mensa et thoro, affidavit shall be filed that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Virginia, an order of publication shall be entered against said defendant, by the clerk of the court wherein such suit is pending, either in term time or vacation, which order shall state the object of the suit and the grounds thereof, as shown by said application, and said order of publication shall be published as required by law. No depositions in said suit shall be commenced until at least fifteen days shall have elapsed after said order of publication shall have been duly published as required by law. (1912, p. 170; 1914, p. 29.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from Acts 1914, p. 29, with material changes. The act provided that the "order of publication shall be entered against said defendant, either by the court wherein such suit is pending or by the clerk of said court in vacation," etc. The revised section provides for an order of publication against the defendant to be entered by the clerk of the court wherein such suit is pending, either in term time or vacation. The provision contained in the act concerning the mailing of a copy of the order of publication is omitted, as that is now required in all cases by sections 6069 and 6070, q. v.

For discussion of the act upon which this section is based, see 18 Va. L. Reg. 468, 546, 780; 20 Va. Law Reg. 70.

Sec. 5109. Testimony may be required to be given orally; how certified; same footing as deposition.—In any suit for divorce the trial court may require the whole or any part of the testimony to be given orally in open court, and if either party desires it, such testimony and the rulings of the court on the exceptions thereto, if any, shall be reduced to writing, and the judge shall certify that such evidence was given before him and such rulings made. When so certified the same shall stand on the same footing as a deposition regularly taken in the cause. (1914, p. 154.)

Sec. 5110. When divorce for adultery not to be granted.—When the suit is for divorce for adultery, the divorce shall not be granted, if it appear that the parties voluntarily cohabited after the knowledge of the fact of adultery, or that it occurred more than five years before the institution of the suit, or that it was committed by the procurement or connivance of the plaintiff. (Code 1887, § 2262.)

Evidence that defendant admitted charge of adultery and letter from her purporting to admit it, are inadmissible. Hampton v. Hampton, 87 Va. 148, 12 S. E. 340. But see notes to section 5106.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 146, 341.

Sec. 5111. Court, on dissolving marriage, may decree as to estate and maintenance of parties, and custody, etc., of children; provision for revision of decree.—Upon decreeing the dissolution of a marriage, and also upon decreeing a divorce, whether from the bond of matrimony or from bed and board, the court may make such further decree as it shall deem expedient concerning the estate and maintenance of the parties, or either of them, and the care, custody, and maintenance of their minor children, and may determine with which of the parents the children, or any of them, shall remain; and the court may, from time to time afterwards, on petition of either of the parents, revise and alter such decree concerning the care, custody, and maintenance of the children, and make a new decree concerning the same, as the circumstances of the parents and the benefit of the children may require. (Code 1887, § 2263.)

Alimony granted independently of divorce.—Alimony may be granted under some circumstances independently of a divorce or application for one. Purcell v. Purcell, 4 Hen. & M. 507; Almond v. Almond 4 Rand. 662, 15 Am. Dec. 781; Spencer v. Ford, 1 Rob. 648; 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 308; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 335.

alimony by her misconduct, and where she is the offender cannot have alimony on a decree in favor of her husband. Harris v. Harris, 31 Grat. 17. Nor where she leaves her husband without sufficient cause. Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 175; Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 338; 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 308.

Amount of alimony—General rule.—The general rule in respect to alimony is that the wife is entitled to a support corresponding to her condition in life and the fortune of her husband. Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 43, 57; 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 309; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 336.

The amount of alimony to be decreed is within the sound discretion of the trial court, to be fixed according to established principles and upon an equitable view of all the circumstances of the particular case. Miller v. Miller, 92 Va. 196, 23 S. E. 232; Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Grat. 43; Harris v. Harris, 31 Grat. 13, 16.

Before fixing the amount of alimony, the court should ascertain the value of his property and the extent of his income. If necessary to increase or diminish the amount fixed, it may be done under the provisions of this section. Trimble v. Trimble, 97 Va. 217, 33 S. E. 531.

Fund from which it should be decreed.—The income of the husband, whether derived or to be derived from his personal exertion, or from permanent property, or from both, is the fund from which alimony is decreed, and the amount will depend upon the circumstances in each case. Cralle v. Cralle, 84 Va. 203, 6 S. E. 12; Harris v. Harris, 31 Grat. 13; Carr v. Carr, 22 Grat. 168; Myers v. Myers, 83 Va. 806, 6 S. E. 630.

In respect to alimony, the general rule is that the income of the husband, however derived or derivable, is the fund from which the allowance is made. Heninger v. Heninger, 90 Va. 274, 18 S. E. 193.

In estimating the allowance for alimony, no account should be taken of acquisitions of the plaintiff after the date of the decree of divorce, but the alimony must be in the property of the husband at the time of the divorce. Cralle v. Cralle, 79 Va. 182; Harris v. Harris, 31 Grat. 13.

It is error to enjoin and restrain perpetually the husband from disposing of or encumbering his real estate, unless facts of the particular case show it to be necessary. The sums to be paid the wife should be made a charge upon the land. Trimble v. Trimble, 97 Va. 221, 33 S. E. 531.

A decree for alimony and suit money constitutes under section 6470 a lien upon all the real estate of the debtor. Isaacs v. Isaacs, 117 Va. 730, 86 S. E. 105.

The court cannot in a decree in regard to the property interfere with the vested rights of creditors, or bona fide alienees or incumbrancees which attached upon the property prior to the institution of the suit. Caldwell v. Craig, 2 Grat. 350.

Circumstances under which the wife, though entitled to divorce, was not granted alimony, because she possessed ample estate and greater than her husband. Myers v. Myers, 83 Va. 815, 6 S. E. 630.

Death of either party puts end to alimony.—The death of the wife (or of the husband) puts an end to alimony. Francis v. Francis, 31 Grat. 283; 1 Min. (4 Ed.) 308.

Alimony cannot be granted to the husband. 2 Va. Law Reg. 308, 857; 3 Va. Law Reg. 60.

Bankruptcy.—In Audubon v. Shufeldt, 7 Va. Law Reg. 215, the Supreme Court of the United States decided that a discharge in bankruptcy affected neither alimony in arrear nor alimony to accrue in the future. 5 Va. Law Reg. 365; 6 Va. Law Reg. 859.

Adultery of wife subsequent to decree a mensa discharges husband.—Adultery subsequent to decree a mensa held to discharge the husband from the payment of alimony awarded to the wife under a decree of divorce a mensa. 8 Va. Law Reg. 286.

And where a parent has transferred to another the custody of his child by fair agreement which has been acted upon by such other person to the manifest interest and welfare of the child, the parent will not be allowed to reclaim the custody of the child unless he can show that a change of custody will materially promote his child's welfare. Stringfellow v. Somerville, 95 Va. 707, 29 S. E. 685, 40 L. R. A. 623.

Mother proper custodian of very young infant.—The mother is the proper custodian of an infant of seven months old. Trimble v. Trimble, 97 Va. 217, 83 S. E. 531. But where the wife deserts the husband without good legal grounds, upon divorce a mensa, upon suit of the husband, the child, though but three years old, and a female, will be restored to the husband. Sec. 5112. Divorce from bed and board, what the court may decree; effect thereof.—In granting a divorce from bed and board, the court may decree that the parties be perpetually separated and protected in their persons and property. Such decree shall operate upon property thereafter acquired, and upon the personal rights and legal capacities of the parties, as a decree for a divorce from the bond of matrimony, except that neither party shall marry again during the life of the other. (Code 1887, § 2264.)

It was decided that the former statute on this subject (Sup. Rev. Code, p. 222) did not authorize the court to interfere with or defeat the vested rights of creditors or bona fide alienees or encumbrancees, which attached upon the property prior to the institution of such proceedings for divorce, and when the property was the absolute property of the husband. Jennings v. Montague, 2 Grat. 350.

As to decree confirming an agreement to live separate, and for each to acquire and hold property free from claims of the other, being in substance a divorce from bed and board within this section, see Marshall v. Baynes, 88 Va. 1040, 14 S. E. 978.

Cited but not construed in Thompson v. Thompson, 226 U. S. 551.

Sec. 5113. Dissolution of bond of matrimony; neither party to marry for six months.—On the dissolution of the bond of matrimony for any cause arising subsequent to the date of the marriage, neither party shall be permitted to marry again for six months from the date of such decree, and such bond of matrimony shall not be deemed to be dissolved as to any marriage, subsequent to such decree, or in any prosecution on account thereof, until the expiration of such six months.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new.

Punishment for bigamy is prescribed by section 4538. See, also, last paragraph of revisors' note to section 4539.

Sec. 5114. When court may restrain guilty party from marrying again.—In granting a divorce for adultery, the court may decree that the guilty party shall not marry again at any time; in which case, the bond of matrimony shall be deemed not to be dissolved as to any future marriage of such party, or in any prosecution on account thereof. But, for good cause shown, so much of any decree as prohibits the guilty party from marrying again, may be revoked and annulled, at any time after the expiration of six months from the date of such decree, by the same court by which it was pronounced. (Code 1887, § 2265.)

Revisors' Note.—This section now conforms to the preceding new section. Adultery is, of course, a "cause arising subsequent to the date of the marriage."

This section in its former state was held constitutional, and under it the court might in a divorce suit decree that the guilty party should not marry again unless such decree be annulled. Musick v. Musick, 88 Va. 12, 13 S. E. 302. See, also, Lile's Notes on 1 Min., p. 65.

Court may decree that guilty party shall not marry until future order of court. Musick v. Musick, 88 Va. 12, 15 Va. L. J. (1891) 472, 13 S. E. 302.

Sec. 5115. When and how a decree for divorce from bed and board may be revoked, or may be merged into a decree of divorce from the bond of matrimony.—When a decree for a separation forever, or a limited period, has been made in a suit for a divorce from bed and board, it may at any time thereafter, upon the joint application of the parties, and the production by them of satisfactory evidence of their reconciliation, be revoked by the same court which made it, and under such regulations and restrictions as the court may impose. And when three years shall have elapsed after the entering of a decree for divorce from bed and board, upon any other ground than that of desertion, and in any case where desertion is the ground for divorce when three years shall have elapsed from the time of such desertion, upon application of the party injured, and upon the production of satisfactory evidence, whether taken theretofore or in support of such application, the court may merge such decree for divorce from bed and board into a decree for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony; if the court shall be of opinion, from the evidence so taken, that no reconciliation has taken place, or is probable, and that a separation has continued without interruption since the granting of such divorce. (Code 1887, § 2266; 1895-6, p. 103; 1902-3-4, pp. 87, 511.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from Acts 1902-3-4, p. 511 amending section 2266 of the Code of 1887, as theretofore amended. That act contained a proviso, as follows: "Provided, the court shall be of opinion, from the evidence taken in the suit and in support of the said application, that no reconciliation has taken place," etc. Under this language it was contended in some instances that the absolute divorce should not be granted in any such case unless evidence had been taken IN SUPPORT OF THE APPLICATION. To remove this supposed difficulty, the revised section uses the words "so taken." The evidence must be satisfactory, but it may be taken "theretofore or in support of such application."

After divorce suit is brought and depositions taken, the parties agree to separate and divide property between them, and court confirms agreement and suit is dismissed from docket. This is substantially a decree a mensa et thoro, and land sold by wife becomes absolutely her property by the said agreement, and cannot be recovered by husband's heirs. Marshall v. Baynes, 88 Va. 1040, 14 S. E. 978.

Overtures of reconciliation made after the rendition of a decree for a divorce from bed and board come too late to have any effect upon the correctness of the decree, but where the cause is still pending, the provisions of this section will enable the trial court to afford the parties any relief to which they may hereafter show themselves entitled. Tutwiler v. Tutwiler, 118 Va. 724, 88 S. E. 86.

Cited but not construed in Thompson v. Thompson, 226 U. S. 551.

Sec. 5116. To prohibit advertising of any offer to obtain divorces. —Whosoever prints, publishes, distributes, or circulates, or causes to be printed, published, distributed, or circulated, any circular, pamphlet, card, handbill, advertisement, printed paper, book, newspaper, or notice of any kind, offering to procure, or aid in procuring, any divorce, or the severance, dissolution, or annulment of any marriage, and by such publication as above mentioned offering to engage, appear, or act as attorney or counsel in any suit for alimony, divorce, or the severance, dissolution, or annulment of marriage, either in this State or elsewhere, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than three hundred dollars, and the person so convicted shall, in addition to the above penalty, be disbarred from practicing as such attorney at law in the courts of this Commonwealth. This section shall not apply to the printing or publishing of any notice or advertisement required or authorized by any law of this State or orders of any court. (1902-3-4, p. 590.)

5131. Annuity table.
5132. Rule of calculation.
5133. Examples.

Sec. 5117. Of what a widow shall be endowed.—A widow shall be endowed of one-third of all the real estate whereof her husband, or any other to his use, was, at any time during the coverture, seized of an estate of inheritance, unless her right to such dower shall have been lawfully barred or relinquished. (Code 1887, § 2267.)

Beneficial ownership requisite for dower.—The legal title in the husband is nothing as regards the wife's dower, unless accompanied by the beneficial ownership; and the beneficial ownership is everything, though separated from the title. Wilson v. Davison, 2 Rob. 384; Waller v. Waller, 33 Grat. 83, 86. Therefore a widow has no right to dower in lands sold or contracted to be sold by husband prior to his marriage, although he died without conveying title, because the husband is regarded in equity as trustee for the purchaser, and against him is not beneficially seised. Chapman v. Chapman, 92 Va. 537, 24 S. E. 225, 53 Am. St. Rep. 823; Burdine v. Burdine, 98 Va. 515, 524, 36 S. E. 992, 81 Am. St. Rep. 741; Waller v. Waller, 33 Grat. 83; Braxton v. Lee, 4 Hen. & M. 376; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 147. But the widow is entitled to dower in lands conveyed by him during coverture in a deed in which she did not unite. Gardner v. Gardner, 98 Va. 525, 36 S. E. 985; Higginbotham v. Cornwell, 8 Grat. 83, 56 Am. Dec. 130.

As to relief of alienees, see section 5128 and notes.

A husband who enters into an agreement for the purchase of land, takes possession of it, and pays part of the purchase price, is beneficially seised of the land to the extent that he has paid the purchase price, although he has not acquired the legal title; and his widow is entitled to dower in the land subject to the lien upon it for the unpaid purchase price, whether he die possessed of the land or has aliened it during coverture, without her concurrence in the mode prescribed by law. James v. Upton, 96 Va. 296, 304, 31 S. E. 255. See section 5158.

When vendee gives deed of trust at time of purchase.—When the vendor passes the title to the vendee, and at the same time takes a mortgage or deed of trust for the security of the purchase money, in which the wife of the vendee does not join, she will nevertheless take her dower in the estate, subject to the trust or mortgage. Gilliam v. Moore, 4 Leigh 30, 24 Am. Dec. 704. Quoad vendor's lien, the vendee was never beneficially seised, and his widow is not entitled to dower therein, the seisin of the husband being only for an instant. And the principle applies equally where the trust deed is for the benefit of an assignee. Hurst v. Dulaney, 87 Va. 444, 12 S. E. 800; Cowardin v. Anderson, 78 Va. 88; Gilliam v. Moore, 4 Leigh 30; Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh 264, 37 Am. Dec. 654; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384; Robinson v. Shacklett, 29 Grat. 99; Summers v. Darne, 31 Grat. 791; Coffman v. Coffman, 79 Va. 504.

The same proposition is true as regards the vendor's lien (formerly implied, but now it must be expressly reserved). See section 5183. Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384. But if the lien is created in pursuance of an after arrangement, the widow is entitled to dower. Blair v. Thompson, 11 Grat. 441; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 146. As to dower in surplus and inchoate right of dower in equity of redemption, see section 5119 and notes. 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 142.

No dower in partnership lands, bought with partnership funds for partnership purposes.—Land bought with partnership funds, for partnership purposes, is so far considered as personalty that widow is not entitled to dower therein, but only to her distributive share thereof. Deering v. Kerfoot, 89 Va. 491, 16 S. E. 671; Parrish v. Parrish, 88 Va. 529, 14 S. E. 325; Pierce v. Trigg, 10 Leigh 422; Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh 272, 37 Am. Dec. 654; 2 Min. Norfolk, 80 Va. 404. See also article in 4 Va. Law Reg. 310, calling attention to a distinction made by Judge Moncure in Davis v. Christian, 15 Grat. 11; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 956.

Land held in name of wife to defraud creditor—No dower therein.—Where real estate is purchased by and deeded to a wife, and is successfully attacked by her husband's creditors as being in fraud of their rights, he having paid the purchase money, the husband has no seisin, actual or constructive, therein, out of which the wife can be endowed. Grant v. Sutton, 2 Va. Dec. 149, 22 S. E. 490.

Dower in executory limitation.—If the husband's estate is determined by an executory limitation, the wife is, notwithstanding, to be endowed. Taliaferro v. Burwell, 4 Call 321 (dower or curtesy in a determinable fee); Jones v. Hughes, 27 Grat. 560 (dower in an executory devise); Medley v. Medley, Id. 568. See, also, Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 482, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863.

Husband dies entitled to a remainder in fee of real estate, expectant on an estate of freehold therein; his widow is not entitled to dower of the land when the remainder falls in. Cocke v. Philips, 12 Leigh 248; Blow v. Maynard, 2 Leigh 30.

A husband dies entitled to reversion of lands; his widow is not entitled to dower thereof. Blow v. Maynard, 2 Leigh 30.

As to dower in lands held by husband as joint tenant, see 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 139; sections 5159, 5160.

As to disposal of contingent right of dower of a married woman in real estate in which her husband has no interest, see section 5135.

Conveyance of contingent right of dower to purchaser from husband.—In the absence of contract a married woman cannot be compelled to convey her contingent right of dower in land to a party who has purchased the land from her husband. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Sutherland, 114 Va. 20, 75 S. E. 765.

Relinquishment of dower—Consideration for postnuptial settlement.—Where a wife relinquishes an interest in husband's estate, and he makes a settlement upon her, both deeds being executed at or about the same time, the court will presume the two deeds a part of the same transaction; and the relinquishment of her right of dower is a good consideration, to the extent of its value, as against the husband's existing creditors, for a postnuptial settlement on a wife (which is valid in equity, though void at common law). Flicklin v. Rixey, 89 Va. 834, 17 S. E. 325, 37 Am. St. Rep. 891; Harvey v. Alexander, 1 Rand. 219, 10 Am. Dec. 519; Quarles v. Lacy, 4 Munf. 251; William & Mary v. Powell, 12 Grat. 372; Davis v. Davis, 25 Grat. 587; Burwell v. Lumsden, 24 Grat. 443, 18 Am. Rep. 648; Yates v. Law, 86 Va. 117, 9 S. E. 508; Strayer v. Long, 86 Va. 557, 10 S. E. 574; De Farges v. Ryland, 87 Va. 404, 12 S. E. 805, 24 Am. St. Rep. 659; Harrison v. Carroll, 11 Leigh 484; Lee v. Bank of U. S., 9 Leigh 200; Gatewood v. Gatewood, 75 Va. 412; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 182, 686-688; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 553.

A mere agreement to relinquish is not binding on wife, and therefore constitutes no consideration for a settlement. Harrison v. Carroll, 11 Leigh 476, 483; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 182.

If the value of the dower relinquished exceeds that of the land settled on the wife, she and her heirs at law are entitled to the land free from all liability for her husband's debts. Flicklin v. Rixey, 89 Va. 832, 17 S. E. 325, 37 Am. St. Rep. 891; Simmons v. Simmons, 33 Grat. 451; Robinson v. Allen, 85 Va. 721, 8 S. E. 835; Topliff v. Topliff, 145 U. S. 156, 173, 12 Sup. Ct. 825, 36 L. Ed. 658.

If the value of the lands settled on the wife exceeds the value of the dower interest, courts of equity will generally not set aside the deed of settlement as null and void, but will reduce the amount settled upon the wife to a fair and just compensation for the interest she may have parted with. Harvey v. Alexander, 1 Rand. 219, 10 Am. Dec. 519; Quarles v. Lacy, 4 Munf. 251; Davis v. Davis, 25 Grat. 590.

But if the value of the settlement on wife grossly exceed the value of the dower interest, the settlement will be set aside, and the wife is entitled to be placed in the same position and restored to the same rights with which she was invested by law before she united in the deed, provided this can be done without prejudice to the creditors or purchasers; the value of the dower either to be commuted in money or laid off in kind in lands not sold by the trustees. Davis v. Davis, 25 Grat. 587.

But the relinquishment must be duly recorded, else it is void as to husband's creditors, without notice, whose claims accrued after its execution and before its admission to record. Strayer v. Long, 86 Va. 557, 10 S. E. 574.

As to mode of estimating the value of the contingent dower interest, see section 5131 and notes.

Dower is existing lien—Priority thereof.—The right of dower, whether inchoate or consummate, is an existing lien, and a covenant against encumbrances is broken by its existence. Flicklin v. Rixey, 89 Va. 832, 834, 17 S. E. 325, 37 Am. St. Rep. 891. The lien is inferior to all liens on the land which attached prior to the marriage, but superior to those which are acquired after the marriage without the wife's consent, including judgments. Flicklin v. Rixey, 89 Va. 834, 17 S. E. 325, 37 Am. St. Rep. 891; Simmons v. Lyles, 27 Grat. 922; Strayer v. Long, 86 Va. 560, 10 S. E. 575; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 180; Barton, C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 972.

Generally.—As to mode of barring dower, see 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 164, 180. Jointure in bar of dower. Section 5120. Dower barred by adultery. Section 5123. As to sale of lands by order of court barring contingent right of dower, see section 5281; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 139.

Sec. 5118. Right of dower, where husband had right of entry or action.—When a husband, or any other to his use, shall have been entitled to a right of entry or action in any land, and his widow would be entitled to dower out of the same, if the husband or such other had recovered possession thereof, she shall be entitled to such dower, although there shall have been no such recovery of possession. (Code 1887, § 2268.)

There seems to be no other difference between the common law and statutory dower than that the latter does not require seisin even in law, but is content with a right of entry or of action, where the widow would have been enitled to dower, if the husband, or any other to his use, had recovered possession. 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 134.

This section held not to apply in Chapman v. Chapman, 92 Va. 537, 24 S. E. 225, 53 Am. St. Rep. 823.

Sec. 5119. Widow entitled to dower in surplus after lien is satisfied.—Where land is bona fide sold in the lifetime of the husband, to satisfy a lien or encumbrance thereon, created by deed in which the wife has united, or created before the marriage, or otherwise paramount to the wife, she shall have no right to be endowed in the said land. But if a surplus of the proceeds of sale remain after satisfying the said lien or encumbrance, she shall be entitled to dower in said surplus, and a court of equity having jurisdiction of the case may make such order as may seem to it proper to secure her right. (Code 1887, § 2269.)

The last clause of this section conforms the law to the opinion of Judge Allen, dissenting in Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 398. Note to Code 1849, p. 474; Land v. Shipp, 100 Va. 346, 41 S. E. 742.

Object of statute.—The sole object of this statute was to give the wife in the husband's lifetime an interest in the equity of redemption, contingent, however, upon her surviving her husband. It was to give the inchoate and contingent dower of the wife the power to attach to the equity of redemption, so that after a sale in the husband's lifetime it would survive and be enforceable against his equity of redemption in the lands after his death. Land v. Shipp, 100 Va. 337, 41 S. E. 742; Hoy v. Varner, 100 Va. 611, 42 S. E. 690; Robinson v. Shacklett, 29 Grat. 107; Iaege v. Bossieux, 15 Grat. 84, 76 Am. Dec. 189; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 142.

The equity of redemption of a mortgage in fee descends to the heirs of the mortgagor; and though the widow is not entitled to dower as against the mortgagee, where the mortgage was executed before coverture, or during coverture with her concurrence, in the mode prescribed by law, yet, in either case, she is entitled to dower in the equity of redemption; for of that, or, what is the same thing, of the estate subject to the mortgage, the husband is to be considered as dying seised. Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384; Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 285, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560, and 100 Va. 345, 41 S. E. 742.

Deed of trust executed by both—Foreclosure after husband's death—Wife entitled to only one-third surplus for life.—Where a deed of trust executed by the husband and wife on his lands is foreclosed after the husband's death, the wife is not entitled to have one-third the value of the whole land assigned to her out of the surplus after the satisfaction of the lien created by the deed of trust, but is entitled, as her dower, to one-third of the surplus for life. 690; 8 Va. Law Reg. 675 (note). The same measure of dower was held proper when the lien was foreclosed in the husband's lifetime. Land v. Shipp, 100 Va. 337, 41 S. E. 742; 8 Va. Law Reg. 181, 675. See, also, Id. 165. Hoy v. Varner, supra, overrules Wilson v. Branch, 77 Va. 65, 46 Am. Rep. 709, on this point.

Same—What wife must do to be endowed of whole land.—She must pay an equitable proportion of the liens and encumbrances thereon, which are paramount to her dower, before she can be endowed of the whole land. Hoy v. Varner, 100 Va. 600, 42 S. E. 690.

Two deeds of trust—Wife uniting in first—Subrogation.—If a wife unite with her husband in a deed of trust on his land to secure the payment of a debt due by him, and subsequently the husband gives a second deed of trust on the same land, in which the wife does not unite, and the land is sold under the second deed, but the purchase money is applied so far as need be to the extinguishment of the debt secured by the first deed, a court of equity will subrogate the purchaser to the rights of the creditor in the first deed, and, upon the death of the husband, will allow his widow dower in the surplus only remaining after the payment of the debt secured in the first deed of trust. Land v. Shipp, 100 Va. 337, 41 S. E. 742.

A conveyance of land absolute on its face may be shown by parol evidence to have been made on the condition that the grantee should pay the grantor's debts, and where the grantee conveys the land in trust to secure the payment of parties who loaned him the money with which he paid the grantor's debts, e. g., where both deeds were made on same day, the widow not joining in the deed of trust; held, in such case she is not entitled to dower in the land or its proceeds until the debt has been satisfied. Coffman v. Coffman, 79 Va. 504.

Wife uniting in lien not a surety—When dower is separate estate.—When a wife unites in the execution of a lien on the husband's lands, she does not, on foreclosure of lien, occupy the position of a surety, either in person or estate. A contingent dower interest is not an estate distinct from the husband's estate; and hence when she so unites with him she conveys nothing, but merely releases a contingent claim. Hoy v. Varner, 100 Va. 600, 42 S. E. 690; 8 Va. Law Reg. 676.

Purchaser not bound to see to application of purchase money.—The land is not liable in the hands of the purchaser, nor is he bound to see to application of the purchase money, or that an order is entered for the protection of the rights of the wife in the event of her surviving the husband. Daniel v. Leitch, 13 Grat. 195, 211; Jones v. Tatum, 19 Grat. 720; Robinson v. Shacklett, 29 Grat. 108; Hurst v. Dulaney, 87 Va. 444, 12 S. E. 800.

Although ten months elapse after sale before the mortgage is executed in fulfillment of the original contract of sale and purchase, the rights of the mortgagee are paramount to dower rights of purchaser's wife. Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh 264, 37 Am. Dec. 654.

Sec. 5120. Jointure in bar of dower; effect of conveyance or devise.—If any estate, real or personal, intended to be in lieu of dower, shall be conveyed or devised for the jointure of the wife, such conveyance or devise shall bar her dower of the real estate, or the residue thereof, and every such provision, by deed or will, shall be taken to be intended in lieu of dower, unless the contrary intention plainly appear in such deed or will, or in some other writing signed by the party making the provision. (Code 1887, § 2270.)

of an estate or interest in land to take effect in possession or profit immediately on the death of the husband, in satisfaction of dower, and it must so appear in the deed. It is an absolute bar only when made before marriage. If made after marriage, it only puts the wife to her election whether to accept the provision or claim dower. The only difference made by the statute of Virginia is that jointure may be of personal as well as real estate. Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 284, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560. See 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 177.

Jointure does not include present estates.—Under this section, jointure, operating to bar dower, does not include property in which a present estate is settled upon the wife, but is confined to settlements to take effect at the death of the husband. Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 284, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560; 6 Va. Law Reg. 165.

Provision enjoyed during husband's lifetime no bar to dower.—If, after the husband's death, the widow accepts a provision made for her in lieu of dower, she bars herself of dower; but if she has received the provision during her husband's lifetime, and has spent or wasted it, she may take her dower as if no provision had been made. It is necessary, in order to estop her, that she should have enjoyed the provision, or a part of it at least; after her husband's death. Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 284, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560.

Rule changed.—The provision, "every such provision, by deed or will, shall be intended to be in lieu of dower, unless the contrary intention plainly appear," etc., changes the rule in Higginbotham v. Cornwell, 8 Grat. 83, 56 Am. Dec. 130. See Bolling v. Bolling, 88 Va. 524, 14 S. E. 67; also, Dixon v. McCue. 14 Grat. 540, 551, 552; and Nelson v. Kownslar, 79 Va. 468.

Rule as to construction of wills of personalty not changed.—This statute does not change the rule at common law that wills of personalty are to be construed according to the lex domicilii. Bolling v. Bolling, 88 Va. 524, 14 S. E. 67. Therefore where a testator, domiciled, in New York, bequeathed personal property to his wife, but made no disposition of his realty in Virginia, the testator's intention in regard to dower must be construed according to the law of New York. Bolling v. Bolling, 88 Va. 524, 14 S. E. 67.

Decree setting up unrecorded deed formerly not necessarily a bar to dower.—A decree of a court of chancery setting up an unrecorded deed of husband and wife, which has been lost, does not operate to debar the wife, on death of her husband, from claiming dower in the land, if she was otherwise entitled to it. The execution and delivery by her of the lost deed did not convey her interest. Admission to record was necessary to accomplish that. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 560, 32 S. E. 58. But see section 5211 which in its present state changes this rule.

Generally.—A case in which a deed of separation did not operate as jointure to bar dower, Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 292, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560.

A mechanics' lien does not override the wife's dower interest. Iaege v. Bossieux, 15 Grat. 105, 76 Am. Dec. 189; Shaeffer v. Weed, 3 Gilman, 511.

See Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 482, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863.

See 14 Va. L. Reg. 276.

Sec. 5121. Election of widow to waive jointure and demand dower.—But if such conveyance or devise were before the marriage, without the assent in writing or during the infancy of the feme, or if it were after marriage, in either case, the widow may, at her election, waive such jointure and demand her dower. Such election shall be made within one year after the death of the husband, or within one year after the admission of his will to probate where the provision is by will, and shall be made in any court of record in the county or corporation in which the husband resided at the time of his death, or in the clerk's office of which the instrument creating the jointure is recorded, or by a writing recorded in such court, or in the clerk's office thereof, upon such acknowledgment or proof as would authorize a writing to be admitted to record under chapter two hundred and eleven; and when she shall elect and receive her dower, the estate so conveyed or devised to her shall cease and determine. (Code 1887, § 2271.)

The general doctrine of election applies.—The doctrine of election is founded on the same reasons and governed by the same rules when applied to a widow claiming dower as to any other case. Rutherford v. Mayo, 76 Va. 117; Dixon v. McCue, 14 Grat. 540.

When election is necessary.—If the widow's taking dower would interfere with any of the provisions of the will, she must elect. Dixon v. McCue, 14 Grat. 540; Rutherford v. Mayo, 76 Va. 117.

When section not applicable.—The provisions of this section have no application to a case where a testator disposes of property belonging to his wife in her own right and also makes provision for her by his will. She has the same right of election as to such property as any other person and whether or not she has elected to take under or against the will is to be determined as in other cases. Pence v. Lile, 104 Va. 518, 52 S. E. 257; Showalter v. Showalter, 107 Va. 713, 60 S. E. 48.

This section is not applicable to a case where a husband devises to his wife a lot belonging jointly to him and her during her life or widowhood, and where he also made provision for her out of other property. In such case she must elect, but this statute does not apply, for it was meant to cover the case where the property left to her was not her own, but her husband's. Waggoner v. Waggoner, 111 Va. 325, 68 S. E. 990.

A case in which question of election does not arise.—Land is devised to a husband, but if he die without issue to his sisters. Husband dies without issue, leaving a widow, to whom, by will, he devises all his property. She is entitled to dower in the land, and the provision for her by will is not jointure, nor does the question of election arise. Jones v. Hughes, 27 Grat. 560.

Generally.—It would seem that election is personal to widow and cannot be exercised by her administrator, 11 Va. Law Reg. 770.

See Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 482, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863; also notes to section 5120.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 5.

Sec. 5122. Dower, when widow deprived of jointure.—If a widow be lawfully deprived of her jointure, or any part thereof, she shall be endowed of so much of the real estate whereof, but for said jointure, she would have been dowable, as is equal in value to that of which she was deprived. (Code 1887, § 2272.)

The widow's election to take under the provisions of the will and failure to renounce for four years is not a lawful deprivation of her dower, within the meaning of this section. Cooper v. Cooper, 77 Va. 198, 205.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 6.

Sec. 5123. Dower barred by adultery of wife.—If a wife, of her own free will, leave her husband and live in adultery, she shall be barred of her dower, unless her husband be afterwards reconciled to her, and suffer her to live with him. (Code 1887, § 2273.)

As to barring of interest in personalty, see section 5277.
As to barring of husband's curtesy, see section 5140.
See, also, 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 164.
For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 7.

Sec. 5124. What a widow entitled to until her dower is assigned.—Until her dower is assigned, the widow may hold, occupy, and enjoy the mansion house and curtilage without charge for rent, repairs, taxes, or insurance; and, in the meantime, she shall be entitled to demand of the heirs, devisees, or alienees, or any of them, one-third part of the issues and profits of the other real estate which descended or was devised or passed to them, of which she is dowable, after deducting the costs of necessary repairs, taxes, and insurance. If she be deprived of such mansion house and curtilage, she may, on complaint of unlawful entry or detainer, recover the possession thereof, with damages for the time she was so deprived; but nothing in this section shall be construed to impair the lien, or delay the enforcement thereof, of the State, city, or county for the taxes assessed upon said property. (Code 1887, § 2274; 1902-3-4, p. 660.)

The interest of the widow under this statute is analogous to a tenancy at will. The effect of the statute is merely to extend the quarantine at common law. The object of the statute was to coerce the heir to assign dower, and until this was done to protect her in the enjoyment of the homestead and the rents and profits therefrom. Therefore the widow, without assignment of dower, is entitled, as against the claims of creditors, to a credit for taxes she has paid for the protection of her interest. Simmons v. Lyle's Adm'r, 32 Grat. 752; Dillard v. Dillard, 77 Va. 820, 823. She is also entitled to be reimbursed for so much of the purchase money as was properly payable by the heirs. Simmons v. Lyle's Adm'r, 32 Grat. 752.

As to when possession under this statute may become adverse (which usually it is not), see Hannon v. Hounihan, 85 Va. 429, 12 S. E. 157. See, also, Hulvey v. Hulvey, 92 Va. 182, 23 S. E. 233.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 8.

Sec. 5125. How dower may be assigned.—Dower may be assigned as at common law; or upon the motion of the heirs, devisees, or alienees, or any of them, the court in which or in the clerk's office of which the will of the husband is admitted to record or administration of his estate is granted or the conveyance of the alienee is recorded, may appoint commissioners, by whom the dower may be assigned, and the assignment, when confirmed by the court, shall have the same effect as if made by the heir at common law; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to take away or affect the jurisdiction which courts of chancery now exercise on the subject of dower. (Code 1887, § 2275; 1895-6, p. 309.)

Widow cannot move to appoint commissioners.—Motion to the county (now circuit) or corporation court to appoint commissioners to assign dower by the heir is proper, but such motion by the widow is irregular and inadmissible. 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 162; Helm v. Helm, 30 Grat. 404, 414; Moore v. Waller, 2 Rand. 418; Raper v. Sanders, 21 Grat. 60, 74.

General rule—Assignment by metes and bounds—Exceptions.—The general rule at common law is that the assignment of dower must be by metes and bounds, but to this rule there are exceptions, arising from the nature and quality of the object itself or from the nature of the husband's interest. (1) When the thing is entire, as a house, the assignment may be of so many rooms, and not a third part of it, in which case the passages are usually assigned to be used conjointly. (2) In case of lands held by tenants in common, and, in Virginia (see sections 5159, 5160), lands held by joint tenants, an assignment by metes and bounds will be dispensed with. Parrish v. Parrish, 88 Va. 531, 14 S. E. 325; Simmons v. Lyles, 27 Grat. 922; Blair v. Thompson, 11 Grat. 451; White v. White, 16 Grat. 264; 80 Am. Dec. 706; Wilson v. Branch, 77 Va. 69, 70, 46 Am. Rep. 709.

Out of what lands dower is assigned, see 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 160; Wilson v. Branch, 77 Va. 69, 46 Am. Rep. 709; Blair v. Thompson, 11 Grat. 451; White v. White, 16 Grat. 267.

Exoneration of land sold by husband by assignment of dower in other lands owned by him. 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 160; Stimson v. Thorn, 25 Grat. 284.

Widow entitled to one-third of income.—In assigning dower, the probable rents and profits, and not the mere fee-simple value, are the chief subjects of consideration. Dower should be so assigned that the widow may enjoy one-third of the income arising from the estate. This rule is adopted equally to protect widows from having an unproductive part of the estate assigned to them, and to guard heirs from being left, during the life of the widow, without the means of support. Fuller v. Conrad, 94 Va. 233, 26 S. E. 575.

See Gregory's Forms No. 289.

Sec. 5126. How recovered with damages.—A widow having a right of dower in any real estate may recover the said dower and damages for its being withheld by such remedy at law as would lie on behalf of a tenant for life having a right of entry, or by a bill in equity, where the case is such that a bill would now lie for such dower. (Code 1887, § 2276.)

Land sold several times—Necessary party defendant.—In a bill by a widow for dower in land sold in the lifetime of her husband, and coming to the present owner through several intermediate conveyances, the present owner is the only necessary party defendant. Blair v. Thompson, 11 Grat. 441, 445.

Remedies for recovery of dower.—The remedies for the recovery of dower are (1) bill in chancery; (2) ejectment (see section 5480); (3) motion to circuit or corporation court to appoint commissioners to assign dower (see section 5125). See 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 161, 162.

A widow entitled to dower may, under this section, file her bill in equity to recover the same, and jurisdiction having attached for that purpose, is not affected by the fact that her bill prays for relief to which she is not entitled; and while, generally, partition of lands cannot be had in such a suit, yet one of the defendants, by cross bill, may ask to have the land sold for partition as well as assignment of dower. Kavanaugh v. Shacklett, 111 Va. 423, 69 S. E. 335.

When decree for specific sum in lieu of dower may be made.—There cannot be a decree for a specific sum in lieu of dower without the assent of all the parties interested. Blair v. Thompson, 11 Grat. 441; Wilson v. Branch, 77 Va. 69, 46 Am. Rep. 709; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384; Harrison v. Payne, 32 Grat. 387, 390; White v. White, 16 Grat. 264, 80 Am. Dec. 706; Simmons v. Lyles, 27 Grat. 930.

See notes to section 5125.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 10.

Sec. 5127. Recovery of dower and damages against heirs and alienees.—Whether the proceedings of the widow be against one claiming under an alienation made under a decree of court, or by the husband, in his lifetime, or against his heirs or devisees, or their assigns, a recovery of dower in such real estate in kind shall be of a third of the estate, as it is when the recovery is had. Against such heirs or devisees, or their assigns, the damages shall be for such time after the husband's death as they have withheld the dower, not exceeding five years before the suit is commenced. Against one claiming under such alienation made under decree, or by the husband, in his lifetime, the damages shall be from the commencement of the suit against such claimant. In either case, they shall be to the time of the recovery. And if, after suit is brought, the widow or the tenant die before such recovery of damages, the same may be recovered by her personal representative or against his. (Code 1887, § 2277.)

As to the time of valuation of the estate for assignment of dower, the rule in the statute changes the rule in Tod v. Baylor, 4 Leigh 498; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 157.

Though at law the damages for the mesne profits are lost by the death of either plaintiff or defendant in dower before judgment therefor, it is well settled to be otherwise in equity, from the consideration that the profits of a third part of her husband's real estate are her only subsistence from his death.

But this rule does not apply to encumbrances by mortgage or deed of trust, which are only securities for the payment of money, and still leave the grantor owner of the estate. (Tod v. Baylor, 4 Leigh 498; Thomas v. Gammel, 6 Leigh 9; Macaulay v. Dismal, 2 Rob. 530.

See 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 163.

See James v. Upton, 96 Va. 305, 31 S. E. 255; also Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 285, 36 S. E. 391, 50 L. R. A. 560.

The contingent right of dower is barred on lands sold in partition suit, see section 5281.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 11.

Sec. 5128. Relief of alienees.—The two preceding sections are subject to this qualification, that on the application of one claiming under an alienation made under decree of court, or by the husband, in his lifetime, a court of equity may grant him relief from such recovery on the terms of his paying to the widow, during her life, lawful interest from the commencement of her suit on one-third of the value, at the husband's death, of the real estate so aliened, deducting the value of such permanent improvements then existing as may have been made (after the alienation) by the alienee or his assigns. (Code 1887, § 2278.)

Digitized by Google

The right of dower in kind is not absolutely merged in a mere personal decree for the interest provided by this section, and an ineffectual effort, by execution or by suit, in chancery, to enforce such a personal decree, made in a prior suit to recover dower, is no bar to an independent suit against the heirs of the alienee to recover dower in kind and damages for its detention. Dickerson v. Gray, 100 Va. 526, 42 S. E. 298, and 8 Va. Law Reg. 492, note.

If, in the lifetime of the husband, land be sold, the purchaser may relieve himself from a recovery of dower in kind upon paying to the widow interest on one-third the value of the land. Land v. Shipp, 100 Va. 337, 41 S. E. 742.

If the land contracted to be exchanged was in fact encumbered by the dower of a widow, and that was the only defect in the title, such defect is not sufficient to prevent the specific execution of the contract, but it may be executed with an allowance of compensation for such defect on the terms prescribed in this section. Stimson v. Thorn, 25 Grat. 278.

See notes to section 5127; also 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 157.

Sec. 5129. When right of widow, or infant heirs, not affected by judgment against husband or guardian.—No widow shall be precluded from her dower by reason of the real estate whereof she claims dower having been recovered from her husband by a judgment rendered by default or collusion, if she would have been entitled to dower therein had there been no such judgment; nor shall any heir who was under the age of twenty-one years at the time dower was assigned to the widow out of the lands of his ancestor by his guardian, or by judgment by default or collusion against such guardian, be precluded from recovering the seisin of his ancestor from such widow, unless she show herself entitled to such dower. (Code 1887, § 2279.)

Sec. 5130. Right of dowress in crops growing at her death.—Crops growing on the dower land of a widow at the time of her death may be bequeathed by her, and shall go to her personal representative, in like manner as crops growing on any other land held for life. (Code 1887, § 2280.)

Sec. 5131. Annuity table.—When a party as tenant for life, or by the curtesy, or in dower, is entitled to the annual interest on a sum of money, or is entitled to the use of any estate, or a part thereof, and is willing to accept a gross sum in lieu thereof, or the party liable for such interest, or affected by such claim, has the right to pay a gross sum in lieu thereof, or if the court in any legal proceeding decree a gross sum to be paid in lieu thereof, the sum shall be estimated according to the then value of an annuity of six per cent. on the principal sum during the probable life of such person, according to the following table, showing the present value, on the basis of six per cent. interest, of an annuity of one dollar, payable at the end of every year that a person of a given age may be living, for the ages therein stated:

The rule as stated in this section is given, with reason therefor, in Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384. See, also, Davis v. Davis, 25 Grat. 587; Fisher v. Clement's Ex'r., 82 Va. 813, 1 S. E. 182. See 3 Va. Law Reg. 69, for tables of mortality, explanation thereof, etc.

Where the widow must contribute to pay a charge upon the land paramount to her claim of dower, the amount payable by the widow is the present worth of the annual interest on one-third of the debt for the probable period of her life, ascertained from the tables of mortality. Harper v. Vaughan, 87 Va. 426, 12 S. E. 785; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 142, 143.

The rule for computing the present value of the wife's contingent right of dower is to ascertain the wife's expectation of life and that of the joint lives of the husband and wife, and from the present value of an annuity payable during wife's life deduct the present value of an annuity payable during their joint lives. Strayer v. Long, 86 Va. 557, 10 S. E. 574; 2 Min. (4 Ed.) 183.

Commutation of a life interest in a fund is not an absolute right but is dependent upon the consent of the parties, but the court, in its discretion, may, when circumstances make it impossible to invest a sufficient sum to yield the proper annuity, pay to the life tenant his commuted interest as this is as equitable as any other mode and attended with as little convenience. Amer. Natl. Bank v. Taylor, 112 Va. 1, 70 S. E. 534.

Cited but not construed in Bragg v. Tinkling Land Co., 115 Va. 1, 78 S. E. 541.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 65, section 17.

Sec. 5132. Rule of calculation.—Calculate the interest at six per cent. upon the sum to the income of which, or upon the value of the property to the use of which, the person is entitled. Multiply this interest by the present value of an annuity of one dollar, as set opposite the person's age in the table, and the product is the gross value of the life estate of such person therein. (Code 1887, § 2282.)

Digitized by Google

Sec. 5133. Examples.—Suppose a person whose age is forty-two is tenant for life in the whole of an estate worth ten thousand and five hundred dollars, the annual interest on that sum, at six per cent., is six hundred and thirty dollars. The present value of an annuity of one dollar at the age of forty-two, as appears by the table, is eleven dollars seventy-seven cents and nine mills, which, multiplied by six hundred and thirty dollars, gives seven thousand four hundred and twenty dollars and seventy-seven cents as the gross value of such life estate in the premises, or the proceeds thereof; then, suppose a widow whose age is thirty-six is entitled to dower in real estate worth twelve thousand dollars, interest on four thousand dollars, the third part thereof, for one year, is two hundred and forty dollars, which, multiplied by twelve dollars forty-six cents and five mills, the present value of an annuity of one dollar at the age of thirty-six, as appears by the table, gives two thousand nine hundred and ninety-one dollars and sixty cents, as the gross value of such dower. (Code 1887, § 2283.)

5140. Curtesy, etc., of husband barred by desertion.

Sec. 5134. Property rights of married women; how they may acquire and dispose of property; make contracts, sue and be sued.—A married woman shall have the right to acquire, hold, use, control, and dispose of property, as if she were unmarried, and such power of use, control, and disposition shall apply to all property of a married woman which has been acquired by her since April fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, or shall be hereafter acquired: provided, however, that her husband shall be entitled to curtesy in her real estate other than her equitable separate estate when the common law requisites therefor exist, and he shall not be deprived thereof by her sole act; but neither his right to curtesy nor his marital rights shall entitle him to the possession or use, or to the rents, issues, and profits of said real estate during the coverture; nor shall the property of the wife be subject to the debts or liabilities of the husband. A married woman may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, in the same manner and with the same consequences as if she were unmarried, whether the right or liability asserted by or against her shall have accrued heretofore or hereafter. In an action by a married woman to recover for a personal injury inflicted on her, she may recover the entire damage sustained, notwithstanding the husband may be entitled to the benefit of her services about domestic affairs; and no action for such services shall be maintained by the husband. A husband shall not be responsible for any contract, liability, or tort of his wife, whether the contract or liability was incurred or the tort was committed before or after marriage. (1899-00, p. 1240.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the act cited, with several changes in phraseology and some change in meaning. The words, "which has been acquired by her since April fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, or shall be," found in lines four and five of the text, are used in lieu of "heretofore or." The first married woman's act was approved April 4, 1877 (Acts 1876-7, p. 333) and went into effect immediately.

The words "other than her equitable separate estate" found in line seven of the text makes statutory the decision of the court in Chapman v. Price, 88 Va. 392, 11 S. E. 879.

Before the revision the section, in speaking of the husband's rights, provided that "the right to curtesy shall not entitle him to the possession or use, or to the rents, issues and profits of said real estate during the coverture," etc. Now it is provided, "but neither his right to curtesy NOR HIS MARITAL RIGHTS shall entitle him to the possession or use," etc.

The next to the last sentence of the section is new. The object of this sentence is to give to the wife all the damage resulting from the injury and to change the law as announced in Richmond Ry., etc., Co. v. Bowles, 92 Va., p. 738; 24 S. E. 388; Atlantic & D. R. Co. v. Ironmonger, 95 Va. 625, 29 S. E. 319; and Norfolk Ry. & Light Co. v. Williar, 104 Va. 679, 52 S. E. 380. It is very difficult to sever the damage in a case of this kind, and tell what part should be recovered by the wife and what part by the husband, and as it is the wife who suffers both the physical and mental injury, it is deemtd best to give to her the entire damage.

Historical.—The first married women's act in Virginia was passed April 4, 1877, and went into effect immediately. (Acts 1876-7, p. 333.) The Code of 1887 made material changes in the law, and by Acts 1899-00, p. 1240 (upon which the above section is based), married women were practically put on the same footing as femes sole.

Generally.—Since the enactment of this section it is not necessary for an adult married woman to sue by a next friend. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Rives, 112 Va. 137, 70 S. E. 542.

This section was not intended to apply to a warranty in a deed in which a wife united for the purpose only of relinquishing her inchoate right of dower in her husband's property; nor does it repeal by implication section 5211, declaring the effect of such warranty. Augusta v. Beard, 100 Va. 687, 42 S. E. 694.

Under section 2284 of the Code of 1887 (now repealed) it was held error to join husband in suit of wife for personal injury. Norfolk v.

Dougherty, 92 Va. 372, 23 S. E. 777; Richmond v. Bowles, 92 Va. 738, 24 S. E. 388.

It is unnecessary, under this section, to allege that the contract sued upon was made with reference to her separate estate. Young v. Hart, 101 Va. 480, 44 S. E. 703.

Under this section, married women may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued as if unmarried, and personal judgments may be rendered against them, whether the right or liability accrued before or after the passage of the act. Young v. Hart, 101 Va. 480, 9 Va. Law Reg. 540, 545, and note, 44 S. E. 703.

This section, at least so far as it affects debts and liabilities of husband created after its passage, is a valid exercise of legislative power. Chilton v. Hannah, 107 Va. 661, 60 S. E. 87.

The statute of no State has gone farther in respect to the rights, etc., of married women. Where a husband and wife who have already separated, enter into a contract adjusting property rights and providing maintenance for the wife, it is not now essential to the validity of the contract that the provision for the wife be made through the intervention of a trustee. Moreland v. Moreland, 108 Va. 93, 60 S. E. 730.

A husband is not entitled to curtesy in the equitable separate estate of his wife, which he has created for her benefit; he is excluded by the nature of the transaction. Ratliff v. Ratliff, 102 Va. 887, 47 S. E. 1007; Cox & Casper v. Wallace (Cir. Ct. Appeals, 4th Cir.), 20 Va. L. Reg. 665, and note.

One of the common law requisites for curtesy is that there shall be issue born alive during coverture; issue born out of wedlock and afterwards legitimated by marriage (section 5269) does not fulfill this requirement. Bond v. Bond (Circuit Court of Pulaski), 16 Va. Law Reg. 411. This case is criticised by Harvard Law Review, see 16 Va. Law Reg. 709; defended 16 Va. Law Reg. 801.

A contract by a married woman, in which her husband unites, for the sale of her statutory separate estate under the act of April 4, 1877, may be enforced in equity either for or against her. Dunn v. Stowers, 104 Va. 290, 51 S. E. 366. For ruling under former statute see Tarrant v. Core, 106 Va. 161, 56 S. E. 228.

A married woman whose will was dated 1899 and who died that year had no right to dispose of property acquired under section 1 of "Smith act" (1876, 7, p. 333). The report, however, does not disclose whether this section was then in effect. Coleman v. Wood, 108 Va. 457, 62 S. E. 388.

In a contest between the existing creditors of an insolvent husband, on the one side, and his wife, on the other, when the property in controversy is claimed by her under a purchase, not from her husband, but from a third party (the question being presented simply upon the bill and answer), the legal presumption is that the consideration was furnished by the husband, and the burden is upon the wife to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the consideration was in good faith paid by her out of her own estate and not by her husband. Johnson v. Ables, 119 Va. 593, 89 S. E. 908.

The act upon which this section is based was passed long after the decision in Yates v. Law, 86 Va. 117, 9 S. E. 508, and manifests no purpose to modify the rule of evidence therein established. Johnson vs. Ables, 119 Va. 593, 89 S. E. 908.

See article, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 690.

A review of the authorities on the right of wife to sue her husband for a personal tort is found in a note 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 191, and the right of the husband to sue the wife for such a tort is denied in Peters vs. Peters, 103 Pac. 219.

Under a similar statute in the District of Columbia a wife cannot maintain an action against her husband to recover damages for an assault and battery upon her person. Thompson v. Thompson, 218 U. S. 611; discussed in 16 Va. Law Reg. 856.

Previous to the Smith act (Acts 1876-77, p. 333, amended by Acts 1877-78, p. 247), a married woman could own a common-law estate and an equitable separate estate; by that act she could own a statutory separate estate; and then, when the Code of 1887 went into effect, she could own a legal separate estate. Section 2298.—Duval v. Chelf, 92 Va. 489, 23 S. E. 893; 1 Va. Law Reg. 898.

Sec. 5135. How a married woman may dispose of her contingent right of dower.—A married woman may, by uniting with her husband in a deed or contract, dispose of her contingent right of dower in his real estate; or, if the husband has previously disposed of his interest in real estate in which she is entitled to a contingent right of dower, she may thereafter, but not before, dispose of her contingent right of dower in the same by her sole act as if she were unmarried. (1899-00, p. 291.)

Revisors' Note.—While the act of 1899-00 is cited at the end of this section, the language of the section is altogether new. The act referred to read as follows: "The contingent right of dower of a married woman in real estate, in which her husband has no interest, shall be her separate estate, and she may dispose of the same by her sole act as if she were unmarried." This language was not considered as explicit and free from doubt as the importance of the subject requires, and to obviate questions which had arisen under it, the present section enacts in positive terms that the wife cannot convey her contingent right of dower to ANY PERSON WHOMSOEVER while the husband owns the real estate in question.

Sec. 5136. Control of estate of a married woman, who is a minor; appointment of a receiver; his duties; husband's curtesy.—When a woman is a minor at the time of her marriage, and is then entitled to any estate, or during her coverture, and while a minor, becomes entitled to any estate, she shall not during coverture, and while a minor, have the control and management of such estate; but the circuit court of the county, or the circuit or corporation court of the corporation wherein she resides, or the said real estate, or any part thereof is, or the judge of the said court in vacation, shall, on the petition of her next friend, commit her said estate to a receiver, who shall give bond before the court or judge, and shall hold and manage the said estate, and pay out the rents, issues, profits, and income thereof to her use under the direction of the court, or apply the estate, or any part thereof, if the court so order, to her use during coverture, and while she is a minor; and upon her attaining the age of twenty-one years, all such estates and the rents, issues, income, and profits thereof, not before paid out or applied as aforesaid, shall be delivered into her possession; or, if she die before attaining that age, the same shall be delivered at her death to those entitled thereto.

The seisin requisite for the husband's curtesy in the wife's real estate, committed to a receiver shall, for the purpose of curtesy, be presumed, if there could have been such seisin, had not the real estate been so committed. (Code 1887, § 2291; 1899-00, p. 1240.)

See 6 Va. Law Reg. 80.

As to sale of estate of a married woman who is a minor, see section 5137.

Sec. 5137. Sale of the real estate of a married woman who is a minor.—If any married woman who is a minor thinks that her interests will be promoted by the sale of her estate or any part thereof, or estate in which she is interested with others, infants or adults, whether the estate of the said married woman who is a minor or of any of the persons interested be absolute or limited, and whether there be or be not limited thereon any other estate vested or contingent, and whether such married woman or any of the persons interested reside in this State or not, may for the purpose of obtaining such sale, file a bill in equity by her next friend in the circuit court of the county or the circuit or corporation court of the city in which the estate proposed to be sold or some part thereof may be, stating plainly the estate which she desires to be sold and all the facts calculated to show the propriety of the sale. The bill shall be verified by the oath of the next friend. The husband of such married woman and all others interested, and all those who would be her heirs if she were dead, shall be made defendants. If it be clearly shown that the interest of such married woman will be promoted, and the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, is of opinion that the rights of no person will be violated thereby, the said court, or the judge thereof in vacation, after reasonable notice to all parties interested, may order the sale of said estate, or any part thereof, taking ample security for the purchase money when the sale is on credit; and the said court, or the judge thereof in vacation, upon like notice may confirm the sale of said estate and appoint a commissioner to convey the same to the purchaser. The share of the said married woman of the proceeds of such sale shall be delivered to the receiver appointed under section fifty-one hundred and thirty-six of this Code, and shall be held and disposed of as provided by the said section. (1891-2, p. 391.)

Sec. 5138. How estate of a married woman to pass at death.—When a married woman, having title to any estate, dies intestate, as to the said estate, or any part thereof, it, or such part, shall pass according to the provisions of chapter two hundred and thirteen, subject to her debts, and to the curtesy of her husband, should he survive her. (Code 1887, § 2293.)

See 6 Va. Law Reg. 80.

Sec. 5139. Equitable separate estates not affected.—Nothing contained in the preceding sections of this chapter shall be construed to prevent the creation of equitable separate estates. They may be created as heretofore, and shall be held in all respects according to the provisions of the instrument by which they are created, and with all the powers conferred by such instrument. (Code 1887, § 2294; 1899-00, p. 1240.)

Revisors' Note.—The change in the phraseology of this section is intended to make it plain that all rights of the husband may be excluded by an equitable settlement if the person making the settlement desires to do so.

Historical.—All equitable separate estates were preserved under the Smith act (Acts 1876-77, p. 333; Acts 1877-78, p. 427; Hutchings v. Commercial, 91 Va. 68, 28 S. E. 950; Jones v. Jones, 96 Va. 749, 32 S. E. 463; Burks' Separate Estate, 74); and under the Code of 1887, section 2294 (Claiborne v. Radford, 91 Va. 527, 532, 22 S. E. 348; Andes v. Roller, 98 Va. 622, 37 S. E. 297; 6 Va. Law Reg. 569). As to present statute, see 6 Va. Law Reg. 486.

Rule to determine whether estate be statutory or equitable.—Whether the separate estate of a married woman is equitable or statutory is to be determined from the terms of the instrument creating the settlement. If the instrument grants powers or imposes restrictions not granted or imposed by statute, but which are yet consistent with the principles and rules of equity, the estate will be construed to be an equitable and not a statutory separate estate. Jones v. Jones, 96 Va. 749, 32 S. E. 463.

See section 5135; Gregory's Forms No. 142.

Sec. 5140. Curtesy, etc., of husband barred by desertion.—If a husband wilfully deserts or abandons his wife, and such desertion or abandonment continues until her death, he shall be barred of all interest in her estate as tenant by the curtesy, distributee, or otherwise. (Code 1887, § 2296; 1899-00, p. 1240.)

Sec. 5141. When deed or will necessary to convey estate; partition of lands to be by deed; gift of lands to be in writing.—No estate of inheritance or freehold, or for a term of more than five years, in lands, shall be conveyed unless by deed or will, nor shall any voluntary partition of lands by co-parceners, having such an estate therein, be made, except by deed; nor shall any right to a conveyance of any such estate or term in land accrue to the donee of the land or those claiming under him, under a gift or promise of gift of the same hereafter made and not in writing, although such gift or promise be followed by possession thereunder and improvement of the land by the donee or those claiming under him. (Code 1887, § 2413.)

Length of term.—A lease for a period of five years, with an option to the lessee to continue for another period of five years, is not a present lease for ten years. James v. Kibler, 94 Va. 165, 26 S. E. 417.

Reconveyance from grantee to grantor.—When land has been conveyed by deed, it cannot be reconveyed from grantee to grantor by return of the deed or cancellation thereof, but only by another deed. Grayson v. Richards, 10 Leigh 57; Jones v. Neale, 2 Pat. & H. 339; Seibel v. Rapp, 85 Va. 32, 6 S. E. 478; Vaughan v. Moore, 89 Va. 925, 929, 17 S. E. 326. The rule is otherwise as to executory contracts. See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 741.

Disclaimer of a freehold.—As against the devisee asserting title under the will, his disclaimer must be by deed, and a parol disclaimer is not sufficient. Bryan v. Hyre, 1 Rob. 94, 39 Am. Dec. 246. And in general, disclaimer of a freehold must be by deed or in a court of record. Suttle v. R. F. & P., 76 Va. 285. Quaere, does this rule hold where defendant relies on disclaimer?

Partition of lands.—A deed of partition amongst coparceners is not a conveyance, because the partition makes no degree, but leaves each parcener seized as by descent from the common ancestor; but therefore previous to May 1, 1888 (date of adoption of above section as amended), partition amongst coparceners could be made as well by parol as by deed. Bolling v. Teel, 76 Va. 487; Yancey v. Radford, 86 Va. 642, 10 S. E. 972; Dooley v. Baynes, 86 Va. 649, 10 S. E. 974; Nicholas v. Nicholas, 100 Va. 660, 42 S. E. 669, 866. See, also, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 782; Brooks v. Hubble, 2 Va. Dec. 529, 27 S. E. 585.

A deed of partition to one of the heirs (a feme covert) and her husband of her share of land, "and the heirs of the female party of the second part," conveyed no estate to the husband as against the heirs of his wife, who were not estopped by the deed from claiming title to the deceased wife's land. Yancey v. Radford, 86 Va. 638, 10 S. E. 972. As to when partition by husband was binding under old law previous to Code 1887, see Brooks v. Hubble, 2 Va. Dec. 529, 27 S. E. 585.

Agreements to make partition can only be enforced in equity when a similar agreement to convey land could be enforced. Martin v. Martin, 112 Va. 731, 72 S. E. 680.

In partition suits, decree has same effect as deed. Section 5282.

Gift of land.—Before May 1, 1888, when this section as amended went into effect, a parol gift of land, if possession was taken by the donee, and a large expenditure was made by him in improving the land, was treated in equity as a valid sale, and was allowed to be set up on oral testimony alone. The law was changed so as to require writing. Burkholder vs. Ludlam, 30 Grat. 255, 32 Am. Rep. 668; Halsey v. Peters, 79 Va. 60; Stokes v. Oliver, 76 Va. 72; Griggsby v. Osborne, 82 Va. 371; Nicholas v. Nicholas, 100 Va. 660, 664, 42 S. E. 669, 866, note 8 Va. Law Reg. 666; Trout v. Trout, 2 Va. Dec. 399, 401, 25 S. E. 98; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 852; 11 Va. L. Reg. 750. Gifts made prior to May 1, 1888, are controlled by former rule. Nicholas v. Nicholas, supra.

Gifts by a parent to a child (advancements) are within the terms of this section. Nicholas v. Nicholas, 100 Va. 660, 42 S. E. 669, 866.

Generally.—For notes upon express, resulting, implied and constructive trusts created by parol, see section 5561, and notes.

For contracts void as to purchasers for value without notice and creditors, see section 5192.

See notes to section 5146.

Sec. 5142. When gift of goods and chattels invalid.—No gift of any goods or chattels shall be valid, unless by deed or will, or unless actual possession shall have come to and remained with the donee, or some person claiming under him. If the donor and donee reside together at the time of the gift, possession at the place of their residence shall not be a sufficient possession within the meaning of this section. This section shall not apply to the wife's paraphernalia. (Code 1887, § 2414.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new. See 7 Va. Law Reg. 214.

History of statute.—For history of the evolution of this section from act of 1757 (referring only to slaves) till the present, see Thomas v. Lewis, 89 Va. 66, 15 S. E. 389, 18 L. R. A. 170, 37 Am. St. Rep. 848; Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 506, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 90.

Gifts causa mortis.—The words "no gift" do not refer to gifts causa mortis, nor does the section embrace them. Thomas v. Lewis, 89 Va. 1, 65, 15 S. E. 389, 18 L. R. A. 170, 37 Am. St. Rep. 848. As to gifts causa mortis, see Miller v. Jeffress, 4 Grat. 472; Lee v. Boak, 11 Grat. 182; Morrison v. Grubb, 23 Grat. 342; Basket v. Hassell, 107 U. S. 602, 2 Sup. Ct. 415, 27 L. Ed. 500. For discussion of gifts inter vivos and causa mortis, see article 1 Va. Law Reg. 871-894.

"Goods and chattels" do not include choses in action.—The terms "goods and chattels" in this section, as well as in sections 5188, 5189, 5194 and 5196, mean visible, tangible, personal property only, and do not include choses in action, e. g., bank stock. Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 495, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898, note 7 Va. Law Reg. 214. See, also, Kirkland v. Brune, 31 Grat. 126.

"Actual Possession."—Actual possession is an essential element of title under this section, and cannot be inferred from the proof of an absolute gift originally and nothing more. Anglin v. Bottom, 3 Grat 1, overruling Hansbrough v. Thom, 3 Leigh 147. Possession meant is actual, abiding, permanent possession. Durham v. Dunkly, 6 Rand. 135, 149, 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 90, 91.

A verbal gift without delivery cannot be sustained, even where the subject of the gift is in the possession of the donee. Yancy v. Field, 85 Va. 762, 8 S. E. 721; Miller v. Jeffress, 4 Grat. 472. And so a parol gift of a slave to a son, but retaining to the donor a life interest, passes nothing to the son. Anderson v. Thompson, 11 Leigh 439.

Delivery.—Delivery is essential as to gifts inter vivos; and, in general, this delivery must be either actual (i. e., delivery by the donor to the donee, or to some one for him, of the thing given), or constructive (i. e., delivery, in same manner, of the means of obtaining the subject of the gift). Spooner v. Hilbish, 92 Va. 333, 341, 23 S. E. 751; Yancy v. Field, 85 Va. 760, 8 S. E. 721; Ewing v. Ewing, 2 Leigh 337; Elam v. Keen, 4 Leigh 333, 26 Am. Dec. 322; Lee v. Boak, 11 Grat, 182, 185; Thomas v. Lewis, 89 Va. 79, 15 S. E. 389, 18 L. R. A. 170, 37 Am. St. Rep. 848; Morrison v. Grubb, 23 Grat. 342; 1 Va. Law Reg. 873, 874. But under this section it is a question whether actual delivery of goods and chattels is required, or whether actual possession may result from constructive delivery. Thomas v. Lewis, 89 Va. 32, 73, 15 S. E. 389, 18 L. R. A. 170, 37 Am St. Rep. 848; 1 Va. Law Reg. 876.

It may be taken as settled that a verbal gift of chattels does not, without delivery, pass the property. See note, 11 Va. Law Reg. 770.

"Residing together."—The provision that "if the donor and donee reside together at the time of the gift, possession at the place of their residence shall not be a sufficient possession within the meaning of this section," was the rule in the case of a parol gift of a slave to a son by father when they resided together. Shirley v. Long, 6 Rand. 764; Hunter v. Jones, Id. 541; Slaughter v. Tutt, 12 Leigh 147; Tutt v. Slaughter, 5 Grat. 364; Thomas v. Lewis, 89 Va. 82, 15 S. E. 389, 18 L. R. A. 170, 37 Am. St. Rep. 848. And since this statute does not apply to choses in action, a gift by husband to wife of bank stock is good though they were living together. Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 495, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898.

Parol trusts in personalty.—This section does not forbid the creating of a valid trust by parol in personalty or in the proceeds of real estate. Riggan v. Riggan, 93 Va. 78, 90, 24 S. E. 920.

Recordation of Deed.—Under this section, a deed would be valid between the parties without being recorded, Henry v. Graves, 16 Grat. 246; but it must be recorded to hold against creditors, etc., section 5194.

Generally.—Gift by parol, once consummated, cannot be retracted. Brown v. Handley, 7 Leigh 119.

For discussion of the question whether this section, as it formerly read, applied to the wife's paraphernalia, see 7 Va. L. R. 214.

As to gifts generally, see article 1 Va. Law Reg. 871-894; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 90 et seq.; note to Barker v. Barker, 2 Grat. 344, Va. Rep. Ann.; also Henry v. Graves, 16 Grat. 244; Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 864; 15 Va. Law J. 757.

Sec. 5143. When person not named a party, or named jointly with others, may take or sue under instrument.—An immediate estate or interest in or the benefit of a condition respecting any estate may be taken by a person under an instrument, although he be not a party thereto; and if a covenant or promise be made for the benefit, in whole or in part, of a person with whom it is not made, or with whom it is made jointly with others, such person, whether named in the instrument or not, may maintain in his own name any action thereon which he might maintain in case it had been made with him only, and the consideration had moved from him to the party making such covenant or promise. In such action the covenantor or promisor shall be permitted to make all defenses he may have, not only against the covenantee or promisee, but against such beneficiary as well. (Code 1887, § 2415.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision it applied only to a covenant or promise made for the SOLE BENEFIT OF A PERSON. It will be observed that the section has been so changed as to be applicable where the covenant or promise is for the benefit, IN WHOLE OR IN PART, of a person, thereby changing the law in this respect. No good reason was perceived for limiting the relief to a promise for the sole benefit of a person.

Section 2415 of the Code of 1887 was under review in the case of Newberry v. Newberry, 95 Va. 119, 27 S. E. 899, and it was there held that if the covenant was inter partes the beneficiary could not sue unless expressly named or pointed out by the instrument. In 4 Va. Law Reg.

616, it is suggested that the plaintiff in that case might have sued under section 2860 of the former Code (5768 of this Code), which gives a right of action in his own name to the assignee or beneficial owner of a chose in action. As the latter section gives a right of action to the beneficial owner, of course it is not necessary that he should be named in the instrument, but it is simply necessary to show that he is the beneficial owner. It seemed that this section should be made as comprehensive as section 5768, above referred to, and no good reason was seen why the beneficial owner should be named in or pointed out by the instrument. Hence, the words "whether named in the instrument or not," found in line seven of the text, are new. Of course, if the beneficial owner is allowed to sue, the promisor or covenantor should be allowed all defenses against him. This is provided for in the last sentence of the section.

Pleading and Practice.—It is usual when an action is brought in the name of one person for the benefit of another to state the fact in the body of the declaration, or by endorsement thereon, or on the writ. But this is not necessary. Pates v. St. Clair, 11 Grat. 22, Hays, &c., v. Va. Mut. Protection Asso., 76 Va. 228. The endorsement may be made any time during the progress of the suit, and even upon the execution.

Like the case of an assigned bond or note, the original right to sue in the name of the contracting party is not destroyed by the new remedy allowed by this statute, but on the contrary remains in full force. Mutual B. Life Ins. Co. v. Atwood's Admx., 24 Grat. 497.

At common law, upon an indenture, action can be brought only by the parties or their privies, and not by the beneficiary, though mentioned expressly in the indenture. Ross v. Milne, 12 Leigh 204, 37 Am. Dec. 646. This section, however, allows the beneficiary to sue in his own name. Jones v. Thomas, 21 Grat. 96; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 450, 942; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 832. See, also, Stuart v. James Co., 24 Grat. 294, and note Va. Rep. Ann.

When objection for want of proper parties may be taken, Almond v. Rothgeb, 1 Va. Dec. 138.

As to suit by assignees or beneficial owners of bonds, etc., in their own names, see section 5768.

Interest in insured property.—Any person having an interest in property insured, though no party to the policy, may institute and maintain an action in his own name to the extent of the loss occasioned him by its destruction. Tilley v. Conn. Fire Ins. Co., 86 Va. 811, 11 S. E. 120; Clemmitt v. N. Y. Life Ins. Co., 76 Va. 360.

Assumption of Lien on Land.—The assumption of the payment of a lien on land as a part of the purchase price thereof, for which the grantee's immediate grantor is not personally bound, is a promise for the sole benefit of the holder of the lien within the meaning of this section, and may be enforced by such holder against the party so promising. Casselman v. Gordon, 118 Va. 553, 88 S. E. 58. As to the words "in whole or in part," now appearing in the section, see revisors' note above.

Generally.—This section expressly overturns the rule of Newberry v. Newberry, 95 Va. 119, 27 S. E. 899, to the effect that in order for one not a party nor a privy to such party to sue upon an indenture or deed inter partes, he must be named or definitely pointed out in it as beneficiary.

Under this section, where a contract with city for the construction of sewer required city to deduct from amount due contractor a specified sum for each day's delay in completion of work beyond time specified, and to pay such sum to engineer employed by city to superintend the work, the engineer may maintain an action on such covenant in his own name. City v. Potter, 122 Fed. 321, 58 C. C. A. 483.

Sec. 5144. When legal title to claim or chose is in one person and beneficial title in another, latter may maintain suit in name of former or in his own name.—When the legal title to any claim or chose in action, for the enforcement of the collection of which a court of equity has jurisdiction, is in one person and the beneficial equitable title thereto is in another, the latter may either maintain a suit in the name of the holder of the legal title for his use and benefit or in his own name to enforce collection of the same. In either case the beneficial equitable owner shall be deemed the real plaintiff and shall be alone liable for costs. (1897-8, p. 437.)

The assignee of a judgment cannot recover from sheriff on official bond for breach of duty concerning same which occurred prior to assignment. Com. v. Wampler, 104 Va. 337, 51 S. E. 737. See also discussion, 11 Va. Law Reg. 667, 867.

Sec. 5145. Deeds made by attorneys-in-fact.—If, in a deed made by one as attorney-in-fact for another, the words of conveyance or the signature be in the name of the attorney, it shall be as much the principal's deed as if the words of conveyance or the signature were in the name of the principal by the attorney, if it be manifest on the face of the deed that it should be construed to be that of the principal to give effect to its intent. (Code 1887, § 2416.)

Before the Code of 1849, when this statute first became a law, deeds purporting to be made by the parties as attorneys for their principals, but which were executed by the attorneys in their own names, and not in those of their principals, were held inoperative. Martin v. Flowers, 8 Leigh 158; Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Grat. 110, 50 Am. Dec. 108; Stinchcomb v. Marsh, 15 Grat. 202, 210; Bryan v. Stump, 8 Grat. 241, 56 Am. Dec. 139.

For the proper manner for attorneys in fact to execute deeds in pursuance of a power of appointment, as the law was before this section was enacted, see Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Grat. 110; Bryan v. Stump, 8 Grat. 241, 56 Am. Dec. 139.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 71, section 3.

Sec. 5146. Estates to lie in grant as well as in livery.—All real estate shall, as regards the conveyance of the immediate freehold thereof, be deemed to lie in grant as well as in livery. (Code 1887, § 2417.)

This statute, called "Statute of Grants," was enacted first in Code of 1849, and was taken from 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106. Carrington v. Goddin, 13 Grat. 600. Before the Code of 1849 both a deed and livery of seisin were necessary for conveyance of freeholds, except in case of conveyances operating under the statute of uses, which required a consideration. Taking this section in connection with section 5141, it is seen that now livery of seisin is unnecessary in any case. The conveyance of the immediate freehold may be by simple words of grant. Lauck v. Logan, 45 W. Va. 251, 31 S. E. 986; 4 Va. Law Reg. 777; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 264, 659, 661, 779, 826, 903; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 38, 41, 62.

Sec. 5147. Disposal of interest in real estate; estates by deed may commence in future; executory limitations by deed; remainder over coupled with power of disposal in life tenant not defeated except to the extent that power of disposal shall have been exercised.—Any interest in or claim to real estate may be disposed of by deed or will. Any estate may be made to commence in futuro, by deed, in like manner as by will; and any estate which would be good as an executory devise or bequest, shall be good if created by deed.

If any interest in or claim to real estate or personal property be disposed of by deed or will for life, with a limitation in remainder over, and in the same instrument there be conferred expressly or by implication a power upon the life tenant in his life time or by will to dispose absolutely of said property, the limitation in remainder over, shall not fail, or be defeated, except to the extent that the life tenant shall have lawfully exercised such power of disposal; provided, however, that a deed of trust or mortgage executed by the life tenant shall not be construed to be an absolute disposition of the estate thereby conveyed, unless there be a sale thereunder. (Code 1887, § 2418; 1908, p. 187.)

Revisors' Note.—The first paragraph of this section is section 2418 of the Code of 1887, without change. The second paragraph is a modification of the amendment of 1908 (Acts 1908, p. 187), the primary object of which was to abolish the doctrine of May v. Joynes, 20 Gratt. 692. This paragraph is expressly restricted to devises and bequests FOR LIFE, with absolute power of disposition. The act of 1908 did not contain the words "for life," as to which see 1 Minor on Real Prop., section 858. For a valuable discussion of the law relating to the doctrine of May v. Joynes, see Graves' Notes on Real Prop., (New), sections 242 to 248.

Interests which may be conveyed.—Under this section every conceivable interest in or claim to real estate, present or future, vested or contingent, and however acquired, may be disposed of by deed or will. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 674, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Young v. Young, 89 Va. 675, 17 S. E. 470, 23 L. R. A. 642; 4 Va. Law Reg. 646.

Contingent Remainders.—A contingent remainder may be conveyed. Young v. Young, 89 Va. 675, 17 S. E. 470, 23 L. R. A. 642.

Where under a will three brothers took jointly a fee simple estate in certain real estate with a limitation on the share of each over to his brother if he died before them and without issue, the brothers joined in a deed to the property to a third party. Held, That under this section and sections 5163 and 5164, the third person took an absolute fee simple title. Smith v. Smith, 112 Va. 617, 70 S. E. 491.

The deed of a debtor, conveying all of his property, real and personal, to a trustee, for the benefit of creditors, passes the debtor's interest in a contingent remainder. Wilson v. Langhorne, 102 Va. 631, 10 Va. Law Reg. 209, 47 S. E. 871.

Rights of Entry or Action.—An interest in or claim to land, held adversely by another (a right of entry or of action), may be conveyed. Carrington v. Goddin, 13 Grat. 587; Mustard v. Wohlford, 15 Grat. 329, 76 Am. Dec. 209.

Before the first paragraph of this section as it now stands went into effect (July 1, 1850), the bargainee of a party not in possession, actual or constructive, at the time of the execution of the deed, could not maintain ejectment in his own name, at least against the party in adverse possession of the land. Tabb v. Baird, 3 Call. 475; Hopkins v. Ward, 6 Munf. 38; See v. Greenlee, Id. 303; Kincheloe v. Tracewells, 11 Grat. 587; Early v. Garland, 13 Grat. 1. But this section has changed the common-law rule, and the grantee may maintain an action of ejectment therefor in his own name, and this is supposed to be held to apply to transactions anterior as well as subsequent to the statute. Carrington v. Goddin, 13 Grat. 599; Mustard v. Wohlford, 15 Grat. 339; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 642, 903.

Executory interests.—"The provision that any estate which would be good as an executory devise or bequest shall be good if created by deed destroys the distinction between devises and deeds as to the validity of executory interests, and sanctions the doctrine of executory devises and bequests as equally applicable to deeds; thus permitting a fee on a fee by way of deed, and validating by deed without uses the other limitations which were formerly void except when found in a will or in a deed by way of use." 4 Va. Law Reg. 646.

Former and present rule as to limitation over after absolute power of disposition.—Formerly whenever it was the intention of the testator that the devisee should have an unrestrained power of disposition over the property devised, whether such intention was expressed or necessarily implied, a limitation over to another was void, because it was inconsistent with and repugnant to, the estate given to the first devisee, although the will showed that it was the testator's intention that what remained of the property given to the first taker should go to another, the limitation over failing for uncertainty. May v. Joynes, 20 Grat. 692, note Va. Rep. Ann.; Farish v. Wayman, 91 Va. 436, 21 S. E. 810, note 1 Va. Law Reg. 220; Shermer v. Shermer, 1 Wash. 266, 1 Am. Dec. 460; Riddick v. Cook, 118 Va. 1, 86 S. E. 903. The object of the amendment of 1908 to section 2418 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to this section) was to change the doctrine of May v. Joynes. This amendment, while the subject of much discussion by the legal profession, has never been construed by the Supreme Court of Appeals. The present section retains the amendment of 1908 in a modified form, as to which see revisors' note above.

Generally.—Where a deed conveys property in fee simple, and restrains the power of alienation, the latter provision is void. Blair v. Muse, 83 Va. 238, 2 S. E. 31.

This section is sufficient to enable a life tenant and contingent remaindermen to enter into a valid and binding contract affixing the price at which the land held by them shall be sold. Heuser v. Belvin, 118 Va. 346, 87 S. E. 594.

Sec. 5148. Deed good for grantor's right; operation of warranty.—A writing which purports to pass or assure a greater right or interest in real estate than the person making it may lawfully pass or assure, shall operate as an alienation of such right or interest in the said real estate as such person might lawfully convey or assure; and when the deed of the alienor mentions that he and his heirs will warrant what it purports to pass or assure, if any thing descends from him, his heirs shall be barred for the value of what is so descended or liable for such value. (Code 1887, § 2419.)

Warranty.—Where a husband conveys the property of his wife with warranty against the claims of himself and his heirs, his children, deriving title from their mother, will not be affected by the warranty. Urquhart v. Clarke, 2 Rand. 549.

The provisfon that "when the deed of the alienor mentions that he and his heirs will warrant what it purports to pass or assure, if anything descends from him, his heirs shall be barred from the value of what is so descended or liable for such value," changes the common law touching collateral warranty. And this provision is understood to apply only to cases of real assets descending from the warranting ancestor, and not to personal assets, or assets, whether personal or real, accruing from him by devise or bequest. Norman v. Cunningham, 5 Grat. 64, 77, 83; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 712.

Generally.—The rule stated in Pendleton v. Vandevier, 1 Wash. 388, as well as the one in Wiseley v. Findlay, 3 Rand. 361, 15 Am. Dec. 712, is in accord with this section.

As a result of this statute, it is believed that no forfeiture can in any case arise from a particular tenant undertaking to alien a greater estate than he possesses. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 111, 263, 423, 474.

Cited but not construed in Va. Coal and Iron Co. v. Hylton, 115 Va. 418, 79 S. E. 337.

Sec. 5149. Words of limitation dispensed with.—Where any real estate is conveyed, devised, or granted to any person without any words of limitation, such devise, conveyance, or grant shall be construed to pass the fee simple or other the whole estate or interest which the testator or grantor had power to dispose of in such real estate, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, conveyance, or grant. (Code 1887, § 2420.)

Common law changed.—Prior to 1787, when the original of this section went into effect, such devise, conveyance, or grant as is contemplated by this section was, at common law, construed to pass no greater estate than one for the life of the grantor or testator, and the reversion descended to the heir of the grantor or testator. Markells v. Markells, 32 Grat. 544, 557; Kennon v. McRoberts, 1 Wash. 100, 101, 1 Am. Dec. 428; Mooberry v. Marye, 2 Munf. 453; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 915, 916.

"Estate" construed to mean fee simple.—The word "estate" in a will was sufficient, prior to 1787, to pass the fee. Davies v. Miller, 1 Call. 127, and note Va. Rep. Ann. Likewise the words "temporal estate." Watson v. Powell, 3 Call 306. See, also, Wyatt v. Sadler, 1 Munf. 537; Goodrich v. Harding, 3 Rand. 280, where "temporal goods" construed a fee simple.

Effect of statute construing deed.—At common law, in case of repugnancy between the premises and the habendum in deeds to natural persons, the latter gave way to the former; but in consequence of this section the whole deed must be looked to to ascertain and give effect to the intention of the parties. Humphrey v. Foster, 13 Grat. 653; Mauzy v. Mauzy, 79 Va. 538; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 705.

Application of statute.—The statute applies to a deed made in the execution of a power. Walke v. Moore, 95 Va. 729, 736, 30 S. E. 374.

A remainder to "such person or persons as shall at the death of R. answer the description of heir or heirs at law of said R., and such person or persons shall take said land as purchasers, and not by inheritance," is a gift in fee simple by implication, under the act of 1785 (in effect 1787), and a fortiori under this section. Taylor v. Cleary, 29 Grat. 448, 454, 461.

"I will and bequeath to my son George the Aud Farm," gives to George an estate in fee simple under this statute. Wine v. Markwood, 31 Grat. 45.

Use of word "Heirs."—Since 1787, under this section, the word

"heirs" has not been necessary to create an estate of inheritance. Daniel v. Lipscomb, 110 Va. 563, 66 S. E. 850. Annotated 16 Va. Law Reg. 44.

Words of Reservation.—It has been seriously questioned whether this section changes the common law rule as to words of limitation in the case of reservations. 1 Minor Real Property, section 160. In this connection see Amer. Natl. Bank v. Taylor, 112 Va. 1, 70 S. E. 534, where the question is considered but not decided whether a reservation does not come under the words of section 5159 which treats of real estate "conveyed or devised" to husband and wife.

Sec. 5150. Fee tail converted into fee simple.—Every estate in lands so limited, that, as the law was on the seventh day of October in the year seventeen hundred and seventy-six, such estate would have been an estate tail, shall be deemed an estate in fee simple; and every limitation upon such an estate shall be held valid, if the same would be valid when limited, upon an estate in fee simple, created by technical language. (Code 1887, § 2421.)

History of section.—The first act, the aim of which was to abolish estates tail, was the act of October 7, 1776. This was defective, in that it applied only to estates tail in possession, and those in reversion or remainder, after the determination of an estate for life or lives, or any lesser estate, but not to those in reversion or remainder after a fee tail. Roy v. Garnett, 2 Wash. 9, 35. Therefore, in 1785, another act was passed substantially the same as this section, abolishing all estates tail. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 96, 454.

Rule of construction of wills not changed by this section.—In construing a will made since the act of 1776, courts are to be governed by the rules of construction which prevailed before that act, notwithstanding the reason on which some of the rules were founded was done away with by the abolition of estates tail. Tate v. Tally, 3 Call 354; Jiggetts v. Davis, 1 Leigh 423; Ball v. Payne, 6 Rand. 73; Bramble v. Billups, 4 Leigh 90; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 464.

Presumption is against the intention to create estate tail.—Since the act of 1776 it is not to be supposed that a man intended to convey an estate tail unless plain and unequivocal words are used, such as would of themselves create a fee tail, without resorting to implication. Smith v. Chapman, 1 Hen. & M. 240, 302; Taylor v. Cleary, 29 Grat. 448; Walker v. Lewis, 90 Va. 581, 19 S. E. 258; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 465.

Remainder after estates tail—Old doctrine—Before 1820 words referring to the death of a person without issue, unexplained by the context, and whether applied to real or personal estate, were construed to import a general, indefinite failure of issue. Tinsley v. Jones, 13 Grat. 289; Moore v. Brooks, 12 Grat. 135. But see section 5151 and 4 Va. Law Reg. 652.

Therefore before 1820 a devise to A., and if he die without issue then to B., was a devise of an estate tail to A., raised by Statutes of 1776 and 1785 converting estates tail into a fee simple. It was held that all remainders, both contingent and vested, after estates tail, were utterly barred by said acts, whether created before or after the enactment of the law. This is the doctrine of Carter v. Tyler, 1 Call 165. See, also, Hill v. Burrow, 3 Call 342; Tate v. Tally, Id. 354; Eldridge v. Fisher, 1 Hen. & M. 559; Smith v. Chapman, Id. 300; Bramble v. Billups, 4 Leigh 90; See v. Craigen, 8 Leigh 449; Callis v. Kemp, 11 Grat. 78; Hood v. Haden, 82 Va. 597; Tinsley v. Jones, 13 Grat. 289; Thomason v. Anderson, 4 Leigh 118; Bells v. Gillespie, 5 Rand. 273; Broaddus v. Turner, Id. 308; Griffith v. Thomson, 1 Leigh 321; Callava v. Pope, 3 Leigh 103; Deane v.

Hansford, 9 Leigh 253; Nowlin v. Winfree, 8 Grat. 346; Jiggetts v. Davis, 1 Leigh 368. See, also, 4 Va. Law Reg. 654.

Same—Present doctrine.—But this doctrine of Carter v. Tyler is obviated by the provision in effect January 1, 1820, that "every limitation upon such estate shall be held valid if the same would be valid when limited upon an estate in fee simple created by technical language," 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 460, 461; and section 5151 removes from the limitation to B. the objection of remoteness. As to effect of the legislation of 1820 upon such a devise as the one above, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 458 et seq.; 4 Va. Law Reg. 654 et seq.; Id. 805; 5 Va. Law Reg. 67-91—where all the Virginia cases are collected and discussed.

Application of statute.—Devise to daughter during her life, and after her death to the lawful issue of her body, created in daughter an estate tail, raised by this section to fee simple, and the addition "to them and their heirs and assigns forever" does not defeat the rule. Hall v. Smith, 25 Grat. 72; Moore v. Brooks, 12 Grat. 135; Tidball v. Lupton, 1 Rand. 194.

A devise of lands to one for life, and after his death to his sons and their heirs forever, to be equally divided among them, but, in case of his dying without leaving a son or son's son who can take, then to other designated persons, did not, under rule in Shelley's case, create a fee tail in the first devisee. Walker v. Lewis, 90 Va. 578, 19 S. E. 258; Taylor v. Cleary, 29 Grat. 448.

The devise to trustees of a separate estate in slaves, in trust for the use and benefit of a married woman or her heirs, is a devise of the absolute interest, and the bequest over was void. Nixon v. Rose, 12 Grat. 425.

See notes to sections 5151, 5152.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 71, section 9.

Sec. 5151. What limitations are valid.—Every limitation in any deed or will contingent upon the dying of any person without heirs, or heirs of the body, or issue, or issue of the body, or children, or offspring or descendant, or other relative, shall be construed a limitation, to take effect when such person shall die not having such heir or issue, or child or offspring, or descendant, or other relative, as the case may be, living at the time of his death, or born to him within ten months thereafter, unless the intention of such limitation be otherwise plainly declared on the face of the deed or will creating it. (Code 1887, § 2422.)

Definite and indefinite failure of issue.—Before 1820 words referring to the death of a person without issue, unexplained by the context, and whether applied to real or personal estate, were construed to import a general indefinite failure of issue. Tinsley v. Jones, 13 Grat. 289; Moore v. Brooks, 12 Grat. 135.

As to distinction between definite and indefinite failure of issue, see footnote, 4 Va. Law Reg. 647; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 440-443.

Common law rule changed.—The purpose of this section is to effectuate the intention of the testator by rendering valid limitations which would have been otherwise invalid as violative of the rule against perpetuities. Since January 1, 1820, words which had previously been construed to mean an indefinite failure of issue are now construed to mean a definite failure of issue and the limitations founded thereon are no longer void for remoteness. Daniel v. Lipscomb, 110 Va. 563, 66 S. E. 850; see anno. to this case 16 Va. Law Reg. 44.

By this section the common-law presumption of an indefinite failure of issue was altered, and the presumption of a definite failure was made to take its place. 4 Va. Law Reg. 652.

Generally.—A provision that "it is my will that if any of my children die without heirs, for their part to be equally divided amongst all my children then living," is a valid executory bequest, as it was to take effect in the lifetime of a person or persons in being at the time of the testator's death, the word "heirs" meaning issue. Norris v. Johnston, 17 Grat. 8.

Sec. 5152. Effect of estate of freehold to one with limitation over by way of remainder to heirs, etc.; rule in Shelley's case abolished. —Wherever any person, by deed, will, or other writing, takes an estate of freehold in land, or takes such an estate in personal property, as would be an estate of freehold, if it were an estate in land, and in the same deed, will, or writing, an estate is afterwards limited by way of remainder, either mediately or immediately, to his heirs, or the heirs of his body, or his issue, the words "heirs," "heirs of his body," and "issue," or other words of like import used in the deed, will, or writing in the limitation therein by way of remainder, shall not be construed as words of limitation carrying to such person the inheritance as to the land, or the absolute estate as to the personal property, but they shall be construed as words of purchase, creating a remainder in the heirs, heirs of the body, or issue. (Code 1887, § 2423.)

History of statute—Change by Code of 1887.—The first statute essaying to abolish the rule in Shelley's case was contained in the Code of 1849, and continued unchanged until the Code of 1887.

Previous to Code of 1887, the statute applied only where a remainder was vested in the heirs of the first taker, i. e., where the grantor was competent to, and actually did, vest in the heirs a remainder in fee simple after an estate for the ancestor's life. Hood v. Haden, 82 Va. 588. The statute was not applicable where the limitation was to the ancestor for the life of another, nor for any other freehold estate save for his own life. But the present statute obviates the incongruity, being co-ordinated with the rule itself. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 412; Burks' Address in Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1371.

"Heirs," etc.—When words of purchase and when of limitation.—Before the abolition of the rule in Shelley's case, in case of a devise to B. for life and to the heirs of B. lawfully begotten (or similar words) the words "heirs of B. lawfully begotten" (and similar words) were held to be words of limitation, and B. took the whole interest. Moore v. Brooks, 12 Grat. 135; Self v. Tune, 6 Munf. 470; Bells v. Gillespie, 5 Rand. 273; Broaddus v. Turner, Id. 308; Griffith v. Thomson, 1 Leigh 321; Callava v. Pope, 3 Leigh 103; Deane v. Hansford, 9 Leigh 253; Nowlin v. Winfree, 8 Grat. 346; which cases overruled Timberlake v. Graves, 6 Munf. 174; Gresham v. Gresham, Id. 187; James v. McWilliams, Id. 301; Cordle v. Cordle, Id. 455; Didlake v. Hooper, Gilmer 194. But it was also held that the word "heirs" as well as "issue" may be construed a word of purchase, as descriptive of the person to take, if that shall appear to be the intention of the testator, and is not necessarily a word of limitation. Tidball v. Lupton, 1 Rand. 197; Warner v. Mason, 5 Munf. 242; Roy v. Garnett, 2 Wash. 9.

For example, before the abolition of the rule in Shelley's case, a deed to "R. for life, and after his death to such person or persons as shall at that time answer the description of the heir or heirs at law of the said R., and such person or persons shall take as purchasers under this deed, and not as heirs of said R.," was not under the rule in Shelley's case, because the term used to describe heirs was a designation of particular persons, and not used in the technical sense as a word of inheritance; therefore R. took but a life estate, while the persons answering to the description of heirs at law of R. took as purchasers a remainder at common law for life; but by act of 1785, dispensing with words of limitation (section 5149), remainder in fee. Taylor v. Cleary, 29 Grat. 448. And so while in a will the word "son" may be used as a word of limitation, it is, in its technical sense, a word of purchase, and is presumably so used unless there is something in the context to show the contrary. Walker v. Lewis, 90 Va. 581, 19 S. E. 258; Moon v. Stone, 19 Grat. 130, 242.

As to words of purchase generally, see footnote to Smith v. Chapman, 1 Hen. & M. 240, Va. Rep. Ann.

Rule in Shelley's case did not apply to executory limitations. Hawthorne v. Beckwith, 89 Va. 786, 17 S. E. 241; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 437.

Previous to the abolition of the rule in Shelley's case a devise to a daughter of an estate for life, with a remainder to her issue in fee, and in default of issue with limitation over to his own heirs, gave under Code of 1819 an estate tail, converted by statutes of 1776 and 1785 (section 5150) into a fee simple; but the fee was determinable by her death without issue then living, with a limitation to the person who was testator's heir at the time of his death. Stokes v. Van Wyck, 83 Va. 724, 3 S. E. 387.

A loan of slaves to a daughter during her natural life, and to her heirs lawfully begotten of her body, "and should my daughter dispose or attempt to alienate the slaves, etc., her title shall cease, and I direct my executors to take them into possession; and in such case, after her decease, they and their increase to be divided among her children, if any living; otherwise to be divided among my children." Held, the daughter took but a life estate in the slaves, and her children took remainder as purchasers under the will. Pryor v. Duncan, 6 Grat. 27. But the above decision was rendered upon the ground that although the words "heirs lawfully begotten" were used in one clause, the whole context showed that the words were not used in their legal and primary sense, but descriptive of another class of persons pointed out in the following clause as the children of the first taker. Moore v. Brooks, 12 Grat. 149.

New estate created in heirs, etc., living at testator's death.—After a bequest or devise of an estate for the life of the first taker, words of survivorship in a will are always to be referred to the period of the testator's death, when no special intent appears to the contrary. Cheatham v. Gower, 94 Va. 386, 26 S. E. 853; Hansford v. Elliott, 9 Leigh, 79; Martin v. Kirby, 11 Grat. 67; Stone v. Lewis, 84 Va. 474, 5 S. E. 282; Sellers v. Reed. 88 Va. 377, 13 S. E. 754; Gish v. Moomaw, 89 Va. 347, 15 S. E. 868; Chapman v. Chapman, 90 Va. 409, 18 S. E. 913; Crews v. Hatcher, 91 Va. 382, 21 S. E. 811; Stanley v. Stanley, 92 Va. 534, 24 S. E. 229. But see sections 5242, 5243, for pretermitted children.

Generally.—Under section 5147 as it now stands a limitation over after a life estate with power of disposition in the life tenant is valid. See that section and notes appended.

operate, by merger or otherwise, to defeat, impair, or otherwise affect such remainder. (Code 1887, § 2425.)

See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 394.

Sec. 5155. In what conveyances, possession transferred to the use.—By deed of bargain and sale, or by deeds of lease and release, or by covenant to stand seized to the use, or deed operating by way of covenant to stand seized to the use, the possession of the bargainor, releasor, or covenantor, shall be deemed transferred to the bargainee, release, or person entitled to the use, for the estate or interest which such person has in the use, as perfectly as if the bargainee, releasee, or person entitled to the use, had been enfeoffed with livery of seisin of the land intended to be conveyed by such deed or covenant. (Code 1887, § 2426.)

History of uses.—As to the origin, nature, and history of uses prior to St. 27 Hen. VIII, c. 10, usually called the "Statute of Uses," see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 204 et seq.

Scope of the law.—This section embraces only those conveyances which operate without transmutation of possession, and therefore does not apply to uses created by devise. Bass v. Scott, 2 Leigh 356. And so a feoffment to A., to the use of B., vests only an equitable estate in B., which this section does not execute. Jones v. Tatum, 19 Grat. 732; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 823, 824; Id. 215-217.

Coparceners may convey to one another by bargain and sale. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 506.

Under this section, can a use be raised in favor of one not within the consideration? 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 170.

Defective deed of feoffment may operate under this section.—A deed being defective as a feoffment, for want of proof of livery of seisin, may operate as a covenant to stand seised to use, and as such to pass title to the grantee, for the use is executed into possession by the force of this section. Rowlett v. Daniel, 4 Munf. 473.

Consideration to support a conveyance—Husband and wife.—In case of a deed operating as a covenant to stand seised to the use, the connection between husband and wife, or wife and husband, is a sufficient consideration to support the conveyance, and if this connection appears in the deed that is sufficient. Ware v. Cary, 2 Call 263.

Generally.—After executing a deed operating by way of covenant to stand seised to use, the grantor cannot, by a decree to a third person, convert his own possession into a possession adverse to that of the grantee. Rowlett v. Daniel, 4 Munf. 473.

Many conveyances intended to operate under the statute of uses, which for want of some requisites cannot take effect, are effective under the statute of grants. Section 5146; Rowlett v. Daniel, 4 Munf. 473; Watts v. Cole, 2 Leigh 663; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 827.

For uses created by other conveyances than the three mentioned in the statute, constituting examples of direct trusts, and cognizable only in a court of equity, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 217.

On the section generally, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 213, 823; as to conditional limitations, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 270; as to executory limitations, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 430.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 71, section 14.

Sec. 5156. Deed of release effectual.—Every deed of release of any estate or interest, capable of passing by deeds of lease or release, shall be as effectual for the purposes therein expressed, without the execution of a lease, as if the same had been executed. (Code 1887, § 2427.)

Sec. 5157. Estates in trust to be subject to debts of beneficiaries; exception.—Estates of every kind, holden or possessed in trust, shall be subject to debts and charges of the persons to whose use or to whose benefit they are holden or possessed, as they would be if those persons owned the like interest in the things holden or possessed, as in the uses or trusts thereof; but any such estate, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars in actual value, may be holden or possessed in trust upon condition that the corpus thereof and income therefrom, or either of them, shall be applied by the trustee to the support and maintenance of the beneficiaries without being subject to their liabilities or to alienation by them; but no such trust shall operate to the prejudice of any existing creditor of the creator of such trust. (Code 1887, § 2428.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section is new, and the effect of it is to permit spendthrift trusts to the extent stated. See, in this connection, Garland v. Garland, 87 Va. 758, 13 S. E. 478, and Hutchinson v. Maxwell, 100 Va. 169, 40 S. E. 655. The latter case criticizes the former. There is must to be said both for and against spendthrift trusts. The revisors were of opinion that these trusts should be permitted to a limited extent. Existing creditors of the creator of the trust are of course protected.

Judgment creditor has lien upon equitable estate of debtor.—A judgment creditor has a lien in equity on the equitable estate of the debtor in the same manner that at law he has a lien upon his legal estate. Coutts v. Walker, 2 Leigh 268; Haleys v. Williams, 1 Leigh 140, 19 Am. Dec. 743; Withers v. Carter, 4 Grat. 407, 417, 50 Am. Dec. 78; Findlay v. Toncray, 2 Rob. 377. Therefore, if a condition is annexed to an equitable life estate that it shall not be liable for the owner's debts, it is a void condition. Hutchinson v. Maxwell, 100 Va. 169, 173, 179, 40 S. E. 655, 57 L. R. A. 384, 93 Am. St. Rep. 944, criticising Garland v. Garland, 87 Va. 758, 13 S. E. 478, 13 L. R. A. 212, 24 Am. St. Rep. 682. See, also 7 Va. Law Reg. 796. But as to spendthrift trusts, see present section and revisors' note. Tangible personal property in which execution debtor has only an equitable interest may nevertheless be levied on for the satisfaction of a fieri facias. Section 6486.

Generally.—See Burks' Pleading and Practice, p. 642.

Sec. 5158. Curtesy and dower of trust estate.—Where a person, to whose use, or in trust for whose benefit another is seized of real estate, has such inheritance in the use or trust as, if it were a legal right, would entitle such person's husband or wife to curtesy or dower thereof, such husband or wife shall have curtesy or dower of the said estate. (Code 1887, § 2429.)

Object of section.—The manifest object of this section (in force since January 1, 1787) was to abolish the common-law rule that a widow could not be endowed in her husband's trust or equitable estate, and to confer upon her the same right of dower in such estate as if it were his legal estate. James v. Upton, 96 Va. 301, 31 S. E. 255; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384, 405; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 141; Claiborne v. Henderson, 3 Hen. & M. 322.

Dower in incomplete equitable estate as well as in perfect trusts.—Not only is the widow entitled to dower where the husband has a perfect equity, i. e., where he has paid the entire purchase price, so that a court of equity would compel a conveyance of the legal title (Rowton v. Row-ton, 1 Hen. & M. 92); but she is also entitled to dower where the husband has aliened the land before acquiring the legal title or paying the entire purchase price (James v. Upton, 96 Va. 303, 31 S. E. 255).

Therefore where a husband enters into an agreement for the purchase of land, takes possession and pays part of the purchase price, he is beneficially seised to the extent that he has paid the purchase price, although he has not acquired the legal title; and his widow is entitled, under this section, to dower in the land, subject to the lien upon it for the unpaid purchase price, whether he died possessed of the land or had aliened it during the coverture without her concurrence, in the mode prescribed by law. In latter case provisions of section 5128 apply. James v. Upton, 96 Va. 296, 31 S. E. 255.

Equitable estates may be contracted for by verbal agreement.—Under this section the widow is entitled to dower in an equitable estate in fee simple contracted by verbal agreement to be conveyed to her late husband. Rowton v. Rowton, 1 Hen. & M. 92.

No dower in land bought with partnership funds for partnership purposes.—Lands bought with partnership funds for partnership purposes is so far considered as personalty that the widow is not entitled to dower therein, but only to her distributive share thereof. Deering v. Kerfoot, 89 Va. 491, 16 S. E. 671; Parrish v. Parrish, 88 Va. 529, 14 S. E. 325; Pierce v. Trigg, 10 Leigh 422; Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh 272, 37 Am. Dec. 654; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 140, 141, and note to section 5117.

Dower in equity of redemption of lands mortgaged before marriage.—A widow is not entitled to dower of real estate which had been mortgaged by her husband before the marriage. The only claim of the widow in such case is to dower in the equity of redemption. The same principle applies as well to mortgages after marriage, where the wife unites in the mortgage, as to mortgages before marriage. Heth v. Cocke, 1 Rand. 344; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384, 405.

Generally.—The claim of a trustee holding the legal title to land for money advanced by him to pay the purchase price thereof is superior to the dower of the widow of the beneficial owner. White v. Hall, 113 Va. 427, 74 S. E. 212.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 71, section 17.

See section 5117 et seq. and notes.

Sec. 5159. Survivorship between joint tenants abolished.—When any joint tenant shall die, before or after the vesting of the estate, whether the estate be real or personal, or whether partition could have been compelled or not, his part shall descend to his heirs, or pass by devise, or go to his personal representative, subject to debts, curtesy, dower, or distribution, as if he had been a tenant in common. And if hereafter any estate, real or personal, be conveyed or devised to a husband and his wife, they shall take and hold the same by moieties in like manner as if a distinct moiety had been given to each by a separate conveyance. (Code 1887, § 2430.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "before or after the vesting of the estate," found in line two of the text, are new. The insertion of these words changes the law as announced in Lockhart v. Vandyke, 97 Va. 336, 33 S. E. 613. See note 5 Va. Law Reg. 309. See, also, section 5238.

History of the statute.—Survivorship as between joint tenants was abolished July 1, 1787; but this act was held to have no application to tenants by entireties. Thornton v. Thornton, 3 Rand. 179; Norman v. Cunningham, 5 Grat. 63. Survivorship between tenants by entireties was partially abolished July 1, 1850. See Code 1849, chapter 116, section 18, applying only to estates of inheritance. The Code of 1887 (this section) abolishes survivorship between tenants by entireties in all cases except those mentioned in section 5160. 1 Va. Law Reg. 625. See, also, Zollman v. Moore, 21 Grat. 313.

This section, as it read in the Code of 1857, had no application where the estate in joint tenancy had not vested, and hence, upon the death of one of two joint devisees in the life-time of the testator, the whole estate passed to the survivor. Lockhart v. Vandyke, 97 Va. 356, 33 S. E. 613; Pendleton v. Hoomes, Wythe 94, and note thereto in Appendix by William Green. As to this, see revisors' note above.

Land purchased by partners for purposes of trade is, in consequence of this section, considered, both at law and in equity, as an estate in common; and therefore a surviving partner has no other claim against such real estate than any other creditor has. Deloney v. Hutcheson, 2 Rand. 183. See, also, Pierce v. Trigg, 10 Leigh, 406; Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh 264, 37 Am. Dec. 654.

Dower and curtesy.—Except where the land is expressly limited to the survivor, etc. (section 5160), the title to dower and to curtesy takes place by the express terms of the statute as well to joint tenants as to tenants in common and coparceners, thus changing the common-law rule. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 125, 139.

As to dower in land bought with partnership funds, see note to section 5117.

Generally.—This section changed the common law doctrine of tenants by entireties and since its enactment, if a husband conveys land reserving an estate "for and during the period of the natural lives" of himself and wife, each takes only a life estate in a moiety and there is no survivorship between them. Amer. Natl. Bank v. Taylor, 112 Va. 1, 70 S. E. 534.

The act of 1850 was not retrospective. Zollman v. Moore, 21 Grat. 313.

Discussed, 3 Va. Law J. 517; 13 Va. Law J. 130; 16 Va. L. Reg. 227. See Burks' Address, Barton Law Prac. (2d Ed.), p. 1386.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 71, section 18.

Sec. 5160. Exception.—The preceding section shall not apply to any estate which joint tenants have as executors or trustees, nor to an estate conveyed or devised to persons in their own right, when it manifestly appears from the tenor of the instrument that it was intended the part of the one dying should then belong to the others. Neither shall it affect the mode of proceeding on any joint judgment or decree in favor of or on any contract with two or more, one of whom dies. (Code 1887, § 2431.)

Survivorship is not abolished where it appears from the tenor of the will that the part of the one dying should then belong to the other. Drake v. Blythe, 108 Va. 38, 60 S. E. 632.

See notes to section 5159.

Sec. 5161. Sale of contingent and other estates; procedure.—Whenever property, real or personal, is held by an adult person for his life, or for the life of another, and there is limited thereon any other estate, vested or contingent, the life tenant or his committee, or, if the estate be for the life of another, his heir or personal representative, as the case may be, may, for the purpose of obtaining a sale of the fee simple interest, or absolute estate in such property, if a sale thereof is not prohibited by the instrument creating the estate, and the remaindermen, or any of them, are, from any cause, incapable of giving their assent, or the remainder is contingent, file a bill in equity in the circuit court of the county, or the circuit, corporation or any city court having equity jurisdiction, of the city, in which the estate proposed to be sold or some part thereof may be, stating plainly the property to be sold, and all facts calculated to show the propriety of such sale. A like bill may be filed in the like court for the sale of the remainder in such estate, by a remainderman, his guardian or committee. The bill shall be verified by the oath of the plaintiff, and all persons interested in the property, presently or contingently, other than the plaintiff, shall be made defendants; and if it be clearly shown, independently of any admissions in the pleadings, that the interests of the plaintiff will be promoted and the rights of no other person will be violated thereby, it may decree a sale of the said property, or any part thereof, taking for the purchase money, when the sale is on credit, ample security, and if the sale be of real estate, retaining a lien thereon. The decree rendered in such suit shall be binding upon all persons who may be born thereafter and become interested in the said estate, in like manner and to the like extent, as it is upon the parties to the said suit. The procedure in such suit and the investment of the proceeds of sale shall be in accordance with sections fifty-three hundred and thirty-seven, fifty-three hundred and thirty-nine, fifty-three hundred and forty-one and fifty-three hundred and forty-two, so far as the same can be made applicable. (Code 1887, § 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436; 1897-8, p. 404; 1902-3-4, p. 706; 1904, p. 117; 1908, p. 548; 1912, p. 191.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is a combination of the sections and acts referred to at the end of the section. It is intended to apply to adult life tenants whether their estates are created by the acts of parties or by operation of law. It will be observed that the revised section applies to both real and personal property held by an adult person for his life, or for the life of another, where there is limited thereon any other estate, vested or contingent; but that, while the remainder may be either vested or contingent, if vested a sale cannot be had unless at least some of the remaindermen are from some cause incapable of giving their consent. (See Curtis v. Hiden, 117 Va. 289, 84 S. E. 664). If the remainder is contingent, however, this is not necessary, because the legislature may deal with contingent remainders in a manner not permissible with vested remainders. It will also be observed that no remainderman is permitted to file a bill for the sale of the estate under the first sentence of the section, but that the second sentence provides that "A LIKE BILL may be filed in the like court FOR THE SALE OF THE REMAINDER in such estate, by a remainderman, his guardian or committee." A remainderman, whether his remainder be vested or contingent, should not be allowed to seek to compel the life tenant to sell his life estate. It is not necessary in any case for the court to be satisfied that the interests of ALL PARTIES WILL BE PROMOTED by the sale, but only necessary that it be shown that the interests of the PLAINTIFF WILL BE PROMOTED, and the rights of NO OTHER PERSON WILL BE VIOLATED thereby.

Decisions under former statutes.—In Troth v. Robertson, 78 Va. 46, and Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698, it was held that section 2432 of the Code of 1887 was a remedial statute, and that it should, therefore, be construed liberally. The policy of the Legislature was to remove those fetters upon alienation which contingent remainders more or less tend to fasten.

Under section 2432 of Code of 1887 the circuit court had jurisdiction to sell and make good title to real estate devised to one for life, remainder to his children or descendants, if any, at his death, and, if none, then remainder to the children or descendants of another, if any such be living at former's death. Troth v. Robertson, 78 Va. 46.

Under sections 2432 and 2562 of Code of 1887 it was held that a tenant for life in one undivided moiety of property may maintain a suit against those who own the estate in remainder of that moiety, whether they are in esse or not, and the fee simple owners of the other moiety, and compel partition of the property, and, if not susceptible of partition in kind, may have a sale and division of the proceeds. Carneal v. Lynch, 91 Va. 114, 20 S. E. 959, 50 Am. St. Rep. 819. Section 2562 of the Code of 1887 is now section 5279.

In Coleman v. Va. Stave Co., 112 Va. 61, 70 S. E. 545, it was held that until her dower had been assigned her, a widow did not hold any of her husband's estate as tenant in dower, and, therefore, could not have her dower interest or any part thereof in her late husband's real estate sold under section 2436a of Pollard's Code (1904). This was the act of 1902-3-4, p. 706. cited at the end of the above section (5161).

Section 2436a of Pollard's Code (1904) was held unconstitutional in so far as it authorized the sale of vested remainders when all the parties were sui juris. Curtis v. Hiden, 117 Va. 289, 84 S. E. 664; Comment, 1 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 68.

Section 2436b of Pollard's Code (1904) was held to apply where testator devised realty to his wife, "to have and to hold during her natural life, and then to be divided among my children by will or otherwise, as she may deem best." Lantz v. Massie, 99 Va. 709, 40 S. E. 50, and note to same, 7 Va. Law Reg. 543. This was the act of 1897-8, p. 404, cited in the parentheses at the end of the above section.

Sec. 5162. Form of a deed.—A deed may be made in the following form, or to the same effect: "This deed, made the ..... day of ....., in the year ....., between (here insert names of parties), witnesseth: that in consideration of (here state the consideration), the said ..... doth (or do) grant unto the said ....., all, etc. (Here describe the property, and insert covenants or any other provisions.) A woman in anticipation of marriage conveyed to a trustee certain bonds and stock, with power to the trustee to collect interest and dividends and pay same over to the grantors, after allowing reasonable compensation to the trustee, the trust property not to be sold without the written consent of the grantor. The writing was in the usual form of deed of this nature, and provided that the trustee should hold for the benefit of the grantor during her life, and at her death same should pass to her children, if any, and if no children then to her heirs at law. Held, this was not a will or power of attorney, and therefore revocable, but a deed. Claiborne v. Radford, 91 Va. 527, 22 S. E. 348.

Sec. 5163. How construed.—Every such deed conveying lands shall, unless an exception be made therein, be construed to include all the estate, right, title, and interest whatever, both at law and in equity, of the grantor in or to such lands. (Code 1887, § 2438)

Rights of survivorship; Conditional limitations.—Where land was devised to A., B., and C., with the rights of survivorship if either died without issue, and upon death of all without issue then to collateral kin, they united in conveyances to each other, setting forth the provisions of the will, and reciting that the parties had agreed upon a partition of the estate, and desired to vest in each other the exclusive title to the portion assigned to each party. Each deed also recited that in consideration of one dollar, etc., the parties of the first part conveyed unto the said party of the second part, his heirs and assigns, all rights, title, and interest of the said parties of the first part in the described property. Held, that all rights of survivorship which the parties had passed by the deed. Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 473, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863.

Where three brothers owned jointly certain real estate, with a conditional limitation on the share of each over to his brothers, a deed executed by the three of them conveys an absolute fee simple title under sections 5147, 5164, and this section. Smith v. Smith, 112 Va. 617, 70 S. E. 491.

"All right, title and interest."—When a deed by husband and wife conveyed all their right, title, and interest to and in the real estate, together with all the fixtures and appurtenances thereunto belonging, being the same devised by the late S. to A., his wife, as her dower or life estate: Held to pass all the estate or interest of the parties in the property so conveyed. Generally.—For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 72, section 2.

See Gregory's Forms No. 515; compare with section 5149.

Sec. 5164. Effect of certain words of release in a deed.—Whenever in any deed there shall be used the words: "The said grantor (or the said .....) releases to the said grantee (or the said .....) all his claims upon the said lands," such deed shall be construed as if it set forth that the grantor (or releasor) hath remised, released, and forever quitted claim, and by these presents doth remise, release, and forever quit claim unto the grantee, (or releasee) his heirs and assigns, all right, title, and interest whatsoever, both at law and in equity, in or to the lands and premises granted, (or released) or intended so to be, so that neither he nor his personal representative, his heirs, or assigns, shall, at any time hereafter, have, claim, challenge, or demand the said lands and premises, or any part thereof, in any manner whatever. (Code 1887, § 2439.)

Under the provisions of this section, a release deed is sufficient to convey all the right, title, and interest of the grantor in the premises released, whether in possession or not. Harman v. Stearns, 95 Va. 58, 27 S. E. 601.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 515, 526; 2 Minor (4th Ed.) 919; notes under section 5163.

Sec. 5165. Form of a lease.—A deed of lease may be made in the following form, or to the same effect: "This deed, made the ..... day of ....., in the year ..... between (here insert the names of parties), witnesseth: that the said .....doth (or do) demise unto the said ....., his personal representative and assigns, all, etc., (here describe the property) from the ..... day of ....., for the term of ....., thence ensuing, yielding therefor during the said term the rent of (here state the rent, and mode of payment). Witness the following signature and seal (or signatures and seals)." (Code 1887, § 2440.)

No set form of words is necessary to constitute a lease. A contract between two persons that one should have during the life of the other land, negroes, etc., he paying therefrom a stipulated annual sum, is a rental. Michie v. Wood, 5 Rand. 571.

An agreement signed by parties to lease a specified building for a certain time at a stated rental, and which concludes with "the above to be covered by a regular lease subject to approval by all parties," is not a binding contract. Boisseau v. Fuller, 96 Va. 45, 30 S. E. 457.

The owners of land granted to another the right to enter thereon to test and search for minerals and oil, and to mine and quarry thereon, the party of second part to have the right to erect buildings and machinery for work in the mines, and to pay $25 per year if minerals were not mined, and to pay a royalty on all oils and ores shipped. The instrument was termed therein a lease, and was to continue ninety-nine years. Held that it was a lease and not a revocable license. Young v. Ellis, 91 Va. 297, 21 S. E. 480.

Sec. 5166. Form of deed of trust to secure debts, etc.—A deed of trust to secure debts or indemnify sureties may be in the following form, or to the same effect: "This deed, made the ..... day of ....., in the year ....., between ..... (the grantor), of the one part, and ..... (the trustee), of the other part, witnesseth: that the said ..... (the grantor) doth (or do) grant unto the said ..... (the trustee), the following property (here describe it): In trust to secure (here describe the debts to be secured or the sureties to be indemnified, and insert covenants or any other provisions the parties may agree upon). Witness the following signatures and seals (or signature and seal)." (Code 1887, § 2441.)

The object of these sections is to save labor in the preparation of deeds of trust, and therefore they provide for a sale for cash, and of the property conveyed, or so much thereof as may be necessary. These terms were prescribed in reference to what was supposed to be suitable to a majority of cases of deeds of trust. These sections refer to personal as well as real estate. Michie v. Jeffries, 21 Grat. 334. See Barton's C. Pr. (2 Ed.) 1095 et seq.

A deed substantially in the form prescribed for a deed of trust by this section is a deed of trust and not a mortgage. The fact that it did not prescribe any terms of sale is immaterial where the trustee, making a sale thereunder, complied in all respects with the following section. Hopkins v. Givens, 119 Va. 578, 89 S. E. 871.

As to form of trust deed and what is sufficient, see Clark v. Moore, Trustee, 76 Va. 265; see also Gregory's Forms Nos. 515, 524, 525.

Discussed, 11 Va. Law J. 577.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 72, section 5.

Sec. 5167. Duties and compensation of trustees.—The trustee in any such deed, except so far as may be therein otherwise provided, shall, whenever required by any creditor secured, or any surety indemnified by the deed, or the personal representative of any such creditor or surety, after the debt due to such creditor, or for which such surety may be liable, shall have become payable and default shall have been made in the payment thereof, or any part thereof, by the grantor, sell the property conveyed by the deed, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction, for cash, having first given reasonable notice of the time and place of sale, and shall apply the proceeds of sale, first to the payment of expenses attending the execution of the trust, including a commission to the trustee of five per cent. on the first three hundred dollars, and two per cent. on the residue of the proceeds, and then, pro rata (or in the order of priority, if any, prescribed by the deed), to the payment of the debts secured and the indemnity of the sureties indemnified by the deed, and shall pay the surplus, if any, to the grantor, his heirs. personal representatives, or assigns. (Code 1887, § 2442.)

Duties, etc., of trustees.—The trustee in a deed of trust is the agent of both parties, and is bound to act impartially between them. It is his duty to sell the estate to the best advantage, and in any case where it is necessary to invoke the aid of a court of equity to remove impediments which are in the way of a fair execution of the trust. Muller v. Stone, 84 Va. 834, 6 S. E. 223, 10 Am. St. Rep. 889; Lane v. Tidball, Gilmer 130; Gay v. Hancock, 1 Rand. 72, Miller v. Barham, 101 Va. 63, 43 S. E. 189, 8 Va. Law Reg. 740.

If a trustee with power of sale of real estate attempts to make sale while there is a cloud upon the title or doubt as to the debts secured or the amounts or priorities thereof, or dispute as between the creditors as to their claims, a court of equity, on a bill filed by any person having an interest, will restrain him until these impediments to a fair sale have been removed, as far as practicable. Muller v. Stone, 84 Va. 834, 6 S. E. 223, 10 Am. St. Rep. 889; Shultz v. Hansbrough, 33 Grat. 567; Gay v. Hancock, 1 Rand. 72; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 652, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Miller v. Law Reg. 740.

But it is only when the aid of a court of equity is necessary that it ought to be applied for, and it is only in such a case that its aid will be extended. Hudson v. Barham, 101 Va. 63, 43 S. E. 189, 8 Va. Law Reg. 740; Muller v. Stone, 84 Va. 834, 6 S. E. 223, 10 Am. St. Rep. 889.

It is the duty of a trustee to be present at the sale and to superintend and control it; and if it is so conducted as to prevent fair competition, whether cognizant of the circumstances or not, he is bound to make good the loss, Harvey v. Steptoe, 17 Grat. 293; Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 373, 18 S. E. 843; and to determine what part of trust subject shall be sold, and, if he has difficulty in doing so, a reference to a commissioner may be made, Michie v. Jeffries, 21 Grat. 334. While the law forbids a trustee to sell more than what is sufficient to satisfy the debts, it is not error to advertise the whole property conveyed in the deed for sale, Moore v. Barksdale, 2 Va. Dec. 416, 25 S. E. 529; Cleaver v. Matthews, 83 Va. 801, 3 S. E. 439; or to sell all if interest of owners demand or they request it, Michie v. Jeffries, 21 Grat. 334.

Discretion of trustee.—The sale by a trustee in a deed of trust of only a part of the land sufficient to satisfy the debt is a valid exercise of his discretion, where it is shown that the debtor made no request to him to sell a greater amount. Miller v. Mann, 88 Va. 212, 13 S. E. 337.

A deed of trust directing a sale, but not in terms requiring a subdivision of the property, should be construed with reference to Code 1873, chapter 113, section 6 (same as this section), requiring the trustee "to sell the property or so much as is necessary"; and if the land will bring a better price if sold in lots, and the owner so requests, and the trustee refuses, a court of equity will intervene. Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 370, 18 S. E. 843; Terry v. Fitzgerald, 32 Grat. 843; Thomas v. Farmers Nat. Bank, 86 Va. 293, 9 S. E. 1122; Crenshaw v. Seigfried, 24 Grat. 272.

Protection of trustee under order of court.—Where a trustee is acting under the orders of a court, his possession is the possession of the court, and any interference with his possession, without leave of the court first obtained, will be enjoined. Ford v. Watts, 95 Va. 192, 28 S. E. 179.

When deed not fraudulent on face.—A trust deed for the benefit of creditors is not fraudulent on its face, merely because it provides that the trustee may carry on the grantor's business, and does not in terms direct him to sell when required by the creditors secured by the deed, since the trustee is required by this section to sell at the instance of creditor. Taylor v. Mahoney, 94 Va. 508, 27 S. E. 107; 3 Va. Law Reg. 116.

Compensation and expenditures.—A court of chancery cannot allow to a trustee substituted by it any greater compensation than that provided for by the trust, except by consent of parties in interest. So. Ry. Co. v. Glenn, 98 Va. 309, 36 S. E. 395.

Where trustee in second deed takes possession of horses, etc., thereby conveyed, with provision for immediate possession, and after complying with provisions of deed, and notifying creditors in first deed, sold them, acting with discretion, held, that he was entitled to deduct from proceeds the cost of keeping horses until sale, and expenses of sale, including his commissions and necessary counsel fees. Guggenheimer v. Rogers, 95 Va. 711, 29 S. E. 874.

Trustees who, in good faith, engage counsel to aid them in the execution of the trust, are entitled to pay them out of the trust fund or to be reimbursed out of that fund for all expenses which they have incurred, including a reasonable attorney's fee. Cochran v. R. & A. R. Co., 91 Va. 339, 21 S. E. 664.

To justify employment by a trustee of counsel whose fee will come out of the fund, two conditions are essential. First, the trustee must act in good faith: and, second, there must be some reasonable ground to justify trustee and to render employment of counsel reasonably necessary for the protection of the trust property. Stull v. Harvey, 112 Va. 816, 72 S. E. 701.

If the grantor enjoins the trustee from making sale and makes the creditor who is sui juris a party defendant, trustee is not justified in employing counsel. Stull v. Harvey, 112 Va. 816, 72 S. E. 701.

Where the deed provided that the trustee might employ such assistance as he deemed necessary, and the trust estate was large, and it was necessary to keep numerous books, etc., the trustee employed a clerk and rented an office. Held, this was proper. Southern v. Glenn, 98 Va. 309, 36 S. E. 395.

Where land was sold under a deed of trust, and the money applied to the payment of the expenses of executing the trust and the payment of the debt secured, it was held that the trustee cannot be held responsible for proceeds of sale by prior judgment creditor. Nelson v. Turner, 97 Va. 54, 33 S. E. 390.

It is proper to allow compensation for the services of the auctioneer in making a sale ordered by the court and also expenses of a former advertisement, if the sale of property by the trustee had been enjoined by the debtor and the injunction dissolved. Hogan v. Duke, 20 Grat. 244, and note Va. Rep. Ann.

Sale— Must follow terms of deeds.—A sale by a trustee in a deed of trust must be in accordance with the terms of the trust deed. Unless discretion is given to the trustee, the sale must be advertised as set forth, take place at the time and place and in the manner prescribed, in the deed. Wilson v. Wall, 99 Va. 353, 38 S. E. 181; Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 370, 18 S. E. 843; Gibson v. Jones, 5 Leigh 370; Norman v. Hill, 2 Pat. & H. 676; Heermans v. Montague, 2 Va. Dec. 6, 20 S. E. 899; Shurtz v. Johnson, 28 Grat. 658; Walker v. Beauchler, 27 Grat. 509.

But where a sale is made under a deed of trust upon different terms from those provided in the deed, a party who has assented to the change, and which was made partly for his benefit, cannot afterwards complain. Orr v. Chandler, 86 Va. 938, 11 S. E. 978; Womack v. Paxton, 84 Va. 9, 5 S. E. 550.

Advertisement of sale.—No general rule can be laid down as to length of time property should be advertised for sale. Ordinarily a direction to duly advertise is sufficiently complied with by advertising in manner usual with prudent men in management of their own affairs or by following rule of local courts. Wilson v. Wall, 99 Va. 353, 38 S. E. 181. See Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 370, 18 S. E. 843.

Where sale under a trust deed is impeached upon the ground that the sale was not advertised in accordance with the deed, held that, unless the sale was advertised in accordance with the deed, the sale was invalid, and that the burden of proof is upon those insisting on the sale to prove that the advertisement was made. Gibson v. Jones, 5 Leigh 370.

Under this section it is the duty of the trustee in selling under a deed of trust to conform substantially to all material stipulations of the deed under which he acts. If the deed requires advertisement of the time, terms, place of sale, and description of the property before making sale and the advertisement is silent as to the terms of sale, the sale will be set aside as invalid. Preston v. Johnson, 105 Va. 238, 53 S. E. 1.

Place.—Where there is no direction in a deed of trust where a sale of the trust property shall be held, the determination of the place of sale is with the trustee. But where either party objects to the place selected by him he may apply to a court of equity for instructions prior to sale. Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 370, 18 S. E. 843.

Where a grantor conveyed her equity of redemption to a trustee in trust to secure a certain debt, and the deed provided that in case of default the trustee should sell, at such place as he should think proper, held, that the sale by the trustee in Baltimore of land in York county was a valid exercise of the discretion conferred on him by the deed. Shurtz v. Johnson, 28 Grat. 658; but see Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 379, 18 S. E 843; Barton, Ch. Pr. (2d Ed.) 473.

Where deed does not prescribe the place of sale, and trustee and debtor cannot agree thereon, wish of debtor should prevail. Morriss v. Va. Co., 90 Va. 370, 18 S. E. 843.

Terms.—Where the deed of trust provided that, if at the time of sale any of the notes secured thereby shall not be due, the purchase money necessary to pay the same shall be made payable when such notes mature, held, that the trustee cannot sell for cash to pay a note not due at the time of sale. Patch v. Morrisett, 2 Va. Dec. 127, 22 S. E. 173.

When sale set aside.—Where the trustee makes a sale of the trust property while there is a cloud on the title which it is his duty to remove, the sale will be set aside. Rossett v. Fisher, 11 Grat. 492; Roberts v. Roberts, 13 Grat. 641, 70 Am. Dec. 435; Washington Co. v. Alexander, 19 Grat. 617, 10 Am. Dec. 710; Graeme v. Cullen, 23 Grat. 267; Shurtz v. Johnson, 28 Grat. 662; Horton v. Bond, Id. 825; Preston v. Stuart, 29 Grat. 303; Shultz v. Hansbrough, 33 Grat. 567; Muller v. Stone, 84 Va. 837, 6 S. E. 223, 10 Am. St. Rep. 889; Alexander v. Howe, 85 Va. 202, 7 S. E. 248; Brown v. Lawson, 86 Va. 285, 9 S. E. 1014; Thomas v. Bank, 86 Va. 293, 9 S. E. 1122.

A court of equity will set aside a sale and conveyance by trustee if the requisites of the deed of trust have not been complied with. Taylor v. King, 6 Munf. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 746; Harris v. Harris, 6 Munf. 368.

Where at time land is conveyed to secure a debt grantor has but an equitable estate, although he is entitled to legal title, it is an abuse of power in trustee to sell before getting legal title, and a court of equity will set sale aside. Rossett v. Fisher, 1 Grat. 492.

Where there is no proof that a sale under a deed of trust had been advertised as required by the deed, and the deed from the trustee to the purchaser recites that the sale was for cash, and the trust deed provides for a sale upon other terms, and the property sold for an inadequate price—held, the sale must be set aside and a resale ordered. Norman v. Hill, 2 Pat. & H. 676.

Where trustees did not sell in accordance with a decree of sale, but sold land in small quantities and bought some of it themselves, the court will set aside the conveyance. Quarles v. Lacy, 4 Munf. 251.

B. gave a deed of trust on land in Alexandria county to secure a debt, and the deed provided for a sale upon default after advertising same for twenty days in a newspaper published in Alexandria county, after the execution of the deed B. left the county, the said county being in the possession of Federal troops. Upon default in the payment the trustee advertised the sale, which took place in Georgetown, a place outside of the state, and the property was bought by a married woman, who was a relation of the creditors. The property sold at a reduced price. Held, that B. being in the Confederate lines, and the creditors in the Union lines, the sale under the trust deed was invalid; that a subsequent purchaser, who was present at the sale, stood in no better position than the purchaser at the sale. Walker v. Beauchler, 27 Grat. 511.

Title under sale.—Where property has been sold under a deed of trust, the deed of the trustee passes the legal title to the purchaser; but in equity a purchaser at a sale made under a deed of trust takes upon himself the risk of the regularity and fairness of the sale. Norman v. Hill, 2 Pat. & H. 676; Taylor v. King, 6 Munf. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 746; Harris v. Harris, Id. 376; Gibson v. Jones, 5 Leigh 370; Sulphur Mines Co. v. Thompson, 93 Va. 293, 25 S. E. 232.

A trustee in a deed of trust was authorized, upon default in the payment of the sum secured, to advertise the property for thirty days, by posting notices in three public places, and sell the same; but instead of advertising, the trustee made a deed of bargain and sale to the beneficiary, in consideration of $100 credited on the debt. Held, that the deed from the trustee passed no title. Heermans v. Montague, 2 Va. Dec. 6, 20 S. E. 899.

Equitable interference.—Where a trustee is insolvent, a court of equity, upon application of one who is interested, should, where the money derived from the sale of the trust subject will pass through the trustee's hands, require security from him before he is allowed to sell the property. Terry v. Fitzgerald, 32 Grat. 848; McCullough v. Sommerville, 8 Leigh 415.

Where debtor conveyed property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, and the trustees refuse to act, two of his creditors file their bill in equity for themselves and all other creditors, and pray for the appointment of trustees to execute the trust and for general relief, held, the court should not simply appoint other trustees, but should have the trust administered under its supervision and control. Reynolds v. Bank of Va., 6 Grat. 174.

It lies within the discretion of the court whether on dissolving an injunction to a sale under a trust deed it should dismiss the bill, or retain it with the view of supervising the administration of the trust. Robinson v. Mays, 76 Va. 708; Hogan v. Duke, 20 Grat. 244, and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Hudson v. Barham, 101 Va. 63, 43 S. E. 189, 8 Va. Law Reg. 740; Michie v. Jeffries, 21 Grat. 334.

Where a court of equity has acquired jurisdiction over a trustee and the subject of the trust, the trustee is powerless to exercise his functions as trustee without the express order of the court. Maddux v. Triplett, 89 Va. 323, 15 S. E. 897; Georgia v. Bartlett, 91 Va. 305, 21 S. E. 476, 50 Am. St. Rep. 832.

Where equity has obtained jurisdiction of the trust subject it is especially proper, where the trustee is a bankrupt, for the court to retain the case and have the trust administered under its direction, and to require the trustee to give security for the faithful performance of his duties. Hogan v. Duke, 20 Grat. 244.

Where a trust deed provided for a sale in accordance with section 6, chapter 113, Code 1873 (same as this section), a sale by a trustee will not be enjoined upon the ground that the sale will be greatly inequitable, "inasmuch as it is notorious that real estate in that section brings but a proportion of its value on deferred payments, and if sold for cash as proposed, at a time of great financial depression, must be disposed of at an unnecessary sacrifice." Muller v. Stone, 84 Va. 834, 6 S. E. 223, 10 Am. St. Rep. 889.

Generally.—A conveyenace to trustees to secure creditors, amongst whom are the trustees themselves, is in legal effect a mortgage, and the regular course of procedure is to file a bill in equity for the foreclosure. If, however, the trustees proceed to sell under the deed and make conveyance, their grantees take the legal title. Morgan v. Glendy, 92 Va. 86, 22 S. E. 854.

A person named trustee in a deed to secure debts united in sales necessary in the execution of the trust and other formal acts, but receives none of the trust funds, they being received by his co-trustee, and he is guilty of no fraud in relation thereto. Held, he is not responsible for the misapplication or waste of the funds by his co-trustee. Griffin v. Macaulay, 7 Grat. 476.

A trustee holding the legal title is always a necessary party to any suit wherein the trust subject is in litigation, and it is error to enter a decree disposing of the trust subject unless he is a party. Horton v. Bond, 28 Grat. 815; Fisher v. Dickenson, 84 Va. 329, 4 S. E. 737; Clough v. Thompson, 7 Grat. 26: Barton, Ch. Pr. (2d Ed.) 197.

Where a deed of trust conferred power of sale in the personal representatives of the trustee, if the trustee died before exercising the power, his personal representatives being clothed with the mere naked power, they cannot convey a good title unless they comply with the conditions of the deed authorizing a sale. Sulphur Co. v. Thompson, 93 Va. 293, 25 S. E. 232.

The fact that the power of sale in a deed of trust, and the estate and interest coupled therewith, are subsequently separated, the power of sale passing by the express terms of the deed to the personal representatives of the trustee, and the estate passing to his heirs, will not revoke said power. Sulphur Co. v. Thompson. 93 Va. 293, 25 S. E. 232.

Where property is conveyed to two or more trustees jointly to secure debts, the estate they take is joint and inseverable, their title joint and indivisible. Hence notice to one of such trustees is notice to all. There can be no such thing as a purchaser partly bona fide. Chapman v. Chapman, 91 Va. 397, 21 S. E. 813, 50 Am. St. Rep. 846.

A purchaser of land at a trustee's sale made under an ordinary deed of trust cannot maintain, against the trustee and beneficiary in the deed of trust, a suit in equity to recover for a deficiency in acreage. Motley v. Hodges, 120 Va. 498, 91 S. E. 757.

Under the last clause of section 6, chapter 72, W. Va. Code (Va. Code, section 5167), where a debtor conveys property to a trustee for benefit of creditors, and it is made the duty of the trustee to take possession, control, manage, and administer the trust property, the commissioner of accounts should make the same allowances to him for reasonable expenses, compensation, etc., as would be allowed an executor or other fiduciary under section 17, chapter 87, Id. (Va. Code 5425). Beecher v. Foster (W. Va.), 9 Va. Law Reg. 15, 19, 22, and note.

Sec. 5168. Appurtenances, etc., included in deed of land.—Every deed conveying land shall, unless an exception be made therein, be construed to include all buildings, privileges, and appurtenances of every kind belonging to the lands therein embraced. (Code 1887, § 2443.)

Easements.—Servitudes adopted by the owner of lands which are plainly visible or notorious, and from the character of which it may be fairly presumed that he intended their preservation as necessary to the convenient enjoyment of the property, become, when the lands are divided and pass into other hands, permanent appurtenances thereto, and neither the owner of the dominant nor servient portions of the land have power to adversely interfere with their proper use and enjoyment. Scott v. Moore, 98 Va. 668, 37 S. E. 342, 81 Am. St. Rep. 749.

Permission to grantee to use dock while grantors own it, or until it is filled in, does not make an easement appurtenant to grantee's land. Hardy v. McCullough, 23 Grat. 251, and note Va. Rep. Ann.

Where a conveyance of land reserves to the owner of a furnace the right to raise ore from the ore bank on the land conveyed in the deed, the ore does not pass as appurtenant to the land. Lee v. Bumgardner, 86 Va. 315, 10 S. E. 3.

What passes as easements.—Where the owner of two adjoining lots constructed a well-defined alleyway in the rear of one of them leading to the other, and through it laid sewer connections for the other, it was cut off from the first lot, and used exclusively for the benefit of the second, the first having alley and sewerage connections directly with the street: Held, this alley is a continuous and permanent or necessary easement for the second lot. Scott v. Moore, 98 Va. 668, 37 S. E. 342, 81 Am. St. Rep. 749.

Where a dike was erected by the owner of land, and same was afterwards divided, the right to the advantage that arises from the dike being on the land passed to his grantee or devisee, and the owner of the other tract cannot erect a dike on his land so as to nullify the effect of the old dike. Burwell v. Hobson, 12 Grat. 322, 65 Am. Dec. 247.

Whenever on one of two tracts of land owned by the same person, an easement exists in favor of the other, and one is conveyed, whether the easement passes depends upon the terms of the grant. If expressed, the terms prevail; if not expressed, its passage as incident will be presumed when the easement is apparent, continuous, and necessary. Sanderlin v. Baxter, 76 Va. 299, 44 Am. Rep. 165.

If the owner of two adjoining lots sells both at the same time, each grant carries all of the apparent and continuous easements which are necessary for the reasonable use of the property granted, and which have been or are at the time of the grant used by the grantor for the benefit of such property. Scott v. Moore, 98 Va. 668, 37 S. E. 342, 81 Am. St. Rep. 749.

A conveyance to the "high-water mark," as a general rule, vests in the grantee the right to the soil between ordinary high and low water mark, as incident or appurtenant to the adjacent land. A grant may be so limited to high-water mark as to exclude riparian rights as incident to it, but the intention must be clear and manifest upon the face of the deed. Waverly v. White, 97 Va. 176, 33 S. E. 534, 5 Va. Law Reg. 399, 45 L. R. A. 227, and note.

What does not pass.—Land cannot be appurtenant to land nor pass with it. Lee v. Bumgardner, 86 Va. 315, 10 S. E. 3.

Where land held in common is divided in a partition suit in which it is provided that the mineral rights in the entire tract shall remain undivided, the right reserved is not an easement, but the entire ownership in the ore in the land divided. A purchaser of one of the subdivisions does not acquire any right or interest in the mineral rights, since they do not pass as appurtenant to the land. Barksdale v. Parker, 87 Va. 141, 12 S. E. 344.

Where one of two adjoining lots owned by the same parties is sold at auction, and at the time of sale nothing is said of an easement running from the lot through the one sold, and such easement was not to be seen and not known to the purchaser, held purchaser is entitled to have his lot free from easement. Scott v. Beutel, 23 Grat. 1.

Where a deed conveyed land bordering in part on a road which was designated as the line, reserved to the grantor, his heirs or assigns, the road as it then existed, and it appeared that the grantor held other land bordering in part on the road, and that the termini of said road were in the grantor's land, and such remaining land was subsequently conveyed, in suit between first and second grantees, held, that the reservation of the road was a right appurtenant to the land of the grantor not first conveyed, and therefore passed to the second grantee. French v. Williams, 82 Va. 462, 4 S. E. 591.

Generally.—Where there is a grant of an estate described generally, everything that belongs to it, or is used with it, or is reasonably essential to its enjoyment, passes as incident to the principal. Scott v. Moore, 98 Va. 668, 37 S. E. 342, 81 Am. St. Rep. 749.

Where the deed conveys, without any reservation, the grantee takes all conveyed by the deed, unincumbered, unless in some way notice is brought home to him that the land is sold subject to the incumbrance of some easement or privilege in another person or in the public. Deacons v. Doyle, 75 Va. 262.

Where land was sold without restriction or reservation, it embraces underlying minerals. Steinman v. Vicars, 99 Va. 595, 39 S. E. 227.

Sec. 5169. Deeds good between parties.—Any deed, or a part of a deed, which shall fail to take effect by virtue of this chapter, shall, nevertheless, be as valid and effectual and as binding upon the parties thereto, so far as the rules of law and equity will permit, as if this chapter had not been enacted. (Code 1887, § 2444.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5170. Effect of certain words in a deed.—When a deed uses the words "the said ..... covenants," such covenant shall have the same effect as if it was expressed to be by the covenantor, for himself, his heirs, personal representatives, and assigns, and shall be deemed to be with the covenantee, his heirs, personal representatives, and assigns. (Code 1887, § 2445.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5171. Effect of covenant of general warranty.—A covenant by the grantor in a deed, "that he will warrant generally the property hereby conveyed," shall have the same effect as if the grantor had covenanted that he, his heirs, and personal representatives, will forever warrant and defend the said property unto the grantee, his heirs, personal representatives, and assigns, against the claims and demands of all persons whomsoever. (Code 1887, § 2446.)

Nature and extent of warranty.—Warranty, as known to the common law, was exclusively a covenant real, running with the land. The remedy for its breach was not in damages, but primarily in the recovery of other land. In this sense, however, it has since been discontinued, and is now considered a personal covenant sounding in damages. Under our statutes and decisions it is treated as a covenant to warrant and defend, while it has also all the effects of a covenant for quiet enjoyment. Burtners v. Keran, 24 Grat. 65; Tabb v. Binford, 4 Leigh 132, 36 Am. Dec. 317.

In a deed of bargain and sale the grantor covenants as follows: And the said T. doth hereby covenant, for himself and his heirs, to and with the said B., that he, the said T., will warrant and forever defend to the said B., his heirs and assigns, the title to the said parcel of land against all persons whatever. Held, that this covenant was not a mere warranty real, but was a personal covenant upon which an action of covenant lay for the bargainee, on being evicted, against the administrator of his bargainor. Tabb v. Binford, 4 Leigh 132.

Where husband and wife convey, with general warranty, wife's life estate in land, the warranty does not run with the land and is only coextensive with the wife's life estate. McDonald v. Rothgeb, 112 Va. 749, 72 S. E. 692.

A covenant of warranty runs with the land for the protection of the owner in whose time the breach occurs, and may be enforced by the covenantee and his representatives and assigns. To constitute a breach of such a contract there must be an eviction, or the plaintiff must be prevented from taking possession of the premises by another in possession under a better title existing at the time of the sale and deed. Marbury v. Thornton, 82 Va. 702, 1 S. E. 909; Dickinson v. Hoomes, 8 Grat. 396; Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313; Washington v. Thornton, 83 Va. 157, 2 S. E. 193.

If a covenant of warranty could be treated merely as a covenant against incumbrances, a prior incumbrance being on the property at the time of the execution of the deed to the grantee, it would be instantly broken, and then become a mere right of action not assignable at law, and which could not pass by deed of trust from the grantee. Washington v. Thornton, 83 Va. 157, 2 S. E. 193; Marbury v. Thornton, 82 Va. 702, 1 S. E. 909.

A covenant of warranty cannot be treated as a covenant against existing incumbrances. Marbury v. Thornton, 82 Va. 702, 1 S. E. 909; Findlay v. Toncray, 2 Rob. 379; Dickinson v. Hoomes, 8 Grat. 395; Washington v. Thornton, 83 Va. 157, 2 S. E. 193.

C. and S., being jointly in possession as joint owners of land, jointly sell same to G. and S., and convey it to them. In their deed they say: And the said C. and S. covenant that they will warrant generally, etc. Held, this is a joint and several warranty, and both warrantors are responsible to the vendee, upon eviction, for the payment of the full measure of damages. Click v. Green, 77 Va. 827.

A vendor who has neither possession nor title cannot pass either by his conveyance. The clause of general warranty could not operate as real covenant unless the vendees entered, and could pass to the assignee only along with and incident to the land. The land not passing, the warranty could not pass. Randolph v. Kinney, 3 Rand. 394.

A vendor who conveys with general warranty, without any other covenants, makes himself only responsible for eviction, and secures to himself the advantage of every doubt which hangs over the title being removed by the lapse of time. However bad the title may be, the vendee cannot sue upon his warranty until evicted. Beale v. Selveley, 8 Leigh 674.

General warranty as estoppel.—Where land is conveyed with general warranty, and the grantor does not own it at the time of the conveyance, but subsequently acquires the same land, such acquisition inures to the benefit of the grantee, because the grantor is estopped to deny, against the terms of his warranty, that he had the title in question; but it does not operate actually to transfer the estate subsequently acquired. Burtners v. Keran, 24 Grat. 65; and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Raines v. Walker, 77 Va. 95; Baugh v. Same, Id. 102; Gregory v. Peoples, 80 Va. 357; Young v. Young, 89 Va. 678, 17 S. E. 470, 23 L. R. A. 642; Reynolds v. Cook, 83 Va. 817, 3 S. E. 710, 5 Am. St. Rep. 317. But see section 5202 which affects this doctrine.

A grantor is estopped to claim a title subsequently acquired, not only when he has conveyed with warranty, but also where the deed of conveyance cites or affirms, expressly or impliedly, that the grantor is seized of a particular estate which the deed purports to convey, and upon the faith of which the bargain is made. Townsend v. Outten, 95 Va. 536, 28 S. E. 958, note 4 Va. Law Reg. 44; Nye v. Lovitt, 92 Va. 710, 24 S. E. 345. See section 5202.

Although if the warrantor afterwards acquire title on his own account, and with his own means, the title enures to the benefit of the warrantee, yet if he buys with another's money it enures to the benefit of the latter. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 710; Gregory v. Peoples, 80 Va. 357; Bank v. Carrington, 7 Leigh 566; Kane v. O'Connors, 78 Va. 80; Raines v. Walker, 77 Va. 95. See section 5202.

A testator devised land to each of his children, but directed that if any of them died his or her estate should be equally divided between the survivors or their representatives. All of the children took possession of the estate. In 1819 one of the sons sold the estate devised to him, and the other children united in the covenants in the deed, which were as follows: "And the said A., for himself and his heirs, and the said B., C., D., E., for themselves and their heirs, as contingent devisees or legatees under the will of R., deceased, by whom said land was devised to A., do hereby covenant and agree to and with said Y. that they will warrant and defend the fee simple estate and complete right and title to said land to him, and his heirs and assigns, forever, against themselves and their heirs, and against the claim and demand of any person or persons claiming from, by, or under them, in virtue of the will aforesaid, and do relinquish and fully confirm to said Y. all the right they or their heirs now have, or might or may hereafter have, to said land, or any part thereof, to him, and his heirs and assigns, forever, free from them the said B., C., D., E., and their heirs, and of all other persons in the whole world." The children of B., the others having died without issue, sought to recover the land as purchasers under the will of the grandfather. Held, that the covenants of B. extend to the claim of the children, though they claim not as heirs, but by devise under the will of their grandfather. Dickinson v. Hoomes, 8 Grat. 363.

Where a man conveyed land to his wife, with warranty against the claims of himself and heirs, his children, deriving title from their mother, will not be affected by the warranty. Urquhart v. Clarke, 2 Rand. 549.

The heirs of a wife are not barred from claiming the land to which she was entitled by the collateral warranty of the husband, who was their father, in his deed conveying it to the purchasers from him. Norman v. Cunningham, 5 Grat. 63.

Where there is no estoppel without warranty.—Where the owner of an equitable estate conveys the lands without general warranty, and the deed contains no recital that the grantor has the legal title, such deed does not estop the grantors as to an after-acquired legal estate in the land, but only operates to give a lien on the equitable estate. Doswell v. Buchanan, 3 Leigh 365, 23 Am. Dec. 280. See section 5202 and revisors' note.

When purchaser not estopped by recitals of deed.—Because a deed recites that "immediate possession is delivered," and declaration avers no eviction, covenantee is not thereby estopped to deny that he got possession. Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313.

Where purchaser has knowledge of defect.—As a general rule, where the purchaser has knowledge of a defect in the title, but is willing to accept the property with a covenant of general warranty, his only remedy would be at law, after eviction, and he would have no right, in the absence of fraud or mistake, to withhold the payment of the purchase money. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 661, 98 Am. Dec. 698.

A vendee who purchases with notice of the infirmities of his title, and puts improvements on the land, which he conveys at an advanced price, can, when evicted from five-sixteenths of the land, recover from his vendor only five-sixteenths of the price he paid, while he must pay his grantee five-sixteenths of the advanced price he received. Conrad v. Effinger, 87 Va. 59, 12 S. E. 2, 24 Am. St. Rep. 646.

If a purchaser knew, when he made a contract, that there was a defect in the title, which would take considerable time to remove; or if he acquires this knowledge after sale, and acquiesces in the delay; or proceeds after the knowledge of the defect with the execution of the contract —he has no ground of complaint. Vail v. Nelson, 4 Rand. 478.

When collection of purchase money enjoined.—If a grantee accepts the title and receives the deed, he will generally have to look only to the covenants contained therein for his indemnity and protection against any defects that may be in the title. If there be no covenants in the deed covering such defects, he will be without remedy, for he will have no right, unless there is fraud or such a mistake as to require a court of equity to grant relief. If there be such a covenant in the deed the vendee has his remedy at law, and a court of equity will interpose to stop proceedings for the collection of the purchase money only on the grounds that suit has been brought or is threatened against him on account of such defect, or that such defect certainly exists, or that some other peculiar equity exists. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 660, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Ralston v. Miller, 3 Rand. 44, 15 Am. Dec. 704.

Where it is clearly shown that the title to a portion of the land conveyed to a purchaser under a general warranty deed is defective, he has a right, notwithstanding a deed with general warranty has been made, to enjoin the collection of the purchase money; and such right is not impaired though the vendor is seeking to collect the purchase money not directly from the purchaser, but from a third person, on a collateral security assigned to him by the purchaser. Clarke v. Hardgrove, 7 Grat. 399, note Va. Rep. Ann.

A court of equity will enjoin the collection of the purchase money of land on the ground of defect of title, after vendee has taken possession under conveyance from the vendor with general warranty, if the title is questioned by a suit either prosecuted or threatened, or if the purchaser can show clearly that the title is defective. Clarke v. Hardgrove, 7 Grat. 399, and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Koger v. Kane, 5 Leigh 606; Ralston v. Miller, 3 Rand. 44, 15 Am. Dec. 704; Peers v. Barnett, 12 Grat. 416.

Relief for breach of warranty.—Under a general warranty deed, until eviction, a vendee cannot assert a claim for damages, and this claim he can assert in a court of law, because a court of equity is not the proper tribunal to give damages for a breach of warranty. Long v. Israel, 9 Leigh 556; Koger v. Kane, 5 Leigh 606; see also Abernathy v. Phillips, 82 Va. 769, 1 S. E. 113; Jackson v. Turner, 5 Leigh 119; Threlkeld v. Fitzhugh, 2 Leigh 451; Click v. Green, 77 Va. 827.

When the premises are in the actual possession of third party under paramount title, at the date of the conveyance, it is unnecessary to aver or prove actual entry or eviction in an action for the breach of warranty of title to the land. Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313.

Where a vendee, with warranty of title (the vendor being guilty of no fraud), buys a better title, he (the vendor) can only be compelled to refund to the vendee the amount of the money paid for the better title. The vendee cannot disavow vendor's title. Roller v. Effinger, 88 Va. 641, 14 S. E. 337.

Equity will only relieve a purchaser who has obtained a deed where there has been an actual eviction, or where a suit is depending or threatened, or when the vendee, placing himself in the attitude of the superior claimant, can show a clear outstanding title or incumbrance. Beale v. Seiveley, 8 Leigh 675; Ralston v. Miller, 3 Rand. 44, 15 Am. Dec. 704; Yancey v. Lewis, 4 Hen. & M. 390; Grantland v. Wight, 5 Munf. 295; Koger v. Kane, 5 Leigh 606; Richards v. Mercer, 1 Leigh 125.

Measure of damages for breach.—Where there has been an eviction, the measure of damages to be recovered against the vendor, on his covenant of warranty, is not the value of the land at the time of the eviction, but the purchase money with interest, not from the day of sale, but from the actual eviction, the costs incurred by the vendee in defending the title, and such damages as he may have paid to the person evicting him. Jackson v. Turner, 5 Leigh 127; Threlkeld v. Fitzhugh, 2 Leigh 451; Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313; Click v. Green, 77 Va. 827; Crenshaw v. Smith, 5 Munf. 415; Nelson v. Matthews, 2 Hen. & M. 164, 3 Am. Dec. 620; Lowther v. Com., 1 Hen. & M. 202; Abernathy v. Phillips, 82 Va. 779, 1 S. E. 113; Stout v. Jackson, 2 Rand. 132; Conrad v. Effinger, 87 Va. 59, 12 S. E. 2, 24 Am. St. Rep. 646; Humphreys v. McClenachan, 1 Munf. 493; Haffey v. Birchetts, 11 Leigh 83; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 726; Thompson v. Guthrie, 9 Leigh 101, 33 Am. Dec. 225, and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Roller v. Effinger, 88 Va. 641, 14 S. E. 337.

If several tracts of land be sold as adjoining each other, for a gross sum, and no specification be made at the time of the contract of the quantity or separate value of each parcel, and there be a deficiency in the quantity of each, the purchaser will be entitled to compensation for such deficiency, according to the average value of the whole tract, and not of the several tracts taken separately. Nelson v. Matthews, 2 Hen. & M. 164, 3 Am. Dec. 620.

Where a grantor is called upon to defend the title, and immediately employs competent counsel to do so, the grantee cannot, when evicted, recover from him counsel fees as well as the value of the land. Conrad v. Effinger, 87 Va. 59, 12 S. E. 2, 24 Am. St. Rep. 646.

Grantee cannot recover attorneys' fees against grantor when the latter himself defends suit for eviction with a competent attorney of his own. Conrad v. Effinger, 87 Va. 59, 12 S. E. 2.

Upon breach of warranty of title the vendee is entitled to the amount of the purchase money paid by him with interest from eviction and costs. Id.

What averment of breach not sufficient.—A declaration in covenant stated that, in consequence of a prior lien and encumbrance upon the tract of land in question, the plaintiff has been disturbed in and evicted from the possession and enjoyment of the said tract of land. There was no averment that the plaintiff was kept out of possession of the premises by any person or persons in possession under a paramount title, or that he was evicted by judgment of eviction followed by ouster. Held demurrable. Marbury v. Thornton, 82 Va. 702, 1 S. E. 909.

Generally.—In Virginia a vendor usually enters into a covenant of general warranty, unless he sells under a power. In these cases he generally covenants only for himself and his heirs. Rucker v. Lowther, 6 Leigh 269; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 725.

For monographic note on Covenants, see Todd v. Summers, 2 Grat. 167, Va. Rep. Ann., 44 Am. Dec. 379.

See notes to section 5172 as to the covenant of special warranty. See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5172. Of special warranty.—A covenant by any such grantor "that he will warrant specially the property hereby conveyed" shall have the same effect as if the grantor had covenanted that he, his heirs, and personal representatives, will forever warrant and defend the said property unto the grantee, his heirs, personal representatives and assigns, against the claims and demands of the grantor, and all persons claiming or to claim by, through, or under him. (Code 1887, § 2447.)

Caveat emptor applies strictly to special warranty.—Where a vendee takes a conveyance with special warranty of title, the rule caveat emptor strictly applies. Beale v. Seiveley, 8 Leigh 672.

Where A. sells and conveys land to B. with general warranty, and B. sells and conveys to C. such title as A. has conveyed to him, equity will not give C. relief against B. on the ground of defect of title, because C. purchased of him only A.'s title, nor give him relief against A., for A. has no claim against C. which he can be enjoined from enforcing. Koger v. Kane, 5 Leigh 606.

A mistake in respect to the title is no ground for relief in equity to a purchaser, where he takes upon himself the risk as to the title, as he does when he purchases land without any agreement, express or implied, for a conveyance with warranty of title. Sutton v. Sutton, 7 Grat. 234, 56 Am. Dec. 109.

If a vendor expressly sells such title as he has, and does not pretend to have a perfect title, and sells without warranty, he is entitled to specific execution without being first required to show a clear title. Sutton v. Sutton, 7 Grat. 234, 56 Am. Dec. 109; Bailey v. James, 11 Grat. 468, 62 Am. Dec. 659; Goddin v. Vaughn, 14 Grat. 124; Vail v. Nelson, 4 Rand. 478.

A trustee who sells the trust property and such title only as is vested in him according to the terms prescribed, and without warranty or fraud, incurs no responsibility to the purchaser. Sutton v. Sutton, 7 Grat. 234, 56 Am. Dec. 109.

Where property is sold by the trustee for what it will bring, and there is no warranty of title or quantity, the purchaser is not entitled to relief for a mistake in the estimated quantity of the land. Sutton v. Sutton, 7 Grat. 234, 56 Am. Dec. 109. See, also, Motley v. Hodges, 120 Va. 498, 91 S. E. 757, cited under section 5167.

Land is purchased by the acre. After the survey is started the vendee agreed to take it at the quantity for which the vendor held it, and the survey is stopped. Held, he is concluded by his agreement, and is not entitled to an abatement from the purchase money for a deficiency in the quantity. Peers v. Barnett, 12 Grat. 408.

The grantee in a quitclaim deed with covenant of special warranty, which purports to convey "such interest only as the grantors now have, whatever that may be," takes in subordination to a prior unrecorded deed, and such quitclaim deed cannot be introduced in evidence to defeat the title deduced under such prior unrecorded deed. Virginia v. Fields, 94 Va. 102, 26 S. E. 426, 3 Va. Law Reg. 665.

Generally.—A deed recited that the grantors "will warrant specially the land hereby conveyed; that they have the right to convey the said land to the said grantees; that the said grantees shall have quiet possession thereof free from all encumbrances; that they shall execute such further assurances of said land as may be requisite; and that they have done no act to encumber the same." Held, that the word "specially" governs and controls all the succeeding covenants. Allemong v. Gray, 92 Va. 216, 23 S. E. 298. Compare Dickinson v. Hoomes, 8 Grat. 363.

A grantor who conveys land with special warranty and a covenant of quiet possession is estopped to assert an after acquired title against his grantee. Hurley v. Charles, 112 Va. 706, 72 S. E. 689. See section 5202 and revisors' note.

Sec. 5173. Words, "with general warranty," and "with special warranty," construed.—The words "with general warranty," in the granting part of any deed, shall be deemed to be a covenant by the grantor "that he will warrant generally the property hereby conveyed." The words "with special warranty," in the granting part of any deed, shall be deemed to be a covenant by the grantor "that he will warrant specially the property hereby conveyed." (Code 1887, § 2448.)

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 515, 516, 518, 521, 526.

Sec. 5174. Covenant of "right to convey."—A covenant by the grantor in a deed for land, "that he has the right to convey the said land to the grantee," shall have the same effect as if the grantor had covenanted that he has good right, full power, and absolute authority, to convey the said land, with all the buildings thereon, and the privileges and appurtenances thereto belonging, unto the grantee, in the manner in which the same is conveyed or intended so to be by the deed, and according to its true intent. (Code 1887, § 2449.)

Breach of covenant, and remedy.—If it is broken, and he fails of that seisin, he has a right to reclaim the purchase money. But if by virtue of another covenant in the same deed (for further assurance of title), which was also taken to assure to him the subject-matter of the conveyance, he has obtained that seisin, it would be inequitable that he should have the seisin, and be allowed besides to recover back the consideration paid for it. The grantor may supply the missing link in the chain of title whereby grantee is assured possession. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559 32 S. E. 58.

A covenant in a deed by the grantor, "that he has a right to convey," is broken, if at all, as soon as the deed is made, and the grantee may bring his action at once without averring eviction or special damages. Kinzie v. Riely, 100 Va. 709, 42 S. E. 872.

A covenant of seisin (right to convey) is not broken by an outstanding contingent right of dower, since such right does not affect the grantee's possession or legal title. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58.

Where grantor conveys land with covenant of "right to convey" and "further assurance," he may supply a missing link in his chain of title before his grantee has been disturbed in his possession and before action brought. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58.

Breach may be pleaded under section 6145.—In an action brought for the recovery of the purchase price of land conveyed, the grantee may, under section 6145, Code, file a special plea for the breach of warranty or covenant for title, unless the defense set up would require a rescission of the contract, and the grantor to be reinvested with the title conveyed. Kinzie v. Riely, 100 Va. 709, 42 S. E. 872, 8 Va. Law Reg. 655, note; Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313; Grayson v. Buchanan, 88 Va. 251, 13 S. E. 457; Watkins v. West Wytheville, 92 Va. 1, 22 S. E. 554; Mangus v. McClelland, 93 Va. 786, 22 S. E. 364; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 795, 796.

Upon a covenant to make a good title to certain lots of land (according to a certain plat for extending the streets of a town), which included the streets and appurtenances thereon mentioned, and that the covenantee, his heirs and assigns, may at all times thereafter enter into possession and enjoy the said lots, with the streets, etc., without the let, hindrance, or molestation of the covenantor, his heirs and assigns, a court of equity will by injunction compel the vendor to remove the obstructions from the streets, and leave them open for the benefit of the vendee and his assigns. Brooke v. Barton, 6 Munf. 306.

When only nominal damages recoverable.—If there had been no eviction and no special damages, his recovery would be merely nominal damages. A recovery of nominal damages would, however, bar his claim, although he was afterwards evicted from the land which his grantor had no right to convey. If his claim for damages was set up by way of set-off, a recovery of nominal damages would equally bar any future action for the breach. Kinzie v. Riely, 100 Va. 709, 42 S. E. 872, 8 Va. Law Reg. 647, and note.

Nominal damages only can be recovered for breach of a covenant of seisin, where, before injury sustained, the paramount title is perfected in the covenantor and vests by inurement in the grantee. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58.

Generally.—The covenants in this section and the three following, known as the "English covenants," are placed in deeds in addition to "warranty," because the latter is unavailing until actual eviction.

The covenant of seisin (or right to convey) is intended to secure to the grantee a legal seisin in the land conveyed. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 72, section 16.

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5175. For "quiet possession," and "free from encumbrances."—A covenant by any such grantor, "that the grantee shall have quiet possession of the said land" shall have as much effect as if he covenanted that the grantee, his heirs, and assigns, might, at any and all times thereafter, peaceably and quietly enter upon and have, hold, and enjoy, the land conveyed by the deed, or intended so to be, with all the buildings, thereon and the privileges and appurtenances thereto belonging, and receive and take the rents and profits thereof, to and for his and their use and benefit, without any eviction, interruption, suit, claim, or demand whatever. If to such covenant there be added "free from all encumbrances," these words shall have as much effect as the words "and that freely and absolutely acquitted, exonerated, and forever discharged, or otherwise, by the said grantor or his heirs saved harmless and indemnified of, from, and against, any and every charge and encumbrance whatever." (Code, 1887, § 2450.)

Where a tract of land through which a public highway runs is sold and the conveyance contains a covenant against encumbrances, the public highway is not an encumbrance which is included in the covenant, and the grantee is not entitled to any abatement of the purchase price. Jordan v. Eve, 31 Grat. 1; Deacons v. Doyle, 75 Va. 258; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 721. Cases distinguished, Trice v. Kayton, 84 Va. 217, 4 S. E. 377, 10 Am. St. Rep. 836.

A grantee, upon the order of the city authorities directing him to remove a fence and building as encroaching on the street, proceeded to pull down those structures after notice to his vendor. The deed from the vendor described the property by metes and bounds, and conveyed the property with general warranty and covenants of title. Held, that while the highway was observable, yet the hidden fact that the buildings were upon a part of the highway was not apparent, and could not have been in contemplation of the parties, and that the grantee was entitled to recover for a breach of his covenant of quiet possession. Trice v. Kayton, 84 Va. 217, 4 S. E. 377, 10 Am. St. Rep. 836. See, also, Jordan v. Eve, 31 Grat. 1.

A grantor who conveys land with special warranty and a covenant of quiet possession is estopped to assert an after acquired title against his grantee. Hurley v. Charles, 112 Va. 706, 72 S. E. 689. See section 5202.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 72, section 17.

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5176. For "further assurances."—A covenant by any such grantor "that he will execute such further assurances of the said lands as may be requisite" shall have the same effect as if he covenanted that he, the grantor, his heirs, or personal representative, will at any time, upon any reasonable request, at the charge of the grantee, his heirs, or assigns, do, execute, or cause to be done or executed, all such further acts, deeds and things, for the better, more perfectly, and absolutely conveying and assuring the said lands and premises, hereby conveyed or intended so to be, unto the grantee, his heirs, and assigns in manner aforesaid, as by the grantee, his heirs, or assigns, his or their counsel in the law, shall be reasonably devised, advised, or required. (Code 1887, § 2451.)

Where, under a covenant for further assurance, the covenantor perfects the seisin before injury, by supplying missing link in his life, the grantee cannot rescind as for breach of covenant of seisin. Building v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58.

A contract for the sale of land provided that the grantors, on the payment of the first instalment of the price, would make title in fee to, and, by such conveyances as the grantees or their counsel should reasonably require, convey and release such land in possession to the grantees, free from encumbrances or demands. Held, to mean that a deed with proper covenants would be made conveying the premises in question, and that the grantee's satisfaction with the title was not a condition precedent to make such contract binding. Gish v. Moomaw, 89 Va. 376, 17 S. E. 324. This case distinguished from Watts v. Holland, 86 Va. 999, 11 S. E. 1015, and Averett v. Lipscombe, 76 Va. 404.

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5177. Of "no act to encumber."—A covenant by any such grantor "that he has done no act to encumber the said lands" shall have the same effect as if he covenanted that he had not done or executed, or knowingly suffered, any act, deed, or thing whereby the lands and premises conveyed, or intended so to be, or any part thereof, are or will be charged, affected, or encumbered in title, estate, or otherwise. (Code 1887, § 2452.)

private way or other easement of which he has no notice. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 721; Jordan v. Eve, 31 Grat. 1; Scott v. Beutel, 23 Grat. 1; Deacons v. Doyle, 75 Va. 261.

See Gregory's Forms No. 515.

Sec. 5178. Of lessee "to pay the rent," and "to pay the taxes." —In a deed of lease, a covenant by the lessee "to pay the rent" shall have the effect of a covenant that the rent reserved by the deed shall be paid to the lessor, or those entitled under him, in the manner therein mentioned; and a covenant by him "to pay the taxes" shall have the effect of the covenant that all the taxes, levies, and assessments upon the demised premises, or upon the lessor on account thereof, shall be paid by the lessee or those claiming under him. (Code 1887, § 2453.)

Where the lessee covenants to pay the rent, and to pay all taxes and other public dues of every kind, the expense of paving was held not a tax or public due, within the meaning of the covenant. Bolling v. Stokes, 2 Leigh 178, 21 Am. Dec. 606.

Where a married woman becomes lessee of property for a term of years her estate is liable for rent during the whole term, although she died soon after making the lease, and the property is occupied by others, against whom the right of distress for rent is never exercised by the landlord. Sec. 5179. "That he will not assign, etc., and "that he will leave the premises in good repair."—In a deed of lease, a covenant by the lessee that "he will not assign without leave" shall have the same effect as a covenant that the lessee will not, during the term, assign, transfer, or set over the premises, or any part thereof, to any person, without the consent, in writing, of the lessor, his representative, or assigns. And a covenant by him that "he will leave the premises in good repair" shall, subject to the qualifications of section fifty-one hundred and eighty, have the same effect as a covenant that the demised premises will, at the expiration or other sooner determination of the term, be peaceably surrendered and yielded up unto the lessor, his representatives, or assigns, in good and substantial repair and condition, reasonable wear and tear excepted. (Code 1887, § 2454.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "subject to the qualifications of section fifty-one hundred and eighty," found in lines seven and eight of the text, are new.

Where there are repairs stipulated in the lease to be made by the lessee, but no time within which they are to be completed, the tenant has until the expiration of the lease within which to make the repairs, unless there is something in the nature of the repairs which requires them to be made before. Colhoun v. Wilson, 27 Grat. 646.

A lessor covenants to put certain repairs upon the demised premises, which he fails to do. In an action of replevin upon a distress for rent, the tenant may set off the damages accrued by the failure of the lessor to make the repairs, under the 62d section of the act, Supp. Rev. Code, p. 157 (similar to section 6145). Murray v. Pennington, 3 Grat. 92.

If it is intended to restrict and bar the power of assignment, it must be done by special and precise stipulations. Such restrictions, however, are not favored by the law and are strictly construed. Wainwright v. Bankers L. & I. Co., 112 Va. 630, 72 S. E. 129.

For a case in which a forfeiture was held to be waived by the acceptance of rent, see McKildoe's Ex'or v. Darracott, 13 Grat. 278.

Sec. 5180. Reduction of rent, if buildings destroyed, or lessee deprived of possession.—No covenant or promise by a lessee to pay the rent, or that he will keep or leave the premises in good repair, shall have the effect, if the buildings thereon be destroyed by fire or otherwise, in whole or in part, without fault or negligence on his part, or if he be deprived of the possession of the premises by the public enemy, of binding him to make such payment or repair or erect such buildings again, unless there be other words showing it to be the intent of the parties that he should be so bound. But in case of such destruction, there shall be a reasonable reduction of the rent, for such time as may elapse until there be again upon the premises buildings of as much value to the tenant for his purposes as what may have been so destroyed; and, in case of such deprivation of possession, a like reduction until possession of the premises be restored to him. (Code 1887, § 2455.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "keep or" and "or repair" found in lines two and six-seven of the text, respectively, are new, as are also the words, "in whole or in part," appearing in line four. The first insertion settles the question discussed in Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co., 99 Va., at page 244, 37 S. E. 851. As to the words "in whole or in part," see 11 Va. Law Reg. 689.

History of the section.—At common law, there was no suspension or abatement of the rent or relaxation of the covenant to repair, on account of the accident. The revisors of 1849 proposed to change this rule, and reported a section for that purpose (Rep. Rev. 1849, pp. 610, 611). The Legislature adopted so much of it as related to the covenant or promise to repair and rejected the rest. The whole section as reported by the revisors of 1849, extended so as to include deprivation of possession by the public enemy, is carried into the Code of 1887. Burks' Address, 2 Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1378.

See, also, 13 Va. Law J. 131, where it is shown that the common-law rule was changed by the revisal of 1849, except as to rent, though recommended by the revisors. Rep. Rev. 610, 611, and note. "The rule and the cases following it are overturned by section 2455 (5180), and the change is extended not only to rent, but to 'deprivation of possession by the public enemy.'"

See, also, Richmond v. Crystal, 99 Va. 239, 37 S. E. 851, as to history and intent of this statute.

When tenant entitled to apportionment.—Where, in a lease, the covenant "to keep in repair" was immediately followed by the words, "that it will repair at its own expense all glass broken during the tenancy; that any damage caused by the bursting of water pipes, from the failure to turn off the water in cold weather, will be repaired at the expense of the lessee; that it will leave the property in good repair"; and property was totally destroyed—held that, upon the destruction of the premises without the negligence of the lessee, he was entitled to an apportionment of the rent. Richmond v. Crystal, 99 Va. 239, 37 S. E. 851; 6 Va. Law Reg. 826, and note.

Where a lease was made of a mill, together with a tract of land adjoining, and a black man as miller, for a term of years, rendering an annual rent, and the miller had been previously emancipated by writing of record, and at the end of the first year left the service of the lessee, the rent will be apportioned. Newton v. Wilson, 3 Hen. & M. 470.

When rent suspended.—A lease provided "that the tenant was to keep up the repairs of the mill, except heavy repairs, such as if the dam or forebay should be injured by high water, or if the main shaft or wheel should give way so as to require a new one; in this case it was to be repaired by the landlord in a reasonable time after breach, and he was not to lose the rent if he should go on to do the work according to contract." The mill was wholly destroyed by accidental fire during the term, and the lessor refuses to rebuild same. Held, that the rent is suspended from the time of the destruction of the premises. Thompson v. Pendell, 12 Leigh 591.

Tenant not liable for damage without default.—Where lessee rents land, with its appurtenances, for stipulated rent, and agrees to return the land, with all its appurtenances, at the expiration of his lease, held, this could not be construed to make liable the tenant to rebuild certain appurtenances which had been destroyed during the term, but without his fault or negligence. Maggort v. Hansbarger, 8 Leigh 532.

In the absence of express covenant to pay the rent, the tenant is not liable for same, where the premises are destroyed, whatever the rule may be in case of such express covenants. White v. Stuart, 76 Va. 546.

Where contract operates as deed, though styled lease.—E. owned a life estate in property, both real and personal, including slaves, and S. owned the remainder. E. and her trustee entered into a contract called a lease, by which they conveyed to S. the life estate of E. in the whole of the property, S. to pay, annually as rent, $900, and to pay all taxes and legal charges on the estate, and the usual remedies for the recovery of these annual sums reserved. S. was put in the possession of the property, and treated it as his own. Held, that though the instrument was termed a lease, and the sum reserved called rent, the contract was a surrender, and the life estate of E. was merged into the estate of S. While not an express surrender as to the land, yet as S. had been delivered the possession, and had paid money under it, it had all the legal effect of a surrender by deed. S. not entitled to an abatement of the annual payments, because the slaves had been set free by the United States. Scott v. Scott, 18 Grat. 150. See 6 Va. Law Reg. 59; 7 Va. Law Reg. 159; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 923, 924.

Burden of Proof.—To come within this statute, the burden is on the tenant to show that the destruction was without his fault or negligence, and that the value of the leased premises was for his purposes, diminished. Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co., 103 Va. 465, 49 S. E. 650.

Generally.—A decree fixing upon a party liability for rents is interlocutory until the amount of the rent is ascertained. Goodloe v. Woods, 115 Va. 540, 80 S. E. 108.

For note upon liability of tenant to make repairs in case of partial destruction of building by fire, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 689. See revisors' note above and present section.

Discussed in Arbenz v. Exley, 44 S. E. (W. Va.) 149.

Sec. 5181. Covenant "for lessee's quiet enjoyment."—A covenant by a lessor "for the lessee's quiet enjoyment of his term," shall have the same effect as a covenant that the lessee, his personal representative, and lawful assigns, paying the rent reserved, and performing his or their covenants, shall peaceably possess and enjoy the demised premises, for the term granted, without any interruption or disturbance from any person whatever. (Code 1887, § 2456.)

Where a conveyance is of a freehold estate, words of lease do not amount to a covenant of quiet enjoyment. Black v. Gilmore, 9 Leigh 446, 33 Am. Dec. 253.

A person assigning a valuable lease, without any special agreement to be responsible for the title, is not bound to restore the purchase money because of the eviction of the assignee in consequence of a defect in the lessor's title, especially when the lessor has not been resorted to or shown to be insolvent, and where the possibility of the eviction was in contemplation of both parties at the time of the assignment. McClenahan v. Gwynn, 3 Munf. 556.

Where declaration alleges that defendant by indenture did rent and lease to plaintiff a tract of land, held, that no covenant for quiet enjoyment can be inferred from words set forth. Black v. Gilmore, 9 Leigh 446, 33 Am. Dec. 253.

Where the lessee has been prevented by the lessor, by an injunction from enjoying the benefits of his lease, and afterwards the injunction has been dissolved, the lessee is not barred of his right of action at law on the covenants in the lease by the fact that he has a right of action on the injunction bond. Hubble v. Cole, 88 Va. 236, 13 S. E. 441, 13 L. R. A. 311, 29 Am. St. Rep. 716.

Where a lease is assigned, and the assignee is evicted through a defect in the lessor's title, he may sue the lessor for compensation. McClenahan v. Gwynn, 3 Munf. 556.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 72, section 23.

See Gregory's Forms No. 523.

Sec. 5182. Effect of provision for re-entry by lessor.—If in a deed of lease it be provided that "the lessor may re-enter for default of ..... days in the payment of rent, or for the breach of covenants," it shall have the effect of an agreement that if the rent reserved, or any part thereof, be unpaid for such number of days after the day on which it ought to have been paid, or if any of the other covenants on the part of the lessee, his personal representative, or assigns, be broken, then, in either of such cases, the lessor, or those entitled in his place at any time afterwards, into and upon the demised premises, or any part thereof, in the name of the whole, may re-enter, and the same again have, repossess, and enjoy, as of his or their former estate. (Code 1887, § 2457.)

Before exercising this right to re-entry, the lessor must make demand upon the tenant for the payment of the rent, unless by special agreement the requirement is dispensed with. Johnston v. Hargrove, 81 Va. 118.

Where a lease for 99 years provided for payment of annual sum as rent, free from taxes and other impositions, and that upon default in the payment of rent for six months after it became due the lessor may re-enter and hold the same until rent is paid, and also that at the expiration of the lease that same may be renewed upon the same conditions, upon the payment of one year extraordinary rent, and for drawing the necessary papers—held, that the right to renew was not lost by the failure of the parties to renew for several years after the expiration of the lease, where all rent and taxes had been paid, and the lessor had accepted the rent after the lease had expired, and no demand for renewal had been made, and that as soon as notice to quit had been served on the lessee they at once had the necessary papers prepared, and tendered the rent extraordinary required. Selden v. Camp, 95 Va. 527, 28 S. E. 877. See section 5448, as to city tenant; also sections 5530-1-2-3, as to relief from forfeiture.

See Gregory's Forms No. 523.

Sec. 5183. Vendor's equitable lien abolished.—If any person hereafter convey any real estate, and the purchase money, or any part thereof remain unpaid at the time of the conveyance, he shall not thereby have a lien for such unpaid purchase money, unless such lien is expressly reserved on the face of the conveyance. (Code 1887, § 2474.)

Implied liens.—Prior to the adoption of this section (July 1, 1850) vendor had an implied equitable lien for unpaid purchase money, and could enforce it against the land in the hands of the vendee, purchaser with notice, or volunteers. Wilcox v. Calloway, 1 Wash. 38; Cole v. Scott, 2 Wash. 141; Graves v. McCaul, 1 Call 414; Love v. Braxton, 5 Call 537; Duval v. Bibb, 4 Hen. & M. 113, 4 Am. Dec. 506; Wilson v. Graham, 5 Munf. 297; Williams v. Price, Id. 407; Tayloe v. Adams, Gilmer 329; Hatcher v. Hatcher, 1 Rand. 53; Tompkins v. Mitchell, 2 Rand. 428; Little v. Brown, 2 Leigh 353; Moore v. Holcombe, 3 Leigh 597, 24 Am. Dec. 683; James v. Bird, 8 Leigh 510, 31 Am. Dec. 668; Brawley v. Catron, 8 Leigh 522; Page v. Booth, 1 Rob. 161; Wade v. Greenwood, 2 Rob. 474, 40 Am. Dec. 759; Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384; Richeson v. Richeson, 2 Grat. 497; Sharp v. Kerns, Id. 348; Beirne v. Campbell, 4 Grat. 125; Stephens v. Hutchison, 6 Grat. 147; Kyles v. Tait, Id. 44; Cox v. Romine, 9 Grat. 27; McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 621; Day v. Hale, 22 Grat. 146.

Reserved lien.—The vendor, retaining the title, has a lien on the land for the unpaid purchase money, which may be enforced on the land in the hands of vendee, purchaser for value with or without notice, and creditors and other persons holding by, through, or under the vendee. Cole v. Scott, 2 Wash. 141; Hatcher v. Hatcher, 1 Rand. 53; Beverley v. Ellis, 10 Leigh 1; Clarke v. Curtis, 11 Leigh 559, 37 Am. Dec. 625; Hanna v. Wilson, 3 Grat. 243, 46 Am. Dec. 190; Hopkins v. Cockerell, 2 Grat. 88; Knisely v. Williams, 3 Grat. 265, 46 Am. Dec. 193; Stephens v. Hutchison, 6 Grat. 147; Lewis v. Caperton, 8 Grat. 148; Stuart v. Abbott, 9 Grat. 252; Yancey v. Mauck, 15 Grat. 300; Day v. Hale, 22 Grat. 146; Patton v. Hoge, Id. 443; McClintic v. Wise, 25 Grat. 448, 18 Am. Rep. 694; Coffman v. Niswander, 26 Grat. 737; Shipe v. Repass, 28 Grat. 716; Coles v. Withers, 33 Grat. 186; Stoner v. Harris, 81 Va. 451; Culbertson v. Stevens, 82 Va. 406, 4 S. E. 607.

Since Code 1849, a vendor, in order to be entitled to a lien for the unpaid purchase money, must expressly reserve his lien on the face of the conveyance. Roanoke Co. v. Simmons, 2 Va. Dec. 70, 20 S. E. 955.

The statement in a deed that it is made "in consideration of five hundred dollars secured to be paid" is not an express reservation of a vendor's lien within the meaning of this section. Harris v. Shield, 111 Va. 643, 69 S. E. 933.

Lien not destroyed.—Taking a judgment at law does not defeat or destroy the lien. Kane v. Mann, 93 Va. 239, 24 S. E. 938; Paxton v. Rich, 85 Va. 378, 7 S. E. 533, 1 L. R. A. 639.

Nor the taking of a new bond for the same debt. Shultz v. Hansbrough, 33 Grat. 567.

Nor surrendering the bond of the vendee and taking the bond of a third person, if the parties agree that the lien is to be retained. Carper v. Marshall, 98 Va. 438, 36 S. E. 526, 6 Va. Law Reg. 350.

A vendor who expressly reserves a lien upon the land, and takes also a bond for the purchase money, has two securities, to either of which he may resort at pleasure. The lien is a security, not for the bond, but for the debt; therefore a cancellation or surrender of the bond cannot extinguish the debt and the lien given to secure it, unless the transaction manifestly and plainly was so intended, and the burden is on the purchaser to show such intention. So long as the debt exists, the court will not presume the chief security taken for its payment has been surrendered without satisfaction, unless upon the clearest and most convincing testimony. Coles v. Withers, 33 Grat. 186.

The lien exists until it is clearly shown that it has been waived, released, or satisfied. Jordan v. Buena Vista Co., 95 Va. 285, 28 S. E. 323, 3 Va. Law Reg. 825.

Where it is reserved in a deed which has been duly recorded it still exists, though the records have been destroyed, and may be enforced against the lands in the hands of a purchaser for value. Armentrout v. Gibbons, 30 Grat. 632. Vendor does not lose his lien by taking other security for the debt. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 1 Rand. 53; Watts v. Kinney, 3 Leigh 272, 23 Am. Dec. 266; Knisely v. Williams, 3 Grat. 265, 46 Am. Dec. 193; Lewis v. Caperton, 8 Grat. 148; Stuart v. Abbott, 9 Grat. 252; Yancey v. Mauck, 15 Grat. 300; Day v. Hale, 22 Grat, 146; Summers v. Darne, 31 Grat. 806; Coles v. Withers, 33 Grat. 196; Gibert v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 33 Grat. 597; Frazier v. Hendren, 80 Va. 270; Stimpson v. Bishop, 82 Va. 190; Fidelity Ins. Co. v. S. V. R. R. Co., 86 Va. 13, 9 S. E. 759, 19 Am. St. Rep. 858; Jameson v. Rixey, 94 Va. 344, 26 S. E. 861, 64 Am. St. Rep. 726.

Vendor taking bond of vendee with third party as security does not lose his lien. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 1 Rand. 53.

A vendor who retains the title stands on higher ground than a vendor who has parted with his title, and is asking a court of equity to set up an implied lien in his favor, and the doctrine of waiver of the implied lien by taking a different security has no application to where the title is retained. Lewis v. Caperton, 8 Grat. 148.

B., a vendor, retained the title to secure a bond given for the purchase money. Afterwards he takes from the vendee, C., an order on D. in lieu of the bond. D. was indebted to C. for the purchase money of another tract of land, to secure which C. had retained the title. D. refused to accept the order. Held, that B.'s lien was not lost by his taking the order and surrendering bond. Knisely v. Williams, 3 Grat. 266.

Y. sold land to M., retained the title, and took bonds from M. for the purchase money. Afterwards, upon M. executing a bond to S. with Y. as surety, to satisfy debt of Y., the bonds given by M. to Y. were destroyed. Afterwards M. became insolvent, and Y. had to pay the balance to S. Held, that Y.'s lien was not lost by the surrender of the bonds, and that purchaser from M. took the land charged with his lien, and that same could be enforced on the land in their hands. Yancey v. Mauck, 15 Grat. 300.

A contract made by one of the executors of a vendor will not be so construed as to release the vendor's lien. Such a contract would work a devastavit. Stuart v. Abbott, 9 Grat. 252.

Lien destroyed.—Where a vendor at a sale for the default in payment of the purchase money takes first mortgage bond in satisfaction of his lien, and conveys the property to the purchaser, he loses the benefit of his vendor's lien, and is postponed to the claim of one of the vendees who owned the property at the time of the sale for default, and in whose favor a decree has subsequently been entered, giving him a lien on the property in the hands of the purchaser at the sale. Frazier v. Hendren, 80 Va. 270.

Where land is sold in a suit brought by the vendor to enforce the specific performance of the contract, the lien the vendor had by reason of the retention of the title was destroyed by the sale in the suit. Woods v. Ellis, 85 Va. 471, 7 S. E. 852.

Where vendor takes a deed of trust void for want of due registry, he loses the implied lien existing before 1850. Hunton v. Wood, 101 Va. 54, 43 S. E. 186.

The abolishing of the implied equitable lien does not affect the lien of the vendor who retains the title. Yancey v. Mauck, 15 Grat. 300; Stoner v. Harris, 81 Va. 460.

Rights of assignees.—Where a note was given and a lien reserved to secure unpaid purchase money, but no mention made in the deed about the note, it was held that a conveyance by the vendee, with a relinquishment of the lien by the vendor, carries the complete title free from the lien, and that the assignees of the note could not enforce his claim against the land in the hands of a purchaser without notice. National Bank v. Harman, 75 Va. 604.

A purchaser of land on which there had been reserved a lien by a prior vendor cannot, when he is compelled to pay said lien, subject the land of another grantee of his grantor, where said grantee had acquired title to his land prior to the purchaser, who bought the encumbered land. Miller v. Holland, 84 Va. 652, 5 S. E. 701. An assignment of the debt is an assignment pro tanto of the lien. Hanna v. Wilson, 3 Grat. 243, 46 Am. Dec. 190; Knisely v. Williams, 3 Grat. 265, 46 Am. Dec. 193; McClintic v. Wise, 25 Grat. 448, 18 Am. Rep. 694.

An assignee of a vendor's lien is an assignee of a chose in action, and the assignment carries no interest in the land upon which the debt is secured. Penn v. Hearon, 94 Va. 773, 27 S. E. 599; Gordon v. Rixey, 76 Va. 694.

The assignees have priority in the order of their assignment as to the proceeds of the land. Paxton v. Rich, 85 Va. 378, 7 S. E. 531, 1 L. R. A. 639. Nor can the assignor sue in equity for the benefit of his assignee. Penn v. Hearon, 94 Va. 773, 27 S. E. 599.

An assignee is entitled to the rights of the assignor, and nothing more. He is not such a purchaser as will be protected by section 6471. A judgment, though undocketed, is good against a subsequent creditor with or without notice. Gordon v. Rixey, 76 Va. 694.

Enforcement of lien.—Enforcement in equity of a reserved vendor's lien is a matter of right. Smith v. Henkel, 81 Va. 524.

A purchaser of land on which a vendor's lien is reserved acquires the entire title, subject only for the unpaid purchase money. This lien is recognized and enforced only in courts of equity. National Bank v. Harman, 75 Va. 604.

In a suit to enforce a vendor's lien there may be a personal decree for the purchase money before sale. Dellinger v. Foltz, 93 Va. 729, 25 S. E. 998; Fayette Land Co. v. L. & N. R. R. Co., 93 Va. 274, 24 S. E. 1016.

A decree of sale is not defective because a portion of the amount is not yet due where the date at which it becomes due is given. Moore v. Green, 90 Va. 181, 17 S. E. 872.

In a suit to enforce a vendor's lien, the court may decree a sale of the land without first ascertaining whether the rents and profits would be sufficient to pay the lien within five years (as provided in section 6472, in case of a suit to enforce the lien of a judgment), as such case is not governed by that statute. Neff v. Wooding, 83 Va. 432, 26 S. E. 731, 11 Va. Law J. 634.

The decree directing the property to be sold to satisfy a vendor's lien should allow a reasonable time to redeem the property, and should provide for a sale upon reasonable credit, unless from the peculiar circumstances, which must appear from the record, different terms are advisable. Tennent v. Pattons, 6 Leigh 196; Haffey v. Birchetts, 11 Leigh 83; Brien v. Pittman, 12 Leigh 379; Wade v. Greenwood, 2 Rob. 474, 40 Am. Dec. 759; Kyles v. Tait, 6 Grat. 44, and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Pairo v. Bethell, 75 Va. 833.

Limitations.—Laches, and even gross laches, is not enough to raise a presumption of payment or abandonment of a vendor's lien. It must be gross laches unexplained, together with evidence affording the presumption of abandonment of the right. Ginter v. Breeden, 90 Va. 565, 19 S. E. 656. This lien may be enforced in equity within twenty years, even though the action on the debt is barred by the statute of limitations. Tunstall v. Withers, 86 Va. 892, 11 S. E. 565; Paxton v. Rich, 85 Va. 378, 7 S. E. 531, 1 L. R. A. 639. See section 5827.

No lapse of time short of the presumption of payment will affect his right to enforce his lien, even though the statute of limitations would bar his claim on the note or other security. Hanna v. Wilson, 3 Grat. 243, 46 Am. Dec. 190, and note thereto, Va. Rep. Ann.; Hopkins v. Cockerell, 2 Grat. 88. See section 5827 and notes.

Nor would an assignee be barred though his claim against the assignor is barred. McClintic v. Wise, 25 Grat. 448, 18 Am. Rep. 694.

A decree for an account of liens made on a creditors' bill to enforce liens on the land of the debtor suspends the running of the statute of limitations on a judgment to enforce a vendor's lien obtained shortly after the entry of the decree. Paxton v. Rich, 85 Va. 378, 7 S. E. 531, 1 L. R. A. 639.

Pleading.—A bill of review will not lie to modify a decree of sale in a suit to enforce a vendor's lien, since a bill of review is a proper remedy only where a final decree is to be corrected, the decree of sale being interlocutory only. The bill for injunction in this case should have been treated as a petition to rehear. Dellinger v. Foltz, 93 Va. 729, 25 S. E. 998. See, also, Spoor v. Tilson, 97 Va. 279, 33 S. E. 609. In a suit to enforce a vendor's lien, in order for a purchaser to obtain a rescission of the contract and return of the purchase money on the ground of fraud the purchaser must file a cross-bill. Spoor v. Tilson, 97 Va. 279, 33 S. E. 609.

Remedies of vendor.—A vendor may file his bill in equity for the specific performance of the contract, and have the land sold to satisfy his debt. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 1 Rand. 53; Hopkins v. Cockerell, 2 Grat. 88; Knisely v. Williams, 3 Grat. 265, 46 Am. Dec. 193; Beirne v. Campbell, 4 Grat. 125; Lewis v. Caperton, 8 Grat. 148; Stuart v. Abbott, 9 Grat. 252; Yancey v. Mauck, 15 Grat. 300; Woods v. Ellis, 85 Va. 471, 7 S. E. 852.

And he may sue out injunction to restrain waste, so that value of lien will not be impaired. Clarke v. Curtis, 11 Leigh 559, 37 Am. Dec. 625.

While an action at law by a vendor on an executory contract of sale would give him a right to subject the personal estate of the purchaser, he is entitled to something more. He may enforce his lien against the land, but he can only do so in a court of equity, because his lien is not recognized in a court of law. Ayres v. Robins, 30 Grat. 105, and note thereto Va. Rep. Ann.

Generally.—A. sold to B., by parol, land for which he took purchase-money bonds, one of which was assigned to H.; afterwards, upon B.'s default, the land was sold, and again bought by A.; A., when he sold to B., had not obtained a conveyance from his vendor, but did so before the sale; A., not paying the entire purchase money due under the sale for B.'s default, has never obtained a deed from the court; A. afterwards sold by parol to E., who executed his bond for the balance of the purchase money; A. assigned this bond to G.—held, that H., the assignee of the first purchase money bond, had a prior lien to G. Stoner v. Harris, 81 Va. 451.

In a suit to enforce vendor's lien reserved on land which has been partitioned among heirs of vendee, it is not error to apportion the lien ratably amongst such heirs. Max Meadows Co. v. McGavock, 96 Va. 131, 30 S. E. 460.

The widow of the vendee is not entitled to dower in the land on which the lien is reserved as against the lien. Culbertson v. Stevens, 82 Va. 406, 4 S. E. 607. And where lien was enforced in lifetime of husband, widow was not entitled to dower in surplus. Wilson v. Davisson, 2 Rob. 384. See section 5119 and notes.

A widow who pays the balance of the purchase money secured by vendor's lien on her deceased husband's property is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the holder of the lien as against creditors of her husband. Simmons v. Lyle's Adm'r, 32 Grat. 752.

Lien may be enforced against the land without first exhausting the personal property of the deceased vendee. Armentrout v. Gibbons, 30 Grat. 632.

A purchaser who assumes the payment of the debt secured by lien is primarily liable for same. Shultz v. Hansbrough, 33 Grat. 567.

The recordation of the lien does not impose upon subsequent grantors the duty to inquire for latent equities or secret liens, and they will not be bound by such where they have no notice of same. Yancey v. Blakemore, 95 Va. 263, 28 S. E. 336.

The object and effect of the vendor's lien is merely to hold the estate bound for the purchase money, to the exclusion of all other claims, whether on the part of creditors or purchasers. The vendor has no interest in the land, but only a right to charge it with the payment of his debt. The lien passes at his death as personalty, and an assignment carries the lien. Gordon v. Rixey, 76 Va. 694.

A. and B. purchased land from C., on which a vendor's lien was retained. Afterwards they partitioned the land. E. subsequently bought A.'s portion, and also obtained some of the bonds from C. B. sold to D. his portion of the land. Held, that E., when he acquired the bond, also acquired C.'s lien; that he could have compelled A. to remove the encumbrance before he paid for same, and that the court, having all parties before it, would credit said bond on the amount due by E. to A.; that A, being thus compelled to pay more than his part of the purchase money, was not subrogated to that extent to the rights of C., as against the land of B., in the hands of his vendor, D.; that the lien of C., being recorded, was notice to D. Dobyns v. Rawley, 76 Va. 537.

Where, by decree of court, a trustee was directed to sell land, and the vendee executed his bonds for the unpaid purchase money secured by vendor's lien, the trustee, after collecting some of the bonds, resigned, and the court appointed another trustee, who was directed to collect the balance of the bonds, which he did, and so reported to the court, which confirmed the report, and directed a conveyance to the purchaser. Subsequently the first trustee filed his bill, alleging that he had advanced the money to the purchaser to pay one of the bonds, and praying that the lien reserved where the land was sold be enforced for his benefit. Held, that he was entitled to relief prayed for. Price v. Davis, 88 Va. 939, 14 S. E. 704.

The mere fact that a vendor who sold land to a corporation is a stockholder in the corporation does not estop him from enforcing his lien against the land in the hands of a purchaser from the corporation. Biggs v. Elliston Dev. Co., 93 Va. 404, 25 S. E. 113, 2 Va. Law Reg. 614.

Where the lien is reserved in accordance with the statute, it is as valid as to the estate or interest in the land conveyed as the implied vendor's lien would have been before the enactment of the statute, whether the interest conveyed is a fee simple or a mere equitable interest. Dingus v. Minneapolis, 98 Va. 737, 37 S. E. 353.

Where parties owning land in common agreed to sell same, and to retain lien for the purchase money, and one of the parties buy the property, held he could buy only the interest of the other parties, and that the vendor's lien attached only to that portion that was sold. Johnson v. Nat. Bank, 33 Grat. 473.

The extent of the lien does not depend upon the extent of the interest of the vendor in the land conveyed, but upon the contract of the parties. The question whether the interests are joint or several, divided or undivided, is a matter of no consequence. Patterson v. Grottoes Co., 93 Va. 578, 25 S. E. 602, 2 Va. Law Reg. 687; Patton v. Hoge, 22 Grat. 443.

Where two parties owning separate interests in a tract of land enter into separate contracts with a purchaser for the sale of their respective interests, and afterwards one general warranty deed was made by them, conveying the entire tract of land to the vendee, in consideration of a gross sum, the deed recited that a vendor's lien was retained on the land conveyed to secure four bonds, two made payable to one, and two to the other, vendor. Held, that not merely the interest that each vendor had owned, but the entire tract of land conveyed, was subject to the payment of the debt due each vendor. Patterson v. Grottoes Co., 93 Va. 578, 25 S. E. 602, 2 Va. Law Reg. 687.

Where B. & C. were partners and joint owners of a parcel of land, and conveyed to A. their interest. B. receiving cash and C. receiving notes for the purchase money secured by vendor's lien on the property conveyed by the deed, the vendor's lien attaches to the whole interest conveyed in the deed, and is not limited to the interest conveyed by C. Patton v. Hoge, 22 Grat. 443.

Where a lien is reserved, the vendee cannot bind the vendor by any contract prejudicial to his interest. A vendor may subject the streets and alleys as well as the lots which have been laid off on a tract of land sold by him to his vendee, and on which the lien is retained, and if a sale of the lots in the inverse order of their alienation would not be sufficient to pay his debt he is entitled to have the land sold as a whole. Biggs v. Elliston Development Co., 93 Va. 404, 25 S. E. 113, 2 Va. Law Reg. 614.

Discussed, 10 Va. Law J. 515.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 75, section 1.

not affected.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of, or charge upon, any estate, real or personal, every suit commenced, or decree, judgment, or execution suffered or obtained, and every bond or other writing given with intent to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors, purchasers, or other persons of or from what they are or may be lawfully entitled to, shall, as to such creditors, purchasers, or other persons, their representatives, or assigns, be void. This section shall not affect the title of a purchaser for valuable consideration, unless it appear that he had notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor or of the fraud rendering void the title of such grantor. (Code 1887, § 2458.)

General Rules.—No attempt is here made to brief all Virginia cases on the subject of fraudulent conveyances. These are collected in the various digests, and in an extensive note to Cochran v. Paris, 11 Grat. 348, Va. Rep. Ann.

Few of the many decisions on this subject can be said to be founded strictly on the statutes.

Several general rules, however, not peculiar to our statutes, are here given for convenience.

(1) In contests between wife and husband's creditors, burden of showing bona fides is on wife or persons claiming under her.—Boyce v. Strother, 1 Va. Dec. 127; note, 7 Va. Law Reg. 730; 5 Va. Law Reg. 321; Lile's Notes to 1 Min. 73; Noyes v. Carter, 2 Va. Dec. 218, 23 S. E. 1; Darden v. Ferguson, 2 Va. Dec. 496, 27 S. E. 435.

For a case discussing the presumption of fraud in a conveyance by husband to wife, see Atkinson v. Solenberger, 112 Va. 667, 72 S. E. 727.

Transactions between husband and wife must be closely scrutinized to see that they are fair and honest. The presumptions are in favor of the creditors and not in favor of the title of the wife, and the proof is upon her to show by clear and satisfactory evidence the bona fides of the transaction. Eason v. Lyons, 114 Va. 390, 76 S. E. 957; Hughson v. Dameron, 113 Va. 607, 75 S. E. 92.

She must show that original transaction was a loan, not a gift, and a contemporaneous promise to pay. Mere possession of bond does not prove loan as of its date. Robinson v. Bass, 100 Va. 190, 40 S. E. 660; Runkle v. Runkle, 98 Va. 663, 37 S. E. 279; McConville v. Bank, 98 Va. 9, 34 S. E. 891; Crowder v. Garber, 97 Va. 565, 34 S. E. 470; Spence v. Repass, 94 Va. 716, 27 S. E. 583; Kinnier v. Woodson, 94 Va. 711, 27 S. E. 457; Flynn v. Jackson, 93 Va. 341, 25 S. E. 1; Coutts v. Greenhow, 2 Munf. 363, 5 Am. Dec. 472.

The law presumes husband to be owner of all property acquired or of which wife may be in possession during coverture. Hoge v. Turner, 96 Va. 625, 32 S. E. 291.

Postnuptial settlements are presumed voluntary. Hatcher v. Crews, 78 Va. 460; Fink v. Denny, 75 Va. 663.

But if debt is secured to husband as trustee for wife, and he alone has authority to collect it, the receipt of money by him does not raise presumption of gift, and deed made to wife in consideration of such debt is valid, McConville v. Bank, 98 Va. 9, 34 S. E. 891; or if wife was sole trader, and resources might reasonably have come from such business, Kinnier v. Woodson, 94 Va. 711, 27 S. E. 457.

If a wife to whom property has been fraudulently conveyed has given a valid lien on the property she is liable to the creditors for the amount of the same. Carner v. Middlekauf, 117 Va. 474, 85 S. E. 473.

Where a conveyance to a wife is declared fraudulent as to creditors of her insolvent husband because the consideration was furnished by him, the wife is to be regarded as a trustee for such creditors. Carner v. Middlekauf, 117 Va. 474, 85 S. E. 473.

Where an insolvent husband furnishes the consideration for a conveyance to his wife, the transaction must be treated as prima facie actually fraudulent in a contest between creditors of the husband on the one hand, the husband and his wife on the other. Carner v. Middlekauf, 117 Va. 474, 85 S. E. 473.

In a contest between the wife and the creditors of her husband, the burden is on the wife to show the good faith of the transaction, such as that the consideration was paid out of her own separate estate. The presumption is in favor of the creditors, and not of the wife's title. The mere holding of the husband's bond is insufficient to establish the relation of debtor and creditor between them as of the date of the bond. Rankin v. Goodwin, 103 Va. 81, 48 S. E. 521. Kline v. Kline, 103 Va. 203, 48 S. E. 890.

(2) Retention of personal property by vendor after sale is prima facie fraudulent, but this presumption may be rebutted by proof.—Davis v. Turner, 4 Grat. 422; Forkner v. Stuart, 6 Grat. 197; Brockenbrough v. Brockenbrough, 31 Grat. 580; Stoneburner v. Motley, 95 Va. 784, 30 S. E. 364; Norris v. Lake, 89 Va. 513, 16 S. E. 663; Didier v. Patterson, 93 Va. 534, 25 S. E. 661; 2 Va. Law Reg. 62; Hughes v. Epling, 2 Va. Law Reg. 448, 93 Va. 424, 25 S. E. 105.

(3) Conveyances professedly to indemnify creditors, but expressly or impliedly reserving to grantor powers inconsistent with and adequate to defeat such purpose, are void as to creditors and purchasers.—Wray v. Davenport, 79 Va. 19; McCormick v. Atkinson, 78 Va. 8; Burton v. Mill Id. 468; Curd v. Miller, 7 Grat. 185; Addington v. Etheridge, 12 Grat. 436; Hughes v. Epling, 93 Va. 424, 25 S. E. 105; Saunders v. Waggoner, 82 Va. 316; Spence v. Bagwell, 6 Grat. 444; Sheppard v. Turpin, 3 Grat. 373, and note Va. Rep. Ann.; Lang v. Lee, 3 Rand. 410.

(4) In order to vitiate deed, both parties must concur in fraud [but see (8)].—Herring v. Wickham, 29 Grat. 628, 26 Am. Rep. 405; Lucas v. Clafflin, 76 Va. 269; Oberdorfer v. Meyer, 88 Va. 384, 13 S. E. 756; Paul v. Baugh, 85 Va. 955, 9 S. E. 329; Montgomery v. Rose, 1 Pat. & H. 5; Parr v. Saunders, 1 Va. Dec. 725, 11 S. E. 979.

Although the fraudulent intent of the grantor be established, a deed will not be set aside unless it be also shown that the grantee had notice of such purpose. Shoemaker v. Chapman Drug Co., 112 Va. 612, 72 S. E. 221.

(5) The act of limitation of five years (section 5820) does not apply to suits to set aside a conveyance for actual fraud.—Flook v. Armentrout, 100 Va. 638, 42 S. E. 686.

(6) A voluntary conveyance, without fraud, is void as to existing creditors, but only as to them.—Whitten v. Saunders, 75 Va. 563; Witz v. Osburn, 83 Va. 227, 2 S. E. 33; Building Association v. Reed. 96 Va. 350, 31 S. E. 514; De Farges v. Ryland, 87 Va. 404, 12 S. E. 805, 24 Am. St. Rep. 659; Johnston v. Gill, 27 Grat. 587; Bank v. Patton, 1 Rob. 499.

(7) Burden of proving notice of fraud is on him alleging it, and will not be presumed from confidential relation between grantor and grantee.—Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 473, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863; Saunders v. Parrish, 86 Va. 592, 10 S. E. 748; Herring v. Wickham, 29 Grat. 628, 26 Am. Rep. 405; Hickman v. Trout, 83 Va. 478, 3 S. E. 131. But where prima facie case is made burden shifts. Hickman v. Trout, supra. And if grantor in voluntary deed is indebted, it is conclusively presumed to be fraudulent. Hutchison v. Kelly, 1 Rob. 132, 39 Am. Dec. 259; Chamberlayne v. Temple, 2 Rand. 384, 14 Am. Dec. 786; but see Davis v. Payne, 4 Rand. 332.

(8) The provisions of a mortgage or deed of trust may be of such a character as of themselves to furnish conclusive evidence of a fraudulent intent; but the presumption of law is in favor of honesty, and court cannot presume fraud unless the terms of instrument preclude any other inference.—Williams v. Lord, 75 Va. 390; Brockenbrough v. Brockenbrough, 31 Grat. 580; Perry v. Shenandoah, 27 Grat. 755.

A transaction may of itself and by itself furnish the most satisfactory proof of fraud, so conclusive as to outweigh answer of defendant called upon for discovery, and even evidence of witnesses. Parr v. Saunders, 1 Va. Dec. 726, 11 S. E. 979.

A trustee may be authorized to close out a stock of goods in the course of trade, and even to replenish so as to aid in sale. Marks v. Hill, 15 Grat. 400, and notes Va. Rep. Ann.; Taylor v. Mahoney, 94 Va. 508, 27 S. E. 107.

(9) It is not necessary to prove actual knowledge by grantee of grantor's fraud.—Circumstances naturally calculated to arouse suspicions of a reasonably prudent man are sufficient, and he is chargeable with knowledge of fact with which he is sought to be charged, whether he makes inquiry or not. Such circumstances must be such as to affect conscience of purchaser, and strong and clear enough to fix upon him imputation of bad faith. Flook v. Armentrout, 100 Va. 638, 42 S. E. 686; Anderson v. Mills, 100 Va. 420, 41 S. E. 854; Fischer v. Lee, 98 Va. 159, 35 S. E. 441; Newberry v. Bank, 98 Va. 471, 36 S. E. 515; American v. Mayo, 97 Va. 182, 33 S. E. 523; Ferguson v. Daughtrey, 94 Va. 308, 26 S. E. 822; Hickman v. Trout, 83 Va. 478, 3 S. E. 131; University v. Snyder, 100 Va. 567, 42 S. E. 337. And this is true of pledgees also. Fischer v. Lee, 98 Va. 159, 35 S. E. 441. Notice of fraud to trustee is notice to creditors. Oberdorfer v. Meyer, 88 Va. 384, 13 S. E. 756.

(10) As between parties equally guilty, equity will not interfere, except where policy of law requires it.—Owen v. Sharp, 12 Leigh 427; Terrell v. Imboden, 10 Leigh 321; James v. Bird, 8 Leigh 510, 31 Am. Dec. 668; Harris v. Harris, 23 Grat. 737; Tate v. Liggat, 2 Leigh 84; Almond v. Wilson, 75 Va. 628; Barnett v. Barnett, 83 Va. 504, 2 S. E. 733; Starke v. Littlepage, 4 Rand. 368; Smith v. Chilton, 84 Va. 840, 6 S. E. 142, 2 Va. Law Reg. 722.

Fraud held not to be proven.—University v. Snyder, 100 Va. 567, 42 S. E. 337; Fidelity v. Engleby, 99 Va. 168, 37 S. E. 957 (but transaction declared voluntary); Fischer v. Lee, 98 Va. 159, 35 S. E. 441; Beverage v. Ralston, 98 Va. 625, 37 S. E. 283; Millhiser v. McKinley, 98 Va. 207, 35 S. E. 446; Hurst v. Leckie, 97 Va. 550, 34 S. E. 464, 75 Am. St. Rep. 798; Piedmont v. Writing Valid Between Parties.—This section, as well as the unvarying decisions of this court, declares that as between the parties such writing shall be valid. Ratliff v. Ratliff, 102 Va. 880, 10 Va. Law Reg. 343, 346 and note, 47 S. E. 1007.

The rule that such deeds are valid between the parties does not apply where grantor is mentally incapable. Tatum v. Tatum's Adm'r, 101 Va. 77, 43 S. E. 184.

Badges of Fraud.—While relationship is not a badge of fraud yet transactions between relatives will be more closely scrutinized than in other cases. Ford v. Chelf, 112 Va. 98, 70 S. E. 500.

The relationship of the parties and the insolvency of the grantor in a deed do not of themselves constitute badges of fraud. Baldwin v. Winfree, 116 Va. 16, 81 S. E. 36.

Where a son unites with a court commissioner in the conveyance of land to his mother, who had been substituted as purchaser in his stead, and the deed is attacked as in fraud of the son's creditors, the fact that the mother anticipates one of the deferred payment bonds is no badge of fraud. Ford v. Chelf, 112 Va. 98, 70 S. E. 500.

Mere inadequacy of price is not alone sufficient to avoid deed, unless it be so gross as to shock the conscience and furnish decisive evidence of fraud. Flook v. Armentrout, 100 Va. 638, 42 S. E. 686; Millhiser v. McKinley, 98 Va. 207, 35 S. E. 446.

Insolvency does not deprive owner of property of right to sell it, unless sale be made with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors; and even then title to purchasers will not be invalidated if sale is for valuable consideration, and purchaser has no notice of fraudulent intent of grantor. Ferguson v. Daughtrey, 94 Va. 308, 26 S. E. 822; Shields v. Mahoney, 94 Va. 487, 27 S. E. 23; Baldwin v. Winfree, 116 Va. 16, 31 S. E. 36.

Generally.—The fact that creditors may be delayed or hindered is not sufficient to vacate deed, in the absence of fraudulent intent. Keagy v. Trout, 85 Va. 390, 7 S. E. 329; Young v. Willis, 82 Va. 291; Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 10 Sup. Ct. 354, 33 L. Ed. 696. But see Garland v. Rives, 4 Rand. 282, 15 Am. Dec. 756. Choses in action may be assigned as security for existing debt and also for future advances. Assignment absolute in form may be shown to be security for debt. If made in good faith, fact that assignor checks on assignee for balance over amount of assignment is not fraud. Such assignment as badge of fraud is repelled by evidence of bona fides. Didier v. Patterson, 93 Va. 534, 25 S. E. 661, 2 Va. Law Reg. 60; Alexandria Sav. Inst. v. Thomas, 29 Grat. 483, cited in Driver v. McLaughlin, 20 Am. Dec. 661, and note.

While it is true that personal representative of decedent cannot impeach, under this section, a transaction made by his decedent in his lifetime, yet it is his right and duty to recover as assets of estate the subject of gift or voluntary assignment not perfected in lifetime of decedent. When such representative is creditor also, he may sue in dual capacity to annul assignment, made by decedent, of insurance, where neither policy nor assignment was delivered to assignee, where there was no consideration, and deficiency of assets to pay decedent's debts. Spooner v. Hilbish, 92 Va. 333, 23 S. E. 751.

If owner of goods is fraudulently induced to sell them, title passes, but he may reclaim them, on discovering fraud, before they pass into hands of bona fide purchaser. Oberdorfer v. Meyer, 88 Va. 384, 13 S. E. 756.

If bill contain definite, specific, and precise charges of facts constituting fraud on grantee in deed of trust, and he fail to answer, it should be taken for confessed, and deed set aside. Fischer v. Lee, 98 Va. 159, 35 S. E. 441.

In suit to set aside deed as fraudulent, where it appears that grantee had notice of fraud before paying deferred payment bonds, and also of plaintiff's execution against his grantor, decree should be entered against him in favor of plaintiff for amount of such bonds, with interest. Newberry v. Bank, 98 Va. 471, 36 S. E. 515.

Section 1, chapter 114, Code 1873 (same as this section), protects against fraudulent transfer of all claims, debts, and demands, including claims to damages for breach of contract to marry for which judgment may, after execution of conveyance, be obtained. Burton v. Mill, 78 Va. 468.

Creditor secured in trust deed, and claiming under it, may nevertheless assail other debts secured therein. Runkle v. Runkle, 98 Va. 663, 37 S. E. 279.

Sec. 5185. Gifts, conveyances, etc., that are voluntary, or upon consideration of marriage, void as to prior creditors.—Every gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer, or charge, which is not upon consideration deemed valuable in law, or which is upon consideration of marriage, shall be void as to creditors whose debts shall have been contracted at the time it was made, but shall not, on that account, merely, be void as to creditors whose debts shall have been contracted or as to purchasers who shall have purchased after it was made; and though it be decreed to be void as to a prior creditor, because voluntary or upon consideration of marriage, it shall not, for that cause, be decreed to be void as to subsequent creditors or purchasers. (Code 1887, § 2459.)

Rules as to husband and wife.—Payment out of wife's separate estate.—In the absence of actual fraud participated in by her, if wife can prove actual payment of adequate consideration for husband's settlement upon her (burden of proof being on her), either out of separate estate or funds supplied by friends, or from sources other than husband, conveyance will be sustained. Flynn v. Jackson, 93 Va. 341, 25 S. E. 1; Stonebraker v. Hicks, 94 Va. 618, 27 S. E. 497; Spence v. Repass, 94 Va. 716, 27 S. E. 583.

Husband using wife's money.—Where husband collects and uses money of wife as his own a gift is presumed, unless there is an express, contemporaneous agreement to repay, and a settlement subsequently made upon wife cannot be sustained as to existing creditors, unless it is made in pursuance of such contemporaneous agreement. Beecher v. Wilson, 84 Va. 813, 6 S. E. 209, 10 Am. St. Rep. 883; Hannon v. Hounihan, 85 Va. 429, 12 S. E. 157; Throckmorton v. Throckmorton, 91 Va. 42, 22 S. E. 162; Building Ass'n v. Reed, 96 Va. 345, 31 S. E. 514.

If debt is secured to husband as trustee for wife, and he alone has authority to collect it, the receipt of money by him does not raise presumption of gift nor is she compelled to prove promise on his part to pay or account for it, and deed made to wife, in consideration of such indebtedness, is valid, and will be upheld. McConville v. Bank, 5 Va. Law Reg. 695, 98 Va. 9, 34 S. E. 891; 5 Va. Law Reg. 709.

Earnings of wife.—Under statute, husband is entitled to wife's services in household without compensation, and cannot, as against creditors, settle property upon her in payment therefor. Richmond Ry. v. Bowles, 92 Va. 738, 24 S. E. 388.

Wife surety for husband.—Where wife assumes liability or encumbers her property with lien as surety for husband, he may make valid settlement on her to extent of such lien or liability. Filler v. Tyler, 91 Va. 458, 22 S. E. 235; Flynn v. Jackson, 93 Va. 341, 25 S. E. 1; Johnston v. Gill, 27 Grat. 587.

Antenuptial contracts.—A deed made by intended wife followed by marriage is conclusively presumed to be in consideration thereof, and is based on valuable consideration, except as to existing creditors, but is void as to them. Snyder v. Grandstaff, 96 Va. 473, 31 S. E. 647, 70 Am. St. Rep. 863.

As to antenuptial contracts, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 684-686, 697.

Dower in fraudulently conveyed property.—Where real estate is purchased by and deeded to wife, and is successfully attacked by husband's creditors, as being in fraud of their rights, he having paid purchase money, the husband has no seisin, actual or constructive, out of which wife can be endowed. Grant v. Sutton, 2 Va. Dec. 149, 22 S. E. 490.

Voluntary postnuptial settlement is void as to existing creditors, and will be presumed to be voluntary, unless valuable consideration is shown by legal evidence. Rixey v. Deitrick, 85 Va. 42, 6 S. E. 615; Robbins v.

Improvements put upon separate estate of wife by insolvent husband, in fraud of creditors, may be followed by creditors, and separate estate charged with their value. Building Ass'n v. Reed, 96 Va. 350, 31 S. E. 514.

Limitation of Actions.—Where no actual fraud is charged, voluntary marriage settlement cannot be set aside after five years from recordation. McCue v. Harris, 86 Va. 687, 10 S. E. 981.

Generally.—This section overrules Herring v. Wickham, 29 Grat. 628, 26 Am. Rep. 405; Triplett v. Romine, 33 Grat. 651; Clay v. Walter, 79 Va. 92—in that conveyances, etc., upon consideration of marriage, are made void as to existing creditors.

The revisors of the Code of 1887, placed property given in consideration of marriage in the same class of other voluntary settlements, declaring them void as to existing creditors. See Burks' Address, 2 Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1379.

Conveyance founded upon moral obligation, which imposed no legal obligation at the time it was furnished, is void as to creditors. Davis v. Anderson, 7 Va. Law Reg. 399, 99 Va. 620, 39 S. E. 588. To be sufficient to sustain a promise or contract, it must be one which was once a valuable consideration, but has ceased to be binding for some supervenient cause. Id.

Under this section, so far as the means of the insured are withdrawn from creditors to pay premiums, they are entitled out of the proceeds of the policy to have the sum so paid applied to their claims. Stigler v. Stigler, 77 Va. 163. See also 6 Va. Law Reg. 862.

Sec. 5186. Judgment or decree not necessary before suit by creditor to avoid gift, transfer, etc., of debtor's estate; measure of relief; extent of lien given creditor; how perfected against creditors and purchasers.—A creditor before obtaining a judgment or decree for his claim may, whether such claim be due and payable or not, institute any suit which he might institute after obtaining such judgment or decree to avoid a gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of or charge upon the estate of his debtor declared void by either of the two preceding sections; and he may in such suit have all the relief in respect to said estate to which he would be entitled after obtaining a judgment or decree for the claim which he may be entitled to recover. A creditor availing himself of this section shall have a lien from the time of bringing his suit on all the estate, real and personal, hereinbefore mentioned, and a petitioning creditor shall be entitled to a like lien from the time of filing his petition in the court or in the clerk's office of the court in which the suit is brought. If the proceeds of sale be insufficient to satisfy the claims of all the creditors whose liens were acquired at the same time they shall be applied ratably to such claims, and the court may make a personal decree against the debtor for any deficiency remaining on the claim of any creditor after applying thereto his share of the proceeds of sale, or if he be not entitled to share in such proceeds, may render a personal decree against the debtor for the full amount of the creditor's claim. This section is subject to the provisions of section sixty-four hundred and sixty-nine. (Code 1887, § 2460; 1889-90, p. 73; 1893-4, p. 614.)

Revisors' Note.—The revised section omits the provision formerly appearing in this section pertaining to the docketing of the lis pendens in view of the last sentence, which is new. Section 6469, referred to in the last sentence and made a part of this section, applies to every lis pendens. As section 6469 stood before the revision (section 3566 of the Code of 1887) it required that the docketing be done only against purchasers for value without notice of REAL ESTATE. The lis pendens required by section 5186 as it stood before the revision extended not only to purchasers of real estate but of personal property, and also to CREDITORS. No serious objection was seen to protecting SUBSEQUENT purchasers for value of personal property as well as of real property (see section 6469), but it was deemed unwise to extend the protection to creditors. The case of Davis v. Bonney, 89 Va. 755, 17 S. E. 229, presents an instance of the unjust working of the former law.

Lien of creditor.—Creditor successfully attacking fraudulent deed has lien on property conveyed, and creditor coming into suit has lien from time of filing petition, but as against purchasers for value without notice, and creditors with or without notice, from time of filing his lis pendens. Davis v. Bonney, 89 Va. 755, 17 S. E. 229, citing and commenting on Wallace v. Treakle, 27 Grat. 479, the ruling in which is changed by this section to the extent of giving the attacking creditor a lien "from the time of bringing his suit," and a suit is brought when and as soon as the summons issues. See section 6061, 13 Va. Law J. 131. The present revision further changes the law as it stood when Davis v. Bonney, supra, was decided. There is no longer any necessity for the docketing of a lis pendens as between creditors. See revisors' note above, section 6469 and revisors' note.

Creditor successfully attacking deed for fraudulent debt is not entitled to be substituted to position formerly occupied by fraudulent debt. His lien, if not previously acquired, dates only from institution of suit, and is subordinate to liens already acquired. Deed is valid as to bona fide debts, and fraudulent debt is eliminated. Craig v. Hoge, 95 Va. 282, 28 S. E. 317.

See note 1 Va. Law Reg. 294, under caption, "Suits to Avoid Fraudulent Conveyances."

Where fraudulent deed is set aside, the property thereby conveyed will be treated as though such deed had not been made. Ferguson v. Daughtrey, 94 Va. 315, 26 S. E. 822.

The lien provided for by this section is never perfected unless and until the deed or other act of the debtor attacked is adjudicated to be fraudulent and void. The lien otherwise remains inchoate. Quinn-Marshall Co. v. Whittaker, 116 Va. 965, 83 S. E. 398.

The lien given by this section may be, and in the case in judgment was, waived by the subsequent contracts and dealings of the creditor with the debtor. Quinn-Marshall Co. v. Whittaker, 116 Va. 965, 83 S. E. 398.

Homestead.—Under Const. 1902, section 191, grantors in deed set aside as fraudulent cannot claim homestead in property thereby conveyed. See note to section 6531.

To give court in which homestead deed is attacked for fraud jurisdiction over goods, there must be valid attachment thereof, and if attachment is dismissed suit should be. Simon v. Ellison, 2 Va. Dec. 203, 22 S. E. 860.

Filing homestead deed is not such conveyance or assignment as can be attacked under this section. Id.

When suit hereunder is authorized.—Where the insolvency of a firm is self-proclaimed, and one partner, for a pecuniary consideration and the undertaking of the other to pay debts of firm, retires therefrom, leaving all social assets in possession of other, who proceeds to sell and collect, and advertises that firm has been dissolved, and that he will continue in business and settle debts of concern, held that this was a transfer of partnership property from firm to continuing member, and authorized creditors at large of firm to sue hereunder. Johnston v. Straus (C. C.) 26 Fed. 57.

This section authorizes a creditor at large to bring a bill in equity for any cause of action on which he might obtain a judgment at common law or suit in equity, and is not confined to suits brought to set aside assignments made to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors. Shufeldt v. Jenkins (C. C.) 22 Fed. 369.

This section allows a bill to be filed by a creditor to set aside a conveyance, declared void by sections 5184 and 5185, before obtaining judgment or decree (this is upon the grounds that the above sections refer to fraudulent acts that are void), and expressly contains, in section 5184, a reservation in favor of a purchaser for valuable consideration without fraud, and section 5185 refers to voluntary conveyances not upon valuable consideration. Brown v. Putney, 90 Va. 453, 18 S. E. 883.

This section does not authorize a suit under section 5187 by a creditor against an attachment garnishee until judgment is had in the attachment proceedings by virtue of which the garnishee becomes a debtor of the creditor. Trimble v. Covington Co., 112 Va. 826, 72 S. E. 724.

Federal Courts.—This section giving simple contract creditors a right to sue in equity to set aside fraudulent conveyances made by the debtor, does not give the federal courts in this State a jurisdiction similar to that of the state courts, in equity, when originally instituted in the federal court or where the suit was removed from the state court. 14 Va. Law Reg. 337.

Generally.—This section is intended to benefit those creditors who by their diligence succeed in bringing into court for distribution a fund or assets placed beyond the reach of the unsecured creditor by the fraudulent or voluntary act of the debtor. Quinn-Marshall Co. v. Whittaker, 116 Va. 965, 83 S. E. 398.

If bill contains positive and specific allegations of fraud, they are taken as true if bill is taken pro confesso. Welsh v. Sollenberger, 85 Va. 441, 443, 8 S. E. 91.

In suits under this section the beneficiaries in the deed which is assailed are necessary parties. 17 Va. L. J. 452.

Sec. 5187. To prevent persons engaged in buying and selling merchandise, while indebted, from selling their entire stock of merchandise in bulk, or selling the major portion thereof, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade.—The sale, transfer or assignment in bulk of any part or the whole of a stock of merchandise, or the fixtures pertaining to the conduct of said business, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade, and in the regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, shall be void as against creditors of the seller, unless the seller and purchaser at least five days before the sale, make a full detailed inventory showing the quantity, and so far as possible with the exercise of reasonable diligence, the cost price to the seller, of each article to be included in the sale; and unless the purchaser demands and receives from the seller a written list of names and addresses of creditors of the seller, with the amount of indebtedness due or owing to each, and certified by the seller under oath, to be to the best of his knowledge and belief, a full, accurate and complete list of his creditors and of his indebtedness; and unless the purchaser shall, at least five days before taking possession of such merchandise or paying therefor or giving some note or other evidence of indebtedness therefor, notify personally or by registered mail, every creditor, whose name and address is stated in such list, of the proposed sale, stating the aggregate value of the merchandise proposed to be sold, as shown by such inventory, the consideration to be paid therefor, and the time and manner of payment.

The seller and purchaser shall each preserve the inventory, list and affidavit required by this section for the period of six months after such sale and purchase, and the same shall be open to the inspection of the creditors of the seller.

After the expiration of said six months no suit or action shall be brought to have declared void, or the effect of which will be to have adjudicated void, any such sale or purchase, as is mentioned in this section.

Sellers and purchasers under this section shall include corporations, co-partnerships, and individuals, but nothing contained in this section shall apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers, assignees under voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors, trustees in bankruptcy, or by any one acting under judicial process. (1902-3-4, pp. 518, 884; 1916, p. 413.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is largely based on the former law, but contains changes in phraseology as well as in meaning. The revised section is the result of a consideration of the former Virginia act in connection with the laws of other states.

The reference in the parentheses to Acts 1916 should be to page 713, not 413.

It is within the police power of the state to regulate sales of entire stocks in trade of merchants so as to prevent fraud on innocent creditors, and a state statute prohibiting such sales except under reasonable conditions as to previous notice is not unconstitutional under the due process and equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment. This section creates no new right of action. If a cause of action exists this section attaches certain consequences to the doing or omission to do certain things. It is by virtue of section 5186 that a creditor before judgment or decree may institute suit to avoid a transfer, etc., of the estate of his debtor. Trimble v. Covington Co., 112 Va. 826, 72 S. E. 724.

Suit under this section can only be instituted by a creditor existing at the date of sale. Trimble v. Covington Co., 112 Va. 826, 72 S. E. 724.

Sec. 5188. Loans, and reservations of a use or property, to be recorded.—Where any loan of goods or chattels is pretended to have been made to any person with whom, or those claiming under him, possession shall have remained five years without demand made and pursued by due process of law on the part of the pretended lender, or where any reservation or limitation is pretended to have been made of a use or property, by way of condition, reversion, remainder, or otherwise, in goods or chattels, the possession whereof shall have so remained in another as aforesaid, the absolute property shall be taken to be with the possession, and such loan, reservation, or limitation void as to creditors of and purchasers from the person so remaining in possession, unless such loan, reservation, or limitation be declared by will, which or a copy of which is, or by deed, or other writing, duly admitted to record within the said five years in the county or corporation in which said goods or chattels may be. (Code 1887, § 2461.)

"Goods and chattels."—Sections 5142, 5188 and 5194 all relate to same kind of property, i. e., "goods and chattels," and so closely connected that whatever was meant by "goods and chattels" in one of these sections must have been intended of same words in others. "Goods and chattels" mean visible, tangible property only, and do not include choses in action. First Nat. Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 505, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898, 7 Va. Law Reg. 204. See, also, Kirkland v. Brune, 31 Grat. 126.

Where loanee has not had possession for five years.—Purchaser from loanee, who has not been in possession of property for five years, acquires no title against owner, nor can his possession be added to that of loanee from whom he purchased to defeat owner's claim. Lightfoot v. Strother, 9 Leigh 451.

Where father sends slave to son by agent who neglects to inform son that slave is a loan, and both father and son die before five years, the father disposing of said slave by will, the father is not affected by neglect of agent, and such slave may be recovered for his estate after five years from loan. Dickinson v. Dickinson, 2 Grat. 493.

Possession of mortgagee after mortgage.—Where certain parties having become sureties of an executor, a deed is made by him mortgaging slaves to secure them, which contains no provisions that possession shall remain with him until default, although after such mortgage he remains in possession more than five years, and creditor of mortgagor has them sold under execution, such possession does not make slaves liable under statute. Rose v. Burgess, 10 Leigh 186.

Where loanee holds possession five years.—Five years' peaceable possession of slaves under loan, not evidenced by a deed, vests title in loanee, which inures in favor of his creditors, and cannot be divested as to them by returning same to lender, after the said five years have expired. Garth v. Barksdale, 5 Munf. 101.

A deed declaring loan of slave from father to his daughter during her life, and a gift to her children after her death (being admitted to record on proof by one witness only), is not good against her husband's creditors or purchasers from him without notice of such deed, possession having remained with such husband for five years. Lacy v. Wilson, 4 Munf. 313.

Effect of lender resuming possession.—A demand of slaves by the lender, who thereupon receives them, and immediately redelivers them to loanee, to be held on same terms as before such receipt, demand and redelivery being in private, is not sufficient to bar rights of creditors. Boyd v. Stainback, 5 Munf. 305.

If no writing declaring such loan be recorded, no demand be made by lender and pursued by course of law for more than five years after possession commenced, the loan is void as to loanee's creditors, whose rights cannot be affected by lender's subsequent resumption of possession. But the creditors meant are those whose debts were contracted before resumption of possession or conveyance of the chattels by the lender, they having given credit to loanee on apparent ownership of property. Scott v. Jones, 76 Va. 233.

Where possession has remained with loanee five years, and is then resumed by lender, possession must continue with lender for full period of five years from time it was actually resumed before title will be revested in him as against creditors of loanee. Pate v. Baker, 8 Leigh 80.

Where, under parol loan, debtor remained in possession of slaves for five years, they are liable to his creditors, though possession is resumed by lender before execution issues. Beale v. Digges, 6 Grat. 582, and note on Fraudulent and Voluntary Conveyances to Cochran v. Paris, 11 Grat. 348, Va. Rep. Ann.; Taylor v. Beale, 4 Grat. 93.

Deed recorded after five years.—Where after loanee has remained for five years in possession of property lender makes deed, declaring original loan and continuing it, but deed is not recorded, it does not affect, nor is evidence against creditor of person in possession. Pate v. Baker, 8 Leigh 80.

Acts valid between parties.—If not in writing duly recorded, loans of chattels, under section 3, chapter 114, Code 1873 (same as this section), are void as to creditor of loanee, but valid as between parties, no matter how long loanee may keep possession; but operation of statute will be avoided by lender's resuming possession, or granting chattels to another, by writing duly recorded, within five years. Scott v. Jones, 76 Va. 233; Collins v. Lofftus, 10 Leigh 5, 34 Am. Dec. 719.

W. H., by will dated 1879, gave a slave then in possession of his son-in-law, W. B., to his two grandsons, J. B. and E. B., sons of said W. B., and at that time infants, as soon as they come to lawful age. In 1792 he verbally lent the slave to his son-in-law for the purpose of assisting in the maintenance of his children, reserving the right to take him back whenever he should think proper, and in 1796, four years afterwards, died. In same year his will was admitted to record, the surviving grandchildren still being under age; and in 1801, when that grandchild attained full age, the slave was taken in execution and publicly sold as the property of W. B. It was held that the recording of the will in 1796 was a sufficient declaration to protect the rights of the grandchild in opposition to claim of father's creditors. Beasley v. Owen, 3 Hen. & M. 449.

L., in 1809, then residing in Virginia, made a conveyance in trust for his wife of certain personal property and slaves, which deed was duly recorded. The property remained in possession of husband and wife while they resided in Virginia. In 1814 they moved to Washington, taking the trust property with them. In 1817 L. borrowed money from Bank on note endorsed by trustee in deed of 1809, and executed deed of trust on property conveyed by deed of 1809 to secure Bank, and then died insolvent. During residence in Washington he sold some of slaves without objection by his wife or trustees. Bank then filed bill to subject remainder of trust property to its debt. Held, that deed of 1809 was sufficient to protect the property against subsequent creditors of or purchasers from L., and that, deed being properly recorded in Virginia, the removal of property to Washington did not affect title of wife or her trustees. Bank v. Lee, 13 Pet. 107, 10 L. Ed. 81.

Generally.—This section had its origin in the custom of lending slaves.

Section 2, chapter 101, Rev. Code, p. 372 (same as this section), does not apply to property remaining in possession of debtor for more than five years on hire. McKenzie v. Macon, 5 Grat. 379.

Although parol declaration of trust, where property is given to one party for another, is valid as between parties thereto, yet as between cestui que trust and creditors such reservation is void. London v. Turner, 11 Leigh 403.

A chose in action is a mere right of action to a personal chattel not in possession. Yerby v. Lynch, 3 Grat. 471.

Sec. 5189. Reservation of title to and liens on goods and chattels sold to be void as to creditors and purchasers unless in writing and recorded.—Every sale or contract for the sale of goods and chattels wherein the title thereto or lien thereon is reserved until the same be paid for, in whole or in part, or the transfer of title is made to depend on any condition where possession is delivered to the vendee, shall, in respect to such reservation and condition, be void as to creditors of and purchasers for value without notice from such vendee, until such sale or contract be evidenced by writing signed by the vendor and the vendee, setting forth the date thereof, the amount due, when and how payable, a brief description of the goods and chattels, and the terms of the reservation or condition, and until and except from the time the writing evidencing such sale or contract is duly admitted to record in the county or corporation in which said goods or chattels may be, or in the clerk's office of the Chancery Court of the city of Richmond, if said goods and chattels be in that city, or, if said goods and chattels consist of locomotives, cars, or other rolling stock, equipments, or personal property of any description, to be used in or about the operation of any railroad, until and except from the time the said writing is duly admitted to record in the clerk's office of the circuit court of the county or the corporation court of the city, wherein the principal office in this State of the company operating the railroad is located, or in the clerk's office of the Chancery Court of the city of Richmond, if said principal office is within the corporate limits of the said city, and a copy of said writing be filed in the office of the State Corporation Commission, and each locomotive, car, or other piece of the rolling stock be plainly and permanently marked with the name of the vendor on both sides thereof followed by the word "owner." Such writing shall be acknowledged or attested by a subscribing witness as to both the vendor and vendee. It shall be the duty of the clerk to record such writing in the book of miscellaneous liens and index it in the name of both the vendor and vendee, for which service he may charge a fee not exceeding twenty-five cents, but no tax shall be charged thereon. No writing shall be deemed to be admitted to record under this section unless and until the same has been indexed according to law. All sales or contracts for the sale of goods and chattels other than locomotives, cars, and railroad equipment, heretofore docketed without acknowledgment or proof shall have the same force and effect as if the same had been duly acknowledged or proved. (Code 1887, § 2462; 1889-90, p. 108; 1893-4, p. 422; 1904, p. 96.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the first part of the act last cited, amending section 2462 of the former Code. Attention is called to the requirement of the revised section that the writing itself and not a more memorandum thereof must be recorded, and that it must be acknowledged or attested by a subscribing witness as to both the vendor and vendee. It would seem that all writings that are recorded should have some proof of due execution. The writing is to be recorded in the book of miscellaneous liens, as to which see section 3393, and it is not deemed to be admitted to record unless properly indexed.

Requisites for validity.—In order that the registry of a conveyance may operate as constructive notice to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers, its language must be such that if a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer should examine the instrument itself, he would obtain thereby actual notice of all the rights which were intended to be created or conferred by it. Nat. Cash Register Co. v. Burrow, 110 Va. 785, 67 S. E. 370; Same v. Norfolk Realty Co., 110 Va. 791, 67 S. E. 372.

For contracts not fulfilling the requisites under the former section see Natl. Cash Register v. Burrow, 110 Va. 785, 67 S. E. 370; Natl. Cash Register Co. v. Norfolk Realty Co., 110 Va. 791, 67 S. E. 372.

Goods and Chattels.—The term "goods and chattels" used in this section is restricted to "visible, tangible and movable" personal property, and does not include choses in action. "Movable" means that which may be lifted, carried, drawn, turned or conveyed, or in any way made to change its place or position. Monarch Laundry v. Westbrook, 109 Va. 382, 63 S. E. 1070; First Nat. Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 505, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898, 7 Va. Law Reg. 204.

Property affected; description.—A contract which leaves the designation of the specific property resting exclusively in the minds of the parties fails to meet the requirements of this section. The description of the property cannot be arrived at by applying the testimony of the parties to the contract. Nat. Cash Register Co. v. Norfolk Realty Co., 110 Va. 791, 67 S. E. 372.

A contract reserving title under this section, which provides for such "additional shafting, piping, connections, etc., as may be required to complete the said plant as to the motive power of the same" is too vague and indefinite in its description of the additional shafting, etc., to enable a stranger to identify the property with any degree of accuracy, hence the title sought to be reserved cannot be protected as against a subsequent purchaser for value and without other notice thereof. Monarch Laundry v. Westbrook, 109 Va. 382, 63 S. E. 1070.

Reservation of title to engines, boilers and machinery which a vendor, by a writen contract, sells to a vendee, and installs for use in a laundry plant is valid as against subsequent purchasers of the plant from the vendee or mortgagees thereof, where it appears that this section has been complied with, and the vendee or mortgagee of realty, with notice of the rights of third parties in fixtures, takes subject to such rights. Monarch Laundry v. Westbrook, 109 Va. 382, 63 S. E. 1070.

Deferred payments.—The docketing of a contract providing for notes payable in monthly instalments after maturity of first note, but authorizing the purchaser to date the first note at such time as he may elect and to insert the date either before or after the execution of the note, does not give notice of when and how the deferred payments are to be made, is not a sufficient compliance with the statute and hence is not constructive notice. Nat. Cash Register Co. v. Burrow, 110 Va. 785, 67 S. E. 370.

Purchaser for value.—Trustee in deed to secure creditors is purchaser for value, within meaning of this section, and if it be alleged that he is purchaser with notice burden of proving it is on the party alleging it. The proof, however, may be circumstantial, but must be such as to affect his conscience, and so strong and clear as to put upon him the imputation of bad faith. Arbuckle v. Gates, 4 Va. Law Reg. 237, 95 Va. 802, 30 S. E. 496.

An assignee for creditors is a purchaser for value, within the meaning of this section. Corbett v. Riddle, 209 Fed. 811.

An unrecorded contract under this section is void as to vendee's trustee in bankruptcy. Chesapeake v. Seldner, 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261. But see Holt v. Henley, 232 U. S. 637, and amendment to Bankruptcy Act therein referred to.

The rights of a vendor of goods sold on conditional sale prior to the amendment of June 25, 1910, to the Bankruptcy Act, are unaffected by that act, though the contract of sale was not recorded. Holt v. Henley, Trustee, 232 U. S. 637.

In Holt v. Henley, Trustee, 232 U. S. 637, the validity of the amendment of June 25, 1910, to the Bankruptcy Act was attacked on the ground that that amendment was in fact an amendment of a State statute. But the court did not decide the question.

Authentication for recordation.—Prior to amendment of 1893-94, p. 422, the clerk had no authority to docket memorandum of contract until it had been authenticated in manner necessary for recordation. Callahan v. Young, 90 Va. 574. Attention is here called to the provisions of the present section. See revisors' note above.

Generally.—Previous to this statute the law was that where a vendor agreed to sell personal property for a price to be paid at a future time, and deliver the possession but expressly retained title to the property until payment, such an agreement constituted a conditional sale; and though by parol or by an unrecorded instrument, such reservation was valid as against vendees, creditors and subsequent purchasers with or without notice. This section restricts that doctrine for the protection of innocent third parties. Monarch Laundry v. Westbrook, 109 Va. 382, 63 S. E. 1070.

This section is a remedial statute and should be liberally construed. Liquid Carbonic Co. v. Whitehead, 115 Va. 586, 80 S. E. 104.

The effect of this section cannot be avoided by calling the contract a lease and providing that the purchase price shall be rent. Corbett v. Riddle, 209 Fed. 811.

A contract by shipbuilding company with the United States whereby all parts of the machinery paid for by the government under the specified system of partial payments became thereby the sole property of the United States is not such a contract as is required to be recorded under this section. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus, 104 Va. 79, 51 S. E. 174.

Vendor of goods by unrecorded bill of sale, retaining title, delivers possession but retains control of goods and requires daily report of sales to be made to him, and fails to keep up stock according to contract, while vendees perform theirs, at length sues out attachment, and seizes goods for alleged balance. His claim must be postponed to other debts against vendees. Hash v. Lore, 88 Va. 716, 14 S. E. 365.

A lien for purchase money of rolling stock reserved by contract under this section is in no wise inconsistent with existence of a lien, under section 6438. Newgass v. Atlantic (C. C.), 56 Fed. 676.

This section changes the rule of McComb v. Donald, 82 Va. 903, 5 S. E. 558.

Commented upon in note to Sprenkle v. Dillard (circuit court of Henrico county), 10 Va. Law Reg. 433.

See Gregory's Forms No. 548.

Sec. 5190. How a lien or reservation provided by the preceding section is to be enforced.—All reservations, liens, conditions, and the collection of all money mentioned in any such written contract, whether recorded or not, may be enforced on a petition to a justice of the peace when the amount of value involved is within his jurisdiction, and no other pleadings before him shall be necessary, or by bill in equity in the circuit, corporation, or city court having equity jurisdiction, when the amount or value involved is within its jurisdiction. Such petition or bill shall be filed by the person entitled to recover, and all other persons whose rights will be affected thereby shall be made defendants. It shall state the contract and the plaintiff's claim and describe the property with reasonable certainty. The testimony in the case shall be given orally before such court or justice. The court or justice shall determine all questions arising out of, or under, the contract, which are properly made by the pleadings, and render such judgment as shall seem right and proper. The property may be sold, or possession delivered, or such other disposition made of it as the court or justice may direct, and, in a proper case, a personal judgment may be rendered against any one or more of the defendants. Pending the litigation authorized by this section, the possession of the goods and chattels shall be determined by chapter two hundred and thirty-seven of this Code, the provisions whereof are hereby made applicable, as far as practicable, to any proceeding under this section, except that instead of the provision of section fifty-seven hundred and ninety-seven "that the affiant verily believes the plaintiff is entitled to recover the same" the affiant shall state that affiant verily believes the plaintiff is entitled to recover the same, or to subject it to a lien for the purchase price thereof, as the case may be. When the proceeding is before a justice the defendant shall have at least five days' notice before a hearing is had, and the judgment when rendered may be enforced like any other judgment before a justice. (1902-3-4, p. 895; 1904, p. 352; 1908, p. 376; 1915, p. 218.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the second subdivision of the act of 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 96) amending section 2462 of the former Code. The former law left it uncertain whether the procedure in court was a procedure at law or in equity, and consequently serious difficulties arose as to how the record should be made up for a writ of error or appeal. In Mitchell Transparent Ice Co. v. Triumph Electric Co., 116 Va. 725, 82 S. E. 730, the court evidently treated the case as a proceeding at law with enlarged powers given to the trial judge. In order to remedy the troubles that arose out of this part of the former law, the revised section provides that the lien shall be enforced by bill in equity. No jury trial is given as a matter of right, but the case is governed by the general law on the subject of issues out of chancery. It is provided that the testimony shall be taken orally, so as to avoid delays incident to suits in chancery, and the right to possession pending the litigation is made the same as in detinue. The provision that a personal judgment may be rendered in a proper case is new, but simply makes statutory the decision of the court in Liquid Carbonic Co. v. Whitehead, 115 Va. 586, 80 S. E. 104.

The references at the end of this section should be stricken out and "Id." inserted in lieu thereof.

See notes to preceding section.

In Levy v. Davis, 115 Va. 814, 80 S. E. 791, it was held that there was nothing in subdivision 2 of section 2462 of Pollard's Code 1904 (corresponding to this section) to indicate a purpose on the part of the Legislature to abolish pre-existing remedies in that class of cases. In that case an action of detinue was brought. In view of the changes made in this section by the present revision, it would be safer hereafter to pursue the remedy given by it and not resort to detinue.

Sec. 5191. Release of contract or lien provided by section fifty-one hundred and eighty-nine.—Every vendor in a contract for the sale of personal property docketed under section fifty-one hundred and eighty-nine shall, upon payment to him of the amount of the purchase price in full, as set forth in said contract, cause the same to be marked satisfied upon the margin of the page of the book where the same is recorded, which note of satisfaction, when signed by such vendor, his agent or attorney, and attested by the clerk in whose office such contract is docketed, shall operate as a release of all claims of such vendor therein, and the clerk for attesting such release shall have a fee of twenty-five cents, to be paid by the vendee. Any vendor who shall fail to release a contract, after the whole amount thereof has been paid to him, for a period of fifteen days after he shall have received notice from the vendee to mark the contract satisfied, shall forfeit five dollars to the vendee. If the vendee is indebted for rent of the house wherein the personal property described in such contract is stored or kept, and the landlord has taken action to recover said rent, the vendor, at the request of the landlord, his agent or attorney, shall state on oath the balance due on said contract of sale, and upon the payment of the same by the vendee, or his landlord, shall mark the said contract satisfied in accordance with the terms and provisions of this section, and for failure so to do shall forfeit five dollars to the party making such payment. (Id.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from the act of 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 352). Verbiage and unnecessary provisions are omitted, as is also the provision requiring the clerk to mark the lien satisfied "upon the written notice by the vendor, his duly authorized agent or attorney." The party, his agent or attorney, can easily go to the clerk's office and mark it satisfied without writing to the clerk. The omitted provision is unnecessary, besides it opens the door for forged written directions, and does not conform to the language used in other sections for making similar releases. See, for instance, sections 6456 and 6466 relating to marking deeds of trust and judgments satisfied.

Source: 1902-3-4, p. 895; 1904, p. 352.

Sec. 5192. Contracts in consideration of marriage, or for the sale of real estate, etc., void as to creditors and purchasers unless in writing.—Every contract, not in writing, made in respect to real estate or goods and chattels, in consideration of marriage, or made for the conveyance or sale of real estate, or a term therein of more than five years; and every bill of sale or contract for the sale of goods and chattels when the possession is allowed to remain with the seller, shall be void, both at law and in equity, as to purchasers for value and without notice and creditors. (Code 1887, § 2463; 1902-3-4, p. 598.)

Revisors' Note.—As section 5194 stood before the revision (section 2465 of the Code of 1887, as amended), it contained the following parenthetical clause: "And any such bill of sale or contract shall be in writing and signed by the vendor." A doubt existed as to whether this meant IF IT IS IN WRITING, or if it MUST BE IN WRITING. It is believed the word "shall" was intended to be used in the sense of "must," otherwise there would be a large number of contracts not in writing which would not be met by the statute. In order to set this doubt at rest, that provision has been transferred to section 5192, necessitating a corresponding change in section 5193.

History of section.—Previous to the Code of 1887, there had been a number of decisions holding that "a parol contract for purchase of land so far executed as to vest in purchaser an equitable right was good as against creditors of vendor under registry laws." These cases are as follows: Floyd v. Harding, 28 Grat. 401; Hicks v. Riddick, Id. 418; Burkholder v. Ludlam, 30 Grat. 255, 32 Am. Rep. 668; Long v. Hagerstown, Id. 665; Trout v. Warwick, 77 Va. 731; Halsey v. Peters, 79 Va. 60; Bowman v. Hicks, 80 Va. 806; Powell v. Bell, 81 Va. 222; Griggsby v. Osborn, 82 Va. 373; Brown v. Butler, 87 Va. 621, 13 S. E. 71; Reynolds v. Necessary, 88 Va. 125, 13 S. E. 348. They were based upon the fact that Code 1873, chapter 114, section 5 (Code 1849, chapter 118, section 5), required only written contracts for land to be recorded. To remedy this, section 2463 of the Code of 1887 was enacted, thus abrogating the rule laid down in foregoing cases. See note to Braxton v. Bell, 1 Va. Law Reg. 682.

Object of the section.—One of the objects of this section was to place a purchaser of land under a parol contract, as to purchasers for value without notice, and creditors, in the same condition as purchasers under a writing who had failed to register it as provided by sections 5193 and 5194. Norfolk & P. Traction Co. v. White, 113 Va. 102, 73 S. E. 467.

This section has no application to resulting trusts and does not subject the land held by the resulting trustee to a judgment against him. Straley v. Esser, 117 Va. 135, 83 S. E. 1075.

For a review of this section and the reason for its enactment, see Straley v. Esser, 117 Va. 135, 83 S. E. 1075.

Generally.—Sections 2463-2465 of the Code of 1887 did not authorize recordation of any contract for sale of personal property except one made in consideration of marriage, and recordation thereof was not notice. Braxton v. Bell, 92 Va. 229, 23 S. E. 289, and note thereto, 1 Va. Law Reg. 682.

An unrecorded deed is void as to all creditors who, but for such deed, would have right to subject property thereby conveyed, whether such debts were contracted before or after such deed. The word "subsequent" in section 5194 applies to purchasers only. Price v. Wall's Ex'r, 5 Va. Law Reg. 404.

The proviso at the end of section 2465 of Pollard's Code (1904) applies to possession taken under such contracts as are described in this section. Norfolk & P. Traction Co. v. White, 113 Va. 102, 73 S. E. 467. The substance of that proviso is the following words of the present section 5194: "But the mere possession of real estate shall not of itself be notice to purchasers thereof for value of any interest or estate therein of the person in possession."

See Burks' Address, 2 Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.), p. 1379, upon the subject of marriage as a valuable consideration.

As to meaning of "goods and chattels," see note to section 5189.

Discussed, 13 Va. Law J. 132.

Sec. 5193. If in writing and recorded, as valid as deeds.—Any such contract or bill of sale as is mentioned in the preceding section, if in writing and signed by the owner of the property, shall, from the time it is duly admitted to record, be, as against creditors and purchasers, as valid, so far as it affects real estate, as if the contract were a deed conveying the estate or interest embraced in the contract, and so far as it affects goods and chattels, as if possession had completely passed at the time of such admission to record. (Code 1887, § 2464.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to the preceding section.

By written contract between W. and G., executed January 30, 1866, W. sold G. tract of land, at which time G. paid part of the purchase money, and W. bound himself on payment of balance to make deed to G., which contract was executed and acknowledged, but not recorded. On May 21, 1866, W. conveyed said land to G. with general warranty, and deed was recorded next day. G. owed balance on purchase price, and at request of W. executed bond to S. therefor. On May 16, 1866, during term of court, begun on 14th, H. & J. each recovered judgments against W., which were docketed June 6, 1866. February 11, 1866, A. recovered judgment against W., which was docketed May 16, 1866. On May 29, 1866, at a term of circuit court begun that day, P. recovered judgment against W., which was docketed July 6, 1866. Held, contract of January 30, 1866, not having been recorded, was void as to judgment creditors of W. whose judgments were duly docketed; but P.'s judgment, having been recovered after deed from W. was recorded, constitutes no lien. Hart v. Haynes, 1 Va. Dec. 201, and note.

This section as it read in Code of 1887 did not authorize recordation of any contract for sale of personal property, except one made in consideration of marriage, and recordation of any other was of no effect. Braxton v. Bell, 92 Va. 229, 23 S. E. 289, and note, 1 Va. Law Reg. 682.

A trust deed of chattels, valid and recorded in another State, is valid here, though not recorded here. Craig v. Williams, 90 Va. 500, 18 S. E. 899, 44 Am. St. Rep. 934. But see section 5197.

For article upon the effect of possession of land without recorded title, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 153 and 455.

Sec. 5194. Contracts, deeds, etc., that are void as to creditors and purchasers unless recorded.—Every such contract in writing, and every deed conveying any such estate or term, and every deed of gift, or deed of trust, or mortgage conveying real estate or goods and chattels and every such bill of sale, or contract for the sale of goods and chattels, where the possession is allowed to remain with the grantor, shall be void as to subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice and creditors, whether general or by lien, until and except from the time it is duly admitted to record and indexed as required by law, in the county or corporation wherein the property embraced in such contract, deed, or bill of sale may be; but the mere possession of real estate shall not of itself be notice to purchasers thereof for value of any interest or estate therein of the person in possession. A recordation under this section shall not affect the rights of a creditor acquired under section fifty-two hundred and twenty-four. (Code 1887, § 2465; 1895-6, p. 842; 1897-8, p. 833; 1899-00, p. 89.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to section 5192 concerning the transfer of a parenthetical clause from this section to that section. Two important changes have been made in section 5194 (2465 of the former Code): (1) Under the former language of the section it was held in two cases that the word "creditors" meant LIEN CREDITORS only, and as a necessary consequence "pocket liens," if for a bona fide debt, were held valid as against general creditors and entitled to preference. Now the insertion of the words "whether general or by lien" makes the statute applicable in express terms to general creditors as well as lien creditors, thereby changing the law as announced in McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 615, and Dulaney v. Willis, 95 Va. 606, 29 S. E. 824. (2) The writing must not only be admitted to record but must be indexed before the recordation will be efficacious.

The last sentence is new, and makes statutory the decision in Partlow v. Lickliter, 100 Va. 681, 42 S. E. 671.

History of the section.—In the case of Chapman v. Chapman, 91 Va. 397, 21 S. E. 813, 1 Va. Law Reg. 195, and note, it was held that a purchaser for value of real property in the possession of another was put upon his inquiry as to the rights of the one so in possession, and he will be affected with knowledge of whatever rights such possessor has, and such knowledge is held to be the same, in effect, as the notice which is imputed by the registry acts. Under section 2463 of the former Code, the court had held that possession under parol contract was good as against creditors of grantor. To remedy this, the act of 1895-6, p. 842, was passed amending section 2465 of the Code of 1887 as follows: "Provided, that possession of any such estate or term, without notice or other evidence of title, shall not be notice to said subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration." In the amendment to this section (Acts 1897-8, p. 833) this saving clause was omitted, but it was restored by act amending this section (1899-00, p. 89). See 4 Va. Law Reg. 617, 629. The present section changes the phraseology of the amendment and now it is provided that "the mere possession of real estate shall not of itself be notice to purchasers thereof for value of any interest or estate therein of the person in possession."

As to two important changes made in this section by the present revision, see revisors' note above.

"Goods and chattels" in section 5, chapter 114, Code 1873 (same as this section before amendments) refer to and include only visible and tangible property, and not choses in action. Kirkland v. Brune, 31 Grat. 126.

See also note to section 5188, as to meaning of goods and chattels.

Purchasers for value.—Where the consideration for conveyance of land is debt due at time from vendor to vendee, purchaser is purchaser for valuable consideration, within meaning of registry acts, and having purchased and taken conveyance without notice of an attachment, which had been previously levied upon land, but not docketed, is entitled to hold land free from lien of attachment. Cammack v. Soran, 30 Grat. 292.

Under chapter 114, section 5, Code 1873 (same as this section before amendments), it is not necessary that a purchaser for value, claiming against an unrecorded deed of trust, should have taken a conveyance of the legal title. It is sufficient if he has best right to call for it. Preston v. Nash, 75 Va. 949, 6 Va. Law Reg. 836.

A trustee and the creditor secured by deed are purchasers for valuable consideration, within the meaning of the statute (Code 1873, chapter 114, section 5, same as this section before amendments), and their title is not affected by a prior deed of the grantor unless they had notice at the date of their purchase, and prior deed illegally admitted to record cannot give constructive notice. Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491; Davis v. Sims, 1 Va. Dec. 390.

To be a purchaser for value, the plaintiff must show that he paid a fair value for the land. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

A deed is made conveying personal property to trustees for creditors, and trustees take possession of and proceed to sell property under trust. Though deed was not duly recorded, yet, property having been delivered to trustees, this was a valid transfer, and protects property against creditors, who had not acquired lien before transfer was consummated. Clark v. Ward, 12 Grat. 440.

"By subsequent purchasers are intended, as we think, purchasers of the same subject embraced in the instrument declared to be void. This would seem to be the natural construction of the section considered alone, but it is strengthened by section 11 of same chapter (similar to this section), which defines or explains the words 'creditors' and 'purchasers' as used in any previous section. Burks, J., in Harman v. Oberdorfer, 33 Grat. 497.

Where goods fraudulently purchased are conveyed by vendee to secure creditors, who, as well as trustee, are ignorant of fraud, the deed will not be set aside on suit of vendor of assignor. Oberdorfer v. Meyer, 88 Va. 384, 13 S. E. 756.

A purchaser without notice of prior unrecorded deed of trust has priority over it, even though he has no deed therefor. Preston v. Nash, 76 Va. 1.

H., having only equitable estate in lands, conveys same by deed of bargain and sale, without warranty, to trustees to secure a debt to B., and this is duly recorded. Afterwards H. acquires legal title, and then conveys land to D., with warranty. Held, that a deed of trust executed to secure debt to B. was executed when B. had not the legal estate, and contained no clause of warranty. The legal estate did not enure to trustees for B., who has lien only on equitable estate, and that recordation of deed conveying equitable estate to secure was not constructive notice of that deed to D., because the statute requiring deeds to be recorded makes them void to subsequent purchasers without notice if not recorded, but gives them no additional validity if recorded. To sustain a plea of purchase without notice the party must be complete purchaser before notice; that is, must have paid purchase money and received a deed. Doswell v. Buchanan, 3 Leigh 366, 23 Am. Dec. 280; 5 Va. Law Reg. 864.

To maintain the defense of purchaser for value without notice the alienees must aver and prove (1) that they are purchasers for valuable consideration; (2) that the consideration has been actually paid; (3) that they have received, or are best entitled to receive, conveyance of the property, and (4) that those essentials all occurred prior to their having notice of the adverse claim. The burden of establishing the first three essentials rests on alienees; and to affect them with notice of his adverse claims, rests on claimant. Lamar v. Hale, 79 Va. 147.

Notice.—Notice to affect purchasers for value with charges on property purchased may be actual or constructive. Whatever suffices to put purchaser on inquiry which should lead to the discovery of the charge is constructive notice. Lamar Exr. v. Hale, 79 Va. 147. See note of Fisher v. Borden below.

Generally, a purchaser with notice from a purchaser without notice acquires good title, but this rule is subject to this exception, that if a purchaser with notice sells to a purchaser without notice and afterward re-acquires the property, he does not obtain a better title than he had in the beginning. Yost v. Critcher, 112 Va. 870, 72 S. E. 594.

The assignee of a debt secured by a deed of trust is not protected unless he takes the assignment without notice that his assignor had knowledge, before taking the deed to secure his debt, of a prior lien of an unrecorded deed first made. Fisher v. Borden, 111 Va. 535, 69 S. E. 636.

Whatever is sufficient to put a party on inquiry will charge him with actual notice of the facts of which a diligent pursuit of that inquiry would have informed him. For case where party was held purchaser with notice because he did not follow inquiry, see Fisher v. Borden, 111 Va. 535, 69 S. E. 636.

A purchaser is not chargeable with constructive notice of all matters of record, but only of such as the title deeds of the estate refer to, or put him on inquiry for. Providence F., etc., Club v. Gill, 117 Va. 557, 85 S. E. 464.

In determining whether a purchaser had notice of any defect of title, inadequacy of price is a potent factor. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

A deed of conveyance of land duly recorded which recites various deferred payments of purchase money and that they are "all secured by a deed of trust on the land itself, which deed and this are parts of the same transaction" is constructive notice to subsequent purchasers of the land of the lien for the unpaid purchase money although the deed of trust referred to as securing the same be not recorded. Charlottesville Hdw. Co. v. Perkins, 118 Va. 34, 86 S. E. 869.

Under section 5, chapter 118, Code 1860 (same as this section before amendments), a recorded deed of trust on real estate is constructive notice to subsequent purchaser. McCormack v. James (D. C.), 36 Fed. 14.

Creditors.—As noted above, this section now includes general creditors. The result of this change is to modify the effect of the cases under this heading.

Section 11, chapter 118, Code 1849 (same as this section before amendments), in relation to creditors and purchasers who shall be protected against unrecorded deeds, does not include creditors claiming under a devise for payment of debts, or under the statute subjecting real estate to their payment. But the creditor who may avoid such deed must have some lien, by judgment or otherwise, which entitles him to charge specifically the subject conveyed. McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 615. But see the section as amended.

By section 5, chapter 114, Code 1873 (same as this section before amendments), unrecorded deed is absolutely void as to creditors with or without notice (Heermans v. Montague, 2 Va. Dec. 6, 20 S. E. 899); and unrecorded contracts for sale of real estate are void as to creditors without notice (Dobyn v. Waring, 82 Va. 159).

Where a woman about to be married makes a conveyance of her personal property to a third person, with the privity and approbation of her intended husband, the marriage takes place a few minutes after the conveyance, and the husband takes possession after the marriage, the property thus conveyed will not be subject to husband's creditors, as his possession was not that of his wife (she not being sui juris), and her short possession between the time of conveyance and marriage not being sufficient, or of a nature to render deed fraudulent. Such a conveyance, although not recorded, is not void under statute of frauds, even supposing it to be a trust deed, against husband's creditors, as statute only applies to creditors of grantor. Land v. Jeffries, 5 Rand. 211.

One who claims for tort is a "creditor." Johnson v. Wagner, 76 Va. 587.

An unrecorded deed is void as to all creditors who but for deed would have had right to subject property conveyed to their debts, whether contracted before or after such deed. The word "subsequent" in this section applies to purchasers only. Price v. Wall, 97 Va. 335, 33 S. E. 599, 75 Am. St. Rep. 788.

The rights of general creditors of a decedent are subject to all equities attaching to a decedent's estate at the time of his death. General creditors take the estate in the plight in which they find it. Dulaney v. Willis, 95 Va. 606, 29 S. E. 324. But see present section and revisors' note.

Recordation of deed.—It will be noted that the statute, as amended, requires the deed to be indexed before it is notice.

Before last amendment of section 3567 of the Code of 1887 it was decided that a decree rendered or judgment confessed in vacation operates as a lien from first moment of day on which decree is rendered or judgment confessed, and takes precedence over deed of trust recorded same day, though it may have been recorded before decree was rendered or judgment confessed. Law takes no notice of fraction of days to lien of judgment or decree, while a deed, as against subsequent purchasers for value without notice, and creditors, operates only from time it is recorded. Hockman v. Hockman, 2 Va. Law Reg. 523, and note, p. 526, 93 Va. 455, 25 S. E. 534, 57 Am. St. Rep. 816. On this subject see section 6470 and notes.

Where deed is duly proved or acknowledged, and ordered to be recorded, and is left with clerk for that purpose, it shall be considered as recorded from that time, although in fact it may be lost by negligence of clerk and never recorded; and a deed under these circumstances will be preferred to subsequent deed which has been duly recorded, although the party to such subsequent deed may not have had notice of the prior deed. Beverley v. Ellis, 1 Rand. 102; 7 Va. Law Reg. 834. See, also, Va. Building & Loan Co. v. Glenn, 99 Va. 460, 39 S. E. 136, 7 Va. L. Reg. 314, and note; Mer. Bk. v. Brown, 96 Va. 614, 32 S. E. 64. Indexing is now required.

Certificate of clerk of registry court written on deed that it has been admitted to record is evidence and notice of the fact, though the clerical act of spreading it on book in extenso be never performed (Davis v. Sims, 1 Va. Dec. 390), or if it is in fact lost by clerk (Beverley v. Ellis, 1 Rand. 102). Indexing is now required.

The endorsement of the clerk on the deed of the day when it was left with him to be recorded, and his return to the court of deeds left with him to be recorded, is not conclusive as to the day when the deed was so left, but the true day may be shown by parol evidence. Horsley v. Garth, 2 Grat. 471.

When deed from husband to wife valid.—Relinquishment of dower, to extent of its value, is sufficient consideration of postnuptial settlement, as against husband's existing creditors, and where made before relinquishment no distinct proof of previous agreement is necessary. Though made fraudulently as to husband's creditors, fraud will not be imputed to her. But it must be duly recorded, else it is void as to husband's creditors, without notice, whose claims accrued after its execution, but before its recordation. Strayer v. Long, 86 Va. 562, 10 S. E. 574.

Exchange of property.—If upon an exchange of lands the parties execute mutual conveyances, but the grantee of one tract fails to record his deed, a judgment against his grantor binds the land given in exchange as well as that received. The rights of parties are not affected by character of consideration for unrecorded deed. Price v. Wall, 97 Va. 335, 33 S. E. 599, 75 Am. St. Rep. 788.

Bill of sale as mortgage.—A bill of sale, though absolute on its face, may be a mortgage, and if so, and it is not recorded, it is void as against subsequent purchasers for value without notice. Bird v. Wilkinson, 4 Leigh 266.

Conveyance of such interest only as vendor has.—A grantee in a quit claim deed with covenant of special warranty which purports to convey "such interest only as the grantors now have, whatever that may be," holds an inferior title to a prior unrecorded deed. Va., etc., Coal & Iron Co. v. Fields, 94 Va. 102, 26 S. E. 426.

The grantee of all the right, title and interest of the grantor in a lot of land acquires only such right, title and interest as his grantor had and no more, and is chargeable with notice of, and bound by, a prior unrecorded contract between his grantor and a third person. Stephen Putney Co. v. R., F. & P. R. R. Co., 116 Va. 211, 81 S. E. 93.

A deed conveying "all lots remaining unsold" in a designated plat and expressing the intention of the grantor "to convey all property now owned and controlled," does not operate to convey lots which had been previously sold by the grantor to other persons even though they had not recorded their deeds. This section does not apply because the deed purports to convey only all lots unsold. McNamara v. Boyd, 112 Va. 145, 70 S. E. 694.

Possession of land as notice.—See first subdivision of notes under this section.

The proviso at the end of this section of Pollard's Code (1904) applies to the possession of a prior purchaser of land, whether his purchase was under an unwritten contract (such as is mentioned in section 5192) or under a written instrument (such as is described in this section). Norfolk & P. Traction Co. v. White, 113 Va. 102, 73 S. E. 467. The proviso referred to is contained in substance in this section.

For article upon the effect of the possession of land without recorded title, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 153 and 455.

Personal Property left with Vendor.—It is not necessary, in order to render a bill of sale void under this section, that it should appear by the provisions of the writing itself that the possession of the property was to remain with the seller. Fields-Watkins Co. v. Hensley, 117 Va. 661, 86 S. E. 113.

"If there is a bill of sale and possession is left with the vendor in order to defeat the claims of purchasers for value without notice, it must be recorded. If there is no bill of sale and possession is left with vendor, it is prima facie fraudulent." Luck v. Kersley (circuit court Hanover), 14 Va. Law Reg. 102.

Priorities.—In April, 1850, W. N. conveyed real estate to secure debt to P., but deed was not recorded until 1858. In 1851 W. N. sold same estate to S., who took and held possession continuously and notoriously under his contract from date of his purchase, and paid price, but received no conveyance, and had no notice of trust deed until March, 1861, when trustee advertised sale. S. enjoined sale. Purchaser has priority over creditor. Preston v. Nash, 76 Va. 1.

Land sold and purchased under a written contract, which has not been recorded, though the purchase money has been paid, and purchasers have held for years under their contract, is liable for judgment obtained against grantor before contract is recorded. Young v. Devries, 31 Grat. 304. See, also, Hart v. Haynes, 1 Va. Dec. 201, and note.

Effect of section 2483 of Code of 1887 (section 6436 of this Code) is to modify registry law as contained in this section so far as to give priority to a mechanic's lien on land of grantee who has failed to record his deed over judgments subsequently obtained against grantor. Pace v. Moorman, 99 Va. 250, 37 S. E. 911.

"In 1867, on bond of M. & B. to P., assigned by P. to R., latter obtained judgment, which was docketed in 1869. In 1866 M. granted his land to B., reserving lien for purchase money, and in 1870 assigned purchase money bonds to G. for value without notice of judgment. In contest for priority between R., as judgment creditor, and G., as assignee of vendor's lien and bonds thereby secured, the lien of judgment has priority." Gordon v. Rixey, 76 Va. 694.

A deed is void as to creditors "until and except from time it is duly admitted to record." And it is only deeds recorded within sixty days from their date of acknowledgment which relate back and are valid as of that date. Slater v. Moore, 86 Va. 26, 9 S. E. 419. Under the present law, indexing is required, and there is no relation back. The period of sixty days referred to in the note of the case of Slater v. Moore, was later reduced to twenty days (section 2467 of the Code of 1887), then to ten days (Acts 1895-6, p. 285), and at its session of 1916 the General Assembly repealed the said section 2467 (Acts 1916, p. 490). At one time the period was eight months. See Eppes v. Randolph, 2 Call 125; Roanes v. Archer, 4 Leigh 550; Harvey v. Alexander, 1 Rand. 219, 10 Am. Dec. 519.

Judgment creditor whose judgment is duly docketed, and who has brought suit to subject land of debtor, has priority over grantee of judgment debtor claiming under deed not recorded until after suit and twenty months after acknowledgment of deed. Robinson v. Bank, 1 Va. Dec. 769, 17 S. E. 739.

If grantee, who failed to record his deed, induce grantor to make new deed to grantee's wife, who records same, and, together with her husband, executes a deed of trust on property for loan with which to pay purchase price, the deed and deed of trust, when recorded, operate to invest trustee with title to property as against creditors of grantor, and they cannot subject it to judgments obtained against grantor subsequent to its recordation. As against creditors of grantor, unrecorded deed is mere nullity, and must be treated as if it had never been executed; but they cannot treat it as nullity for some purposes and valid for others, nor does fact that it may be valid between the parties and as to subsequent purchasers with notice affect them. Bankers v. Blair, 99 Va. 609, 39 S. E. 231, 86 Am. St. Rep. 914, and same case styled Banker v. Hornish, 7 Va. Law Reg. 253, note. See note, 1 Va. Law Reg. 229.

C., in 1849, gives deed on land to secure bona fide debt, which is duly acknowledged and certified for record, but is not recorded until after his death. He makes his will in December, 1849, by which he charges his whole estate with payment of his debts, and dies in 1851, indebted more than his whole estate will pay, but there were no judgment creditors. Held, the deed of trust, though not recorded, is valid against his creditors. McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 615. See present section and revisors' note.

A mortgage of slaves is recorded in county of A., slaves being at that time in county of B., and after recording mortgage slaves are removed to A., but deed is not recorded anew there after such removal. Mortgagor then mortgages same slaves to another person, and this mortgage is recorded in A., where the slaves are at the time of execution and recordation thereof. Held, first mortgage was not duly recorded and is void as to second. Lane v. Mason, 5 Leigh 520.

At February term, 1857, of court a judgment was obtained against

S. and H., his surety, and docketed April 1, 1857. Execution issued, and was paid by H. On October 8, 1856, S., by written agreement under seal, sold to E. a house and lot and delivered possession, and on 18th of same month S. conveyed same to E. This deed was acknowledged on same day, H. being one of the justices who took acknowledgment, but was not presented for record until March 9, 1857. Until bill by H. against E. and S. to be substituted to lien of judgment against S., held he was entitled to be subrogated, and judgment having been docketed within twelve months from date of rendition, and deed not having been recorded within sixty days from its acknowledgment, the judgment has priority, the agreement, not being recorded, being void as to creditor, and to H., claiming under creditor. Notice of deed or written contract for land does not affect creditor of grantor. Eidson v. Huff, 29 Grat. 338. As to the period of sixty days just referred to, see note of Slater v. Moore, supra, and statement following that note.

In January, 1862, C. by agreement in writing sold W. a lot in Danville, and in same month conveyed it to him. Agreement was never recorded, and deed was not recorded until 1873, September 18th. W., having paid all purchase money, conveyed the lot to secure R. $4,000 by deed August 24, 1866. In April, 1868, W. was declared bankrupt, giving in lot as part of his estate. In May, 1868, register conveyed lot to assignee in bankruptcy, and in September, 1868, on joint application of assignee and R., as lien creditor, the court in bankruptcy ordered a sale, which was made and confirmed to R., and deed ordered and made and possession taken. In 1872 M. recovered judgment against C. in corporation court in Danville, which was docketed March 11, 1873. Although M. had notice of sale by C. to W., the lot is liable to judgment. March v. Chambers, 30 Grat. 299.

Generally.—It is not necessary for the United States to comply with the registry laws of the State in order to preserve a lien created by contract with it. The lien, without recordation, is superior to the claims of all other creditors who have no prior lien. United States v. William R. Trigg Co., 115 Va. 272, 78 S. E. 542.

The change in and amendments to this section and the two preceding sections overturn the rule laid down in Braxton v. Bell, 92 Va. 229, 23 S. E. 289, 1 Va. L. R. 682, to the effect that this section did not authorize recordation of any contract for sale of personal property except one made in consideration of marriage, and that recordation of such contract was not notice.

Under this section a bill of sale does not take effect as a transfer until recorded, and such transfer constitutes a voidable preference under the United States Bankruptcy Act. In re Montague, 143 Fed. 428.

It is not believed that release deeds are contemplated by this section. 10 Va. Law Reg. 504.

Sec. 5195. Where to be recorded.—Notwithstanding any such writing shall be duly admitted to record in one county or corporation wherein there is real estate or goods or chattels, it shall nevertheless be void as to such creditors and purchasers in respect to other real estate or goods or chattels without the same, until it is duly admitted to record in the county or corporation wherein such other real estate or goods or chattels may be; but it shall be sufficient to record a deed releasing the lien of a deed of trust, in whole or in part, either in the county or city in which the property thereby released is located, or in the county or city in which the property so released was situated at the time of the recordation of the deed of trust; and any recordation thereof so made of any such release is hereby validated. (Code 1887, § 2466; 1916, p. 707.)

Where a deed conveys several tracts of land lying separately in different counties, the recordation thereof in only one of the counties is not effectual in regard to the tract or tracts lying in the other counties. Horsley v. Garth, 2 Grat. 471, 44 Am. Dec. 393.

The clerk of a county or corporation court has no authority to admit to record a deed which does not convey land lying in his county or corporation; and a copy of such deed, authenticated by the clerk, is not competent evidence in place of the original. Pollard v. Lively, 2 Grat. 216.

Sec. 5196. When goods, etc., are removed from county, etc., when and where writing to be recorded.—If any goods or chattels mentioned in such writing be removed from a county or corporation in which it is admitted to record, the said writing shall, within one year after such removal, be admitted to record in the county or corporation to which the property is so removed; otherwise the same, for so long a time thereafter as it is not admitted to record in such last mentioned county or corporation, shall, as to the property so removed, be void as to such creditors or purchasers. But such writing shall not be so void in respect to the interest of any infant, or insane person, if before the end of one year after the disability shall cease, the writing be recorded in the county or corporation to which the property is removed. (Code 1887, § 2468.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "a time thereafter" found in line six of the text, are new. This insertion, however, does not change the law. See Hardaway v. Jones, 100 Va. 488, 41 S. E. 957. The saving in favor of married women, formerly appearing in the last sentence of the section, has been stricken out in view of chapter 207.

Goods and chattels.—The words "goods and chattels," mentioned in registry acts, do not include a mere chose in action, such as debt, or claim for money, and assignment of such debt or claim for value, though not recorded, will be good against a subsequent attachment thereof. Kirkland v. Brune, 31 Grat. 126.

Description of property.—A deed of trust on personal property gives a sufficiently definite description when it enables a stranger to identify the property by the aid of proper inquiry such as the instrument itself indicates and directs. Williamson v. Payne, 103 Va. 551, 49 S. E. 660.

Creditors.—A deed of trust conveying chattels is recorded in county where property is at time of making deed. Afterwards grantor is permitted to move same out of county, and such deed is not recorded in county to which he moves within twelve months. After action brought in last county, but before judgment, deed is recorded in last county. Held, deed is valid against creditor. Bryan v. Cole, 10 Leigh 497.

Removal without consent of trustee.—Deed of trust conveying slaves is recorded in county where they are. Afterwards a third person takes one to another county and sells him, and he remains with purchaser more than twelve months, without deed being in county where he is. In action by trustee in deed against purchaser it is not to be presumed that slave was removed with assent of trustee, but that fact must be proved by purchaser, and in such case, slave being removed without assent of trustee, deed, though not recorded in county to which slave was removed within twelve months, is valid as to creditors. Crouch v. Dabney, 2 Grat. 415.

Deed of marriage settlement made of slaves then in Hanover, and duly recorded there, husband entitled to and holding possession thereunder removes them to Richmond, and within twelve months after removal mortgages them for his own debt, contrary to settlement. Trustee under settlement fails to have it recorded in Richmond within twelve months after removal, but within twelve months files bill in chancery against mortgagee, asserting title to slaves. Held, mortgagee is purchaser with notice of settlement within twelve months after removal to Richmond, and as to him failure of trustee to record settlement in Richmond does not make it void. Hughes v. Pledge, 1 Leigh 443.

Generally.—Mortgage of slaves is recorded in county of A., when slaves are in county of B., but afterwards they are removed to A., mortgage not being re-recorded. Mortgagor then mortgages slaves to another, and it is also recorded in A., where slaves are at time of execution and recordation. Held, first mortgage was not properly recorded, and second mortgage has priority. Lane v. Mason, 5 Leigh 520.

Where grantor in deed of trust recorded in county where property is, within twelve months removes property to another county and sells it, purchaser acquires no title thereto if description of property in trust deed was sufficient. Hardaway v. Jones, 100 Va. 483, 41 S. E. 957, 8 Va. Law Reg. 276, note.

Person living in Fluvanna, owning canal boat plying between Richmond and Lynchburg, sold it to resident of Richmond, and recorded mortgage thereon in Fluvanna, and within twelve months thereafter in Richmond. Between these dates creditors of purchaser seized same in Richmond. Held, the mortgage was properly recorded. Lucado v. Tutwiler, 28 Grat. 39.

Prior to section 5197, case of Craig v. Williams, 90 Va. 500, 18 S. E. 899, 44 Am. St. Rep. 934, had held foreign mortgage of personalty good, though not recorded here.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 74, section 7.

Sec. 5197. No mortgage, deed of trust, etc., upon personal property in another State an encumbrance when removed to this State unless recorded in this State.—No mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance created upon personal property while such property is located in another State shall be a valid encumbrance upon said property after it is removed into this State as to purchasers for valuable consideration without notice and creditors unless and until the said mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance be recorded according to the laws of this State in the county or corporation in which the said property is located in this State. (1893-4, p. 545.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "and until" in lines five and six of the text are new, and make the meaning what was no doubt intended.

Reverses Craig v. Williams, 90 Va. 500; 18 S. E. 899, 44 Am. St. Rep. 934. See note 7 Va. Law Reg. 506; Burks' Pleading and Practice, p. 715.

Sec. 5198. Priority of writings, when admitted to record same day.—Where two or more writings embracing the same property are admitted to record in the same county or corporation on the same day, if the previous sections do not provide for the case, that which was first admitted to record shall have priority in respect to the property in such county or corporation. (Code 1887, § 2469.)

Where three mortgages are executed on same subject, on same day, one after another, and are proved and admitted to record in same order, and there is no agreement that any should have priority, or should stand on equal footing, the one first recorded has priority. Naylor v. Throckmorton, 7 Leigh 98, 30 Am. Dec. 492.

As to priority among judgment liens, see section 6470.

Sec. 5199. When writings to be recorded in county, and when in corporation.—The provisions of this and any other chapter of this Code or of any subsequent statute, by virtue of which a writing is to be or may be recorded in the county or corporation wherein the property embraced in such writing is, shall be construed, in respect to the county, as relating only to property within the said county and without the corporate limits of the corporation having a court wherein writings may be lawfully admitted to record, and, in respect to the corporation, as relating only to property within the corporate limits of said corporation having such a court. (Code 1887, § 2470.)

By charter of city of Lynchburg, jurisdiction was given hustings court for space of one mile without and around said city. Deed of trust conveying real estate lying outside corporation limits, but within one mile, was recorded in clerk's office of hustings court. Held (before present statute), this was valid recordation, and has priority over subsequent judgments docketed in county court clerk's office. Blackford v. Hurst, 26 Grat. 203; Burgess v. Belvin, 32 Grat. 633; Campbell v. Nonpareil, 75 Va. 292. As to mechanic's lien, see Boston v. Railroad, 76 Va. 180.

Sec. 5200. Words "creditors and purchasers," how construed; lien of subsequent purchaser for purchase money paid before notice.—The words "creditors" and "purchasers," where used in any previous section of this chapter, shall not be restricted to the protection of creditors of and purchasers from the grantor, but shall also extend to and embrace all creditors and purchasers who, but for the deed or writing, would have had title to the property conveyed, or a right to subject it to their debts. And as against any person claiming under a deed or other writing which shall not have been admitted to record before payment by a subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration of the whole or a part of his purchase money, such subsequent purchaser, notwithstanding such deed or other writing be admitted to record before he becomes a complete purchaser, shall, in equity, have a lien on the property purchased by him, for so much of his purchase money as he may have paid before notice. (Code 1887, § 2472.)

"This section was reported by the revisors and its adoption recommended 'to put an end to the judicial strife' exhibited in the decisions in Anderson v. Anderson, 2 Call 198; Land v. Jeffries, 5 Rand. 211; Thomas v. Gaines, 1 Grat. 347." Burks, J., in Harman v. Oberdorfer, 33 Grat. 497, quoting Report of Revisors, p. 615, and note.

This section adopts the view of Judge Cabell (dissenting in Doswell v. Buchanan), and gives to a subsequent purchaser a lien upon the property for so much of the purchase money, whether the whole or a part, as he may have paid before notice. 13 Va. Law J. 133.

The effect of filing a petition in bankruptcy is to make all petitioning creditors "creditors" in the sense of this statute. Chesapeake v. Seldner 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261.

Section 11, chapter 118, Code 1849 (same as this section), does not apply to creditors claiming under a devise for payment of debts, and as between holder of deed of trust executed before but recorded after will making such devise, holder thereof has priority. McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 616. See section 5194 and notes.

Where person having equitable estate sells it without warranty, and subsequently acquires legal estate, and sells it to another, the deed conveying the legal estate is not affected by prior deed conveying equitable estate, though it is recorded. Doswell v. Buchanan, 3 Leigh 365, 23 Am. Dec. 280. See following section and notes.

Cited but not construed in Wasserman v. Metzer, 105 Va. 753, 54 S. E. 893.

Sec. 5201. When purchaser not affected by record of deed or contract.—A purchaser shall not, under this chapter, be affected by the record of a deed or contract made by a person under whom his title is not derived; nor by the record of a deed or contract made by any person under whom the title of such purchaser is derived, if it was made by such person before he acquired the legal title of record. (Code 1887, § 2473.)

Revisors' Note.—The object of the change in the phraseology of this section is to make the meaning clearer. The section had its origin in the Code of 1849 (Code 1849, p. 510, chapter 118, section 12), and the revisors in their report refer to it and explain its intent (Report of Revisors, p. 616). The revisors of 1887 left the language untouched, except to omit the words "or chapter one hundred and nineteen," trusting to the Report of the Revisors of 1849 to carry the proper interpretation.

Standing alone, the latter part of the section as it appears in the Codes of 1849 and 1887 is difficult of interpretation, but when read in connection with the comments of the revisors of the Code of 1849, and the decision of the court in Doswell v. Buchanan, 3 Leigh 365, the meaning is more apparent. The prime object of the revisors of 1849 was to enact that a purchaser in buying land should not be compelled to examine the title, so far as any grantor was concerned, back of the time when the grantor in the particular case acquired the legal title, for if such a requirement were necessary, there would be no limit to the examination of the record, and practically every deed or contract made by any party who had at any time owned the land would have to be examined in order that a person might safely purchase. The principle of Doswell v. Buchanan was simply this, that if, after a person purchased land or acquired an EQUITABLE INTEREST in it, BUT BEFORE HE ACQUIRED THE LEGAL TITLE, conveyed it, or gave an encumbrance on it, and AFTERWARDS acquired the legal title and sold the land, that the purchaser would not have to go back of the date when the LEGAL title was acquired and would be unaffected by the sale or encumbrance made while he held only an equitable title, although recorded, if he had no knowledge of it. The purchaser would get a good title if the chain was complete and disclosed no defects after the party acquired the legal title. It must be borne in mind in this connection that a person would acquire the legal title, not only by obtaining a deed to the land, but by having a contract for its purchase duly recorded. Section 5193 of this chapter provides that if the written contract is duly admitted to record, it shall be as valid as against creditors and purchasers as if the contract was a deed conveying the estate or interest embraced in the contract. Consequently, in a draft of section 5201 notice has to be taken, not only of a deed, but of such a contract as is mentioned in section 5193.

Where person owning equitable estate in property executes mortgage on it without warranty, and subsequently acquires legal title, such acquisition of legal title does not enure to benefit of grantees in deed of trust, and a purchaser of such legal estate is not charged with constructive notice of deeds of trust. Doswell v. Buchanan, 3 Leigh 365, 23 Am. Dec. 280. This case discussed in Preston v. Nash, 76 Va. 1.

A purchaser of real estate has constructive notice of recorded title papers of vendor, and it is the duty of such purchaser to examine the proper records to ascertain whether his vendor or those under whom he claims have made any prior conveyances of same or encumbered it. Pillow v. Southwest, 92 Va. 144, 23 S. E. 32, 53 Am. St. Rep. 804.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 74, section 10.

Sec. 5202. Effect when grantor conveys property which he does not own at time but subsequently acquires.—When a deed purports to convey property, real or personal, describing it with reasonable certainty, which the grantor does not own at the time of the execution of the deed, but subsequently acquires, such deed shall, as between the parties thereto, have the same effect, as if the title which he subsequently acquires were vested in him at the time of the execution of such deed, and thereby conveyed.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new. It has been held in a number of cases that where land is conveyed with general warranty and the grantor does not own it at the time of the conveyance, but subsequently acquires the same land, such acquisition enures to the benefit of the grantee, because the grantor is ESTOPPED to deny, against the terms of his warranty, that he had the title in question, but it does not operate actually to TRANSFER the estate subsequently acquired. (See cases cited in annotations to section 5171.) The new section applies to deeds of both real and personal property, and whether there is a covenant of general warranty or not, and is restricted to the parties to the deed.

Sec. 5203. Power of attorney, where recorded.—A power of attorney may be admitted to record in any county or corporation. (Code 1887, § 2499.)

Before there was a provision for the recordation of powers of attorney, it was decided that a copy of the power taken from the record was not competent evidence. Carter v. Robinett, 33 Grat. 429.

Under a former statute (1 Rev. Code, p. 363, chapter 99, section 7), authorizing deeds to be acknowledged before any two justices of the peace, it was held that the certificate of the justices is sufficient for the admission of the power of attorney to record with the conveyance, although it does not certify the instrument to any court or clerk's office for the purpose of being recorded. Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Grat. 111, 50 Am. Dec. 108.

A power of attorney to sell lands does not require, as between the parties, any particular mode of attestation, but may be proved in same way any other fact is proved. Newman v. Chapman, 2 Rand. 93, 14 Am. Dec. 766.

Where A. and his wife executed a power of attorney to B. to convey certain lands, and same is duly acknowledged, the power of attorney while void as to the wife (under the law as it then existed), a deed executed by B. under the power, is good as to her husband A. Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Grat. 111, 50 Am. Dec. 108.

Sec. 5204. When and where writings admitted to record.—Except where it is otherwise provided, the circuit court of any county, or the corporation court of any city, other than the city of Richmond, in which any writing is to be or may be recorded, and the Chancery Court of the city of Richmond, when any such writing is to be or may be recorded in said city, or the clerk of any such court, or his duly qualified deputy, in his office, shall admit to record any such writing as to any person whose name is signed thereto, when it shall have been acknowledged by him, or proved by two witnesses as to him in such court, or before such clerk, or his duly qualified deputy, in his office, or in the manner prescribed in sections fifty-two hundred and five to fifty-two hundred and eight, inclusive, and when such writing is signed by a person acting on behalf of another, or in any representative capacity, such acknowledgment before such court or clerk, or his deputy, may be in accordance with the provisions of said sections. (Code 1887, § 2500; 1895-6, p. 542; 1904, p. 319.)

Revisors' Note.—The amendment of 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 319) validated certain admissions to record. This provision has been omitted. See section 8 of this Code.

Acknowledgment.—A certificate of acknowledgment recited that, "at a court held for A. county, February 4, 1867, this deed was produced into court, and, being duly acknowledged and stamped according to law, was therefore ordered to be recorded." Teste: B. C. C. Held, that it showed that court for said county was held on day named, that the deed was produced into court, acknowledged and ordered to be recorded, and was sufficient; and, though the language of the certificate was doubtful, yet as it recites due acknowledgment, and shows an order for recordation, the order must be presumed to have been properly made until the contrary is shown. Peyton v. Carr's Ex'x, 85 Va. 456, 7 S. E. 848.

An instrument purporting to convey land, with a scroll attached to the grantor's name, though the scroll is not recognized in the body of the instrument, will be held to be a deed where the instrument has been acknowledged in court by the grantor as his deed for the purpose of having it recorded. Ashwell v. Ayres, 4 Grat. 283.

This section does not require that the acknowledgment should contain the statement that it was taken in the clerk's office, and the presumption is that the officer did his duty and took it in his office. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 223 Fed. 743, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 632.

Proved by witnesses.—It is not necessary for a subscribing witness to a deed to remember the transaction in order to constitute sufficient formal proof. It is sufficient if they can testify that they recognize the signature as their own. Currie v. Donald, 2 Wash. 58; Clarke v. Dunnavant, 10 Leigh 13; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 953; 2 Barton's C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1025.

A deed to a married woman, which was proved for recordation by her husband as one of the witnesses to the deed, was invalid as a recorded deed. Johnston v. Slater, 11 Grat. 321.

A person who signs a bond as surety may acknowledge the bond in court, or its execution out of court may be proved by witnesses. Board of Sup'rs of Washington County v. Dunn, 27 Grat. 615. See, also, Calwell v. Com., 17 Grat. 391.

It is not necessary that witnesses should be subscribing witnesses to a deed in order to prove same for recordation. Turner v. Stip, 1 Wash. 322.

Evidence.—A deed acknowledged or proved before a court of one county which conveys land in another county, and is ordered to be certified to the court of the county in which the land lies, and upon the certificate recorded in the general court where deeds were authorized to be recorded, a duly authenticated copy of the deed recorded in the general court is admissible in evidence in the absence of the original. Pollard's Heirs v. Lively, 4 Grat. 73.

The clerk of a county or corporation court has no authority to admit to record a deed which does not convey land lying in his county or corporation, and a copy of such deed, authenticated by the clerk, is not competent evidence in place of the original. Id.

The certificate of the clerk, under this section, cannot be impeached by his own testimony. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 223 Fed. 743.

Recordation ministerial.—The recordation of a deed is a ministerial act, which act a clerk of a court may be compelled to do by mandamus. The fact that the clerk who admitted the deed to record is trustee in the deed of trust does not affect the validity of the recordation. Paul v. Baugh, 85 Va. 955, 9 S. E. 329. See, also, Dawson v. Thurston, 2 Hen. & M. 132; Manns v. Givens, 7 Leigh 689; Randolph Justices v. Stalnaker, 13 Grat. 523; Carter v. Robinett, 33 Grat. 429; Horsley v. Garth, 2 Grat. 471, 44 Am. Dec. 393; Currie v. Donald, 2 Wash. 58; Corey v. Moore, 86 Va. 721, 11 S. E. 114.

Land in more than one county.—A deed conveying several tracts of land lying in different counties must be recorded in each county in order to be effective as notice to purchasers for value without notice and creditors. Horsley v. Garth, 2 Grat. 472, 44 Am. Dec. 393.

What amounts to recording.—See section 5194 and notes.

Generally.—Acknowledgments and proofs by writing are meant to effect precisely the same purpose; that is, to furnish such evidence of a prior execution of the deed as will authorize the recording. Roanes v. Archer, 4 Leigh 550.

See, also, notes to other sections of this chapter.

Sec. 5205. Certificates of acknowledgment within the United States or its dependencies upon which writings are admitted to record; who may take them.—Such court or clerk shall also admit any such writing to record as to any person whose name is signed thereto upon a certificate of his acknowledgment before the said clerk, or before the clerk of any court of record in this State, or before the clerk of any court without this State, but within the United States, or before a justice, a commissioner in chancery of a court of record or any officer who is authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds in the State or territory in which he acts, or a notary within the United States, or in the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, or in any territory or other possession or dependency of the United States, written on or annexed to the same, to the following effect, to-wit:

County (or corporation) of ....., to-wit: I, ... clerk (or deputy clerk) of ..... court (or a justice of the peace, or commissioner in chancery of the ..... court, or notary public), for the county (or corporation) aforesaid, in the State (or territory or district) of ....., do certify that E. F. (or E. F. and G. H., and so forth), whose name (or names) is (or are) signed to the writings above (or hereto annexed), bearing date on the ..... day of ....., has (or have) acknowledged the same before me, in my county (or corporation) aforesaid. Given under my hand this ..... day of .....

Or upon the certificate of acknowledgment of such person before any commissioner appointed by the Governor, within the United States, so written or annexed, to the following effect, to-wit:

State (or territory or district) of ....., to-wit: I,..... ....., a commissioner appointed by the Governor of the State of Virginia for the said State (or territory or district) of .....,

certify that E. F. (or E. F. and G. H., and so forth), whose name (or names) is (or are) signed to the writing above (or hereto annexed), bearing date on the ..... day of ..... has (or have) acknowledged the same before me in my State (or territory or district) aforesaid. Given under my hand this ..... day of .....

Or upon the certificate of the clerk of any court of record in this State, or the clerk of any court of record out of this State and within the United States, that the said writing was proved as to him by two witnesses before such clerk or before the court of which he is clerk. (Code 1887, § 2501; 1889-90, p. 44; 1895-6, p. 542; 1902-3-4, p. 750.)

Revisors' Note.—This and the two following sections are taken from Acts 1902-3-4, p. 750, again amending section 2501 of the Code of 1887. No material change has been made in the meaning of any of these sections, except in section 5205, to which change attention is particularly called. It consists of the insertion of the words, "or any officer who is authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds in the state or territory in which he acts," found in lines seven and eight of the text. The recognition of such acknowledgments was deemed a safe extension of the statute. See in this connection, Acts 1916, p. 393; Acts 1918, p. 506.

On the subject of the repeal of validating acts, see section 8 of this Code and revisors' note.

Substantial compliance.—The acknowledgment of a deed, to entitle it to recordation, must be before the proper officers, and according to the form prescribed by law; and the certificate thereof in that form, or to that effect, must be written upon or annexed to the deed. The certificate must contain all the requisites of such form, and no omission can be supplied by parol evidence. But a substantial compliance is all that is required. Hurst v. Leckie, 97 Va. 550, 34 S. E. 458, 5 Va. Law Reg. 630; Hockman v. McClanahan, 87 Va. 33, 12 S. E. 230 (overruled by Geil v. Geil, 101 Va. 773, 45 S. E. 325); Virginia Coal & Iron Co. v. Roberson, 88 Va. 116, 13 S. E. 350; Hairston v. Randolph, 12 Leigh 445; Langhorne v. Hobson, 4 Leigh 224; Tod v. Baylor, Id. 498; Siter v. McClanachan, 2 Grat. 293; Saffell v. Orr, 109 Va. 768, 64 S. E. 1057.

It is the policy of the law to uphold certificates of acknowledgment. Technical errors will be disregarded if the law has been reasonably complied with. Geil v. Geil, 101 Va. 773, 45 S. E. 325.

A certificate of acknowledgment that H. J., "whose name appears, signed to the within deed, came this day before me, R. C. W., acting justice for said county, and acknowledged same to be his act and deed, and desired me to certify the same to the clerk of the county court of said county that it may be recorded," is a substantial compliance with the statute. McCormack v. James (D. C.), 36 Fed. 14.

A certificate which identifies the subscriber, specifies the writing subscribed, states the capacity in which subscriber executes the deed, and certifies his acknowledgment thereof, is sufficient. Banner v. Rosser, 96 Va. 238, 31 S. E. 67. See Merchants Bank of Baltimore v. Goddin, 76 Va. 506.

Result of defects.—A variance between the date of the deed and the date of the deed as certified to by a justice before whom the deed was acknowledged is not sufficient to invalidate the recordation of the deed, where the identity of the deed with the one mentioned in the certificate sufficiently appears from other parts of said certificate and the annexation to the deed. Horsley v. Garth, 2 Grat. 474, 44 Am. Dec. 393.

For article holding that certificate need not state where taken, see 4 Va. Law Reg. 342.

Where a deed executed by husband and wife is inoperative as to wife, because her acknowledgment was improperly taken, it is yet good to pass his interest in the property. Siter v. McClanachan, 2 Grat. 280.

The fact that a deed of trust securing purchase money may not have been properly acknowledged and recorded will not affect the priority as between it and another trust deed, where the holder of the latter deed had actual knowledge of the existence of the former. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Blair, 98 Va. 490, 36 S. E. 513.

Officer before whom taken.—It was formerly not essential that the official character of the person taking the acknowledgment should appear in the certificate. It was presumed that it was made before an officer having authority. Harvey v. Borden, 2 Wash. 156; Ware v. Cary, 2 Call 263; Langhorne v. Hobson, 4 Leigh 224. It is otherwise under the present statute. Hurst v. Leckie, 97 Va. 562, 34 S. E. 468, 75 Am. St. Rep. 798.

A deed is properly admitted to record upon the certificate of acknowledgment describing the officer taking it, as aldermen of the city of New York, it being well known that justices of the peace in cities were at that time called aldermen. Welles v. Cole, 6 Grat. 645.

A certificate which is complete in every respect except that the official character of the officer is not specifically stated in the body of the certificate, but which is signed by him with the letters N. P. after his name is sufficient. Worley v. Adams, 111 Va. 796, 69 S. E. 929.

Where a certificate of acknowledgment sets forth in the body thereof that the acknowledgment was made before A., a commissioner in chancery, and it is also subscribed by him as such officer, this description implies that he was a commissioner of a court of record, as there was no other commissioner in chancery in this State. Hurst v. Leckie, 97 Va. 550, 34 S. E. 468, 75 Am. St. Rep. 798, 5 Va. Law Reg. 594, 630.

Under statute which provides for the appointment of deputy clerks of a county court, who may discharge the duties of the clerk, a deputy clerk has authority to take acknowledgments of deeds. Town of Gate City v. Richmond, 97 Va. 337, 33 S. E. 615, 5 Va. Law Reg. 391. The foregoing section now gives deputy expressed authority.

A grantee, trustee, or a beneficiary under a deed cannot take an acknowledgment to it with a view to its registration. A recordation based upon such acknowledgment is without effect as notice under the registry laws. Iron Belt Building & Loan Ass'n v. Groves, 96 Va. 138, 31 S. E. 23, 4 Va. Law Reg. 380; Davis v. Beasley, 75 Va. 491, 495; Clinch River Veneer v. Kurth, 90 Va. 737, 19 S. E. 878; Nicholson v. Gloucester Charity School, 93 Va. 101, 105, 24 S. E. 899; Raines v. Walker, 77 Va. 92; Bowden v. Parrish, 86 Va. 67, 9 S. E. 616, 19 Am. St. Rep. 873; Corey v. Moore, 86 Va. 721, 11 S. E. 114; Barton v. Brent, 87 Va. 385, 13 S. E. 29; Hunton v. Wood, 8 Va. Law Reg. 729, 43 S. E. 186. Compare National Mut. Building & Loan Ass'n v. Blair, 98 Va. 490, 36 S. E. 513; Hunton v. Wood, 101 Va. 54, 43 S. E. 186.

An acknowledgment made by parties to a deed before a notary, who is one of the trustees named in the deed, is invalid, and the fact that the notary did not know that he was named as trustee, and as soon as he learned that fact refused to accept the trust, does not alter or remove the defect in the acknowledgment. Iron Belt Building & Loan Ass'n v. Groves, 96 Va. 138, 31 S. E. 23, 4 Va. Law Reg. 380; Bowden v. Parrish, 86 Va. 67, 9 S. E. 616, 19 Am. St. Rep. 873.

Where a deed of trust to secure a debt to an eleemosynary corporation is acknowledged before an officer who is a member of that corporation, the fact that he is a member of that corporation does not invalidate the acknowledgment. Nicholson v. Gloucester Charity School, 93 Va. 101, 105, 24 S. E. 899.

As to acknowledgments taken before interested party, see 1 Va. Law Reg. 379.

A grantor who is clerk of a court cannot acknowledge the deed before himself for recordation, and if such a deed is recorded it does not give notice to any one. Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491; Leftwich v. Richmond, 100 Va. 164, 40 S. E. 651.

Where a petition to enforce a recorded deed of trust to "Fayette Mauzy," as trustee, showed that the deed was acknowledged before "F. Mauzy, Clerk," the question whether the deed was improperly admitted to record because of the identity of the trustee and the clerk cannot be raised by demurrer, but it is a matter of defense by way of plea or answer. It will not be presumed that an officer was guilty of improper conduct. Bell v. Wood, 94 Va. 677, 27 S. E. 504.

In a trust deed L. Triplett, Jr., was named as trustee. The certificate of acknowledgment began with "I, L. Triplett, Jr., a notary," etc., and signed, "L. Triplett, N. P." Held, that it did not necessarily follow from this that the trustee in the deed and the notary taking the acknowledgment were the same person. Corey v. Moore, 86 Va. 721, 11 S. E. 117. This case distinguished from Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491, and Bowden v. Parrish, 86 Va. 67, 19 Am. St. Rep. 873, in that in those cases the bill charged directly that the acknowledgment of the deed was taken and certified by the trustee named therein; and the commissioner found this fact, and this question being raised in the proper manner, and within the proper time, the appellate court held the acknowledgment was invalid; while in the present case, the parties complaining, after being guilty of gross laches, and under circumstances which put them into the attitude of acquiescing in the assertion of rights adverse to them, then, after two years had elapsed from the commissioner's report, they for the first time complain, and present a case so defective that it could under no circumstances be entertained. Corey v. Moore, 86 Va. 721, 11 S. E. 114.

In case of deeds made by nonresident it is sufficient for a recordation thereof, that there be a certificate of the clerk of a district court of the United States that the grantor personally appeared in court and acknowledged the deed; this being accompanied by a certificate of the judge of the court that the clerk was then the officer he professed to be. Shutte v. Thompson, 15 Wall. 151, 21 L. Ed. 123.

Objection made for the first time in appellate court.—Where no objection is made in the pleading or in the court below to a deed of trust on the ground that it was void because the acknowledgments were taken before a notary who was agent for the grantee, it cannot be considered in the appellate court. Shenandoah Valley R. Co. v. Dunlop, 86 Va. 349, 10 S. E. 239.

Impeaching certificate.—The act of an officer in taking an acknowledgment of a deed is judicial in its character, and cannot be impeached collaterally. He determines whether the person whose name is signed to the deed is the actual grantor, and whether he truly acknowledges same as his act and deed, and after these points have been determined and certified by him in conformity to law, and the deed duly recorded, the proceeding has all the force and conclusiveness of a judgment of a court of record. It cannot be impeached, even directly, except in a court of equity, and not there, except upon the ground of fraud, or upon some other ground which reaches the conscience of the party. Murrell v. Diggs, 84 Va. 900, 6 S. E. 461, 10 Am. St. Rep. 893; Carper v. McDowell, 5 Grat. 212; Harkins v. Forsyth, 11 Leigh 294; Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491; First Nat. Bank v. Paul, 75 Va. 594, 40 Am. Rep. 740; McCauley v. Grim, 115 Va. 610, 79 S. E. 1041.

The certificate of a clerk of the acknowledgment of a deed in his office by the parties thereto is conclusive, and cannot be impeached by extrinsic evidence, in a collateral proceeding, that the deed was in fact acknowledged out of the clerk's office. Carper v. McDowell, 5 Grat. 212.

In the absence of fraud, a notary's certificate of acknowledgment is deemed conclusive. Burson v. Andes, 83 Va. 445, 8 S. E. 249.

Validity cannot be questioned by party making acknowledgment.—A person who signs, seals, and delivers an instrument as his deed will never be heard to question its validity upon the ground that it was never acknowledged by him nor proved at the time of the delivery. It is the sealing and delivering that gives efficacy to the deed, not proof of the execution. And this principle applies to all bonds, whether executed by public officers or private parties, unless, indeed, there is some statute making acknowledgment or proof in court essential to the validity of the instrument. Board of Sup'rs of Washington County v. Dunn, 27 Grat. 616.

A deed of an uneducated deaf and dumb man, duly executed and acknowledged before a justice, cannot be set aside where it was shown that the writing was explained to him and he was believed to understand it, and there was no fraud in the transaction. Morrison v. Morrison, 27 Grat. 190.

A notary who takes an acknowledgment will not be permitted to falsify same. Hockman v. McClanahan, 87 Va. 33, 12 S. E. 230; First Nat. Bank v. Paul, 75 Va. 601; Harkins v. Foysythe, 11 Leigh 301; Hairston v. Randolphs, 12 Leigh 459. See, also, note entitled "Officer cannot contradict certificate," under section 5211.

Acknowledgment not necessary between the parties.—A deed not acknowledged or not certified according to law, though actually admitted to record, cannot be read as evidence as a recorded deed, but is good between the parties. Raines v. Walker, 77 Va. 92.

Acknowledgment not conclusive.—The acknowledgment of a deed before two justices by the grantor, and their certificate of acknowledgment, is not conclusive evidence that the execution of the deed is complete and perfect. Hutchison v. Rust, 2 Grat. 394.

Acknowledgment may be complete execution.—Where a deed is acknowledged and certified to by the proper officers, by a grantor who retains possession of it, whether the acknowledgment is a complete execution of the deed depends upon the intention of the grantor at the time the acknowledgment was made, and his intention may be shown by evidence of statements made by him before the acknowledgment was taken. Hutchison v. Rust, 2 Grat. 394.

As to sufficiency of acknowledgments under ancient statutes, see Jennings & Robinson v. Attorney General, 4 Hen. & M. 424; Miller v. Pendleton, Id. 436; Turner v. Stip, 1 Wash. 412; Lockridge v. Carlisle, 2 Leigh 186; Roanes v. Archer, 4 Leigh 550; Cales v. Miller, 8 Grat. 6; Hassler's Lessee v. King, 9 Grat. 120; Smith v. Chapman, 10 Grat. 445; Shue v. Turk, 15 Grat. 263.

Validating acts.—Numerous validating acts on the subject of the acknowledgment and recordation of deeds and other writings have been passed since the Code of 1887. For the most part these have been omitted from the present Code, as to which see section 8 and revisors' note; section 5209.

Generally.—Deeds of corporations; how to be executed and acknowledged, sections 5208, 5207; notaries required to affix to certificate of acknowledgment the date when their terms of office shall expire, section 5210; women notaries changing name, section 5210; appointment of and effect of acknowledgments before commissioners, section 2853.

Sec. 5206. Acknowledgments outside of the United States and its dependencies.—Such court or clerk shall also admit any such writing to record as to any person whose name is signed thereto upon the certificate, under the official seal of any ambassador, minister plenipotentiary, minister resident, charge d'affaires, consul-general, consul, vice-consul, or commercial agent appointed by the government of the United States to any foreign country, or of the proper officer of any court of record of such country, or of the mayor or other chief magistrate of any city, town, or corporation therein, that the said writing was acknowledged by such person or proved as to him by two witnesses before any person having such appointment, or before such court, mayor, or chief magistrate. (Id.)

See notes to preceding section.

Sec. 5207. Acknowledgments on behalf of corporations and others.—Where any such writing purports to have been signed in behalf or by authority of any person or corporation, or in any representative capacity whatsoever, the certificate of the acknowledgment by the person so signing the said writing shall be sufficient for the purposes of this and the three preceding sections, and for the admission of said writing to record as to the person or corporation on whose behalf it is signed, or as to the representative character of the person so signing the same, as the case may be, without expressing that such acknowledgment was in behalf or by authority of such other person or corporation, or was in a representative capacity. In the case of a writing signed in behalf or by authority of any person or corporation, or in any representative capacity, a certificate to the following effect shall be sufficient:

State (or territory or district) or ....., county (or corporation) of ....., to-wit: I, ..., a ..... (here insert the official title of the person certifying the acknowledgment) in and for the State (or territory or district) and county (or corporation) aforesaid, do certify that ..... (here insert the name or names of the persons signing the writing on behalf of the person or corporation, or the name of the person signing the writing in a representative capacity), whose name (or names) is (or are) signed to the writing above, bearing date on the ..... day of ....., has (or have) acknowledged the same before me in my county (or corporation) aforesaid. Given under my hand this ..... day of .....

Where authority is given in section fifty-two hundred and four or fifty-two hundred and five to the clerk of a court in or out of this State, but within the United States, such authority may be exercised by his duly qualified deputy. (Id.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors" note to section 5205.

See notes to section 5205.

Sec. 5208. Deeds of corporations; how to be executed and acknowledged.—All deeds hereafter made by corporations shall be signed by the president, acting president, or vice-president of such corporation, or by such other person as may be authorized by the board of directors of such corporation to sign the same, who shall affix thereto the seal of the corporation, and if such deed is to be recorded, shall acknowledge the same in the manner provided by section fifty-two hundred and seven. (Id.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is intended as an adaptation in part of the act of March 12, 1912 (Acts 1912, p. 273), but may be regarded as substantially new. It was deemed best, instead of authorizing an irregular way of executing deeds by corporations in the future, to prescribe a method by which the deeds may be executed in the future. The validating part of the act has been omitted, as to which omission see section 8 of this Code, and revisors' note.

The "Id." reference at the end of this section should be stricken out.

Sec. 5209. Notaries or other officers who hold stock in companies may take acknowledgments to deeds or other writings which said companies execute, if officers are not otherwise interested.—No acknowledgment heretofore taken to any deed or any writing executed by a company, or for the benefit of a company, shall be held to be invalid by reason of the said acknowledgment having been taken by a notary public or other officer duly authorized to take acknowledgments who, at the time of taking said acknowledgment, was a stockholder, an officer, or both, in the company which executed said deed or writing, or for the benefit of which said deed or writing was executed, but who was not otherwise interested in the property conveyed or disposed of by said deed or writing; and such deed or other writing, and the recordation thereof, shall be valid in all respects as if this section had been in force when it was executed. And hereafter any notary public or other officer duly authorized to take acknowledgments may take the acknowledgment to any deed or other writing executed by a company, or for the benefit of a company, although he may be a stockholder in such company: provided, he is not also at the time such an officer of said company that would have to unite in executing such deed or writing, or is not otherwise interested in the property conveyed or disposed of thereby. (1891-2, p. 233; 1893-4, p. 580; 1902-3-4, pp. 518, 829.)

See Merchants Bank v. Ballou, 98 Va. 112, 32 S. E. 481, in which it was held that section 2501b of Pollard's Code (similar to this section), could not affect rights which were vested at the date of the passage of the act.

Sec. 5210. Requiring notaries to affix to certificates of acknowledgment taken by them upon writings which are admitted to record, the date when their term of office shall expire; women notaries changing name.—Upon every certificate of acknowledgment taken by a notary within this State to any writing there shall be written in, or annexed to, such certificate the words following: "My term of office expires on the ..... day of .....," or words plainly showing when the term of such notary shall expire.

In the case of any woman duly appointed a notary public in this State who shall thereafter legally change her name, by marriage or otherwise, during her term of office as such notary, such notary, after such change of name as aforesaid, when taking acknowledgments or doing other acts as such notary, shall write or have written or printed in, or annexed to, such certificate the words following: "I was commissioned notary as .....," or words plainly showing the name in which such commission as notary was issued to such woman.

Any notary who shall fail to comply with the foregoing provisions of this section shall forfeit not less than five nor more than twenty dollars, but any such failure shall not invalidate the certificate of acknowledgment. (1901-2, p. 147; 1910, p. 119.)

Sec. 5211. Conveyance from husband and wife; effect on right of wife.—When a husband and his wife have signed and delivered a writing purporting to convey any estate, real or personal, such writing, whether admitted to record or not, shall operate to convey from the wife her right of dower in the real estate embraced therein, and pass from her and her representatives all right, title and interest of every nature which at the date of such writing she may have in any estate conveyed thereby as effectually as if she were at the said date an unmarried woman. If the writing be a deed conveying the husband's land, no covenant or warranty therein on behalf of the wife shall operate to bind her any further than to convey her interest in such land, unless it be expressly stated that she enters into such covenant or warranty for the purpose of binding herself personally. (Code 1887, § 2502; 1889-90, p. 193.)

Revisors' Note.—This section makes material changes in the law as it existed before the revision. Formerly, the writing had to be admitted to record "as to the husband as well as the wife" in order to operate as a conveyance on her part (Building Co. v. Fray, 96 Va. 559, 32 S. E. 58); now, the execution and delivery of the writing is sufficient to convey all interest that she has in the property. The last sentence of the former section as amended was not very clear, and as statutory separate estates have been abolished, the revised section puts in another form what seemed to be the intent as to the effect of the wife's uniting in the covenants and warranties in her husband's deed. It will be further observed that the revised section omits contracts to convey. The amendment of 1889-90 inserting the provision about contracts did not make the residue of the section harmonize with the provision about contracts, as it made the contract for a conveyance operate as a conveyance, which could hardly have been intended, unless the terms of the contract had been complied with. Inasmuch as section 5134 makes the contracts of a married woman as obligatory upon her as the contracts of a man, it was deemed unnecessary to retain this provision. The words "or any writing authorizing another to convey, or contract to convey any such estate," have also been stricken out, as this provision is amply taken care of by section 5215. Formerly, the section contained a provision ALLOWING such writing to be admitted to record as to the husband and wife. Under section 5205, et seq., the clerk is to admit to record the writings therein mentioned as to ANY PERSON, which would include, of course, a married woman.

Privy examinations.—Under Code 1849, chapter 121, section 4, Code 1860, chapter 121, section 4, and Code 1873, chapter 117, section 4, it was necessary for the officer taking the acknowledgment to (1) "examine the wife privily and apart from her husband"; (2) the writing must be fully explained to her; (3) she must acknowledge the same as her act, and

(4) declare that she had executed it willingly, and (5) that she does not wish to retract it; (6) such privy examination, acknowledgment, and declaration to be thereupon recorded, etc.

Privy examinations were abolished by the Code of 1887, section 2502, which went into effect May 1, 1888; and by an act approved February 29, 1892 (Acts 1891-2, p. 798), taking effect from its passage, defective certificates of acknowledgments to deeds of married women were cured under certain conditions.

From May 1, 1888, to time of present revision.—See revisors' note above.

Present law.—The present Code makes material changes in the former statute, as to which see revisors' note above.

For former decisions as to acknowledgments by married women, especially as to their examination privily and apart from their husbands, see, as to act of 1748, Harvey v. Borden, 2 Wash. 156; Nelson v. Harwood. 3 Call 393. As to act of 1785, chapter 62, Currie v. Page, 2 Leigh 617; as to act of 1792, Ware v. Cary, 2 Call 263; Langhorne v. Hobson, 4 Leigh 224; Tod v. Baylor, Id. 508; Bryan v. Stump, 8 Grat. 241, 56 Am. Dec. 139. As to 1 Rev. Code, chapter 99, section 15, Sexton v. Pickering, 3 Rand. 468; Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Grat. 111, 50 Am. Dec. 108; Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Grat. 501.

See, generally, Wynn v. Lovthan's Adm'r, 86 Va. 964, 11 S. E. 879; First Nat. Bank v. Paul, 75 Va. 600, 40 Am. Rep. 740; Healy v. Rowan, 5 Grat. 414, 52 Am. Dec. 94; Rorer's Heirs v. Roanoke Nat. As to her not wishing to retract, Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Grat. 501.

And certificate must show that the examination and explanation preceded acknowledgment, etc. Hockman v. McClanahan, 87 Va. 33, 12 S. E. 230, overruled in Geil v. Geil, 101 Va. 773, 45 S. E. 325.

Privy examination, etc., may take place after deed of husband and wife has been first recorded as to husband. Langborne v. Hobson, 4 Leigh 224.

The certificate of a clerk that a deed was acknowledged in court by a husband and wife, and ordered to be recorded, was not sufficient to make it her deed. Healy v. Rowan, 5 Grat. 414, 52 Am. Dec. 94.

Officer cannot contradict certificate.—Evidence of the officers who took the acknowledgment is inadmissible to contradict the facts to which they have certified. Harkins v. Forsyth, 11 Leigh 294, and note thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.; Hairston v. Randolphs, 12 Leigh 459; Carper v. McDowell, 5 Grat. 237, and note thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.; Johnston v. Slater, 11 Grat. 321, and note thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.; Taliaferro v. Pryor, 12 Grat. 286; Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Grat. 515; Price v. Holland, 1 Pat. & H. 299; Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 493; First Nat. Bank v. Paul, Id. 601; Burson v. Andes, 83 Va. 449, 8 S. E. 249; Murrell v. Diggs, 84 Va. 905, 6 S. E. 461, 10 Am. St. Rep. 893; Hockman v. McClanahan, 87 Va. 39, 12 S. E. 230; Hurst v. Leckie, 97 Va. 562, 24 S. E. 464, 75 Am. St. Rep. 798.

Parol evidence is not admissible to prove or disprove the privy examination of a wife, or in any manner affect the certificate of such examination. First Nat. Bank v. Paul, 75 Va. 600.

Deed otherwise void can derive no validity from privy examination, acknowledgment, etc. Deed void for duress, see Countz v. Geiger, 1 Call 190; deed to husband void on account of coverture, Switzer v. Switzer, 26 Grat. 574; void on account of infancy of wife, Thomas v. Gammel, 6 Leigh 9; but if she accepts part of purchase money after she becomes sui juris she will be held to have ratified her contract, Darraugh v. Blackford, 84 Va. 509, 5 S. E. 542.

Deed of partition.—Where a brother and sister jointly owned land, executed a deed of partition, in which their respective wife and husband joined, and under which they have each held in severalty that portion assigned to them in the deed of partition, the deed of partition is valid and binding on the parties, although no acknowledgments of the privy examination of the wives are attached. Bryan v. Stump, 8 Grat. 241, 56 Am. Dec. 139.

Defective deed may be good executory contract.—An acknowledgment to a deed by a married woman on January 15, 1887, which fails to show that she declared that she willingly executed the same, or that she acknowledged said writing to be her act, is void. While such a deed may be invalid to pass the legal title to the land, it may be a good executory contract, enforceable in equity. Clinch River Veneer Co. v. Kurth, 90 Va. 737, 19 S. E. 878 (overruled in Geil v. Geil, 101 Va. 773, 45 S. E. 325). See, also, Virginia Coal & Iron Co. v. Roberson, 88 Va. 116, 13 S. E. 350. See, also, In re Anderson (D. C.), 23 Fed. 488.

A deed defectively executed prior to April 4, 1877, cannot be construed to be a contract charging the property of a married woman, because before that time, during coverture, she could not enter into contracts. Wynn v. Louthan's Adm'r, 86 Va. 946, 11 S. E. 879.

Where under a deed of marriage settlement a wife had a power of appointment in the event that she died without issue, provided she executed the power by a writing under her hand and seal, and where she afterwards united with her husband in a deed by which for valuable consideration she relinquishes her right in the land and dies without issue, held that though she was not privily examined as to her execution of the deed, yet the same being under her hand and seal in writing, as prescribed by the instrument vesting the power in her, she thereby destroyed her power of appointment. Hume v. Hord, 5 Grat. 374.

Mistake of clerk.—Where an acknowledgment of a wife to a deed is made in proper form as prescribed by Code 1873, the failure of the clerk in recording the deed to properly transcribe her acknowledgment does not, as between the parties to the deed, invalidate the deed. Thomas v. Stuart's Ex'r, 91 Va. 694, 2 S. E. 511.

Lost deed.—Where a deed executed by A. and his wife was lost before recordation, and B. executed a deed reconveying the land back to A., in which deed it was recited that the deed from A. and his wife to B. had been lost, and he released, granted, and forever quitclaimed to A. all claim in the land, as though the lost deed had never been executed, held, that the subsequent recordation of the lost deed carried no title; that the title to the land stood in A. and his wife, the same as if the lost deed had never been executed; and that A.'s wife and her children were entitled to that portion of the land that she owned at the time the lost deed was executed. Rorer's Heirs v. Roanoke Nat. Bank, 83 Va. 610, 4 S. E. 820. As to this, see present statute and revisors' note above.

Wife's liability for covenants, &c.—The effect of the amendment to this section, which provided that such "writing shall not operate any further upon the wife or her separate estate by means of any covenant or warranty contained therein, which is not made with reference to her separate estate as a source of credit, or if it relates to her said right of dower, or to any estate or interest conveyed other than her own, is not made with reference to her separate estate as a source of credit," was not the enlargement of the scope of the statute by reason of the married woman's act, but a restriction so as not to affect the separate estate unless the covenants in the deed were made with reference to her separate estate as a source of credit. Land v. Shipp, 98 Va. 284, 33 S. E. 393, 50 L. R. A 560, 6 Va. Law Reg. 158.

This section as amended, applied in Augusta Nat. Bank v. Beard's Ex'r, 100 Va. 687, 42 S. E. 694, citing Justis v. English, 30 Grat. 579.

The effect of the wife's uniting with her husband in the conveyance of his property is simply to relinquish her contingent right of dower in those lands conveyed. Corr v. Porter, 33 Grat. 278. If the wife does not unite with her husband in a deed conveying his land, she is not barred of her dower. Gardner v. Gardner, 98 Va. 525, 36 S. E. 985.

Where a wife unites with her husband in a conveyance to a trustee to secure a debt by the husband to his wife, and subsequently the wife and husband unite in a general warranty deed conveying the same and other property to secure certain debts, the wife, by uniting in the second deed, does not relinquish her lien given under the first deed. Augusta Nat. Bank v. Beard's Ex'r, 100 Va. 687, 42 S. E. 694.

As the law stood in 1893, a deed from a commissioner in which a married woman united for the purpose of conveying her contingent right of dower, but in which her husband did not unite, was not sufficient to convey her contingent right, although the deed was signed and acknowledged by her and admitted to record as to her. And the fact that she has received the commuted value of her contingent dower right did not bar her from a claim against the purchaser after death of husband. The law favors dower, and will not, as a rule, bar it by anything short of the statutory requirements for that purpose. Lewis v. Apperson, 103 Va. 624, 49 S. E. 624. See section 5135.

The married woman's act (section 2286a of Pollard's Code, 1904) providing that a married woman may contract and be contracted with in the same manner as if single, did not by implication repeal Code (1887) 2502, nor was it affected by the repeal of section 2295 of the Code of 1887, relating to liability of separate estates of married women for their contracts. Augusta Nat. Bank v. Beard's Ex'r, 100 Va. 687, 42 S. E. 694. See, also, Dunn v. Stowers, 104 Va. 290, 51 S. E. 366.

For present married women's statutes, see chapter 207.

Generally.—For act validating conveyance of lands made under power of attorney by married woman jointly with her husband, see section 2298b of Pollard's Code (1904).

As to passing title when wife is insane, see section 5346.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 73, sections 4, 6.

Sec. 5212. Where original is lost how copy admitted to record; when copies of certain writings recorded in courts, etc., of West Virginia.—If it be proper for such writing to be admitted to record in the court of another county or corporation, and the same, before being so admitted to record in the court last mentioned, be lost or mislaid, on affidavit of this fact, such court, or the clerk thereof, may admit to record a copy of such writing from the records of another court, certified by its clerk; and the copy so admitted shall have the same effect as if the original had been admitted to record at the time the copy was admitted. And in any case where any such writing shall have been duly admitted to record, before the formation of the State of West Virginia, in any county or corporation now within the limits of that State, and such writing, after diligent search therefor, cannot be found, upon affidavit of that fact by any party in interest, his agent, or attorney, any court of this State, in which or the clerk's office of which the original might be recorded, or the clerk of any such court, may admit to record a copy of such writing from the records of the court of West Virginia, or the clerk's office of such court wherein the same is recorded, duly certified by the clerk thereof, under the seal of the said court; and the admission to record of such copy shall have the same effect as the admission to record of the original. (Code 1887, § 2506.)

Where the records kept in the clerk's office of a court have been destroyed by fire, and a paper purporting to be an official copy of a will recorded therein is certified to by former clerk of the court, and has been admitted to record under Acts February 19, 1840 (see Acts, chapter 55, p. 47), the act of the clerk admitting the paper to record is conclusive as to whether the paper is what it purports to be; and evidence that the paper was not certified by the clerk whose name is signed thereto, but by some one not authorized to make the certificate, is not admissible in a collateral proceeding. Taliaferro v. Pryor, 12 Grat. 277.

Lien on land when Monroe county was a part of Virginia and judgment obtained there and certified to Bath county continued a lien in Bath county although Monroe county was a part of West Virginia. Gatewood's Admr. v. Goode, 23 Grat. 880.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 73, section 8.

Sec. 5213. Writings not duly acknowledged, how copied for preservation.—If any writing which it is lawful for a clerk to admit to record, on proper acknowledgment or proof, has been or shall be lodged in his office, and has remained or shall remain therein six months without being acknowledged or proved, so that it can be duly admitted to record, the clerk shall, for the preservation thereof, when required by any person interested, copy the same in a book separate from those in which writings so admitted are recorded, and keep an index to such book, as in the case of writings duly admitted to record. (Code 1887, § 2508.)

Sec. 5214. Clerks to admit to record rosters of camps of Confederate veterans.—The clerk of the corporation court of any city or the circuit court of any county, when requested so to do by the duly organized camp of Confederate veterans located in said city or county, shall admit to record in the clerk's office of said city or county a full and complete roster of said camp, giving the names of the members of said camp from its beginning, and the company, regiment and battalion or battery to which each member belonged; also to record the name or names of such former residents of said city or county as enlisted or served in the Confederate army or navy in another State or county, or who served in said army or navy and died either in said service or since, stating in each case the rank, company, regiment or other service of such person or persons, which said roster or other list of names shall be duly certified as being correct by the commander of said camp, by direction of the camp, with the seal thereof affixed, duly attested by the adjutant. No fee shall be allowed or paid to the clerk for his services. (1910, p. 392.)

Sec. 5215. Appointment of attorney in fact by married woman; effect of writing executed by such attorney.—A married woman, whether a resident of this State or not, may, in conjunction with her husband, by power of attorney duly executed, acknowledged, and certified, as to each of them, as prescribed in section fifty-two hundred and five or fifty-two hundred and six, appoint an attorney in fact, for her, and in her name, to execute and acknowledge for record, any deed or other writing which she might execute and acknowledge in conjunction with her husband; and every deed or other writing so executed and acknowledged by such attorney in fact (in pursuance of said power of attorney while the same remains in force), shall be valid and effectual, in all respects, to convey the interest and title of such married woman in and to the real estate thereby conveyed, and to bar her right of dower therein. (Code 1887, § 2509.)

Revisors' Note.—This section now conforms to section 5211.

Sec. 5216. Partition, and recovery, of land, and assignment of dower, to be recorded, and indexed.—The clerk of the court wherein there is any partition of, or assignment of dower in, land under any order, or any recovery of land under judgment or decree, shall transmit to the clerk of the court of each county or corporation wherein such land is, or if the land lies within the corporate limits of the city of Richmond, to the clerk of the Chancery Court of the said city, a copy of such order, judgment, or decree, and of such partition or assignment, and of the order confirming the same, and along therewith such description of the land as may appear in the papers of the cause. And the clerk of the court of such county or corporation, or of the said chancery court, as the case may be, shall record the same in his deed book, and index it in the name of the person who had the land before, and also in the name of the person who became entitled under such partition, assignment, or recovery. (Code 1887, § 2510.)

A decree in a suit brought by a judgment creditor against his debtor establishing a lost deed by which land had been conveyed to the debtor, and to enforce his judgment against the land, is a decree for the recovery of lands within this section. Clinchfield Coal Corporation v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

The index is as much a part of the record as the decree itself. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

The more common signification of "recovery" is the final adjudication that the title or right of possession was before acquired, and of right belongs, by virtue of the previous acquisition, to the party in whose favor the decree is made. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

An index of a recovery under this section as follows: "Fleming, Philip and wife v. (Decree) James A. Collier, page No. 19," "Collier James A. from deed P. Fleming, page No. 19," held sufficient under this section. Clinchfield Coal Corp. v. Steinman, 213 Fed. 557.

A decree of partition vests the legal title. See section 5282.

Sec. 5217. How city or town lots laid out; plat.—Hereafter every owner or proprietor of any tract of land who has heretofore subdivided or shall hereafter sub-divide the same into three or more parts for the purpose of laying out any town or city, or any addition thereto, or any part thereof or suburban lots, shall cause a plat of such sub-division with references to known or permanent monuments to be made, which shall accurately describe all the subdivisions of such tracts or parcels of lands, and giving the dimensions and length and breadth thereof and the breadth and courses of all the streets and alleys established therein. Descriptions of lots or parcels of lands in such sub-divisions, according to the number and designation thereof on said plat, contained in conveyances or for the purpose of taxation and copies of such plats or extracts therefrom, properly attested by the clerk in whose office said plats are recorded, shall have the same force and effect as evidence that copies of deeds now have, and shall be deemed good and valid for all intents and purposes. (1887-8, p. 553.)

Revisors' Note.—For an act relating to cities of not less than 60,000 nor more than 110,000 inhabitants, see Acts 1918, p. 765.

Sec. 5218. What plat to contain; acknowledgment; recordation.—Every such plat shall contain a statement to the effect that the above or foregoing sub-division of (here insert a correct description of the land or parcel sub-divided) as appears in this plat is with the free consent and in accordance with the desire of the undersigned owners and proprietors, which shall be signed by the owners and proprietors and shall be duly acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, and when thus executed and acknowledged said plat shall be filed for record and be recorded in the office of the clerk of the proper county or corporation court. (Id.)

Sec. 5219. Effect of recording plat.—The acknowledgment and recording of such plat shall operate to create a public easement or right of passage over such portion of the premises platted as is on such plat set apart for streets or other public use, and shall be equivalent to a deed in fee simple to such portion thereof as is therein dedicated to charitable, religious, or educational purposes; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the persons who set apart such lands for streets and alleys, their heirs and assigns, where otherwise they have the right and power to erect, put down, and maintain gas, water, and electric works, pipes, wires, and fixtures to erect, put down, and maintain the same along or under the portions so set apart. They shall not, however, obstruct or hinder passage over such streets or alleys further than is reasonably necessary while laying down, erecting, or repairing such works, pipes, wires, and fixtures. (Id.; 1889-90, p. 35.)

Extent and effect of dedication.—Purchasers of lots shown on a plat recorded under this section acquire vested easements in all the streets and alleys laid out and designated on the plat and may force dedication thereof. Sipe v. Alley, 117 Va. 819, 86 S. E. 122. Editorial comment, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 547.

When the intention of the owner of land to dedicate it to a public street has been unequivocally manifested and there has been an acceptance by competent authority, the dedication is complete; and when it is complete it is irrevocable. Basic City v. Bell, 114 Va. 157, 76 S. E. 336, 18 Va. L. Reg. 733 and note.

While streets of an incorporated city or town dedicated under this section may thereby become public highways without any acceptance by the public, they do not become county roads until accepted or established as such by the county court. Port Norfolk Land Co. v. Portsmouth St. Ry. Co., 5 Va. Law Reg. 477.

The act from which this, the two preceding and the three following sections were taken cannot be construed to prohibit the creation of new or additional ways or easements not shown on the original plat. The manifest purpose and policy is to prevent a diminution of the public uses and conveniences guaranteed in the original plan of subdivision. Daniel v. Doughty, 120 Va. 853, 92 S. E. 848.

Bridge on property.—Where a plat of lots showing streets, alleys, etc., and a bridge over a river connecting the lots with an adjacent town has been recorded as provided by this section, and lots have been sold with reference to the plat, and purchasers have relied upon the use of the bridge in purchasing, and it has been thrown open to the public the law implies a grant of the bridge as an easement to the property conveyed Oney v. West Buena Vista Land Co., 104 Va. 580, 52 S. E. 343.

Streets and alleys not opened.—Though a plat may be admitted to record and constitute a dedication, yet if it is never acted upon by opening the streets and alleys it would be, so far as the streets and alleys are concerned, inchoate merely and may be abrogated by subsequent events. Chambers v. Roanoke I. Ass'n, 111 Va. 254, 68 S. E. 980.

Fee in streets.—Upon the recordation of a plat in the manner prescribed by this section, the fee in the streets marked thereon remain in the dedicator, and purchasers of abutting lots acquire title to the middle of the street, subject in both cases to a right of passage in the public. Cottrell Real Estate, Ins. & Loan Co. v. Hampton Roads Ry. & Electric Co., 7 Va. Law Reg. 476, Circuit Court of Warwick Co.

Easements and additional burdens.—The primary purpose of a county road being a right of passage, an electric passenger railway, conducted solely for that purpose, uses the highway for a purpose only promotive of the object of its original dedication, and is not an additional burden thereon. Cottrell Real Estate, Ins. & Loan Co. v. Hampton Roads Ry. & Electric Co., 7 Va. Law Reg. 476.

While a local street railroad in such streets is not an additional servitude, a railway through such streets, extending from a neighboring city or town more than twenty miles distant, passing through three counties, having the right to transport freight, passengers, and baggage, must be classed as a commercial railroad, and is an additional servitude on such streets, for which the owner of the fee is entitled to compensation. Port Norfolk Land Co. v. Portsmouth St. Ry. Co., 5 Va. L. Reg. 477.

The mere dedication of certain rights of way marked "street" on a recorded plat will not subject such rights of way to all the easements of streets in cities and towns, unless public necessity requires it. Cottrell Real Estate & Ins. Co. v. Hampton Roads Ry. & Electric Co., 7 Va. Law Reg. 476, Circuit Court of Warwick Co.

A street railroad company has no right to occupy such streets with its tracks solely by virtue of authority in its charter thus to occupy county roads, subject to such conditions, limitations, and restrictions as may be imposed by the county court of the county whose road is used. Port Norfolk Land Co. v. Portsmouth St. Ry. Co., 5 Va. Law Reg. 477.

Repairs to property.—The grantor or dedicator of an easement is generally under no obligation to make repairs. This duty rests upon those who use the easement. Oney v. West Buena Vista Land Co., 104 Va. 580, 52 S. E. 343.

Discontinuance, vacation or abandonment of easement.—The burden of showing a discontinuance, vacation or abandonment of a street which has been dedicated to the public is upon the party who asserts it. Basic City v. Bell, 114 Va. 157, 76 S. E. 336, 18 Va. L. Reg. 733 and note. For discussion of the effect of non-use of a dedicated street, see this case.

When a street has been dedicated the burden of showing an abandonment is upon the party who asserts it. Sipe v. Alley, 117 Va. 819, 86 S. E. 122. Editorial comment, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 547. For what constitutes abandonment, see this case.

The failure of lot owners who are entitled to the use of a bridge as an easement to their lots to keep the bridge in repair for an unreasonable length of time will amount to an abandonment of the easement. Oney v. Buena Vista Land Co., 104 Va. 580, 52 S. E. 343. See this case as to when the users will be given a reasonable time to repair.

Sec. 5220. Alteration and vacation of streets.—Streets and alleys so platted and laid out, or which have been platted or laid out under any plat heretofore recorded, may be altered or vacated in the manner provided by law for the alteration or discontinuance of highways. (1887-8, p. 553.)

Sec. 5221. How plat vacated in whole or in part; enclosing streets, alleys, etc.—Any such plat may be vacated by the proprietors thereof at any time before the sale of any lot therein by a written instrument, declaring the same to be vacated, duly executed, acknowledged or proved and recorded in the same office with the plat to be vacated, and the execution and recording of such writing shall operate to destroy the force and effect of the recording of the plat so vacated and to divest all public rights in the streets, alleys, commons, and public grounds laid out or described in such plat. And in cases where any lots have been sold the plat may be vacated as herein provided by all the owners of lots in such plat joining in the execution of the writing vacating the same.

Any part of a plat may be vacated under the provisions and subject to the conditions of this and the preceding section, if such vacating does not abridge or destroy any of the rights or privileges of other proprietors in said plat; but nothing contained in this section shall authorize the closing or obstructing of any public highways laid out according to law. When any part of a plat shall be vacated as aforesaid the proprietors of the adjacent lots may enclose the streets, alleys, and public grounds adjoining said lots, or make such other disposition of the same as may be provided in the instrument vacating the same, and the title to the same shall be transferred or vest accordingly. (Id.)

Sec. 5222. Clerk to mark plat vacated.—The clerk of the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city in whose office the plats aforesaid are recorded shall write in plain legible letters across that part of said plat so vacated the word "vacated," and also make a reference on the same to the volume and page in which the said instrument of vacation is recorded. (Id.)

Sec. 5223. Power appointing an agent to conduct a mercantile business to be in writing and recorded; a copy to be posted conspicuously in the place of business.—When any person, partnership, or corporation shall appoint an agent to conduct a mercantile business, such agent shall be conclusively presumed to have the right to buy and sell upon a credit and to do any and all acts in the conduct of such business that his principal could do, unless his appointment shall be in writing, duly acknowledged, setting forth fully the restrictions upon his powers, and recorded in the deed book in the clerk's office of the county or corporation in which such business is conducted, and unless a copy of such power be conspicuously posted in the place of business conducted by such agent. (1897-8, p. 104.)

Sec. 5224. If factor, agent, etc., who is a trader, fail to disclose

name of principal or partner, or do business in his own name, property used in such business liable for his debts; exception.—If any person transact business as a trader, with the addition of the words "factor," "agent," "and company," or "and co.," and fail to disclose the name of his principal or partner by a sign in letters easy to be read, placed conspicuously at the house wherein such business is transacted, and also by a notice published for two weeks in a newspaper (if any) printed in the city, town or county wherein the same is transacted; or if any person transact such business in his own name, without any such addition; all the property, stock, and choses in action acquired or used in such business shall, as to the creditors of any such person, be liable for the debts of such person. This section shall not apply to a person transacting such business under a license to him as an auctioneer or commission merchant. (Code 1887, § 2877.)

Knowledge.—Knowledge or want of knowledge on the part of the creditor of the principal does not affect the application of the statute. Hoge v. Turner, 96 Va. 624, 32 S. E. 291, overruling Trevilian v. Powell, 1856, 1 Quarterly Law J. 257. See note upon this case, 4 Va. Law Reg. 847. See, also, discussion 2 Va. Law Reg. 878.

Consignments.—Personal property consigned to trader under unrecorded written contract, or left with him for sale in the course of his business, under verbal instruction from the owner, is "property used in such business," within the meaning of this section, and is liable for the debts of such trader. But personal property stored with such person, with no power of sale, and office furniture rented with the building, are not so liable. Edmunds v. Hobbie Piano Co., 97 Va. 588, 34 S. E. 472. See note upon this case, 5 Va. Law Reg. 632.

Bill of sale.—The second clause of this section is not qualified by section 5194, and the "property, etc., used in such business" is liable for the payment of the trader's debts notwithstanding a bill of sale thereof may be recorded as provided by said section 5194. Partlow v. Lickliter, 100 Va. 631, 42 S. E. 671. The present revision makes statutory this decision. See section 5194 and revisors' note thereunder.

Publication.—A partnership in Richmond employed P. to carry on a business in Lynchburg under the style of "P., Agent for J. S. K.," the name of one of the partners. The provisions of the statute were complied with. In 1850 some of the partners retired, but the firm was continued under different name, new partners being admitted, J. S. K. continuing to be a partner. Held, that no new publication was necessary as to the agency in Lynchburg. Farmers Bank v. Kent, 16 Grat. 257.

Silent partners.—Does not apply to an avowed partnership of two or more persons doing business under a name which shows that it is in fact a partnership, and discloses full names of at least two of the partners. If there are other partners whose names are not thus disclosed, they will be liable as general partners when avowed or discovered. National Bank v. Cringan, 91 Va. 347, 21 S. E. 820.

Married woman.—It seems that a married woman was entitled to have the assets of the concerns in which she was engaged applied to the payment of the debts of those concerns in exoneration of her separate estate, and will not be deprived of that right by any fraud of her husband in trading in his name as agent without disclosing the name of his principal. Penn v. Whitehead, 17 Grat. 503, 94 Am. Dec. 478. But see Hoge v. Turner, 96 Va. 624, 32 S. E. 291.

Burden of proof.—In order to bring this particular case within the statute the burden was on the attacking creditor to prove that M. transacted business as a trader in his own name after sale. Benjamin v. Madden, 94 Va. 71, 26 S. E. 392.

takes title to all the stock in his store, including goods held by him on consignment, to which he did not have title as between himself and consignor. Chesapeake Shoe Co. v. Seldner, 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261.

Sec. 5225. Continuing in force acts establishing Torrens system. —The act entitled "An act to provide for the settlement, registration, transfer, and assurance of titles to land, and to establish courts of land registration, with jurisdiction for said purposes, and to make uniform the laws of the States enacting the same," approved February twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, as amended by an act approved March twentieth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, is continued in force. Sec. 5227. Who may make a will.—Every person not prohibited by the following section may, by will, dispose of any estate to which he shall be entitled, at his death, and which, if not so disposed of, would devolve upon his heirs, personal representative, or next of kin. The power hereby given shall extend to any estate, right, or interest to which the testator may be entitled at his death, notwithstanding he may become so entitled subsequently to the execution of the will. (Code 1887, § 2512.)

Married women.—In West v. West's Ex'rs, 3 Rand. 373, it was decided that a married woman having an equitable separate estate in fee could not dispose of it by will unless the power to make such disposition was expressly conferred by the instrument creating the estate. This case was adhered to until the general revision of 1849, the rule of West v. West was changed so as to allow a married woman to dispose of her separate equitable estate fee by will. This provision was carried without change into the Code of 1887, section 2513. The effect of this was to give the married woman the right to dispose of her equitable separate fee by will, if not expressly or impliedly restricted by the instrument creating the estate. Justis v. English, 30 Grat. 571; 2 Va. Law Reg. 530: Chapman v. Price, 83 Va. 392, 11 S. E. 879; Kiracofe v. Kiracofe, 93 Va. 591, 25 S. E. 601; Andes v. Roler, 98 Va. 622, 37 S. E. 297; Hutchings v. Com. 28, 21 S. E. 669. By Acts 1899-00, p. 753, section 2513 was amended by striking out the provision as to married women. The present revision (see section 5134) makes statutory the decision in Chapman v. Price, above cited.

A married woman dying in 1899 could not by will dispose of property acquired under section 1 of the Smith act (1876-7, p. 333). Coleman v. Wood, 108 Va. 457, 62 S. E. 388. For present liberal provisions, relating to married women, see chapter 207.

After acquired lands.—A will made prior to July 1, 1850 (when Code 1849 took effect), although the testator may have died afterwards, is to be construed in respect to its effect in passing after-acquired lands as the law was prior to the date named. (Raines v. Barker, 13 Grat. 128, 67 Am. Dec. 762); so that in order to pass such after-acquired lands they must appear to be contemplated (Harrison v. Allen, 3 Call 289; Gibson v. Carrell, 13 Grat. 136; 2 Min. [4th Ed.] 1002).

Even though the codicil refers to personal estate only, it may operate as a republication as to realty, so as to pass after-acquired lands. Corr v. Porter, 33 Grat. 278.

Generally.—This section confirms Turpin v. Turpin, 1 Wash. 75.

Under this section, an estate devised by A. to B., who is sui juris, will pass to C. by the will of B., though made in the lifetime of A., provided A. dies without revoking the devise, and B. survives him, and then dies without revoking his will. Thorndike v. Reynolds, 22 Grat. 21, 27.

Right of entry or of action may be devised. Taylor's Devisees v. Rightmire, 8 Leigh 468.

As to when a will is construed to speak, see section 5236.

Sec. 5228. Who may not.—No person of unsound mind, or under the age of twenty-one years, shall be capable of making a will, except that minors eighteen years of age or upwards, may, by will, dispose of personal estate. (Code 1887, § 2513; 1899-00, p. 753.)

A minor between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one years left a will relating to both real and personal property, Held, the will was void and of no effect as to the real property mentioned therein, but valid so far as it disposed of his personal property. Early v. Arnold, 119 Va. 500, 89 S. E. 900.

As to testamentary capacity, see Mercer v. Kelso's Adm'r, 4 Grat. 106; Greer v. Greer, 9 Grat. 330; Young v. Barner, 27 Grat. 96; Chappell v. Trent, 90 Va. 849, 19 S. E. 314.

Sec. 5229. Mode of executing will prescribed.—No will shall be valid unless it be in writing and signed by the testator, or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, in such manner as to make it manifest that the name is intended as a signature; and moreover, unless it be wholly in the handwriting of the testator, the signature shall be made or the will acknowledged by him in the presence of at least two competent witnesses, present at the same time; and such witnesses shall subscribe the will in the presence of the testator, but no form of attestation shall be necessary. If the will be wholly in the handwriting of the testator that fact shall be proved by at least two distinterested witnesses. (Code 1887, § 2514.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new. See 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 405. Attention is also called to a change of language in lines five and six of the text—"unless it be WHOLLY IN THE HANDWRITING of the testator." Formerly, the words "unless it be wholly written by the testator" were used. For objections to the former language, see 2 Va. Law Reg. N. S. 404. See, also, 2 Minor on Real Property, section 1256.

Writing—Intent.—Each and every part must be in writing, and executed in the mode prescribed by statute, and if any part is in parol such part is void and inoperative, in the absence of fraud. Sims v. Sims, 94 Va. 583, 27 S. E. 436, 64 Am. St. Rep. 772; Sprinkle v. Hayworth, 26 Grat. 392. For exception on ground of resulting trust, Sims v. Sims, 94 Va. 583, 27 S. E. 436, 64 Am. St. Rep. 772; Sprinkle v. Hayworth, 26 Grat. 392.

The will may consist of several testamentary papers, executed at different times. Gordon v. Whitlock, 92 Va. 723, 24 S. E. 342; Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat. 358, 373, 60 Am. Dec. 335.

To prove that a will is not holograph, but a forgery, it is competent to introduce evidence, not only that the writing is not that of the alleged testator, but also that it is the writing of some other person. Brown v. Hall, 85 Va. 157, 159, 7 S. E. 182; Tucker v. Calvert, 6 Call 90.

A paper is not to be established as a man's will merely by proving that he intended to make a disposition of his property similar to, or even identically the same with, that contained in the paper. It must satisfactorily appear that he intended the very paper to be his will. Sharp v. Sharp, 2 Leigh 262. See, also, Hocker v. Hocker, 4 Grat. 277; Waller v. Waller, 1 Grat. 454, 42 Am. Dec. 564; Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 439; McBride v. McBride, 26 Grat. 481. To this rule there is one exception, viz., where the draft or notes of a will embody the provisions actually designed by the testator with reference to his property. This, however, is only permitted when the testator is prevented by the act of God from completing the instrument in the form in which he designed it. Even here it is essential that the paper shall contain the final determination of the testator with regard to the disposition of his estate. McBride v. McBride, 26 Grat. 481.

No particular language or form is necessary to constitute a valid will, and the surrounding circumstances are admissible to explain, in a proper case, the intention of the testator; but one may execute a paper with every formality known to the law and by it devise all of his property, but unless he intends that very paper to take effect as a will, it is no will. Early v. Arnold, 119 Va. 500, 89 S. E. 900.

It is not necessary to the validity of a will that it should have a testamentary form. A deed poll, or an indenture, a bond, a marriage settlement, a letter, a promissory note, have been held valid as a will. McBride v. McBride, 26 Grat. 480; Cody v. Conly, 27 Grat. 319. See, also, Gibson v. Gibson, 28 Grat. 44.

Signature.—The name of a testator at the commencement of a holograph will is an equivocal act, and unless it appears affirmatively from something on the face of the paper that it was intended as his signature it is not a sufficient signing under the statute. Ramsey v. Ramsey's Ex'r, 13 Grat. 664; Roy v. Roy's Ex'r, 16 Grat. 418, 84 Am. Dec. 696; Waller v. Waller, 1 Grat. 465, 42 Am. Dec. 564; Warwick v. Warwick, 86 Va. 596, 10 S. E. 843, 6 L. R. A. 775; Perkins v. Jones, 84 Va. 362, 363, 4 S. E. 833, 10 Am. St. Rep. 863. See, also, 3 Lom. Dig. 70, and 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1011; Selden v. Coalter, 2 Va. Cas. 553.

But where a testator made a complete and orderly disposition of his property, ending with the words, "I, W. D., say this is my last will and testament," held sufficient signature. Dinning v. Dinning, 102 Va. 461, 46 S. E. 473.

The statute does not require the signature to be at the foot, but it is still an equivocal circumstance if placed anywhere else. Rep. Revisors 1849, note; Ramsey v. Ramsey's Ex'r, 13 Grat. 666; Waller v. Waller, 1 Grat. 465, 42 Am. Dec. 571.

The signature may be before or after attestation. Rosser v. Franklin, 6 Grat. 1, 52 Am. Dec. 97; Parramore v. Taylor, 11 Grat. 226; Beane v. Yerby, 12 Grat. 239; Green v. Crain, Id. 252.

In holographic wills proof of the handwriting establishes the identity of the paper and the connection of the maker of the will with it. The finality of such will depends upon the signature, which must be made "in such manner as to make it manifest that the name is intended as a signature." Murguiondo v. Nowlan, 115 Va. 160, 78 S. E. 600.

A holograph will to which the testator affixes the initials of his name at the end of the writing is sufficiently signed under this section. Pilcher v. Pilcher, 117 Va. 356, 84 S. E. 667, 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 34.

For note of case as to signature of will where a marginal writing is on the last page, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 849.

Separate sheets of paper.—The will of a testatrix was written on six sheets of paper. When the attesting witnesses were called each one of the sheets, except the last, had already been signed by the testatrix, who, in the presence of the witnesses, affixed her signature to the margin of the last sheet nearly opposite to the end of the will, which had a concluding clause. Held, a sufficient signature. Murguiondo v. Nowlan, 115 Va. 160, 78 S. E. 600.

Attestation by subscribing witnesses.—It is not necessary that each of the attesting witnesses, at some time prior to the signing, should have known that the other was to be an attesting witness and had been requested to act in that capacity. Savage v. Bowen, 103 Va. 541, 49 S. E. 668, 10 Va. L. Reg. 975, and note.

It is not necessary that attesting witnesses should be expressly requested by the testator to act in that capacity, as the request may be implied from surrounding circumstances. Id.

Notwithstanding the case of Savage v. Bowen, supra, it is believed to be best for the attestation clause to state that the witnesses subscribed at the request of the testator and that the clause should be dated. The clause will thus serve to refresh the memory of the witness, and preserve in writing facts to be proven at probate.

Holographic wills.—A holograph will signed and sealed by testator is not vitiated by containing an unsigned attestation clause, as no witnesses are necessary. Waller v. Waller, 1 Grat. 454, 42 Am. Dec. 564; Perkins v. Jones, 84 Va. 358, 4 S. E. 833, 10 Am. St. Rep. 863.

Competent witnesses.—On this subject see revisors' notes to sections 5244 and 6209. For the former law see Bruce v. Shuler, 108 Va. 670, 62 S. E. 973, and note, 14 Va. L. Reg. 800, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1013, 4 Va. L. Reg. 327.

Present at the same time.—The two witnesses must be present together at the same time when the testator acknowledges his signature or the instrument to be his act, but it is not necessary that the attesting witnesses to a will shall subscribe their names in the presence of each other. Parramore v. Taylor, 11 Grat. 220; Beane v. Yerby, 12 Grat. 239, 244; Green v. Crain, Id. 257. The statute overrules Dudleys v. Dudleys, 3 Leigh 436.

Signature made or will acknowledged in the presence of witnesses.—The witnesses need not have seen the testator sign; it is sufficient to acknowledge the will or the signature to them. Dudleys v. Dudleys, 3 Leigh 436; Rosser v. Franklin, 6 Grat. 25, 52 Am. Dec. 97; Beane v. Yerby, 12 Grat. 239; 3 Lom. Dig. 43.

Signature by the witnesses.—Witnesses may sign before the testator signs. Parramore v. Taylor, 11 Grat. 246; Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 439; Rosser v. Franklin, 6 Grat. 1, 52 Am. Dec. 97; Sturdivant v. Birchett, 10 Grat. 67. They may adopt a signature already on the instrument diverso intuitu. Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 439. Witnesses may attest the will by making mark. Jesse v. Parker, 6 Grat. 57; Sturdivant v. Birchett, 10 Grat. 76.

Attesting witness need not subscribe his own name, nor even make his mark; the validity of the attestation depends on the signing of the name of the witness by his authority and in his presence, not on his doing some manual act in connection with his signature. Jesse v. Parker, 6 Grat. 57.

Number of witnesses.—Some States require three witnesses to a will and at least one State requires a will to be under seal (see Nevada General Statutes [Bailey & Hammond] section 3002). Inasmuch therefore as the testator at the time of his death may own property in another State, it is well to have will under seal and attested by three witnesses.

Witnesses to subscribe to the will in presence of testator.—The idea of presence requires the attestation to occur within the range of the testator's vision, and within a reasonable degree of proximity, in case of one who has the faculty of sight, and with consciousness on the part of the testator of the presence of the witnesses, presence meaning conscious presence. Baldwin v. Baldwin's Ex'r, 81 Va. 410, 413, 59 Am. Rep. 669. Tucker v. Sandidge, 85 Va. 570, 8 S. E. 650.

To be in the same room with the testator when the witness subscribes the will is prima facie in his presence, which, however, may be repelled by proof that the testator was so situated relatively to the witness that he could not see the act of attestation, and could not without help place himself in a position to see. If he could see, or could without help place himself in a position to see, it is immaterial whether he really did see or not. Neil v. Neil, 1 Leigh 6; Sturdivant v. Birchett, 10 Grat. 67, 86; Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 439; Cheatham v. Hatcher, 30 Grat. 56, 32 Am. Rep. 650; Young v. Barner, 27 Grat. 106; Baldwin v. Baldwin's Ex'r, 81 Va. 405, 59 Am. Rep. 669.

An attestation not made in the same room is prima facie not an attestation in his presence, but this also may be repelled by showing that, from the position actually occupied by the testator, he could plainly see the act of attestation. Nock v. Nock's Ex'rs, 10 Grat. 106; Young v. Barner, 27 Grat. 105; Moore v. Moore's Ex'r, 8 Grat. 307. See, also, Sturdivant v. Birchett. 10 Grat. 67; also, 6 Va. Law Reg. 193, 16 Va. L. Reg. 915.

For note on attestation in the presence of testator, see 12 Va. Law Reg. 327, 332.

No form of attestation necessary.—This section does not require the attestation to be in any particular form or in any particular place on the paper; yet the witnesses, unless the will be holograph, must subscribe as witnesses, though the word "witnesses" need not appear. Peake v. Jenkins, 80 Va. 293.

Proof of will.—While a will must be attested by two competent witnesses, its due execution may be proven by one—by whom, however, must be proven all the facts required by statute and among them that it was attested by two competent witnesses. Bruce v. Shuler, 108 Va. 670, 62 S. E. 973. See also note 14 Va. Law Reg. 800. For present law on the subject of the competency of attesting witnesses, see revisors' notes to sections 5244 and 6209.

The statute prescribes the number of witnesses by whom the will shall be attested, but not the number by whom it shall be proved. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 107, and cases there cited as how attestation shall be proved. Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 460; Jesse v. Parker's Adm'rs, 6 Grat. 64, 52 Am. Dec. 102; Johnson v. Dunn, 6 Grat. 627; Lamberts v. Cooper's Ex'r, 29 Grat. 67; Cheatham v. Hatcher, 30 Grat. 60, 32 Am. Rep. 650.

A will must be subscribed, but need not be proved by two witnesses. Cheatham v. Hatcher, 30 Grat. 56, 32 Am. Rep. 650; Jesse v. Parker's Adm'rs, 6 Grat. 57, 52 Am. Dec. 102; Lamberts v. Cooper's Ex'r, 29 Grat. 67; Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 460; Johnson v. Dunn, 6 Grat. 627.

For sufficient formal proof of a will, although the attesting witnesses have forgotten the transaction, see Clarke v. Dunnavant, 10 Leigh 13; Young v. Barner, 27 Grat. 106.

For attestation by two witnesses, one of whom was not a creditable witness, see Johnson v. Dunn, 6 Grat. 625.

Generally.—In the matter of executing a will, the statutory requirements must be complied with, but substance must not be sacrificed to form, nor the end of the law to the means used for attaining it. Savage v. Brown, 103 Va. 540, 49 S. E. 668.

Sec. 5230. When execution of appointment by will valid.—No appointment made by will, in exercise of any power, shall be valid unless the same be so executed that it would be valid for the disposition of the property to which the power applies, if it belonged to the testator; and every will so executed, except the will of a married woman, shall be a valid execution of a power of appointment by will, notwithstanding the instrument creating the power expressly require that a will made in execution of such power shall be executed with some additional or other form of execution or solemnity. (Code 1887, § 2515.)

The effect of this statute is that, in all appointments to be made by will, the will must be executed as the statute of wills, and not as the power may require, except the will of a married woman, which must conform, it seems, to the power, if that requires additional witnesses or ceremonies, but must always conform to the statute. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 819.

The donee of a power under the will may exercise the power of appointment by will in the lifetime of the testator. Thorndike v. Reynolds, 22 Grat. 21, 27. And if the donee of the power dies in the lifetime of the donor, having executed the power, it is valid to pass the estate at the death of the donor. Id. 28.

The power to "nominate by last will and testament or power of appointment in presence of two witnesses" is duly executed by a holograph will, the phrase, "in the presence of two witnesses," qualifying merely power of appointment. Shearman's Adm'r v. Hicks, 14 Grat. 96, 100.

A marriage settlement gives a power to the wife to dispose of the settled estate by gift or devise, under her hand and seal, attested by two or more witnesses. Held, that a testamentary paper signed by the wife, with a scroll annexed to her name, attested by the requisite number of witnesses, though the scroll is not recognized in the body of the instrument, is a valid will under the power, and that such a paper, duly executed, referring to and recognizing another testamentary paper, previously executed according to the statute of wills, but not according to the power, will constitute the paper recognized a valid testamentary paper. Pollock v. Glassell, 2 Grat. 439.

As to the wife's equitable separate estate, it is now settled that the expression of one mode of alienation by the wife is not the exclusion of all others, unless there be negative words excluding her power of alienation in any other manner than that mentioned in the settlements (Price v. Planters Nat. Bank, 92 Va. 468, 23 S. E. 887, 32 L. R. A. 214), thus settling "a much vexed question." See Williamson v. Beckham, 8 Leigh 20; Lee v. Bank of United States, 9 Leigh 200; Woodson v. Perkins, 5 Grat. 345, 351; McChesney v. Brown's Heirs, 25 Grat. 393; Justis v. English, 30 Grat. 565, 571; Bain v. Buff's Adm'r, 76 Va. 371; Frank v. Lilienfield, 33 Grat. 377, 295; Christian v. Keen, 80 Va. 369, 374; Green v. Claiborne, 83 Va. 386; Burks' Separate Estate, 34-39.

Where husband devised his estate to his wife with power to dispose of it by will, she cannot execute the power by a conveyance during her lifetime, the execution of a deed being not a defective attempt to execute the power which the court can aid and remedy, but in plain disregard of it. Gaskins v. Finks, 90 Va. 384, 19 S. E. 166.

Sec. 5231. Will of personal estate of soldiers, etc., and non-residents.—Notwithstanding the two preceding sections, a soldier being in actual military service, or a mariner or seaman being at sea, may dispose of his personal estate as he might heretofore have done; and the will of a person domiciled out of this State at the time of his death, shall be valid as to personal property in this State, if it be executed according to the law of the State or country in which he was so domiciled. (Code 1887, § 2516.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 5.

Sec. 5232. Revocation of wills by marriage.—Every will made by a man or woman shall be revoked by his or her marriage, except a will made in exercise of a power of appointment, when the estate thereby appointed would not, in default of such appointment, pass to his or her heir, personal representative, or next of kin. (Code 1887, § 2517.)

The conflict of decisions in Wilcox v. Rootes, 1 Wash. 140, and Yerby v. Yerby, 3 Call 334, and evils resulting therefrom, led to this statute, which declares that marriage alone, save in the excepted cases, shall be an absolute revocation. Phaup v. Wooldridge, 14 Grat. 332, 337. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 99; 2 Min (4th Ed.) 1027.

A mistaken view of a testatrix that her marriage subsequent to the execution of her will was not a revocation thereof does not estop her heirs from claiming that the will was revoked under this section. Hale v. Hale, 90 Va. 728, 19 S. E. 739.

Cited but not construed, Wood v. Tredway, 111 Va. 526, 69 S. E. 445; Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note; Avant v. Cook, 118 Va. 1, 86 S. E. 903.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 6.

Sec. 5233. Revocation of wills generally.—No will or codicil, or any part thereof, shall be revoked, unless under the preceding section, or by a subsequent will or codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which a will is required to be executed, or by the testator, or some person in his presence and by his direction, cutting, tearing, burning, obliterating, canceling, or destroying the same, or the signature thereto, with the intent to revoke. (Code 1887, § 2518.)

Will or codicil or writing, declaring intention to revoke.—Formerly a will of personal estate could be revoked by a subsequent writing, not written or subscribed by the testator, but prepared by his directions. Glasscock v. Smith, 1 Call 479; Bates v. Holman, 3 Hen. & M. 502.

Erroneous advice causing testatrix to make a codicil revoking a legacy would not avoid the revocation. The mistake which induces the revocation must appear on the face of the will. Skipwith v. Cabell's Ex'r, 19 Grat. 758.

Digitized by Google

A clause of revocation contained in an invalid will is not valid. Barksdale v. Barksdale, 12 Leigh 535.

The mere fact of making a subsequent testamentary paper does not work a revocation of a prior one, in the absence of express revocation, unless the two are incapable of standing together. Gordon v. Whitlock, 92 Va. 728, 24 S. E. 342.

Cancelling, destroying, &c.—Where a testator destroys a codicil, which itself revoked a will, and directed a will in another person's custody to be destroyed, but no act towards it was done, it was no revocation of the will. Malone's Adm'r v. Hobbs, 1 Rob. 346, 39 Am. Dec. 263. And so when a blind man orders his will to be destroyed, and believes that it was destroyed accordingly, but no act is done towards its destruction, it is not a revocation. The act and intention must concur. Boyd v. Cook, 3 Leigh 32. See, also, Malone's Adm'r v. Hobbs, 1 Rob. 346, 39 Am. Dec. 263; Bates v. Holman, 3 Hen. & M. 502.

The codicil being prima facie dependent on the will, the cancellation of the will is an implied revocation of the codicil; but the converse is not true, for a will is not dependent on a codicil. Malone's Adm'r v. Hobbs, 1 Rob. 366, 39 Am. Dec. 263.

Certain words cancelled.—Where a paper offered for probate has been proved to have been properly executed as a will, but certain words in it have been cancelled since its execution, the whole paper, including the cancelled words, is to be treated by the probate court as the last will of the deceased, in the absence of evidence that the cancellation was the act of the deceased. or that the instrument was found after the testator's death among his repositories in such mutilated condition. Harris v. Wyatt, 113 Va. 254, 74 S. E. 189.

Presumption upon failure to find will.—Where it appears that a person has made a will which cannot be found after his death, the prima facie presumption is that it was destroyed by the testator animo revocandi; and this is especially true where the will is traced in his possession, and never traced out of it, and the burden of showing some other cause of its disappearance is on those who seek to establish it. Shacklett v. Roller, 97 Va. 639, 34 S. E. 492; Appling v. Eades' Adm'r, 1 Grat. 286; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1024; 7 Va. Law Reg. 455.

And if there be duplicates in the hands of different persons, and that copy in the custody of the testator be not found after his death, all are revoked, for all constitute but one will. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1024; Appling v. Eades' Adm'r, 1 Grat. 286.

Generally.—Evidence that a subsequent will had been made and stolen from testator, without any proof of its contents, and proof of his declaration after the will was stolen that he would die intestate and leave his estate to be distributed according to the statute, is not sufficient evidence of a revocation of a former will. Hylton v. Hylton, 1 Grat. 161.

The death of the husband, as a revocation of the will of his wife, validly made in his lifetime, is not embraced in this enumeration, and must therefore be excluded; and therefore it cannot be necessary to re-execute and republish it after his death to preserve its validity. Thorndike v. Reynolds, 22 Grat. 33.

Sec. 5234. Revival of wills after revocation.—No will or codicil, or any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall, after being revoked, be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and then only to the extent to which an intention to revive the same is shown. (Code 1887, § 2519.)

No particular words are necessary to be used in a codicil to effect a republication of the will to which it is annexed. It is only necessary that it shall appear that the testator referred to and considered the paper his will at the time he executed the codicil. Corr v. Porter, 33 Grat. 278. Republication of a will has a twofold effect: First, to give the will all the effect of a will made at the time of its republication; and, secondly, to set up and establish a will that has been revoked. Corr v. Porter, 33 Grat. 278; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1029.

Where a will which revokes a former will is destroyed by the testator animo revocandi, with intention that the former will shall be his will, but he does not re-execute it, or make a will reviving it, though he retains it uncanceled, it is not revived by the destruction of the last will. Rudisill's Ex'r v. Rodes, 29 Grat. 147. See 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 552.

Sec. 5235. Effect of subsequent conveyance on will.—No conveyance or other act, subsequent to the execution of a will, shall, unless it be an act by which the will is revoked as aforesaid, prevent its operation, with respect to such interest in the estate comprised in the will, as the testator may have power to dispose of by will at the time of his death. (Code 1887, § 2520.)

A will is not revoked by a subsequent deed disposing of all the testator's property. Collup v. Smith, 89 Va. 258, 15 S. E. 584; King's Ex'rs v. Sheffey's Adm'r, 8 Leigh 614, 619; Hughes v. Hughes' Ex'r, 2 Munf. 209.

For a deed of trust which was not a revocation of a previous will, see Hughes v. Hughes' Ex'r, 2 Munf. 209.

The proceeds of lands, directed by testator to be sold, is devised; subsequently the testator aliens by deed the same land; the alienation of the property revoked the devise of its proceeds. King's Ex'rs v. Sheffey's Adm'r, 8 Leigh 614; Collup v. Smith, 89 Va. 258, 15 S. E. 584. See, also, Hughes v. Hughes' Ex'r, 2 Munf. 209.

See article, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 641.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 9.

Sec. 5236. Will to be construed as if made just before testator's death.—A will shall be construed, with reference to the real and personal estate comprised in it, to speak and take effect as if it had been executed immediately before the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Code 1887, § 2521.)

After-acquired lands.—Previous to 1850 (when this section became operative), it was the rule that a will made after 1787 might pass after-acquired lands, if it evidently contemplated such property, but not otherwise (Harrison v. Allen, 3 Call 289 [2d Ed. 251]); and that the addition of a codicil to a will was not sufficient to operate as a devise of lands purchased by the testator between the date of the will and the date of the codicil, there being no words in the codicil to indicate such to be the intention of the testator (Kendall's Ex'r v. Kendall, 5 Munf. 272). Now, by the statute, the will applies to such property, real and personal, as it is fairly applicable to at the death of the testator. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1001, 1002.

A will made prior to July 1, 1850, though testator died afterwards, is to be construed in respect to passing after-acquired lands, as the law was prior to that date. Raines v. Barker, 13 Grat. 128, 67 Am. Dec. 762; Gibson v. Carrell, 13 Grat. 136.

The obvious effect of this section was to make wills speak with respect to real estate, as they had done under the common law with respect to personal estate, as of the death of the testator. Kent v. Kent, 106 Va. 199, 55 S. E. 565.

Effect of death of legatee before will was written.—The legacy does not lapse or become void, but, under sections 5236 and 5238, passes to the issue of the legatee who survive the testator, unless a different disposition thereof is made or required by the will. Wildberger v. Cheek's Ex'rs, 94 Va. 517, 27 S. E. 441.

Effect of codicil.—The effect of a republication is to bring down the will to the date of the codicil, so that both instruments are to be considered as speaking at the same date and taking effect at the same time. Corr v. Porter, 33 Grat. 278; Hatcher v. Hatcher, 80 Va. 169.

Intention.—When a will may be construed to speak and take effect is, in a qualified sense, a question of intention. A clause in a will granting to testator's wife certain property, with power to make a will in the lifetime of testator, is intended to speak and take effect immediately. Thorndike v. Reynolds, 22 Grat. 21, 27.

Property acquired from person living when will is made.—The will of a wife though made in the lifetime of her husband, disposing of all her estate, passes that acquired from her husband as well as that personally owned by her. Bowe v. Bowe's Administrators, 118 Va. 28, 86 S. E. 856.

W. Va. decisions.—For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 10.

Sec. 5237. When advancement deemed satisfaction of devise or bequest.—A provision for or advancement to any person shall be deemed a satisfaction in whole or in part of a devise or bequest to such person, contained in a previous will, if it would be so deemed in case the devisee or legatee were the child of the testator; and whether he be a child or not, it shall be so deemed in all cases in which it shall appear from parol or other evidence to have been so intended. (Code 1887, § 2522.)

An advancement is a gift by anticipation of the whole or part of what it is supposed a child will be entitled to on the death of the giver intestate. Darne's Ex'r v. Lloyd, 82 Va. 859, 5 S. E. 87, 3 Am. St. Rep. 123; Chinn v. Murray, 4 Grat. 397.

Legacy adeemed by marriage contract. Hansbrough's Ex'rs v. Hooe, 12 Leigh 316, 37 Am. Dec. 659.

Where a legacy is given to a child, and afterwards an advancement is made to that child, such advancement shall be taken as a satisfaction of the legacy, but this presumption may be rebutted by evidence. Jones v. Mason, 5 Rand. 577, 16 Am. Dec. 761; Strother's Adm'r v. Mitchell's Ex'r, 80 Va. 149; Hansbrough's Ex'rs v. Hooe, 12 Leigh 316, 322, 37 Am. Dec. 659. But when the gift is before the making of the will, and the will does not charge it as an advancement, the court cannot so charge it in settling the estate. Strother v. Mitchell, supra.

Devises of real estate are revoked by subsequent advances. Hansbrough's Ex'rs v. Hooe, 12 Leigh 320, 37 Am. Dec. 659.

Although the property advanced and the property bequeathed are not ejusdem generis, the one may be a satisfaction of the other, if the intention of the testator be apparent that such should be the effect. Kelly v. Kelly's Ex'rs, 6 Rand. 196, 18 Am. Dec. 710; Jones v. Mason, 5 Rand. 577, 16 Am. Dec. 761.

On advancements, see section 5278; also note, Taliaferro v. Pryor, 12 Grat. 277, Va. Rep. Ann.

Sec. 5238. When issue of devisee or legatee to take estate.—If a devisee or legatee die before the testator, leaving issue who survive the testator, such issue shall take the estate devised or bequeathed, as the devisee or legatee would have done if he had survived the testator, unless a different disposition thereof be made or required by the will. This rule shall also apply to a devise or bequest to several jointly, one or more of whom die in the life time of the testator. (Code 1887, § 2523.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new. See in this connection, section 5159 and revisors' note; Lockhart v. Vandyke, 97 Va. 357, 33 S. E. 613.

A legacy to the wife who survives the testator will not sink into the residuum of the estate, but will pass to her issue. Wood v. Sampson's Ex'r, 25 Grat. 845.

Under sections 5236 and 5238, a legacy bequeathed to a legatee who was dead at the time the will was written does not lapse or become void, but passes to the issue of the legatee who survives the testator, unless a different disposition thereof is made or required by the will. Wildberger v. Cheek's Ex'rs, 94 Va. 517, 27 S. E. 441.

This section, as it read in Code of 1887, was not applicable where, independently of it, no lapse could occur, and therefore could be invoked in case of a devise to two as joint tenants, for by the force and effect of the joint taking the share of the party deceased would survive to the survivor or survivors. Lockhart v. Vandyke, 97 Va. 357, 361, 33 S. E. 613; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 249; also Pendleton v. Hoomes, Wythe 94, 5 Va. Law Reg. 309. Note that the last sentence of the present section overturns this ruling.

Quaere, does the issue take directly from the testator, as statutory substitute for their ancestor, and consequently free from his debts or liabilities? It would seem so. See 5 Va. Law Reg. 321, 327, where the history of this section is thoroughly discussed.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 12.

Sec. 5239. How devises that fail, etc., to pass.—Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, such real estate or interest therein as shall be comprised in any devise in such will, which shall fail or be void, or otherwise incapable of taking effect, shall be included in the residuary devise (if any) contained in such will. (Code 1887, § 2524.)

Before the enactment of this statute, it was held that specific or pecuniary legacies, which fail by lapse or otherwise, fall into the residuum, and go to the residuary legatees; but that when a residuary devise or bequest fails from any cause, the subject of it, to the extent of such failure, goes to the heirs or distributees at law. Frazier v. Frazier's Ex'rs, 2 Leigh 642, 649. And since this statute was enacted the same doctrine has been laid down in a dictum of Judge Moncure in Stone's Ex'r v. Nicholson, 27 Grat. 8. See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1010.

The residuary legatee is entitled to whatever may fall into the residue after making the will, (1) by invalid or ineffectual disposition, (2) by lapse, (3) by the incapacity of the specific or general legatee to take, or (4) where property acquired subsequent to the will is thereby undisposed of. Gallagher v. Rowan's Adm'r, 86 Va. 823, 826.

The object of this section was to put real estate and personal property on the same footing in respect to void and lapsed legacies. Kent v. Kent, 106 Va. 199, 55 S. E. 565.

See note of Cottrell v. Mathews, 120 Va. 847, 92 S. E. 808, under section 6098.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 13.

Sec. 5240. Devises in general terms; how construed.—A devise of the land of the testator, or of the land of the testator, in any place, or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, and any other general devise which would describe a leasehold estate, if the testator had no freehold estate which could be described by it, shall be construed to include his leasehold estates, or any of them to which such description shall extend, as well as freehold estates, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Code 1887, § 2525.)

The common-law rule was that when a testator, having both freehold and leasehold lands in a particular place, devises "all his lands" in that place, only the freehold lands would pass, although if he had no freehold lands there leasehold lands would pass. Aylett's Ex'r v. Aylett, 1 Wash. 300; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1003. The statute qualifies this rule.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 14.

Sec. 5241. Extent, and operation of devises and bequests.—A devise or bequest shall extend to any real or personal estate (as the case may be) which the testator has power to appoint as he may think proper and to which it would apply if the estate were his own property, and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Code 1887, § 2526.)

The testatrix being empowered to appoint the property as she chose, a residuary clause in her will operates, by force of this section, as an execution of the power, a contrary intention not appearing by the will. Under this section, where it is not intended to execute a general power the intention to exclude the power should be stated on the face of the will. Machir v. Funk, 90 Va. 287, 18 S. E. 197.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 15.

Sec. 5242. Provision for pretermitted children where no child living when will made.—If any person die leaving a child, or his wife with child which shall be born alive, and leaving a will made when such person had no child living, wherein any child he might have is not provided for or mentioned, such will, except so far as it provides for the payment of the debts of the testator, shall be construed as if the devises and bequests therein had been limited to take effect, in the event that the child shall die under the age of twenty-one years, unmarried, and without issue. (Code 1887, § 2527.)

The words "devise" and "bequest" in this section were intended to embrace any and all dispositions of the property made in the will which affect or change in any way the title of the pretermitted child to that portion of the estate to which it was entitled under the general law, independently of the will, and covers the case of an alienation under a power of sale for reinvestment given in the will, as fully as the direct devise of the same property in the terms of the will. Wood v. Tredway, 111 Va. 526, 69 S. E. 445.

All the provisions of the will except those relating to the payment of debts or the appointment of an executor become inoperative during the child's minority and finally void when he arrives at the age of 21 years or marries. If, however, he dies under age, unmarried and without issue, all of the provisions of the will become operative and effective. Wood v. Tredway, 111 Va. 526, 69 S. E. 445.

Sec. 5243. Provision, where child living when will made.—If a will be made when a testator has a child living, and a child be born afterwards, such after-born child, or any descendant of his, if not provided for by any settlement, and neither provided for nor expressly excluded by the will, but only pretermitted, shall succeed to such portion of the testator's estate as he would have been entitled to if the testator had died intestate; towards raising which portion the devisees and legatees shall, out of what is devised and bequeathed to them, contribute ratably, either in kind or in money, as a court of equity, in the particular case, may deem most proper. But if any such after-born child, or descendant, die under the age of twenty-one years, unmarried, and without issue, his portion of the estate, or so much thereof as may remain unexpended in his support and education, shall revert to the person to whom it was given by the will. (Code 1887, § 2528.)

Any provision for a child which shows that he has not been forgotten is sufficient to prevent the application of the statute. Allison v. Allison's Ex'rs, 101 Va. 537, 44 S. E. 904, 63 L. R. A. 920.

The rule in Yerby v. Yerby, 3 Call 334, is changed by this statute.

The statute was first enacted December 5, 1794, and is not applicable to the case of a testator who made his will and died prior to that date. Savage v. Mears, 2 Rob. 570; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1028.

Sec. 5244. Creditors also competent.—If a will charging any estate with debts be attested by a creditor, or the wife or husband of a creditor whose debt is so charged, such creditor shall notwithstanding be admitted a witness for or against the will. (Code 1887, § 2530.)

Revisors' Note.—Section 2529 of the Code of 1887 was on the subject of the competency of devisees and legatees, their wives or husbands, as attesting witnesses to wills. This section, which was construed in Bruce v. Shuler, 108 Va. 670, 62 S. E. 973, has been omitted and thereby repealed, as a result of which the competency of attesting witnesses to wills is now governed by section 6208, this section and the following section. The exceptions to the rule that interest does not disqualify no longer exist, and section 3346 of the Code of 1887 has been omitted and thereby repealed. See revisors' note to section 6209.

As is stated in the revisors' note above, section 2529 of the Code of 1887 has been repealed. On that subject see Martz's Ex. v. Martz's Heirs, 25 Grat. 363; 2 Min. 1014, 1015, 4 Va. L. Reg. 327, 329; Bruce v. Shuler, 108 Va. 670, 62 S. E. 973, 14 Va. L. Reg. 800.

being an executor of a will, be incompetent as a witness for or against the will. (Code 1887, § 2531.)

Sec. 5246. On what wills preceding sections of this chapter to operate; when re-executed wills deemed to be made.—The preceding sections of this chapter shall not extend to any will made before the first day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty, but the validity and effect of such will shall be determined by the laws in force on the day before the first day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty, in like manner as if those laws, so far as they relate to the subject, were herein enacted in place of such sections. Every will re-executed or republished, or revived by any codicil, shall, for the purposes of this chapter, be deemed to have been made at the time at which the same shall be so re-executed, re-published, or revived. (Code 1887, § 2532.)

In Raines v. Barker, 13 Grat. 128, 67 Am. Dec. 762, the will was construed under the law as it was previous to 1st July, 1850.

Sec. 5247. Jurisdiction of probate of wills.—The circuit and corporation courts of the Commonwealth, and the clerks of the said circuit courts, shall have jurisdiction of the probate of wills according to the following rules—that is to say: In the county or corporation wherein the decedent has a mansion house or known place of residence; if he has no such house or place of residence, then in a county or corporation wherein any real estate lies that is devised or owned by the decedent; and if there be no such real estate, then in the county or corporation wherein he dies or a county or corporation wherein he has estate: provided, however, that in the city of Richmond the Chancery Court of said city shall have such jurisdiction. (Code 1887, § 2533; 1887-8, p. 16; 1893-4, p. 898; 1902-3-4, p. 673; 1904, p. 206.)

Revisors' Note.—The part of this section held unconstitutional in McCurdy v. Smith, 107 Va. 757, 60 S. E. 78, has been stricken out.

Probate jurisdiction is also conferred on the law and chancery courts of the cities of Norfolk and Roanoke by sections 5935 and 5947, respectively.

THE JURISDICTION of a court of probate is not to ascertain and enforce rights of property, but to establish, preserve and perpetuate an important muniment of title. Tyson v. Scott, 116 Va. 243, 81 S. E. 57.

Effect of Judgment of Probate Court.—A court of probate occupies the place of a jury as to the fact, and ought to find all proper inferences from the facts proved. Smith v. Jones, 6 Rand. 36. Its judgment is a judgment in rem. Until reversed, it binds not only the immediate parties to the proceeding, but all other persons (though infants at the time) and all courts. Coalter's Ex'r v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18; Wills v. Spraggins, 3 Grat. 555; Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat. 358, 60 Am. Dec. 335; Ballow v. Hudson, 13 Grat. 682; Connolly v. Connolly, 32 Grat. 664; Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321; Hutcheson v. Priddy, 12 Grat. 85. Thus Ex parte Barker, 2 Leigh 719, is directly overruled. See Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat. 378. See, also, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1042; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 103, 110, 112.

In regard to grants of administration, the general principle is that a judgment of a court of general jurisdiction over the subject is conclusive until it is avoided or expires by its own limitation, and this although the facts of the particular case were not such as to give the court jurisdiction over that case. Fisher v. Bassett, 9 Leigh 119, 33 Am. Dec. 227; Burnley's Representatives v. Duke, 2 Rob. 102; Ballow v. Hudson, 13 Grat. 681; Andrews v. Avory, 14 Grat. 229, 73 Am. Dec. 355 (footnote Va. Rep. Ann.); Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321.

The sentence of a court of probate of competent jurisdiction admitting a will to probate cannot be denied in any collateral proceeding touching the will. Its validity can only be tested by resorting to the means provided by law for that specific purpose. Avant v. Cook, 118 Va. 1, 86 S. E. 903.

As to when and by whom suit may be brought to impeach or establish will when probate was ex parte, see section 5259.

Situs of Personal Estate.—Demands against the Commonwealth belong to the county or corporation wherein is the seat of government. Com. v. Hudgin, 2 Leigh 248. Promissory notes, bills of exchange, and all simple contract debts belong to the county or corporation where the debtor resides. Fisher v. Bassett, 9 Leigh 119, 33 Am. Dec. 227. Specialties generally belong where they happen to be at decedent's death; and if not then in the State, they are believed to belong where the debtor resides. Ex parte Barker, 2 Leigh 719; Fisher v. Bassett, 9 Leigh 119, 33 Am. Dec. 227; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 104; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1033.

Practice.—It is the practice in Virginia in ex parte probate of wills for witnesses to be asked whether the testator was of sound mind at the time of the execution of the wil. This would seem unnecessary in view of Hopkins v. Wampler, 108 Va. 705, 62 S. E. 926. It would seem that even if witnesses should disclaim any knowledge as to the soundness of the testator's mind, yet the will would have to be admitted to probate, because of the presumption of sanity. But if the courts are to continue to ask the witnesses as to the sanity of the testator, would it not be well to have the attestation clause, where one is used, recite the fact that the testator's mind was sound in the opinion of the witnesses, thereby preserving in writing the facts necessary to be proven at probate?

Generally.—A will devising lands in this State may be admitted to probate in this State, although it may have been declared void in another State. Rice v. Jones, 4 Call 89.

Sec. 5248. Appointment of curator; when made; his duties.—Such court or clerk may appoint a curator of the estate of a decedent during a contest about his will, or during the infancy, or in the absence of an executor, or until administration of the estate be granted, taking from him bond in a reasonable penalty. The curator shall take care that the estate is not wasted before the qualification of an executor or administrator, or before such estate shall lawfully come into possession of such executor or administrator. He may demand, sue for, recover, and receive all debts due to the decedent, and all his other personal estate, and likewise may lease or receive the rents and profits of any real estate whereof the decedent or testator may have died seized or possessed. He shall pay debts, so far as such payment may not affect the priority in the order of payment prescribed by law, and may be sued in like manner as an executor or administrator; and upon the qualification of an executor or administrator shall account with him for and pay and deliver to him such estate as he has in his hands or may be liable for. (Code 1887, § 2534; 1902-3-4, p. 674.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "lying within the limits of the county or corporation from the court of which said curator may have received his appointment," formerly appearing at the end of the next to the last sentence, have been omitted.

It was formerly held that a curator of a decedent's estate is not liable to suit of the decedent's creditors in chancery. Wynn's Ex'rs v. Wynn's Adm'rs, 8 Leigh 264; Wilson's Curator v. Shelton's Adm'r, 9 Leigh 342. But by this statute a curator may be sued in like manner as an executor or administrator.

The administrator de bonis non may maintain the suit against the curator and his sureties under the statute. Helsley v. Craig's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 716.

An order of a court of chancery appointing a receiver of an estate pending litigation over the will will be treated as an appointment of a curator under this section, when it appears that the appointment was made after notice, upon a bill supported by affidavit, the allegations of which are not denied by pleadings, affidavit or otherwise. McCurdy v. Smith, 107 Va. 757, 60 S. E. 78.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 23.

Sec. 5249. Probate of wills, the appointment of appraisers of the estates of decedents, and the appointment and qualification of personal representatives, and curators, by the clerks of circuit courts. —The clerk of any circuit court may apoint appraisers of estates of decedents, admit wills to probate, appoint, and qualify executors, administrators and curators of decedents, and require and take from them the necessary bonds in the same manner and with like effect as the court could do if in session. Such powers and duties may be exercised and discharged as well during the sessions of the court as at other times.

Such clerk shall keep an order book, in which shall be entered all orders made by him respecting the subjects aforesaid. Any person interested may, within one year after the entering of such an order, appeal therefrom as a matter of right, upon giving bond as provided by law, to the court whose clerk has made the order. Upon application being made for such appeal, the said clerk shall enter forthwith in his order book an order allowing such appeal, and docket the same as a preferred cause for trial at the next term of the court. The said court, at any term, shall hear and determine the matter as though it had been presented to the said court in the first instance, and shall cause a copy of the order on the order book of the court embracing its final action to be copied by the clerk into his order book. At any time after such appeal is allowed the said court, or the judge thereof in vacation, may make any such order for the protection of the parties interested or for the protection or preservation of any property involved as might have been made had the matter been originally presented to the court, or as may seem needful. (1902-3-4, p. 386; 1904, p. 205.)

Revisors' Note.—So much of this section as was held unconstitutional in McCurdy v. Smith, 107 Va. 757, 60 S. E. 78, has been omitted. As the section stood before the revision, it authorized clerks to appoint committees. This provision no longer appears in the section.

Effect of clerk's judgment.—Under this section the clerk may admit a will to probate or reject it and, in either event, his sentence is a judgment in rem whose validity can be drawn in question only by appeal in the manner and within the time prescribed by this section. No bill to impeach the will lay under section 2544 of the Code of 1887. Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note; Ramsey v. Dodd, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 315. Section 2544 of the Code of 1887 is section 5259 of this Code, with important changes, as to which see revisors' note to section 5259.

Until reversed, the judgment of a clerk under this section binds, not only the immediate parties to the proceedings, but all other persons (though infants at the time), and all courts. Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note; Ramsey v. Dodd, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 315.

Appeals from Clerk.—On an appeal from the clerk, under this section, the court takes jurisdiction and hears and determines "the matter as though it had been presented to the court in the first instance." And all appropriate remedies provided by law with respect to the probate of wills by courts may then be called into activity, and all rights and reservations which pertain to such case are preserved. Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note; Ramsey v. Dodd, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 315.

The right of appeal from the order of a clerk admitting a will to probate under this section is more in the nature of an appeal than a writ of error. Tyson v. Scott, 116 Va. 243, 81 S. E. 57; editorial on this case, 20 Va. L. Reg. 70.

Generally.—Where parties to probate proceedings under this section, instead of appealing under this section, brought suit under section 2544 of the Code of 1887 (5259 of this Code) to impeach the will, and such suit was dismissed, an appeal afterwards taken under this section was not a "new suit" within the meaning of section 5826. Tyson v. Scott, 116 Va. 243, 81 S. E. 57.

See 18 Va. L. Reg. 707.

See notes to sections 5247, 5259.

Section 2701 provides that deputies may perform duties of clerk unless expressly forbidden by law.

Sec. 5250. How production of will compelled.—Any such court, on being informed that a person has in his custody the will of a testator, may summon him, and by proper process compel him to produce the same. (Code 1887, § 2535.)

This section was intended to afford an ancillary means of facilitating the probate of wills, and furnishes no authority to a court to require a legatee under a will, which no one is seeking to have probated, to transfer the possession thereof to its clerk merely for its safekeeping. In re Nicholas' Will, 116 Va. 949, 83 S. E. 368, 20 Va. L. Reg. 707.

As to punishment for destroying or concealing a will, see section 4458.

Sec. 5251. Probate of copy of will proved without the State; to what extent admitted to probate.—Where a will relative to an estate within this State has been proved without the same, an authenticated copy thereof, and the certificate of probate thereof may be offered for probate in this State. When such copy is so offered, the court or the clerk thereof to which it is offered shall presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the will was duly executed and admitted to probate as a will of personalty in the State or country of the testator's domicile, and shall admit such copy to probate as a will of personalty in this State. And if it appear from such copy that the will was proved in the foreign court of probate to have been so executed as to be a valid will of lands in this State by the law thereof, such copy may be admitted to probate as a will of real estate. The probate of any such copy of a will before any such clerk shall have the same legal operation and effect as if such copy had been admitted to probate by said court. (Code 1887, § 2536; 1906, p. 62.)

In Ex parte Povall, 3 Leigh 816, the court, construing the former statute (1 Rev. Code 1819, p. 378), said: It is the settled construction of the statute that when the authenticated copy is produced, if it shows that the will has been so proved in a foreign court as that if proved in like manner by witnesses here it could only be admitted as a will of personalty, it shall be so admitted here; but if the evidence taken in a foreign court be such that if taken in this court it would be sufficient to establish it as a will of lands, it shall be admitted to probate here also as a will of lands.

The construction of a former statute in Ex parte Povall, 3 Leigh 816, is approved in the present statute. The basis of the statute is the principle of universal public law that in the case of personal property the lex domicilii governs the will, while in the case of real property lex loci rei sitae governs. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1040. See, also, Burnley's Adm'r v. Duke, 1 Rand. 108.

The fact of the due authentication of the copy is determined by its admission to probate, and this determination is conclusive on all persons and all courts until reversed in some appropriate proceeding. It cannot be collaterally assailed. Bryan v. Nash, 110 Va. 329, 66 S. E. 69.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 25.

Sec. 5252. When deposition of witness may be taken and read on probate of will.—When any will, or authenticated copy thereof, is offered for probate, and a witness attesting the same resides out of this State, or though in this State is confined in another county or corporation under legal process, or is unable from sickness, age or any other cause, to attend before the court or clerk where the same is offered, the same may be proved by the deposition of the subscribing witness or witnesses, which shall be taken and certified as depositions are taken in other cases, except that no notice need be given of the time and place of taking the same, unless it be in a case in which the probate is opposed by some person who has made himself a party; and the proof so given shall have the same effect as if it had been given before such court or clerk. For the purpose of making such proof, the party offering such will or copy shall be permitted to withdraw temporarily the original thereof upon leaving an attested copy with such court or clerk. (Code 1887, § 2537.)

Revisors' Note.—This section has been so changed as to apply to cases before the clerk, as well as before the court, in order to make the county court had decided the case upon its merits and that its judgment was conclusive on the question until reversed.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 77, section 31.

Sec. 5259. Motion for probate may be ex parte; when and by whom suit may be brought in such case, to impeach or establish will.—Any court having jurisdiction of the probate of wills under section fifty-two hundred and forty-seven may, however, without summoning any party, proceed to probate and admit the will to record, or reject the same. After a sentence or order under this section or under section fifty-two hundred and forty-nine, a person interested, who was not a party to the proceeding, may proceed by bill in equity to impeach or establish the will, on which bill a trial by jury shall be ordered to ascertain whether any, and if any, how much of what was so offered for probate, be the will of the decedent. The court may also, if it deem proper, require all testamentary papers of the same decedent to be produced, and direct the jury to ascertain whether any, or if there be more than one, which of the papers produced, or how much of what was so produced, be the will of the decedent. If the sentence or order be made by the court in the exercise either of its original jurisdiction or on appeal from the clerk, such bill shall be filed within two years from the date of such order made by the court. If no appeal be taken from a sentence or order made by the clerk under section fifty-two hundred and forty-nine, the bill shall be filed within two years from the date of such order or sentence by the clerk. If no such bill be filed within that time, the sentence or order shall be forever binding. No bill shall be filed under this section except in the court in which, or in the clerk's office of which, the will was admitted to probate. (Code 1887, § 2544.)

Revisors' Note.—This section changes the rule announced in Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327. It will be observed that the appeal of right under section 5249 from the action of the clerk must be taken within one year from the entry of the order by the clerk, but that the bill in equity under this section (issue devisavit vel non) may be filed within two years from the date of the order made by the court, whether in the exercise of its original jurisdiction or on appeal from the clerk, and that if no appeal is taken from the action of the clerk within one year, then the bill may be filed within two years from the date of such order or sentence by the clerk.

Formerly, under this section, the issue was limited to the ascertainment of "whether any, and if any, how much of what was SO OFFERED FOR PROBATE, be the will of the decedent." The third sentence of the revised section, therefore, is substantially new (see section 5257), and is broad enough to comprehend not only all testamentary papers admitted to probate in the court, but all testamentary papers of the testator. See 2 Va. Law Reg. (N. S.) 437.

The last sentence is new.

Effect of Probate.—The sentence of a court of probate of competent jurisdiction, admitting a will to probate, is conclusive evidence of the due making thereof, and cannot be denied in any collateral proceeding touching the will, and its validity can be called into question only in the mode pointed out by the statute, upon an issue of devisavit vel non. Norvell v. Lessueur, 33 Grat. 222; Robinson v. Allen, 11 Grat. 785; Vaughan v. Green, 1 Leigh 287; Wills v. Spraggins, 3 Grat. 555; Parker's Ex'rs v. Brown's Ex'rs, 6 Grat. 554; Coalter's Ex'r v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18; Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat. 358, 60 Am. Dec. 335; Fisher v. Bassett, 9 Leigh 119, 33 Am. Dec. 227; Burnley's Representatives v. Duke, 2 Rob. 102. See Bagwell v. Elliott, 2 Rand. 190; West v. West's Ex'rs, 3 Rand. 373, 386; Ballow v. Hudson, 13 Grat. 672.

Powers of the Court.—And the court can only exercise the special and limited powers conferred upon it by the statute; it can only ascertain by a jury whether the paper is or is not the will of the decedent; it cannot make any order respecting his estate, and a decree appointing a receiver to take charge of the estate is ultra vires and void. Kirby v. Kirby, 84 Va. 627; Coalter's Ex'r v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18; Hartman v. Strickler, 82 Va. 233; Lamberts v. Cooper's Ex'r, 29 Grat. 61; Connolly v. Connolly, 32 Grat. 657; Malone's Adm'r v. Hobbs, 1 Rob. 366, 39 Am. Dec. 263.

Under this section the court can only ascertain whether the paper or papers is or are the last will and testament of the deceased. No other relief can be had. Harris v. Wyatt, 113 Va. 254, 74 S. E. 189.

Trial by jury.—Upon the trial of an issue devisavit vel non, the mode of proceeding upon the trial is substantially the same as upon the trial of common-law actions. Lamberts v. Cooper's Ex'r, 29 Grat. 66; Coalter's Ex'r v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18, 85; Malone's Adm'r v. Hobbs, 1 Rob. 346, 389, 39 Am. Dec. 263; Hartman v. Strickler, 82 Va. 225.

The language of this section "a trial by jury shall be ordered" only means a jury trial accompanied by all the incidents and modes of procedure attendant upon such a proceeding. The word "shall" does not prevent a waiver of a trial by jury, but is to be construed in the sense of "may." A demurrer to the evidence is not an invasion of the province of the jury on such trial. Meade v. Meade, 111 Va. 451, 69 S. E. 330; see 16 Va. Law Reg. 695 for annotation of this case.

Proceeding.—The word "proceeding" refers to the entire proceeding including the order admitting the will to probate or rejecting it, and one who had previous to such order withdrawn as a party therefrom is not concluded thereby. Dillard v. Dillard's Ex'r, 78 Va. 208.

Court.—The word "court," as formerly employed in this section, was not intended to include the clerk. Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note; Ramsey v. Dodd, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 315.

Parties interested.—Under section 5242 (as to pretermitted children) in the case of an adopted child dying under age of twenty-one years, unmarried and without issue, both legatees and next of kin have interest within the meaning of this section. Bell v. Jones (corporation court of Lynchburg), 9 Va. Law Reg. 1070.

The objection upon the merits of a paper offered for probate is conclusively binding upon the legatee, though he was an infant at the time and not party to the proceeding. Wills v. Spraggins, 3 Grat. 555. But see section 5260, and note.

The Issue.—Where a bill states a case which, if true, avoids the whole paper which had been probated as the will of the decedent, and answer accepts the issue thus tendered, and undertakes to maintain the will in its entirety, the issue is not erroneous for the reason that it was not so framed as to establish a part of the paper, as it was not intended by this section to make hard and fast the exact terms in which the issue should be framed. Rowland v. Rowland, 104 Va. 673, 52 S. E. 366.

Plaintiff and Defendant.—The party sustaining the will is the plaintiff, and entitled to the opening and closing of the case before the jury, and the party contesting the will is the defendant; and this, though contestant may propose to admit on the record a prima facie case in favor of the will. Coalter v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18.

The Limitation.—And after the lapse of the time prescribed, the probate cannot be called in question, how erroneous soever the sentence may be. Nalle's Representatives v. Fenwick, 4 Rand. 585; Street's Heirs v. Street, 11 Leigh 498; Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat. 358, 60 Am. Dec. 335:

Robinson v. Allen, 11 Grat. 785; Parker's Ex'rs v. Brown's Ex'rs, 6 Grat. 554; Norvell v. Lessueur, 33 Grat. 224.

Generally.—As this section read in Code of 1887, it was held that no bill lay under this section, to impeach a will admitted to probate by the clerk under section 2639a of Pollard's Code (1904). Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327; Ramsey v. Dodd, 114 Va. 295, 76 S. E. 315, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note. These rulings are overturned by the section as amended by the present revision.

Formerly, a bill might have been filed in the county court in chancery to impeach a will previously admitted to record in the district (or circuit) court, as a court of probate. Ford v. Gardner, 1 Hen. & M. 72.

Sec. 5260. Saving in favor of infants and non-residents.—The two preceding sections are subject to this proviso: that any person interested who, at the time of the sentence or order, is under the age of twenty-one years, or of unsound mind, may file a bill in equity to impeach or establish the will within one year after he becomes of age, or is restored to sanity, as the case may be, and any person interested, who at that time resides out of this State, or shall have been proceeded against by order of publication, may, unless he actually appeared as a party, or was personally summoned, file such bill within two years after such sentence or order. (Code 1887, § 2545.)

Revisors' Note.—The saving in favor of persons of unsound mind is new.

Where one interested was an infant at the time of such decree, and was not a party to the proceeding nor represented therein, and new and material evidence has since been discovered, he may file a bill of review to set the decree aside, even though it has been affirmed in the Court of Appeals. Connolly v. Connolly, 32 Grat. 664; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 110, 112.

For the rule as to infants prior to the statute, see Wells v. Spraggins, 3 Grat. 555.

Cited but not construed in Saunders v. Link, 114 Va. 285, 76 S. E. 327, 18 Va. L. Reg. 683 and note.

Sec. 5261. What may be admitted as evidence on trial by jury.—The record of what is proved or deposed in court by witnesses on the motion to admit a will to record, and any depositions lawfully taken out of court, on such motion, of witnesses who cannot be produced at a trial afterwards before a jury, may, on such trial, be admitted as evidence, to have such weight as the jury shall think it deserves. (Code 1887, § 2546.)

An executor claiming no interest as devisee or legatee under the will, and not having acted in such a way as to subject him to a decree for costs, was a competent witness beween parties claiming the estate he represented. Coalter v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18.

Sec. 5262. Wills to be recorded; provision for recording copies; effect of recordation; clerk to index wills.—Every will or authenticated copy admitted to probate by any court or clerk of any circuit court shall be recorded by the clerk, and remain in the clerk's office, except during such time as the same may be carried to another court under a subpoena duces tecum. A duly certified copy of such will, or of any authenticated copy so admitted to record, may be recorded in any county or city, wherein there is any estate, real or personal, devised or bequeathed by such will.

It shall be the duty of the personal representative of the testator to cause a duly certified copy of any will or of any authenticated copy so admitted to record, to be recorded in any county or city wherein there is any real estate of which the testator died seized, or which is devised by his will.

Every will, or such a duly certified copy as is mentioned in this section, when duly recorded shall have the effect of notice to all persons of any devise or disposal by the will of real estate situated in a county or city in which such will or copy is so recorded.

It shall be the duty of every clerk on recording any will, or such a copy as is mentioned in this section, to index the same as required by law. (Code 1887, § 2547; 1897-8, p. 492; 1902-3-4, p. 674.)

Revisors' Note.—The last two paragraphs of this section are new.

Sec. 5263. To protect the title of a bona fide purchaser of real estate for value from the heir-at-law of a descedent against a devise of the said real estate without notice to such purchaser.—The title of a bona fide purchaser without notice for valuable consideration from the heir-at-law of a person who has died heretofore, or who may die hereafter, having title to any real estate of inheritance in this Commonwealth, shall not be affected by a devise of such real estate made by the decedent, unless within one year after the testator's death the will devising the same, or if such will has been probated without this State, an authenticated copy thereof and the certificate of probate shall be filed for probate before the court or clerk having jurisdiction for that purpose, and shall afterwards be admitted to probate and recorded in the proper court or clerk's office as a will of real estate; provided that if any devisee under such will, is at the time of the testator's death an infant, or insane, the limitation created by this section shall not affect such infant, or insane person, until after the expiration of one year from the removal of his or her disability. (1914, p. 511; 1916, p. 509.)

Revisors' Note.—This section reduces the limitation from two years to one year. The parts of the act of 1916 which have served their purposes have been omitted.

CHAPTER 213.

Descents and Distributions.

Sec.
5264. Course of descents generally.
5265. How collaterals of half-blood inherit.
5266. When parties take per stirpes, and when per capita.
5267. When alienage of ancestor not to bar.
5268. When bastards take; when children of former slaves take.
5269. When marriage legitimates children.
5270. Issue legitimate, though marriage null.
5271. How posthumous children take.
5272. Descents from infants in certain cases.
5273. Distribution of personal estate.
5274. When homicide to bar acquisition of estate.
5275. Right of State, if no other distributee.
5276. When and how widow must renounce benefit of will; effect thereof.
5277. Rights of husband and wife barred by adultery.
5278. In division of estate of intestate, advancements to be brought into hotchpot.

Sec. 5264. Course of descents generally.—When any person having title to any real estate of inheritance shall die intestate as to such estate, it shall descend and pass in parcenary to such of his kindred, male and female, as are not alien enemies, in the following course:

First, To his children and their descendants;

Second, If there be no child, nor the descendant of any child, then to his father;

Third, If there be no father, then to his mother, brothers, and sisters, and their descendants.

Fourth, If there be no mother, nor brother, nor sister, nor any descendant of either, then one moiety shall go to the paternal, the other to the maternal kindred, in the following course:

Fifth, First to the grandfather;

Sixth, If none, then to the grandmother, uncles, and aunts, on the same side, and their descendants;

Seventh, If none such, then to the great grandfathers, or great grandfather, if there be but one;

Eighth, If none, then to the great grandmothers, or great grandmother, if there be but one, and the brothers and sisters of the grandfathers and grandmothers, and their descendants;

Ninth, And so on, in other cases, without end, passing to the nearest lineal male ancestors, and for want of them, to the nearest lineal female ancestors, in the same degree, and the descendants of such male and female ancestors.

Tenth, If there be no father, mother, brother, or sister, nor any descendant of either, nor any paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the maternal kindred; and if there be no maternal kindred, the whole shall go to the paternal kindred. If there be neither maternal nor paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the husband or wife of the intestate; or if the husband or wife be dead, to his or her kindred, in the like course as if such husband or wife had survived the intestate and died entitled to the estate. (Code 1887, § 2548.)

The law of descents as originally prepared was the work of Thomas Jefferson. It has been modified in a few respects since then. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 537, 542, 543. This statute wholly abrogates the common law of descents, and provides for every case which can happen. Browne v. Turberville, 2 Call 390; Templeman v. Steptoe, 1 Munf. 339; Davis v. Rowe, 6 Rand. 363; Garland v. Harrison, 8 Leigh 371; Stone v. Keeling, 5 Call 144. The statute is to be interpreted according to the analogies of the statute of distribution of a decedent's personal property and of the civil law, from which the statute as well as the statute of distribution was in most particulars taken. Davis v. Rowe, 6 Rand. 363.

For analysis of the chapter, see 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 540 et seq.

By this section two general courses of descent are provided, the first commencing with the children of the intestate and their descendants, and ending with his mother, brothers and sisters, and their descendants; and the second beginning with the grandfather, and ending with the husband or wife of his or her kindred. Moore v. Conner, 2 Va. Dec. 62, 20 S. E. 926.

This section prescribes the course of descents generally, and in all cases reference must first be had to this section to determine to which class it belongs. The other sections (5265, 5266, etc.) are but explanatory of how the estate shall be partitioned under the proper class when discovered, especially when some of those entitled to take are descendants of deceased members of the class, or some of the class are collaterals of the half blood. Moore v. Conner, 2 Va. Dec. 65, 20 S. E. 936.

"Title to any real estate of inheritance" embraces all estates of intestate, whether in possession or resting in title, whether present or reversionary. Medley v. Medley, 81 Va. 265, 274.

A vested remainder inherited under first subsection by the father. Waring v. Waring, 96 Va. 641, 643, 32 S. E. 150.

Mother, nieces and nephews inherit intestate's estate under third subsection. Moore v. Conner, 2 Va. Dec. 56, 20 S. E. 936.

A case governed by fourth subsection, one moiety going to the paternal, the other to the maternal kindred. Browne v. Turberville, 2 Call 390.

Wife's claim under tenth subsection defeated because there were paternal kindred. Hannon v. Hounihan, 85 Va. 439, 12 S. E. 157.

Sec. 5265. How collaterals of half blood inherit.—Collaterals of the half blood shall inherit only half so much as those of the whole blood; but if all the collaterals be of the half blood, the ascending kindred, if any, shall have double portions. (Code 1887, § 2549.)

Brothers of bastard half blood to him.—The brothers of a bastard, whether they be legitimate or illegitimate, are of the half blood to him, and when they come to the succession with the mother are entitled to half portions. Garland v. Harrison, 8 Leigh 368, 379; Hepburn v. Dundas, 13 Grat. 223.

Applications of the statute.—An uncle of the whole blood, three children of another uncle (deceased) of the whole blood, and an uncle of the half blood, being all the maternal kindred, were entitled, under section 5264, subsection 4, to a moiety of the intestate's estate, which was allotted as follows: Two-fifths to the uncle of the whole blood, two-fifths to the three cousins, and one-fifth to the uncle of the half blood. Browne v. Turberville, 2 Call 390.

The heirs of an intestate, under section 5264, subsection 3, were his mother, two sisters of the whole blood, and a brother of the half blood. The mother took two-sevenths, each of the sisters took two-sevenths, and the brother of half blood one-seventh. Blunt v. Gee, 5 Call 481.

The mother of the intestate, four nephews and nieces of the half blood, children of three brothers of the half blood, came into the inheritance. The nephews and nieces took per stirpes three-fifths, and the mother, being entitled to a double portion, took two-fifths. Moore v. Conner, 2 Va. Dec. 56, 20 S. E. 936.

For comments on this section see 14 Va. Law Reg. 795.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 78, section 2.

Sec. 5266. When parties take per stirpes, and when per capita.—When the children of the intestate, or his mother, brothers, and sisters, or his grandmother, uncles, and aunts, or any of his female lineal ancestors living, with the children of his deceased lineal ancestors, male and female, in the same degree, come into the partition, they shall take per capita or by persons; and where, a part of them being dead and a part living, the issue of those dead have right to partition, such issue shall take per stirpes or by stocks, that is to say, the shares of their deceased parents; but whenever those entitled to partition are all in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, they shall take per capita or by persons. (Code 1887, § 2550.)

This statute may be paraphrased thus: If the heirs are all in the same degree of relationship to the decedent, they take per capita or by persons (equally); if in unequal degree, the nearest take per capita, while the more remote take per stirpes, the shares of their deceased ancestors who are in the degree of the nearest. Davis v. Rowe, 6 Rand. 355; Ball v. Ball, 27 Grat. 326; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 543.

B. dies intestate, leaving as heirs five children of her deceased son, S., six children of her deceased son W., and a grandchild of W., the only child of a deceased daughter of W. B.'s real estate is to be divided into twelve equal parts, of which the five children of her son S., the six children of her son W., and the grandchild of W., representing her deceased mother, are each to take a part. Ball v. Ball, 27 Grat. 325.

Where an intestate left surviving no father and no children or descendants, but left a mother and four nieces and nephew of the half blood, the nephews and nieces take per stirpes, and not per capita. Moore v. Conner, 2 Va. Dec. 56, 20 S. E. 936.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 78, section 3.

Sec. 5267. When alienage of ancestor not to bar.—In making title by descent, it shall be no bar to a party that any ancestor (whether living or dead), through whom he derives his descent from the intestate, is or hath been an alien. (Code 1887, § 2551.)

This section removes the bar of alienage through collateral as well as lineal kindred. Jackson v. Sanders, 2 Leigh 109; Garland v. Harrison, 8 Leigh 374; Hannon v. Hounihan, 85 Va. 429, 12 S. E. 157.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 78, section 4.

Sec. 5268. When bastards take; when children of former slaves take.—Bastards shall be capable of inheriting and transmitting inheritance on the part of their mother as if lawfully begotten. And the children of parents, one or both of whom were slaves at and during the period of cohabitation, and who were recognized by the father as his children, and whose mother was recognized by such father as his wife, and was cohabited with as such, and their descendants, shall be as capable of inheriting any estate whereof such father may have died seized or possessed, or to which he was entitled, as though such children had been born in lawful wedlock. (Code 1887, § 2552; 1902-3-4, p. 664.)

The bastard is not restricted to an inheritance from the mother, or through the mother in the direct line, but he may take an inheritance on the part of the mother from the collateral line. Garland v. Harrison, 8 Leigh 382; Hepburn v. Dundas, 13 Grat. 223.

In whatever capacity a legitimate son of the mother would have to inherit or transmit inheritance, the same attaches to a bastard, as to inheritance and transmission of inheritance on the part of the mother. The word "transmit" in the statute means transmit "through" and "from." Therefore a mother is capable of inheriting from her illegitimate son, and so are his illegitimate brothers. Garland v. Harrison, 8 Leigh 382, 394; Hepburn v. Dundas, 13 Grat. 223.

Upon a devise to a daughter for life, and at her death to be equally divided among her children, an illegitimate child of the daughter will take with her legitimate children. Bennett v. Toler, 15 Grat. 588, 78 Am. Dec. 638. See, also, Thomason v. Anderson, 4 Leigh 118; 5 Va. Law Reg. 111; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 447.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 78, section 5.

Sec. 5269. When marriage legitimates children.—If a man, having had a child or children by a woman, shall afterwards intermarry with her, such child or children, or their descendants, if recognized by him before or after the marriage, shall be deemed legitimate. (Code 1887, § 2553.)

An illegitimate child born before 1st of January, 1787 (when this statute went into effect), of parents who intermarried also before that period, and who was recognized by the father before that period, was legitimated and entitled to an equal distribution of the father's unbequeathed estate with his other children born after marriage. Rice v. Efford, 3 Hen. & M. 225; Sleigh v. Strider, 5 Call 439. See, also, Bennett v. Toler, 15 Grat. 623, 78 Am. Dec. 638.

A child who died before the marriage of the parents leaving a legitimate child is, upon the marriage of the parents and recognition by the father, legitimated, so that the child will take as heir to the father. Ash v. Way's Adm'rs, 2 Grat. 203.

Neither this section nor the next applies to or legitimates the offspring of a cohabitation in this State between a white person and a negro, when the parents subsequently celebrate a ceremony of marriage outside of this State, in some place where marriage between such persons is lawful. Greenhow v. James' Ex'r, 80 Va. 636, 56 Am. Rep. 603.

This section does not apply where a marriage is not celebrated. Eldred v. Eldred, 97 Va. 630, 34 S. E. 477.

A child born out of wedlock but subsequently legitimated by this section does not meet the common law requirement that the child must be born alive during coverture to entitle the husband to curtesy. Bond v. Bond, 16 Va. Law Reg. 411 (circuit court Pulaski county), and discussion thereof, 16 Va. Law Reg. 709 and 801. See note of this case under section 5134.

Sec. 5270. Issue legitimate, though marriage null.—The issue of marriages deemed null in law, or dissolved by a court, shall nevertheless be legitimate. (Code 1887, § 2554.)

The issue of a woman by a second marriage, which took place during the lifetime of the first husband and before the first marriage is dissolved, are legitimate, and will inherit from their father. Stones v. Keeling, 5 Call 143; Heckert v. Hile's Adm'r, 90 Va. 390, 18 S. E. 481. The case of Greenhow v. James' Ex'r, 80 Va. 636, 56 Am. Rep. 603, cited in notes to section 5269, and below, held not to overrule Stones v. Keeling, supra. Heckert v. Hile's Adm'r, supra.

This section and section 5269 are cited by Judge Cardwell in Offield v. Davis, 100 Va. 250, 263, 40 S. E. 910, as an argument for the invalidity of a common-law marriage in Virginia.

This section does not legitimate issue of cohabitation between a white person and a negro who afterwards marry out of State where such marriages are lawful. Greenhow v. James' Ex'or, 80 Va. 636, 56 Am. Rep. 603.

Sec. 5271. How posthumous children take.—Any person in ventre sa mere, who may be born in ten months after the death of the intestate, shall be capable of taking by inheritance in the same manner as if he were in being at the time of such death. (Code 1887, § 2555.)

Sec. 5272. Descents from infants in certain cases.—If an infant die without issue, having title to real estate derived by gift, devise, or descent from one of his parents, the whole of it shall descend and pass to his kindred on the side of that parent from whom it was so derived, if any such kindred be living at the death of the infant. If there be none such, then it shall descend and pass to his kindred on the side of the other parent. (Code 1887, § 2556.)

Blood of first purchaser.—This section is the only instance where the statute pays any attention to the blood of the first purchaser. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 542; Medley v. Medley, 81 Va. 272.

Exclusion of one parent.—This statute excludes the mother when the inheritance was derived from the father, if there is living any brother or sister of such infant, or any brother or sister of the father, or any lineal descendant of either of them; and vice versa, where the inheritance was derived from the mother. Browne v. Turberville, 2 Call 398; Tomlinson v. Dillard, 3 Call 106 (93).

A married infant died leaving a child. Her real estate descended to the child subject to curtesy of husband, and upon the death of the child (an infant) passed to the heirs of the child on the part of the mother. Vaughan v. Jones, 23 Grat. 444, 458.

Infant's property derived directly by devise from the father goes at death of infant to her sisters to the exclusion of the mother. Davis v. Christian, 15 Grat. 11, 32.

Real estate must be derived directly from parent.—The real estate of an infant will descend in the same manner as that of an adult (1) unless it is derived by gift, devise, or descent from one of his parents, i. e., unless it is derived from his father or mother, not grandfather or grandmother; and (2) unless the estate is derived directly from one of his parents. 1 Va. Law Reg. 229.

The property must be derived from parent directly, not indirectly, in order to come under this statute. Davis v. Christian, 15 Grat. 11, 32; 1 Va. Law Reg. 229.

Generally.—The word "kindred," as used in this section, has the meaning of "next of kin." Bonewell v. Smith, 120 Va. 431, 91 S. E. 759.

Under this section, on failure of issue of an infant last seised, the inheritance descends to the infant's kindred on the side of that parent from whom the real estate was derived when, as in this case, there are such kindred living at the death of the infant. The statute does not permit us to ascend beyond the parent to the grandparent, or to any other ancestor of the infant, in order to reach the propositus from whom the inheritance shall descend. The parent only, and in no case any more remote ancestor is made by the statute such propositus. Whether the parent be or be not the first purchaser is immaterial. Bonewell v. Smith, 120 Va. 431, 91 S. E. 759.

This section designates the class to which realty should descend; the proportion is governed by section 5265. Mort v. Jones, 105 Va. 668, 14 Va. Law Reg. 795.

Sec. 5273. Distribution of personal estate.—When any person shall die intestate as to his personal estate or any part thereof, the surplus (subject to the provisions of chapter two hundred and seventy-four) after payment of funeral expenses, charges of administration and debts, shall pass and be distributed to and among the same persons, and in the same proportions, to whom, and in which real estate is directed to descend, except as follows:

First, Of infants.

The personal estate of an infant shall be distributed as if he were an adult;

Second, Of married persons.

If the intestate was married, the surviving husband or wife shall be entitled to one-third of such surplus, if the intestate left surviving issue of the marriage which was dissolved by the death of the intestate, or of a former marriage; but if no such issue survive, the surviving husband or wife shall be entitled to the whole of such surplus. (Code 1887, § 2557.)

Revisors' Note.—This section materially changes the law governing the distribution of the personal estate of married persons, and puts husband and wife on terms of equality in case of intestacy. Before the revision, if the intestate was a married woman, her husband was entitled to the whole of the surplus; if the intestate left a widow and issue by her, the widow was entitled to one-third of the surplus; if the intestate left a widow but no issue by her, the widow was entitled absolutely to such of the personal property in the surplus as was acquired by the intestate by virtue of his marriage with her prior to April 4, 1877, and remaining in kind at her death; and in this case she was also entitled, if the intestate left issue by a former marriage, to one-third; if no such issue, to one-half of the residue of the surplus.

Intestacy—When heir is not disinherited.—A paper, signed and sealed by the decedent, expressing the desire to disinherit two of his heirs, is not a devise or bequest of the testator's estate by implication, for a man cannot disinherit his heirs or next of kin in any other way than by giving his estate to some one else. Boisseau v. Aldridges, 5 Leigh 222, 27 Am. Dec. 590.

Executor not entitled to residuum of personal estate.—The words of the statute "or any part thereof" refer to and direct distribution of everything that was not actually bequeathed by the will, and therefore since 1785, when this statute was enacted, the executor is not in any case entitled to the residuum of his testator's personal estate not actually bequeathed away by the will. Paup's Adm'r v. Mingo, 4 Leigh 163; Shelton v. Shelton, 1 Wash. 64. But see Wernick's Adm'r v. McMurdo, 5 Rand. 78.

Married women's personal property.—It seems that the executor or administrator who had survived his wife, but had never taken administration on her estate, may sue the guardian of the wife for her personal estate committed to him. Templeman v. Fauntleroy, 3 Rand. 434. For other cases under former statute, see Vaughan v. Jones, 23 Grat. 444; Andes v. Roller, 98 Va. 620, 37 S. E. 297; Wade v. Boxley, 5 Leigh 442.

Issue.—The word "children" in the act of 1785 was construed strictly, and not in the same sense as "issue." Bernard v. Hipkins, 6 Call 101, 104. Therefore the statute was subsequently changed.

Alienation barring wife's distributive share.—The wife has not such an interest in that portion of the personal estate of her husband to which she may be entitled in the event of his dying intestate, or leaving a will which she may renounce, as that an absolute and irrevocable, though merely voluntary, deed thereof, executed by him to his children by a former marriage, can be considered a fraud on her rights, or be set aside at her instance. Lightfoot's Ex'rs v. Colgin, 5 Munf. 42; Gentry v. Bailey, 6 Grat. 594.

Sec. 5274. When homicide to bar acquisition of estate.—No person shall acquire by descent or distribution, or by will, any interest in the estate of another whom he has killed in order to obtain such interest.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new.

As to escheats, see section 489, et seq.

Sec. 5276. When and how widow must renounce benefit of will; effect thereof.—When any provision for a wife is made in her husband's will, she may, within one year from the time of the admission of the will to probate, renounce such provision. Such renunciation shall be made either in person before the court in which the will is recorded, or by a writing recorded in such court, or the clerk's office thereof, upon such acknowledgment or proof as would authorize a writing to be admitted to record under chapter two hundred and eleven. If such renunciation be made, or if no provision for her be made in the will, she shall have such share of her husband's personal estate as she would have had if he had died intestate; otherwise, she shall have no more thereof than is given her by the will. (Code 1887, § 2559.)

Application of Statute.—This statute is applicable to personal estate alone. Ambler v. Norton, 4 Hen. & M. 35; Blunt v. Gee, 5 Call 481; Wiseley v. Findlay, 3 Rand. 361, 15 Am. Dec. 712; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 530.

Effect of renunciation.—The effect of the renunciation is to throw the rights of the wife upon the other parts of the estate, and relieves that which was burdened, with the provision for her. Then equity requires that the interest devised to her should be given to the parties who are disappointed of their legacies by this election. Mitchell v. Johnson, 6 Leigh, 475; Findley's Ex'rs v. Findley, 11 Grat. 434; McReynolds v. Counts, 9 Grat. 242; Kinnaird v. Kinnaird, 8 Leigh 400, 31 Am. Dec. 658; Morris v. Garland's Adm'r, 78 Va. 226.

Manner of renunciation.—An election to take against the will cannot be made in any other form than that of a renunciation made in manner and time prescribed in this statute. Taylor v. Browne, 2 Leigh 419; Kinnaird v. Kinnaird, 8 Leigh 400, 31 Am. Dec. 658. And it matters not that no provision for nor mention of the wife is made in the will. Cocke's Ex'r v. Phillips, 12 Leigh 248.

Taking out letters of administration with will annexed does not amount to an election to take under the will. Taylor v. Brown, 2 Leigh 419.

It is not required that the provision giving personal estate to the wife, which provision she renounces, shall be declared or averred to be in lieu of her distributive share. Thornton v. Winston, 4 Leigh 174.

Antenuptial contract barring dower does not deprive her of distributive share.—An antenuptial contract barring dower does not deprive the wife of her distributive share in the personal estate. Findley's Ex'rs v. Findley, 11 Grat. 434.

Deed of settlement—Renunciation of will.—A man makes a deed of settlement of property upon the wife, and afterwards by will disposes of the property in a manner far less beneficial to the wife, and dies. The widow is not required by this statute, to renounce the provision made for her by will in order to claim under the deed of settlement. Taylor v. Browne, 2 Leigh 419.

Renunciation of will does not extinguish trust created thereby.—Personal property bequeathed to the wife for life, subject to a power of appointment vested in her, is a trust for the objects of the appointment; and the widow's renunciation of the will does not extinguish the trust; and, as the power was not executed by the trustee, the subject shall be divided among the testator's lineal descendants, according to the statute of distributions. Mitchell v. Johnson, 6 Leigh 461.

Quære, whether in the case of a testator making a provision for his wife for life, and giving her a power of appointment of the remainder, if the widow renounce the provision she thereby renounces the power of appointment also. Id.

Effect of not renouncing benefit of will.—If the widow does not renounce her husband's will within the time prescribed by statute, she loses her distributive share of the personal estate, and is confined to the provisions of the will, but is entitled to her dower in the lands. Blunt v. Gee, 5 Call 481; Noell v. Garnett, 4 Call 92; Wiseley v. Findley, 3 Rand. 372, 15 Am. Dec. 712; Thornton v. Winston, 4 Leigh 152, 174; Dupree's Adm'r v. Cary, 6 Leigh 36; McReynolds v. Counts, 9 Grat. 242; Wilson v. Knownslar's Ex'r, 79 Va. 479; Findley's Ex'rs v. Findley, 11 Grat. 434.

Quaere: A householder dies, leaving a widow, but no children, and he leaves a will whereby he bequeaths one-half of his personal estate to his wife in fee simple, and the other half to a nephew, and the widow does not renounce the will, what portion does she take under the will? Is she entitled to the poor debtor's exemption absolutely, and then one-half of the residue, or does she only take one-half of the estate left by said testator? 15 Va. Law J. 777; 16 Va. Law J. 251.

foot's Ex'rs v. Colgin, 5 Munf. 42; Gentry v. Bailey, 6 Grat. 594. And this although he secures a life estate to himself and though his purpose is to defeat his wife's claim. An irrevocable deed of trust is not to be considered a will in disguise merely because it disposes of nearly all of the grantor's personal property and reserves to the grantor the possession and control of the property during his life. Hall v. Hall, 109 Va. 117, 63 S. E. 420.

Sec. 5277. Rights of husband and wife barred by adultery.—The provisions of section fifty-two hundred and seventy-three and fifty-two hundred and seventy-six are subject to the qualification that if either husband or wife leave the other and live in adultery, he or she shall have no part of the personal estate as to which the other consort dies intestate, unless before such death they were reconciled and lived together. (Code 1887, § 2560.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, this section barred the rights of the wife only; now it bars the rights of either husband or wife.

Dower barred by adultery of wife, section 5123; curtesy and other interest in wife's estate barred by desertion, section 5140.

Sec. 5278. In division of estate of intestate, advancements to be brought into hotchpot.—Where any descendant of a person dying intestate as to his estate, or any part thereof, shall have received from such intestate in his life-time, or under his will, any estate, real or personal, by way of advancement, and he, or any descendant of his, shall come into the partition and distribution of the estate with the other parceners and distributees, such advancement shall be brought into hotchpot with the whole estate, real and personal, descended or distributable, and thereupon such party shall be entitled to his proper portion of the estate, real and personal. (Code 1887, § 2561.)

Purpose of this statute.—The purpose is to bring about an equal division among the children or other descendants of all his estate, both real and personal, except so far as, in the exercise of the right of ownership, he may have thought fit to create a difference, not by constraining the child who has received the advancement to submit to the redivision, but subjecting him to an alternative. Chinn v. Murray, 4 Grat. 377; Hudson v. Hudson's Ex'r, 3 Rand. 120.

Advancements—Hotchpot—Definition.—An advancement is a giving by anticipation the whole or part of what it is supposed a child will be entitled to on the death of the parent. Chinn v. Slaves were subjects of advancement in January, 1865. West v. Jones, 85 Va. 616, 8 S. E. 468; Puryear v. Cabell, 24 Grat. 260.

What in its inception was a loan may be made subsequently, by will or otherwise, an advancement. Darne's Ex'r v. Lloyd, 82 Va. 859, 5 S. E. 87, 3 Am. St. Rep. 123. The release or canceling of bonds of son to parent, with intention thereby to prefer him in life, is as much an advancement as so much cash. Bruce v. Slemp, 82 Va. 358, 4 S. E. 692.

Advancements depend upon intention.—While questions of advancement depend upon intention (McDearman v. Hodnett, 83 Va. 280, 2 S. E. 643; Watkins v. Young, 31 Grat. 84; Lewis v. Henry's Ex'rs, 28 Grat. 192; Lee's Ex'r v. Boak, 11 Grat. 182; Biedler v. Biedler, 87 Va. 309, 12 S. E. 753), yet the parent cannot by mere declaration of intention make that an advancement which is not such in law, nor prevent that from being an advancement which the law plainly declares to be such. Watkins v. Young, 31 Grat. 88-90, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 516.

Gift by parent to child prima facie an advancement.—Whenever a parent makes to a child a transfer of property, either real or personal, or whenever he furnishes the purchase price of property, title to which is taken in the name of the child, a prima facie presumption of advancement arises. Watkins v. Young, 31 Grat. 84; McDearman v. Hodnett, 83 Va. 281, 2 S. E. 643; Gregory v. Winston's Adm'r, 23 Grat. 102; Bruce v. Slemp, 82 Va. 352, 4 S. E. 692. And so such a gift to a son-in-law is prima facie an advancement to the daughter (Peale's Adm'r v. Thurmond, 77 Va. 753; Bruce v. Slemp, 82 Va. 352, 4 S. E. 692; McDearman v. Hodnett, 83 Va. 281, 2 S. E. 643), the married woman's act not affecting questions of advancement (McDearman v. Hodnett, supra). But the presumption in both these cases may be rebutted, and for the purpose of showing the real intention of the ancestor his declarations or statements made at the time of the gift, or subsequently, are competent evidence, as well as circumstances of the ancestor and relations existing between him and the child. Watkins v. Young, 31 Grat. 84; McDearman v. Hodnett, 83 Va. 281, 2 S. E. 643; Chinn v. Murray, 4 Grat. 348. Gift of real estate cannot be by parol. Section 5141.

Hotchpot.—In considering what advancements are to be brought into hotchpot, regard must be had to section 5141, forbidding parol gifts of land. Nicholas v. Nicholas, 100 Va. 660, 42 S. E. 669, 866. See, also, section 5141 and notes.

Value to be accounted for.—The value of a present advancement (i. e., an advancement to take effect immediately) is to be estimated as at the date of the gift, without accountability of the donee for future rents, profits, increase, enhancement or gain; and, on the other hand, without resort to the intestate's estate for any depreciation, diminution, or loss, whether occasioned by mismanagement, misfortune, or accident. Beckwith v. Butler, 1 Wash. 224; Hudson v. Hudson's Ex'r, 3 Rand. 117; Knight v. Yarborough, 4 Rand. 566; Chinn v. Murray, 4 Grat. 379; Williams v. Stonestreet, 3 Rand. 359; Christian v. Coleman's Adm'r, 3 Leigh, 30; Knight v. Oliver, 12 Grat. 33; Puryear v. Cabell, 24 Grat. 260; Cabells v. Puryear, 27 Grat. 908; Barrett v. Morriss' Ex'r, 33 Grat. 273; Davies v. Hughes, 86 Va. 909, 11 S. E. 488; Kean v. Welch, 1 Grat. 406.

Quære, is this same rule applicable to future advancements, e. g., a gift by a father to a son of real estate in fee, but to commence in futuro, or with a reservation of a life estate to himself? Chinn v. Murray, 4 Grat. 379.

Rents and profits.—While it is the rule that neither rents nor profits of land given as an advancement ought to be brought into hotchpot, yet where a father permits a child to rent out his land, and to receive the rents thereof for his or her use, such rents shall be brought into hotchpot as an advancement. Williams v. Stonestreet, 3 Rand. 559.

Debts.—Advancements made by the testator in his lifetime are not to be taken in account in fixing the proportion of the debts which each devisee is to pay. Gaw v. Huffman, 12 Grat. 628.

Interest on advancements.—The general rule as to interest on advancements is as follows: The party advanced is not to be charged with interest, because the advancement in his hands is no part of the estate. It belongs to him, and he cannot be charged interest on his own unless there be something in the will subjecting it to such a charge. Cabell v. Puryear, 27 Grat. 902, 908; Puryear v. Cabell, 24 Grat. 260; Barrett v. Morriss' Ex'r, 33 Grat. 273; Davies v. Hughes, 86 Va. 909, 11 S. E. 488.

But if the amount held by the several legatees be over and above the amount they were entitled to on the date fixed by the testator as the date of distribution, such excess is the property of the estate, in which all the distributees are equally interested, and upon this excess the legatees who have had the same must be charged interest from the day of distribution fixed by the testator. Cabells v. Puryear, 27 Grat. 902, 908; Barrett v. Morriss' Ex'r, 33 Grat. 273; Davies v. Hughes, 86 Va. 912, 11 S. E. 488. See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 516, where the rule is incorrectly stated.

Refusal to bring advancement into hotchpot at one division no bar to participating in second division.—An heir at law, who has been advanced in the lifetime of his ancestor is entitled to participate in the division, after the death of the widow, in the real estate which had been assigned to her in dower, although he had refused to bring his advancements in hotchpot, in order to participate in the previous division of the estate, not embraced in the assignment to the widow. Persinger v. Simmons, 25 Grat. 238; Knight v. Oliver, 12 Grat. 33.

Ademption of legacy.—Where one in loco parentis gives a legacy as a portion, and afterwards advances in the nature of a portion to the same person, such advancement will be deemed an ademption of the legacy. Hansbrough's Ex'rs v. Hooe, 12 Leigh, 322, 37 Am. Dec. 659; Strother's Adm'r v. Mitchell's Ex'r, 80 Va. 149; Moore v. Hilton, 12 Leigh 1; Jones v. Mason, 5 Rand. 577, 16 Am. Dec. 761. Analogically, devises of real estate are revoked, adeemed, or satisfied. Hansbrough's Ex'rs v. Hooe, supra.

But when the gift is given before the making of the will, and the will does not charge it as an advancement, the court cannot so charge it in the settlement. Strother's Adm'r v. Mitchell's Ex'r, 80 Va. 149. See, also, Lee's Ex'r v. Boak, 11 Grat. 182.

Purchaser from descendant.—Complainant bought the interest of an heir of a decedent without making inquiry and without having knowledge of the fact that advancements had been made by the decedent (father) to the heir (son) in excess of the heir's interest in the estate. In a suit by the purchaser against the other heirs for partition, the lower court denied relief, which decree was affirmed on appeal, the court holding that, under this section, where the advancement to such descendant is equal to or exceeds his share of the estate, it bars his right to further participation; that while the section does not in terms refer to a purchaser from the descendant, yet such purchaser is charged with knowledge of the public statutes of the State and can only buy and can only take the interest of his grantor in the estate; and that the doctrine of bona fide purchaser has no application. Corbitt v. Wright, 120 Va. 471, 91 S. E. 612.

Generally.—By the act of 1785 advancements of real estate were only to be brought into hotchpot with real estate descended, and personal advancements only with personal estate. Since 1819 the law has been otherwise. Williams v. Stonestreet, 3 Rand. 559.

Advancements to children are not brought into hotchpot for the benefit of the widow; she is only entitled to share in the estate of the intestate of which he died possessed. Knight v. Oliver, 12 Grat. 33.

This statute is mandatory and makes the bringing of advancements into hotchpot a condition precedent to participation in the estate. Mort v. Jones, 105 Va. 677, 54 S. E. 857.

Sec. 5279. Jurisdiction of partition of land.—Tenants in common, joint tenants, and co-parceners shall be compellable to make partition; and a lien creditor or any owner of undivided estate in real estate may also compel partition for the purpose of subjecting the estate of his debtor or the rents and profits thereof to the satisfaction of his lien. Any court having general equity jurisdiction of the county or corporation wherein the estate, or any part thereof, is, shall have jurisdiction in cases of partition, and in the exercise of such jurisdiction may take cognizance of all questions of law affecting the legal title that may arise in any proceedings, between such tenants in common, joint tenants, coparceners and lien creditors. (Code 1887, § 2562; 1897-8, p. 488; 1902-3-4, p. 835.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section formerly authorized the court of equity to "take cognizance of all questions of law affecting the legal title that may arise in any proceedings, as well between tenants in common, joint tenants, and co-parceners as others." The language now is "between SUCH tenants in common, joint tenants, co-parceners and LIEN CREDITORS." It had been suggested that the former language might in some cases deprive third persons of their constitutional right of trial by jury, hence the change.

Constitutionality.—This section was held not to be in conflict with article 1, chapter 13, Const. 1869, providing for trial by jury. Pillow v. S. W. Imp. Co., 92 Va. 144, 23 S. E. 32, 53 Am. St. Rep. 804.

General rule as to partition—How varied.—In the partition of real estate each owner is entitled to have in severalty a part equal to his interest in the whole subject, if this is practicable, with a due regard to the interest of all concerned. But if such partition cannot be made without impairing the portions of some others, the property may be divided into shares of unequal values, and the inequality may be corrected by a charge of money on the more valuable in favor of the less valuable portion or by other means recognized in the law of partition. Cox v. McMullin, 14 Grat. 82; Custis v. Snead, 12 Grat. 260; Howery v. Helms, 20 Grat. 1, 8; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 491.

Jurisdiction of courts of equity.—Since the passage of this act the application is in no sense addressed to the discretion of the court, but may be made as a matter of right. Grove v. Grove, 100 Va. 556, 42 S. E. 312; Wiseley v. Findlay, 3 Rand. 361, 15 Am. Dec. 712; Castleman v. Veitch, 3 Rand. 598; Straughan v. Wright, 4 Rand. 493. This section gives courts of equity authority to pass upon all questions of law affecting the legal title that may arise in the proceeding (Fry v. Payne, 82 Va. 759, 1 S. E. 197; Currin v. Spraull, 10 Grat. 145; Bradley v. Zehmer, 82 Va. 685; Davis v. Tebbs, 81 Va. 600; 2 Min. [4th Ed.] 485); changing the rule laid down in Stuart's Heirs v. Coalter, 4 Rand. 74, 15 Am. Dec. 731, Straughan v. Wright, 4 Rand. 493, that a court of equity could not decide on the simple question of the title to land. The language of the present section differs from that of the section as it read before the revision. The Code of 1887 provided that a court of equity "may take cognizance of all questions of law affecting the legal title that may arise in any proceeding." The same words were used in the amendment of 1897-8, p. 488. The language of the amendment of 1902-3-4, p. 835, was as indicated in the revisors' note above.

In order to give the court jurisdiction of a question of law affecting the legal title, the question must arise as an incident to a partition and must be such as to require decision before the partition can be satisfactorily made as between the persons at whose instance or in whose behalf the partition is being made. Bailey v. Johnson, 118 Va. 505, 88 S. E. 62.

This clause is applicable only to questions affecting the legal title to the subject of partition, and not to matters of general indebtedness between the parties. Adkins v. Adkins, 117 Va. 445, 85 S. E. 490.

An independent hostile claim going to the whole property involved, and denying in toto and ab initio the title of the parties claiming the joint ownership of the land, cannot be set up and adjudicated in a partition suit brought by the latter. Bailey v. Johnson, 118 Va. 505, 88 S. E. 62.

In the enactment of this section in its present form the Legislature intended to broaden and extend the jurisdiction of the courts in partition suits, and in the exercise of that jurisdiction the courts may set aside a deed to one of the parties of a part of the land to be divided, either because the grantor had no power to make the deed, or because of his mental incapacity. Seefried v. Clarke, 113 Va. 365, 74 S. E. 204.

Under this section no limitations are placed upon courts of equity in the matter of procedure, and they are free to adopt such method as may be best suited to meet the exigencies of the particular case. Any instrumentality that the court may call to its assistance, whether it be a master in chancery, or a special board of commissioners, is advisory merely. The question must at last be left to the determination of the court upon the law and the evidence. Phillips v. Dulaney, 114 Va. 681, 77 S. E. 449.

Under a former statute it was decided that partition may not be by bill only, but evidence may be heard in court upon motion or petition to sell. Also that infants need not be summoned and on coming of age have no day in court. Parker v. McCoy, 10 Grat. 594.

Equity will do complete justice.—It is especially true in suits of partition that equity, having acquired jurisdiction by this section, will retain it and do complete justice between the parties, enforcing, if necessary, legal rights and applying legal remedies to accomplish that end. Laurel Creek Coal & Coke Co. v. Browning, 99 Va. 535, 39 S. E. 156; Pillow v. S. W. V. Imp. Co., 92 Va. 144, 23 S. E. 32, 53 Am. St. Rep. 804; Fry v. Payne, 82 Va. 759, 1 S. E. 197; Bradley v. Zehmer, 82 Va. 685; Davis v. Tebbs, 81 Va. 600; Hinton v. Bland's Adm'r, 81 Va. 588, 593.

Adverse claim of defendant does not take case out of statute.—While a suit for partition cannot be made a substitute for an action of ejectment, yet if the defendant in such suit claims under one who was a joint owner with the complainant or those under whom he claims the suit may be maintained, and all questions of law arising in the case may be settled by the court; and the fact that a defendant to the suit in possession of the land asserts an adverse claim, and denies the right of the claimants to partition, does not take the case out of the purview of this section. Dillard v. Jefferies, 118 Va. 81, 86 S. E. 844; Pillow v. S. W. V. Imp. Co., 92 Va. 144, 148, 23 S. E. 32, 53 Am. St. Rep. 804; Currin v. Spraull, 10 Grat. 147, 148; Davis v. Tebbs, 81 Va. 600; Bradley v. Zehmer, 82 Va. 685; Fry v. Payne, 82 Va. 759, 1 S. E. 197; 2 Min (4th Ed.) 485.

If such jurisdiction is upheld by the court in the partition suit, its decree, even if erroneous, cannot be collaterally assailed in another suit. Morgan v. Haley, 107 Va. 331, 58 S. E. 564. Beattie v. Wilkinson (C. C.), 36 Fed. 646.

Persons who may file bill.—Since the act of 1897-8, p. 488, amending this section a lien creditor or any owner of undivided estate in real estate may compel partition, thus settling a query raised in 2 Va. Law Reg. 423; Price v. Crozier, 101 Va. 644, 44 S. E. 890.

Tenant for life.—A tenant for life in one undivided moiety of property may maintain a suit against those who own the estate in remainder of that moiety, whether they are in esse or not, and the fee simple owners of the other moiety, and compel partition of the property, and, if not susceptible of partition in kind, may have a sale and division of the proceeds. Carneal v. Lynch, 91 Va. 114, 20 S. E. 959, 50 Am. St. Rep. 819.

The fact that one owns a life estate in the whole of a tract and the remainder in fee in only one-half thereof does not bar his right to maintain a suit for partition of the land. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661.

Guardian.—A guardian of infants may maintain a suit for partition of real estate held jointly by the defendants and other adult parties. Zirkle v. McCue, 26 Grat. 517; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 470; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 491. See, also, section 5335.

Tenant by curtesy.—A tenant by curtesy of lands who purchases the reversionary interest of the three heirs may sustain a suit for partition. Otley v. McAlpine's Heirs, 2 Grat. 340, and note in Va. Rep. Anno.

Holder of entire legal title to land.—A party, holding the legal title to the whole of a tract of land in an undivided two-thirds of which others own the complete equitable estate with the right to call for the legal title, may under this section, file a bill against such others for a partition of the whole. Hagan v. Taylor, 110 Va. 9, 65 S. E. 487.

Partition of lands governed by lex loci rei sitae.—The courts of this State have no authority to make or order a partition of lands lying in another State; but if it has jurisdiction of the parties it may, in cases of contract, trust, and fraud, act indirectly upon the land by a direct personal decree against the parties. Pillow v. S. W. V. Imp. Co., 92 Va. 144, 23 S. E. 32, 53 Am. St. Rep. 804, 1 Va. Law Reg. 663, 674; Wimer v. Wimer, 82 Va. 890, 5 S. E. 536, 3 Am. St. Rep. 126; Poindexter v. Burwell, 82 Va. 507; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1450. Quære, does this principle authorize the court of this State to make sale by its own agent or officers of land in another State. See 1 Va. Law Reg. 674.

Liens on undivided shares.—Where some of the co-tenants have sold their undivided interest in lands, and reserved liens for the unpaid purchase money, the existence of these liens on the undivided shares does not per se prevent the division of the common property among the owners. The liens will be considered as attaching to the parcels under the partition in severalty. Wright v. Wright, 76 Va. 857.

A bill may be filed by one tenant in common against another for the purpose of having partition of the property held in common, and to subject the interest of the defendant to a deed of trust thereon for the benefit of the complainant. Price v. Crozier, 101 Va. 644, 44 S. E. 890.

Partition of infants' lands.—Where the same parties are entitled to lands derived from the father, and also to lands derived from the mother, and some or all of them are infants, if these lands are blended in the division it must appear to the court that the interest of the parties in general will be promoted by this mode of partition, to enable the court to protect the right of infants. Custis v. Snead, 12 Grat. 260.

In a partition suit the rights of infants and adults are governed by like principles. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661.

As to guardian filing bill, see supra, "Persons who may file bill."

Widow should be a party to suit for partition of husband's lands if entitled to dower.—Where the widow of the person who dies seised of the lands of which partition is sought is alive and entitled to dower, she should be a party to the suit, and her dower should be assigned to her, and partition made of the residue, and it is error to make partition of the land subject to her right of dower in her absence. Custis v. Snead, 12 Grat. 260.

One tenant occupying exclusively—Measure of his accountability.—Where one tenant in common occupies and uses the common property to the exclusion of his co-tenants, or occupies and uses more of the common property than his just share or proportion, the best measure of his accountability to his co-tenants is their shares or proportions of a fair rent of the property so occupied and used by him. Early v. Friend, 16 Grat. 21, 78 Am. Dec. 649.

It may be proper to resort to an account of issues, profits, etc., as a mode of adjustment between the tenants in common. Ruffners v. Lewis's Ex'rs, 7 Leigh 720, 30 Am. Dec. 513; Graham v. Pierce, 19 Grat. 28, 39, 100 Am. Dec. 658.

Decree.—In decreeing a partition in favor of a plaintiff claiming by equitable title, the court ought not to direct that the holders of the legal title stand seised of the plaintiff's part to his use, but that they convey the same by deed to him and his heirs. Christian's Devisee v. Christian, 6 Munf. 534.

As to decree of partition being binding and impossible to be attacked collaterally, except for fraud or surprise, see note to Frazier v. Frazier, 26 Grat. 500, Va. Rep. Anno.; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 492.

Generally.—The assignment to a widow, at her instance, by a court of general jurisdiction, of land of her husband as a homestead is conclusive upon her and those claiming under her that the land so assigned was the property of her husband and not of herself, and her holding of the homestead thereafter was in privity with and in subordination to the title of her husband, and upon her death the land descended to his heirs as coparceners, who are entitled to partition thereof. Arendall v. Arendall, 119 Va. 1, 89 S. E. 87.

Partition of lands may be by deed (section 5141) or by decree (section 5282).

For a case in which partition was refused on the ground that it would defeat a trust, see Schroeder v. Woodward, 116 Va. 506, 82 S. E. 192.

The fact that land is under lease for a term of years is no objection to a partition thereof in this State. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661.

Sec. 5280. When shares of two or more laid off together.—Any two or more of the parties, if they so elect, may have their shares laid off together when partition can be conveniently made in that way. (Code 1887, § 2563.)

This section does not forbid the assignment of the shares of two co-tenants together, but gives "any two or more of the parties, if they so elect," the right to "have their shares laid off together, when partition can be conveniently made in that way." Phillips v. Dulaney, 114 Va. 681, 77 S. E. 449.

Sec. 5281. When partition cannot be made, there may be allotment or sale; proceedings in case of sale; how proceeds distributed or invested; effect of sale on right of dower.—When partition cannot be conveniently made, the entire subject may be allotted to any party who will accept it, and pay therefor to the other parties such sums of money as their interest therein may entitle them to; or in any case now pending or hereafter brought, in which partition cannot be conveniently made, if the interest of those who are entitled to the subject, or its proceeds, will be promoted by a sale of the entire subject, or allotment of part and sale of the residue, the court, notwithstanding any of those entitled may be an infant or insane person, may order such sale, or an allotment of a part thereof to anyone or more of the parties who will accept it and pay therefor to the other parties such sums of money as their interest therein may entitle them to, and a sale of the residue, and make distribution of the proceeds of sale, according to the respective rights of those entitled, taking care, when there are creditors of any deceased person who was a tenant in common, joint tenant, or coparcener, to have the proceeds of such deceased person's part applied according to the rights of such creditors. And when there are liens by judgment or otherwise on the interest of any party, the court may, on the petition of any person holding a lien, ascertain the liens, and apply the dividend of such party in the proceeds of sale to the discharge thereof, so far as the same may be necessary. The court making an order for sale shall, when the dividend of a party exceeds five hundred dollars, if such party be an infant or insane, order the same to be invested as the proceeds of a sale under chapter two hundred and seventeen are required to be invested. If such dividend does not exceed five hundred dollars, the same shall be paid to the guardian of such infant or committee of such insane person, the court being first satisfied that such guardian or committee has given bond in sufficient penalty and with sureties sufficient for the security of the same; but if the interest of any person be held in trust, the dividend of such person, whether greater or less than five hundred dollars, shall be paid to the trustee, upon his giving bond as trustee, with sufficient surety, to be held by him upon the same trusts as the interest of such person in the land was held. A sale of land so made by order of the court shall operate to bar the contingent right of dower of the wife in the share of her husband in the land so sold, and to bar the right of curtesy of the husband in the share of his wife in the land so sold, whether said wife in the first instance or the husband in the second instance, be made party to the suit or not. (Code 1887, § 2564; 1899-00, p. 880; 1916, p. 67.)

Revisors' Note.—The first sentence of this section alters the rule announced in Jackson v. Jackson, 110 Va. 893, 66 S. E. 721. The third sentence increases the amount therein mentioned from three hundred dollars to five hundred dollars, and corresponding changes are made in the fourth sentence.

Assignment in severalty—What necessary to change the rule.—Upon a bill for partition of land, as a general rule the share of each partner should be assigned to him in severalty. And if, from the condition of the subject or the parties, it is proper to pursue a different course, the facts justifying a departure from the rule should, at least where infants are concerned, be disclosed by the report or otherwise appear. Custis v. Snead, 12 Grat. 260.

When sale may be decreed.—In suit for partition the court has no authority to order a sale of the land unless it is made to appear by an inquiry before a commissioner, or otherwise, that partition cannot be made in some of the modes prescribed by sections 5280 and 5281; but a party who promoted the suit, and at whose instance the decree was made, will not be allowed to raise the objection for the first time in the appellate court. Howery v. Helms, 20 Grat. 1, note Va. Rep. Anno.; Beckham v. Duncan, 1 Va. Dec. 669, 5 S. E. 690; Cunningham v. Johnson, 116 Va. 610, 20 Va. L. R. 552 and note, 82 S. E. 690.

It must appear that partition in kind cannot be conveniently made and that interest of parties will be promoted by a sale; but not necessary that it shall so appear from a report of a commissioner, nor by depositions of witnesses: it is left to the discretion of the court, and is sufficient if facts appearing in the record reasonably warrant the decree of sale. Stevens v. McCormick, 90 Va. 735, 736, 19 S. E. 742; Zircle v. McCue, 26 Grat. 532.

In Cunningham v. Johnson, 116 Va. 610, 20 Va. L. R. 552 and note, 82 S. E. 690, there was no evidence before the court upon which to base a decree of sale, and the probative value of the commissioner's report was discredited by the circumstances under which it was made.

The fact that the parties owned another tract of land in another county, and it did not appear that partition in kind of the two tracts could not be made, is not ground for setting aside the sale provided for by this section, the parties not wishing to sell this other tract. Frazier v. Frazier, 26 Grat. 500; Zirkle v. McCue, Id. 517.

Dispute as to title or interest.—When there is no dispute as to the title or the interest of any party to the dispute, it is not necessary that the shares of each of the parties should be ascertained before ordering the sale. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661. But it is error to decree sale until interest of all parties is ascertained when there is such dispute. Stevens v. McCormick, 90 Va. 735, 19 S. E. 742.

Allotment of part and sale of the residue.—Under the words of this section authorizing "allotment of part and sale of the residue," the part allotted must (in the absence of consent of parties), be divided into equal parts as near as possible among all of those entitled to share therein, and the proceeds of the residue divided according to the respective rights of the parties. It is error to allot in kind to some and sell the shares of others for distribution in the absence of such consent. Jackson v. Jackson, 110 Va. 393, 66 S. E. 721. But see present section and revisors' note.

In a suit for partition by one who owns one-half of the land in fee and a life estate in the other half, it is not error to allot to her part of the land and compensate her in money out of the proceeds of the sale of the residue for inequality resulting to her in the partition. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661.

Where commissioners in partition assign one tract of land to party, and fix a value on another tract and ascertain how much thereof shall be paid to the party receiving the other tract for owelty of partition, and the tract valued sells for a less sum than that fixed by the commissioners, the sum to be paid for owelty of partition should be fixed with reference to the price brought at the sale thereof and not to the valuation ascertained by the commissioners. Lucy v. Kelly, 117 Va. 318, 84 S. E. 661.

The allotment or sale when partition cannot be made was unknown to the common law. 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 489.

Improvement by tenant in common.—Where a son, who was joint and equal owner with his mother in a tract of land, with her consent took possession of a part of the land and improved it and the mother afterwards dies leaving other children, the land should be divided into two parts, giving the son the part he had improved, though the other half cannot be divided in kind among the children. Dennis v. Dennis, 116 Va. 619, 82 S. E. 696.

Dower and Curtesy.—On subject of a sale of land under this section operating to bar the contingent right of dower of the wife in the share of her husband in the land so sold, whether she be a party to the suit or not, see Lee v. Lindell, 22 Mo. 202, 64 Am. Dec. 262; Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547, 67 Am. Dec. 355; Scribner on Dower, 328, 340; Washburn on Real Property (4th Ed.) 191, 199.

The provision contained in the last sentence of this section, barring "contingent right of dower," etc., was added by the revisers of 1887. The revisers were of opinion that judicial sale would operate to bar contingent right of dower whether she was party to suit or not, but it was deemed best that the bar should be express. See Burks' Address, 2 Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.), 1386.

The provision as to curtesy was inserted by the amendment of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 67).

Generally.—The decision reached in Hinton v. Bland's Adm'r, 81 Va. 588, 593, that a court of equity could by its decree adjust all the equitable rights of parties interested in the estate to be divided, and therefore could order an account to be taken to ascertain the liens thereon, has been embodied in this section.

Creditors of the parties interested are not proper parties to the suit for partition. Stevens v. McCormick, 90 Va. 735, 19 S. E. 742.

Decree for sale of land in partition suit, though interlocutory, is appealable. Stevens v. McCormick, 90 Va. 735, 19 S. E. 742.

Sec. 5282. Decree of partition to vest legal title.—A decree heretofore or hereafter made, confirming any partition or allotment in a suit for partition, shall vest in the respective co-owners, between or to whom the partition or allotment is made, the title to their shares under the partition or allotment, in like manner and to the same extent, as if the said decree ordered such title to be conveyed to them and the conveyance was made accordingly. (Code 1887, § 2565.)

Revisors' Note.—The word, "co-owners," found in line three of the text is used in lieu of "parties." The object of this change is to meet the difficulty suggested by the case of Wright v. Johnson, 108 Va. 855, 62 S. E. 948. It is said [illegible] t case (speaking of the allotment of the wife's share to the husb[illegible] that if it was the intention of the Legislature by section 2565 (of the former Code) to deprive the wife of her inheritance where her share of the land had been assigned to the husband, the act to that extent was invalid. It is believed that the change pointed out meets the suggested difficulty.

The purpose of this section was to do away with the necessity for conveyances between the parties or by a commissioner of the court in partition suits in order to invest the several co-owners with the legal title to the land, allotted to each in the partition suits. Prior to the enactment of this section, the assignment of the wife's land to the husband in the partition suit did not deprive her of her inheritance, and if it was the intention of the Legislature to do so by this act, then to that extent it is invalid because in excess of legislative power. Wright v. Johnson, 108 Va. 855, 62 S. E. 948. See revisors' note above.

This section changes the rule laid down in Bolling v. Teel, 76 Va. 487, 490. See, also, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 491, 493; section 6296 and Acts 1918, p. 444. See, also, 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1462. Discussed, 13 Va. Law J. 153.

Sec. 5283. When proceeds of sale deemed personal estate.—The proceeds of any sale made under section fifty-two hundred and eighty-one shall, except as provided in section fifty-three hundred and forty-seven, be deemed personal estate from the time of the confirmation of such sale by the court. (Code 1887, § 2566.)

Before the enactment of this section it was held that the party entitled to the proceeds of the sale for partition could designate whether he would hold them as personalty or as realty. Turner v. Dawson, 80 Va. 841. But changed by this section. See 13 Va. Law J. 154. See, also section 5347. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1463.

In Hurt v. Jones, 75 Va. 341, the query was raised whether the share of a married woman in the proceeds of realty sold or divided would pass to her heirs at law. In 1883, before the passage of this section, it was held that a married woman's share in the proceeds of sale for partition when she had not made an election in regard thereto was realty. Turner v. Dawson, 80 Va. 841. As the law now stands such share is personal estate. See above section and section 5347.

See Gregory's Forms No. 348.

Sec. 5284. Shares of unknown parties.—If the name or share of any person interested in the subject of the partition be unknown, so much as is known in relation thereto shall be stated in the bill. (Code 1887, § 2567.)

Sec. 5285. Effect of partition or sale on lessee's rights.—Any person who, before the partition or sale, was lessee of any of the lands divided or sold, shall hold the same of him to whom such land is allotted or sold on the same terms on which by his lease he held it before the partition. (Code 1887, § 2568.)

This section applies when the lessee claims under a valid lease against all of the joint owners, and not to a case where only two of the tenants in common undertook to lease a particular portion of the joint property. Such lease is not binding upon the other tenants in common. Phillips v. Dulaney, 114 Va. 681, 77 S. E. 449.

See notes to section 5279; 4 Min. (3rd Ed.) 1463.

Sec. 5286. Partition of goods, etc., by sale, if necessary.—When an equal division of goods or chattels cannot be made in kind among those entitled, a court of equity may direct the sale of the same, and the distribution of the proceeds according to the rights of the parties. (Code 1887, § 2569.)

Revisors' Note.—For "An act to provide for the sale or partition of personal property of greater value than twenty dollars where it is owned by two or more persons jointly who cannot agree upon a sale or division of the same," see Acts 1918, p. 468.

It was held that when in dividing slaves it could not be conveniently done without separating infant children from their mother, compensation might be made in money. Fitzhugh v. Foote, 3 Call 13.

Tenants in common of personal estate cannot have partition at common law, and therefore a court of equity is the proper tribunal to decree a partition of it. Smith v. Smith, 4 Rand. 95; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 492.

It seems that the terms "good and chattels" mean visible, tangible, personal property only, and that they do not include choses in action. Bank v. Holland, 99 Va. 495, 505, 39 S. E. 126, 55 L. R. A. 155, 86 Am. St. Rep. 898. See notes to section 5142.

Sec. 5287. Working coal and other mines near land of another without his consent, prohibited.—No owner or tenant of any land containing coal, sulphur, or other minerals, within this Commonwealth, shall open or sink, dig, excavate, or work in, any mine or shaft on such land within five feet of the line dividing said land from that of another person, without the consent, in writing, of every person interested in or having title to such adjoining lands in possession, reversion, or remainder, or of the guardian of any such person as may be an infant. If any person violate this section he shall forfeit five hundred dollars to the party injured, or, to any one whose consent is required, but not obtained. (Code 1887, § 2570.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, the forfeiture was to anyone who might sue for the same; now it is restricted "to the party injured, or, to anyone whose consent is required, but not obtained."

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 79, section 7.

Cited but not construed in Crane's Nest Co. v. Va. Iron Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884.

Sec. 5288. Owner to permit survey of mine.—The owner, tenant, or occupant of any land on which a coal or other mine is opened and worked, or his agent, shall permit any person interested in or having title to any land co-terminous with that in which such mine is, to have ingress and egress with surveyors and assistants to explore and survey such mine at his own expense, and not oftener than once a month, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the preceding section has been violated. Every owner, tenant, occupant, or agent, who shall refuse such permission, exploration, or survey, shall forfeit twenty dollars for each refusal to the person so refused. (Code 1887, § 2571.)

Sec. 5289. How entry for such purpose compelled.—Any justice of the county, in which such mine is, before whom complaint of such refusal is made, may issue a summons to such owner, tenant, occupant, or agent, to answer such complaint. On the return of the summons executed, and proof that the complainant has right of entry, and that it has been refused without sufficient cause, the justice shall designate an early and convenient time for such entry to be made, and issue his warrant, commanding the sheriff of the county to attend and prevent obstructions and impediments to such entry, exploration, and survey. The costs of such summons, and a fee of three dollars to the sheriff executing the warrant, shall be paid by the person whose refusal caused the complaint. But if the justice dismiss the complaint, the costs shall be paid by the party making it. (Code 1887, § 2572.)

Sec. 5290. How adjoining fishing shores defined.—On the application of any proprietor or occupant of a fishing shore, the circuit court of the county in which such fishing shore is (on proof that notice thereof has been given to the proprietor or occupant of each adjoining shore), may appoint three commissioners to designate the ebb and flood hauls of the said adjoining fishing shores, and report their proceedings to court, and the court may order such compensation, as it may think proper, to be paid to the commissioners out of the county levy. (Code 1887, § 2573.)

Sec. 5291. Penalty for disturbing them.—After their report is confirmed by the court, if any person lay out a seine from either shore so as to interfere with the haul of the adjoining shore, as so designated, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars. (Code 1887, § 2574.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, the penalty was a forfeiture of two hundred and fifty dollars; now, a violation of the section is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars.

Sec. 5292. Arrest of non-resident offenders.—If the person so offending be not a resident of this State, any justice, on complaint to him on oath, shall issue his warrant to bring such offender before him or some other justice, who may, after hearing evidence, require him to enter into a recognizance to appear at the next term of the circuit court of the county where the offense was committed, to answer an indictment therefor. (Code 1887, § 2575.)

Sec. 5293. Proceedings to acquire right to drain land through lands of others.—Any person desiring to drain his lands through the lands of others may apply to the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city in which the whole or a part of the last mentioned lands lie, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain and report upon the propriety of granting said application and the damages that may be sustained by the party or parties through whose lands the said drain is proposed to be run; of which application notice shall be given to the proprietors of the lands through which such drain is to be run, in the manner prescribed by section forty-three hundred and sixty-five. (Code 1887, § 2576.)

Statutes of the general character of this and the three following sections have been in force in many of the States for a long period of years, and their constitutionality is too well settled to admit of serious doubt. The statute does not undertake to designate the particular circumstances under which the right of drainage shall be granted. There may be individual cases of such mere private purpose as not to be within the legitimate scope of the statute. The statute evidently contemplates that cases in which the right of drainage may be granted shall depend upon the facts of each case, leaving it to the court to determine whether it is proper to grant the right. If, therefore, on writ of error, neither the evidence nor the facts be certified, the appellate court will presume that a proper case was made out, if indeed the constitutional question can be considered at all in such a case when raised for the first time on appeal. Hodges v. Richmond Cedar Works, 120 Va. 492, 91 S. E. 644.

In a proceeding under sections 5293 to 5296, the commissioners reported, and the court approved, a different location for the drain from that asked for in the original petition of the applicant. This was held not to be error, there being nothing in the statute to indicate a purpose to confine an applicant to the mode of drainage originally contemplated or proposed by him, if he is willing to accept another which the commissioners and the court deem proper. The new or modified mode then becomes the "mode proposed by the applicant" within the meaning of the law. Hodges v. Richmond Cedar Works, 120 Va. 492, 91 S. E. 644.

See, also, chapter 73 of this Code.

Sec. 5294. Damages to be ascertained by commissioners; what notice to be given.—If the court, on hearing the matter, thinks it proper, it shall issue its order appointing five commissioners, who shall be freeholders (any three of whom may act), who shall, on being served with a copy of said order, go upon said land, and after being duly sworn, ascertain and report what damages, if any, may be sustained by the party or parties through whose lands the drain is to be run; but said commissioners, before proceeding to execute said order, shall give to the parties interested, and to the tenants in possession, at least ten days' notice of the time appointed by them for the execution of the same in the manner prescribed by the preceding section. (Code 1887, § 2577.)

Sec. 5295. Mode of draining to be described.—The said commissioners shall also inquire and report whether the mode of draining his land proposed by the applicant be proper, and shall describe the same specifically. (Code 1887, § 2578.)

Sec. 5296. Payment of damages and costs a pre-requisite to right to drain.—If the leave prayed for be granted by the court, it shall be made a matter of record, and the applicant shall, before he proceeds therein, pay or secure to the satisfaction of the parties entitled thereto, the compensation, if any, ascertained by said commissioners, and all the costs of the proceeding, including the sum of two dollars per day to each of said commissioners for each day that they may be engaged in executing the order aforesaid, and shall make and keep open such cut, drain, or culvert as he is allowed to make, at his own expense. (Code 1887, § 2579.)

Sec. 5297. Court may allow owners of lands desiring to drain same to construct culverts, etc., under mill canals.—This chapter shall be so construed as to authorize the court therein named to allow owners of lands desirous of draining the same, the right to construct trunks or culverts under the beds of mill canals in cases where the same may be necessary, subject to the same regulations and provisions as are prescribed herein in regard to the draining of lands through the lands of others: Provided, that the said trunks or culverts shall be so located and arranged as not to obstruct or interfere with the passage of the water through such canals. (Code 1887, § 2580.)

Minors and their Masters and Guardians.

Ch. 215. Masters and apprentices.
216. Guardians and wards.

CHAPTER 215.

Masters and Apprentices.

Sec.
5298. How minors are bound out.
5299. When and how bound out, etc., by overseer of poor.
5300. How placed in asylum or school.
5301. Term of apprenticeship; authority of employer.
5302. What writing of apprenticeship to specify; what master to teach apprentice.
5303. Payment by master for services of apprentice.
5304. When and where writing of apprenticeship, etc., filed.
5305. How apprentice transferred to new master; form of writing of apprenticeship.
5306. How money due from master to be paid.
5307. How, for the last year.
5308. How recovered.
5309. Complaint of master or apprentice against each other; how tried, etc.
5310. Residence of apprentice; how changed; effect of change without leave of the court.
5311. What court may hear complaint, where minor was bound beyond the State.
5312. Apprentices, who desert, liable for damages.
5313. Penalty for harboring or enticing apprentices.

Sec. 5298. How minors are bound out.—Any minor may be bound as an apprentice by his guardian, or if none, by his father, or if neither father nor guardian, by his mother, with the consent entered of record of the circuit or corporation court of the county or city in which the minor resides; or without such consent, if the minor, being fourteen years of age, agree in writing to be so bound. (Code 1887, § 2581.)

For case construing former statute, see Brewer v. Harris, 5 Grat. 285.

No appeal lay from an order of a county or corporation court for binding out an apprentice or for rescinding his indentures; but it was said that a writ of certiorari lay from the general court to bring up the record and correct the proceedings. Cooper v. Saunders, 1 Hen. & M. 413.

Before this section was passed it was held that the father could not bind his infant child apprentice by indentures to which the child was not a party. Such indentures were void. Pierce v. Massenburg, 4 Leigh 493, 26 Am. Dec. 333. See 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 200, 201.

On subject of apprentices generally, and for analysis of this chapter, see 1 Min. (4th Ed), 199-207.

Sec. 5299. When and how bound out, etc., by overseer of poor.—Any overseer of the poor of a county or city, if allowed by an order of the circuit court of such county, or the circuit or corporation court of such city, may place in any such incorporated institution, or bind out as an apprentice, any minor who has become chargeable to such county or city, or is likely to become so chargeable. (Code 1887, § 2583.)

Revisors' Note.—This and other sections of this chapter now conform to the present court system. The words, "any minor who has become chargeable to such county or city, or is likely to become so chargeable," are used in lieu of "any minor who is found begging in such county or corporation, or is likely to become chargeable thereto."

Even if the covenants were with the overseer only, if the binding were in pursuance of the statute, the suit on the indentures should be by the apprentice, and not by the overseer. Poindexter v. Wilton, 3 Munf. 183; Brewer v. Harris, 5 Grat. 285; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 201.

But if the binding were not according to statute, the suit at common law had to be in the name of the overseer. Bullock v. Sebrell, 6 Leigh 560; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 202.

See section 5143; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 202.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 81, section 2.

Sec. 5300. How placed in asylum or school.—By the same authority and under the same limitations, any minor may be placed for such time as may be agreed on in writing, in any incorporated association, asylum, or school, instituted for the support and education of destitute children, which shall thereupon be entitled to the custody of such minor for such time, and may bind him an apprentice until the expiration of that time. (Code 1887, § 2582.)

Sec. 5301. Term of apprenticeship; authority of employer.—The term of every such apprenticeship shall be until the apprentice attains the age of twenty-one years, if a boy, or eighteen years, if a girl; but whenever a minor is held to service or labor of any kind for a period not less than one month, the employer may exercise the same authority, control, and discipline over the said minor as are now exercised by a master over an apprentice, unless it shall be otherwise agreed in the contract for the employment of said minor. (Code 1887, § 2584.)

Sec. 5302. What writing of apprenticeship to specify; what master to teach apprentice.—The writing by which any minor is bound an apprentice, shall specify his age, and what art, trade, or business he is to be taught. The master, whether it is expressly provided therein or not, shall be bound to teach the same and shall be bound to teach him reading, writing, and common arithmetic, including the rule of three. (Code 1887, § 2585.)

As to term of contract of apprenticeship, see 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 202.

Sec. 5303. Payment by master for services of apprentice.—When a court makes an order allowing a minor to be bound as an apprentice, it shall inquire and direct whether the master, besides maintaining the apprentice and so teaching him, shall pay anything for his services, and if anything, how much, and for which year or years; the writing by which the minor is bound, shall bind the master to pay what may be so directed. For such payment, bond shall be taken by the overseers binding such minor, if the court require it. (Code 1887, § 2586.)

Sec. 5304. When and where writing of apprenticeship, etc., filed.—The writing by which any minor is bound, and any bond taken from the master, shall, within six months from the date thereof, be filed in the clerk's office of the circuit or corporation court of the county or city in which the same may be executed. Unless so filed, the master shall not be entitled to the services of the apprentice. (Code 1887, § 2587.)

The word "month" in this section means a calendar month. Brewer v. Harris, 5 Grat. 285. See section 5, subdivision 7.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 81, section 6.

Sec. 5305. How apprentice transferred to new master; form of writing of apprenticeship.—Such writing may, with the approbation of the said court, and on such terms as the court may prescribe, be transferred by the master, or within three months after his death, by his personal representative. The assignee thereof shall succeed to the master's rights and obligations for the future, and shall give bond if required by the court. Such writing may be in the following form or to the same effect:

"This indenture witnesseth, that it is mutually agreed between ..... and ..... that ....., aged ..... years, shall be taken and held as an apprentice for the term of..... ..... years by the said .....; and the said..... contracts and covenants with the said ..... to faithfully and carefully instruct the said ..... in all the handicraft of a .....; and the said ..... further contracts and covenants that the said.....shall be allowed as compensation, in consideration of his services for the first year, at the rate of..... .... per week (or per year); for the second year, at the rate of ..... per week (or per year); for the third year, at the rate of ..... per week (or per year); for the fourth year, at the rate of ..... per week (or per year); for the fifth year, at the rate of ..... per week (or per year); and at the expiration of his term of apprenticeship, ... (Code 1887, § 2588.)

Sec. 5306. How money due from master to be paid.—The money which the master is to pay for any year except the last, shall, at the end of the year for which it is payable, be paid to the father of the minor, or the mother, or part to each, as the court may direct; or it may be reserved, to be paid to the apprentice at the end of his term, with interest. Such directions may be changed from time to time, on the motion of the overseers of the poor, or of the father, mother, or apprentice, on proof of notice of such motion having been given to the adverse party. (Code 1887, § 2589.)

Sec. 5307. How, for the last year.—The money, which the master is to pay for the last year, shall be paid at the end thereof to the apprentice. (Code 1887, § 2590.)

Sec. 5308. How recovered.—Any money to be paid under either of the two preceding sections may be recovered from those liable therefor on the motion of the person entitled thereto, or by action. Any such motion may be in that court in the office whereof the writing or bond of the master is filed. (Code 1887, § 2591.)

Sec. 5309. Complaint of master or apprentice against each other; how tried, etc.—Such court, during the term of apprenticeship, may receive the complaint of such apprentice, or any person in his behalf, against the master, for undeserved or excessive correction, want of instruction, insufficient allowance of food, raiment, or lodging, or non-payment of what was directed to be paid; or the complaint of a master against his apprentice for desertion or other misconduct; and after reasonable notice of the complaint to the party against whom it is made, may determine the same in a summary way, making such order as the case may require. (Code 1887, § 2592.)

Sec. 5310. Residence of apprentice; how changed; effect of change without leave of the court.—No apprentice shall reside out of that county or corporation in the office whereof the writing whereby such apprentice is bound is required to be filed, without the leave of the circuit or corporation court of such county or city. Whenever such leave is given, a copy of the said writing shall be forthwith filed in the office of the circuit or corporation court of that county or city wherein the residence is to be; and thereafter that court may hear and determine any complaint against the said master or apprentice as might have been done by the court giving such leave before the same was given. If without such leave an apprentice be removed by his master, or with his master's knowledge, out of the first mentioned county or corporation, and remain thereout more than one month, the obligation of the apprentice to serve such master shall be only during the pleasure of the apprentice. (Code 1887, § 2593.)

As to master taking apprentice out of county, see Cooper v. Saunders, 1 Hen. & M. 412.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 81, section 12.

Sec. 5311. What court may hear complaint, where minor was bound beyond the State.—If any apprentice, who was bound as such beyond the limits of this State, be brought or come within the same, the circuit or corporation court of the county or city in which he may be, may hear and determine in a summary way any complaint of him or his master, and make such order in the matter as may be right. (Code 1887, § 2594.)

Sec. 5312. Apprentices, who desert, liable for damages.—If an apprentice, bound in this State, desert the service of his master, he shall be liable to the master, notwithstanding his infancy, for all damages sustained by such desertion. (Code 1887, § 2595.)

Sec. 5313. Penalty for harboring or enticing apprentices.—If any person knowingly employ, conceal, or harbor any such apprentice, he shall pay such master three dollars for each day he shall so employ, conceal, or harbor the apprentice, in addition to the damage sustained by the master, and the court or justice, rendering judgment for such offense, may require the person offending to enter into a recognizance to keep the peace and be of good behavior. If any person entice, or, without the consent of the master, take or carry away such apprentice, he shall be fined twenty dollars, to the use of the Commonwealth; and the possession of such apprentice, or his being permitted to remain on the premises, with a knowledge that he is such apprentice, shall be prima facie evidence that the offender knowingly enticed, took, or carried him away. (Code 1887, § 2596.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "prima facie evidence" found in lines three and two from the bottom of the text, are used in lieu of "conclusive evidence."

Sec. 5314. Testamentary guardians.—Every father may by his last will and testament appoint a guardian for the estate of his child born or to be born and for such time during its infancy as he shall direct. Every mother may in like manner by her last will and testament appoint a guardian for the estate of her infant child: Provided such infant has no other duly qualified guardian, and such guardian shall have the custody and control of the estate of said infant. Upon the qualification of a guardian appointed by the mother under the provisions of this section the powers of any guardian of her child appointed otherwise than by the father shall thereupon cease and determine. (Code 1887, § 2597; 1891-2, p. 431.)

Revisors' Note.—As revised, this section is expressly limited to the guardianship of estates. It was sometimes contended, under the section as it stood before the revision, that the section gave the father the power to take the custody of the infant child away from the mother. Such a construction ignored section 2603 of the Code of 1887 (5320 of this Code). When the two were read together it was fairly clear that it was never intended to give the father the power to appoint a testamentary guardian of the person of his infant child to be preferred to the mother.

A provision in a will for the education of the testator's son under the direction of the executors does not constitute such executors testamentary guardians. Kevan v. Waller, 11 Leigh 414, 36 Am. Dec. 391.

which the said will is proved, within six months after the probate thereof, and declare his acceptance of the trust, and give bond as hereinafter provided, such appointment shall be void. (Code 1887, § 2598.)

Sec. 5316. What courts may appoint guardians.—The circuit court of any county or the circuit or corporation court of any city, except the city of Richmond, or judge thereof in vacation, in which any minor resides, or, if he be a resident out of the State, in which he has any estate, may appoint a guardian for him, unless he have a guardian appointed as aforesaid by his father. In the city of Richmond the Chancery Court of said city and judge thereof shall have such power. (Code 1887, § 2599; 1902-3-4, p. 880; 1904, p. 306.)

This section is not to be construed as taking away the jurisdiction of the courts in chancery to make such appointment. Durrett v. Davis 24 Grat. 302.

As to adoption of infants, see section 5333.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 3. See Gregory's Forms 286-7.

Sec. 5317. How appointment made.—If the minor is under the age of fourteen years, the court or judge may nominate and appoint his guardian; if he is above that age, he may, in the presence of the court or judge, or in writing, acknowledged before any officer qualified to take acknowledgments, nominate his own guardian, who, if approved by the court or judge, shall be appointed accordingly; and if the guardian nominated by such minor shall not be appointed by the court or judge, or if the minor reside without the State, or if, after being summoned by the court or judge, he shall neglect to nominate a suitable person, the court or judge may nominate and appoint the guardian in the same manner as if the minor was under the age of fourteen years. (Code 1887, § 2600; 1897-8, p. 933; 1902-3-4, p. 880; 1904, p. 306.)

The mere fact that an infant has arrived at the age of fourteen years does not, of itself, give him the right to have removed his guardian regularly appointed by court, and to have another appointed of his own nomination. Ham v. Ham, 15 Grat. 74.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 4.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 286, 287.

Sec. 5318. Guardians to give bond; judge liable if bond not given, and with good security.—Every guardian, unless, in the case of a testamentary guardian, the will otherwise directs and the court or judge in such case deems it unnecessary for the safety of the ward, shall give bond with good security, to be approved by the court or judge by which he is appointed or in which he accepts the trust in such penalty as shall be prescribed by the court or judge. If any court or judge omit to require such a bond, the judge so in default shall be liable to the ward for any damages he may sustain thereby. (Code 1887, § 2601; 1902-3-4, p. 880; 1904, p. 306.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "with good security" found in line four of the text are new, as are also the words "or judge" found in line five of the text.

For an act authorizing courts, in their discretion, where the amount coming into the hands of personal representatives or guardians does not exceed one hundred dollars, to permit such fiduciaries to qualify by giving bond without surety, and providing that on estates of decedents of one hundred dollars or less in value, there shall be no tax or court cost upon the qualification of a personal representative, see Acts 1918, p. 469.

A bond given by a guardian is not vitiated by the mere fact that the bond itself does not recite the appointment of the guardian. Call v. Ruffin, 1 Call 333.

The taking of a guardian's bond is not a ministerial, but a judicial, duty, and a duty imposed upon the court. It is the function of the court alone to pass upon the sufficiency of security given. The clerk's part in such proceeding is directory merely. He has no discretion. Page v. Taylor, 2 Munf. 492.

Under Code 1819, p. 406, chapter 108, section 5, it was held that judges were not liable for damages for error in judgment, but only for willful misconduct or culpable negligence. Austin v. Richardson, 1 Grat. 310.

Sec. 5319. When court may appoint curator; his bond; powers and duties.—Until a guardian shall have given bond, or while there is no guardian, the court or judge may, from time to time, appoint a curator, who shall give bond as aforesaid, and during the continuance of his trust have all the powers and perform all the duties of a guardian, and be responsible in the same way. (Code 1887, § 2602; 1902-3-4, p. 881; 1904, p. 306.)

As to curators for estates of decedents, see section 5248.

Sec. 5320. Custody and care of wards and their estate; their education and custody of their persons; termination and settlement of trust of guardians.—Every guardian who is appointed as aforesaid, and gives bond when it is required, shall have the custody of his ward, and the possession, care, and management of his estate, real and personal, and out of the proceeds of such estate shall provide for his maintenance and education. But the father of the minor, if living, and in case of his death, the mother, while she remains unmarried, shall, if fit for the trust, be entitled to the custody of the person of the minor, and to the care of his education. If either the father or the mother of an unmarried infant be dead or unable or refuse to take its custody, or has abandoned his or her family, the other shall be entitled to the custody, services and earnings of such infant. Unless the guardian shall sooner die, be removed, or resign his trust, he shall continue in office until the minor, being a male, shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or being a female, shall attain that age, or a receiver be appointed under section fifty-one hundred and thirty-six to hold her property for her, or in the case of a testamentary guardianship, until the termination of the period limited therefor. At the expiration of his trust, he shall deliver and pay all the estate and money in his hands, or with which he is chargeable, to the person entitled to receive the same. (Code 1887, § 2603.)

Revisors' Note.—An act was passed by the General Assembly at its session of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 723) relating to the custody, services and earnings of minor children. The second sentence of that act is substantially the third sentence of the revised section above, and the residue of the act has been omitted and thereby repealed. The words, "or a receiver be appointed under section fifty-one hundred and thirty-six to hold her property for her," found in the fourth sentence of the text, are used in lieu of the words "or marry."

The first sentence of the act of 1916 was omitted because likely to produce controversies over the wages of infants, which could hardly have been the intention of the act, and the third sentence was omitted as unnecessary, because the courts are guided by a consideration for the welfare of the child, and have acted according to this rule for quite a while. See Taylor v. Taylor, 103 Va. 750, 50 S. E. 273, and numerous other cases.

Custody of infants.—Where a person, entitled to the custody of an infant, is claiming to recover it, the court will exercise its discretion as to what will be best for the infant, having due regard to the legal rights of the claimant. A parent may transfer to another the custody of his child, and the court will not renounce that custody an illegal restraint which is held under fair agreement, and is not injurious to the child. Coffee v. Black, 82 Va. 567.

The father being dead, the mother is entitled to the custody of the child as of right, and she does not lose this right by a second marriage. But where she is seeking by habeas corpus to have the child placed in her custody, the court may exercise its discretion, and determine whether, under all the circumstances, it is best for the infant that he should be assigned to the custody of the mother. Armstrong v. Stone, 9 Grat. 102.

As a general rule the father is entitled to the custody and control of his infant child. But the court has discretion in this matter, and will act with an eye to the best interest of the infant. Merritt v. Swimley, 82 Va. 433, 3 Am. St. Rep. 115.

Control of property.—Guardians have no right to convert the personalty of their wards into realty without the previous sanction of a court of chancery. Boisseau v. Boisseau, 79 Va. 73, 52 Am. Rep. 616.

The guardian of an infant husband had the right, as guardian, to reduce into possession the wife's choses in action for the husband. Ware v. Ware's Adm'r, 28 Grat. 670.

The power which a guardian has to sell his ward's personal estate is similar to that an executor has to sell his testator's. Where bank stock stands in the guardian's name the guardian has the right to sell and transfer the stock, and the bank has no right to prevent him from having the stock properly transferred on their books. Bank of Va. v. Craig, 6 Leigh 399.

Testamentary guardian has a legal interest, and is entitled to possession of the ward's land during the guardianship. Truss v. Old, 6 Rand. 556, 18 Am. Dec. 748.

A guardian may lease the ward's land during infancy, if the guardianship so long continue, and may reserve the rent to the infant or himself. In either case payment to guardian would be good. Ross v. Gill, 1 Wash. 87.

As a general rule a guardian has the legal title of the ward's personal estate. An executor transfers a certain bond to a guardian as a part of the ward's estate. The ward's interest in the bond is subject to the guardian's control. The guardian may sue for the bond at law in the name of the executor (who transferred it to him), or he may sell and transfer it. Hunter v. Lawrence's Adm'r, 11 Grat. 111, 62 Am. Dec. 640.

See section 5314 for appointment of testamentary guardians.

Personal liability of guardian.—A guardian is not personally responsible for the support and education of his ward, unless he consents to become bound for them. The fact that a guardian has placed his ward with a third person to be supported and educated does not relieve the ward's estate, although the guardian may have undertaken to pay the ward's expenses. Barnum v. Frost's Adm'r, 17 Grat. 398.

A guardian is entitled to compensation for the support of his wards, although he promised some friends he would not make any charge against them, and although he kept no accounts against them. Armstrong's Heirs v. Walkup, 9 Grat. 372. A guardian should keep separate accounts for his several wards. Id.

Termination.—With the appointment of a second guardian, the guardianship of a first guardian ceases, and with it his liability to pay and receive moneys generally on account of his ward. Walker v. Walker, 2 Wash. 195.

Upon the coming of age or marriage of the ward or the death of the guardian, the guardianship terminates. Armstrong's Heirs v. Walkup, 12 Grat. 608. As to marriage, see above section and revisors' note.

As to resignation of guardians, see section 5419.

Marriage of ward.—After the marriage of a female ward, the guardian continues in possession of her land as agent, and reaps the crop of wheat. The ward then dies, and the guardian sells and delivers the wheat as the husband's property, and takes receipts for it in the husband's name, who, with the guardian's consent, agrees on the price with the purchaser. Held, the wheat was the property of the husband, and the purchaser is liable to him, and not to the guardian, for the price. Guerrant v. Hocker, 7 Leigh 366.

See section 5136, as to property of married female infant.

Settlement of accounts.—See notes to section 5326.

Generally.—For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 7.

See Gregory's Forms No. 23.

Sec. 5321. Disbursements by guardians; in what cases disbursements beyond income allowed.—No disbursements shall be allowed to any guardian, where the deed or will under which the estate is derived does not authorize it, beyond the annual income of the ward's estate, until the court before which the accounts of the guardian may be settled shall authorize the same, and such authority shall not be given except where the court shall be satisfied that such expenditure would be judicious and proper.

Any guardian who may desire to spend more than the annual income of his ward's estate for any purpose, shall file a petition in the court wherein his accounts may be settled, setting forth the reasons why it is necessary to make such expenditure, to which petition his ward or wards shall be defendants. The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the infants, and proceedings on said petition shall otherwise conform in all respects to a bill in chancery, except that the petition may be filed in court upon five days' notice to said infant, and evidence may be taken orally. No attorney's fee shall be taxed in the costs, nor shall there be any writ tax upon said petition. The clerk shall receive a fee of one dollar for all services rendered thereon, to be paid by the guardian out of said estate. The notice required to be served under this section may be served by any person other than the guardian. (Code 1887, § 2604.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is largely new, and is intended to protect the estates of wards to a greater extent than was the case under the former law. It is provided that no guardian shall expend any of the corpus of an estate without first obtaining the consent of the court before which his accounts may be settled. The section prescribes the procedure necessary to obtain this consent. In consequence of the changes made in this section, the latter part of the following section as it stood before the revision has been omitted.

At common law under no circumstances were guardians allowed any expenditures over the income of their wards unless leave of court was first obtained. 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 443; 2 Barton C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 705.

A guardian is to be allowed his disbursements on account of the ward, although they exceed the income of the estate actually in the guardian's hands, provided they do not exceed the income of the ward's whole estate in the hands both of the guardian and of the administrator of the ward's father. Foreman v. Murray, 7 Leigh 412.

Rule of the section as it then stood applied in Hooper v. Royster, 1 Munf. 119; Jackson's Heirs v. Jackson's Adm'r, 1 Grat. 143; Barton v. Bowen, 27 Grat. 849; Cogbill v. Boyd, 77 Va. 455; Sedgwick's Curator v. Taylor, 84 Va. 823, 6 S. E. 226.

Merchant furnishing goods to guardian for ward is not bound to see that the expenditure is proper. Broadus v. Rosson, 3 Leigh 12.

The interest of the ward requires that his guardian should have power to sell his personal estate. But in any exercise of this authority the guardian must, at his peril, act with proper discretion in reference to the ward's interest. Hunter v. Lawrence's Adm'r, 11 Grat. 111, 62 Am. Dec. 640. But see present section and revisors' note.

The guardian may be allowed compensation out of the principal of the ward's personal estate for improvements of ward's real estate where they were plainly beneficial to the ward. Jackson's Heirs v. Jackson's Adm'r, 1 Grat. 143. But see present section and revisors' note.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 8.

Sec. 5322. Sale of personal estate to pay excess allowed beyond income.—When any such disbursements shall be so allowed, the court shall, if necessary, order the sale of such portion of the personal estate of said ward as may be necessary to pay the balance of such expenditures over and above the income of his estate. (Code 1887, § 2605.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to the preceding section.

For cases construing former statutes, see Myers v. Wade, 6 Rand. 444; Hess v. Hess, 108 Va. 483, 62 S. E. 273; cases cited, 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 473.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 9.

Sec. 5323. When guardian to pay compound interest on annual balances.—If any balance, whether of profits received or estimated, or of interest or principal, be due by any guardian, or other person acting as guardian, at the end of any year, which ought to be invested or loaned out within a reasonable time for the benefit of the ward, and the same remain in the hands of such guardian or other person, he shall be charged with interest thereon from the end of the year in which such balance arose, and so on toties quoties during the continuance of the trust. (Code 1887, § 2606.)

The rules of the statute applied in Garrett v. Carr, 1 Rob. 196; Cunningham v. Cunningham, 4 Grat. 43; Jennings v. Jennings, 22 Grat. 313.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 10.

Sec. 5324. May recover compound interest for ward.—Any person acting as guardian shall have the right to demand and recover of any obligor in any bond or the maker of any other instrument in writing payable to him as guardian, and held by him for the benefit of his ward, the principal sum due, and interest thereon compounded annually, semi-annually, or otherwise periodically, as may be stipulated for in such bond or writing. (Code 1887, § 2607.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly this section applied to obligors in bonds only, but apparently gave the guardian the right to recover compound interest where not stipulated for in the writing. The revised section embraces bonds and other instruments in writing, and allows compound interest to be recovered according to the stipulation of the parties.

Sec. 5325. Time within which guardian allowed to invest funds.—Whenever a guardian shall collect any principal or interest belonging to his ward, he shall have sixty days to invest or loan the same, and shall not be charged with interest thereon until the expiration of said time, unless he shall have made the investment or loan previous thereto, in which case, he shall be charged with interest from the time the investment or loan is made. (Code 1887, § 2608.)

Revisors' Note.—This section increases the maximum time limit from thirty days to sixty days.

Guardians were formerly allowed six months in which to make investment. Hooper v. Royster, 1 Munf. 119; Armstrong's Heirs v. Walkup, 12 Grat. 608.

A guardian who receives the money of his wards, and does not invest it, but retains it in his own hands, is to be charged interest thereon from the date of its receipt, and not from the end of the thirty (now sixty) days allowed by the statute to the guardian for making investments. Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 113.

A guardian who has not made investment but has used funds for his own use and has not settled his account is not to be allowed compensation. Jennings v. Jennings, 22 Grat. 313.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 12.

Sec. 5326. Powers of chancery courts over guardians; when they may order sale of real estate of wards for their maintenance and education; mode of proceeding.—The circuit and corporation courts in chancery may hear and determine all matters between guardians and their wards, require settlements of the guardianship accounts, remove any guardian for neglect or breach of trust, and appoint another in his stead, and make any order for the custody and tuition of an infant and the management, preservation and investment of his estate; and when it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of a circuit or corporation court, in chancery, on a bill filed for the purpose by the guardian, that the proper maintenance and education, or other interests of an infant, require that the proceeds of his real estate, beyond the annual income thereof, should be applied to the use of said infant, it shall be lawful for the court to order the sale of his real estate, or such part thereof as may be necessary for the purpose, and, from time to time, make such decrees and orders as may be proper to secure the due application of the proceeds; and to the extent that the proceeds may be so applied they shall be deemed personal estate, but no further. Every bill filed under this section and the proceedings thereon shall conform to the provisions of chapter two hundred and seventeen, so far as those provisions relate to the sale of the real estate of an infant. (Code 1887, § 2609.)

Jurisdiction.—Guardian is liable in a court in this State for funds recovered from sale of real estate in another State and brought into this State. Rinker v. Streit, 33 Grat. 663.

A court of equity has jurisdiction of all claims against a ward's estate. Barnum v. Frost's Adm'r, 17 Grat. 398.

The general rule is that a guardian cannot be sued as such out of the jurisdiction in which he qualified. But if a non-resident guardian invokes the aid of a domestic court, he is bound by the decrees made in the proceeding instituted by him, and if found within the jurisdiction of said court he may be proceeded against therein to enforce such decrees. Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 410, 21 S. E. 818.

A court of equity has not authority under its general jurisdiction as guardian of infants to sell their real estate whenever it is for the advantage of the infant to do so. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698.

Power of removal.—The discretion vested in the courts in regard to the appointment and removal of guardians is a large one, and a guardian is properly removed where his actions savor of negligence and of lack of regard for the best interest of his ward. Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 112.

Practice.—In a case where there are mutual accounts, a reference to a commissioner of the court should precede the decree. Bland v. Wyatt, 1 Hen. & M. 543.

The record in a former suit is admissible evidence to establish the amount of indebtedness of the guardian in a suit to settle his accounts. Morrison's Ex'r v. Householder's Adm'r, 79 Va. 627; Roberts v. Colvin, 3 Grat. 358; Hooper v. Royster, 1 Munf. 119.

An infant may by his next friend call the acting guardian or any preceding guardian to account by a bill in chancery. But the bill must be in his own name by his next friend. Lemon v. Hansbarger, 6 Grat. 301. See, also, notes to section 5321.

Accounts of guardians.—Cases concerning the settlement of, Tabb v. Boyd, 4 Call 453; Foreman v. Murray, 7 Leigh 412; Cunningham v. Cunningham, 4 Grat. 43; Evans v. Pearce, 15 Grat. 513, 78 Am. Dec. 635; Lincoln's Adm'rs v. Stern, 23 Grat. 816; Barton v. Bowen, 27 Grat. 849; Smith v. Blackwell, 31 Grat. 291; Dobyns v. Rawley, 76 Va. 537; Stigler's Ex'x v. Stigler, 77 Va. 163; Peale's Adm'r v. Thurmond, Id. 753; Elliott's Adm'r v. Howell, 78 Va. 297; Thurston's Adm'r v. Sinclair, 79 Va. 101.

Where there are several wards, separate accounts should be kept. Armstrong's Heirs v. Walkup, 9 Grat. 372.

Accounts as guardian should be kept separate from those as executor. Hannah's Adm'r v. Boyd, 25 Grat. 692.

Previous consent of court is necessary where guardian would apply any part of his ward's principal to his education or support. If the ward's expenses for necessaries exceeds his annual income until he becomes old enough to render service, and if when he arrives at that age his services are equal to his support, the surplus of the expenditure during the former period ought to be set off against the income of his estate during the latter period, until he arrives at the age of twenty-one. Myers v. Wade, 6 Rand. 444.

It is the duty of a guardian, whose power as such is revoked, to account to his wards, or to his successor as guardian, if there be one, for their estate, including evidences of claims which may have come to his hands. Sage v. Hammonds, 27 Grat. 651.

Credits allowed guardian.—A guardian is entitled to credit for material for necessary repairs to ward's houses, even though he may not be able to designate the particular houses to which the repairs were applied. Newton v. Poole, 12 Leigh 116.

A guardian, although he has said he does not intend to charge his wards board, may yet charge them for the same and for clothing, although the wards were required to work as children are required to work. Armstrong's Heirs v. Walkup, 12 Grat. 608; 2 Barton C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 708.

If guardian is the father he will not be allowed for their board unless he is unable to provide for them. Griffith v. Bird, 22 Grat. 73.

Settlement of accounts as soon as ward becomes of age, especially before he is in possession of his estate, are viewed by a court of equity with a watchful and jealous eye. Baylor v. Fulkerson's Ex'rs. 96 Va. 265, 31 S. E. 63. See, also, Shackelford v. Newbill, 2 Pat. & H. 232; Waller v. Armistead's Adm'rs, 2 Leigh 11, 21 Am. Dec. 594.

Long and unexplained acquiescence in a settlement between guardian and ward is an effectual bar to proceedings to impeach it. Baylor v. Fulkerson's Ex'rs, 96 Va. 265, 31 S. E. 63.

Where a compromise of a suit to settle a deceased guardian's accounts has been ratified by a decree of court, and acquiesced in for eleven years, it will not be set aside except upon the clearest proof of fraud, misrepresentation, concealment, or mutual mistake. Epes v. Williams' Adm'r, 2 Va. Dec. 485, 27 S. E. 427.

Where a guardian leases his ward's property to himself at a certain rental, and settles with her after age, such acquiescence on the ward's part bars her from setting up a claim for twice as great a rental on the ground that the actual profits were twice as great. Paxton v. Gamewell, 82 Va. 706, 1 S. E. 92.

Misconduct of guardian.—Cases concerning, Walker v. Walker, 2 Wash. 195; Brown v. Brown's Adm'x, Id. 151; Bank of Va. v. Craig, 6 Leigh 399; Broadus v. Rosson, 3 Leigh 12; Hunter v. Lawrence's Adm'r, 11 Grat. 111, 62 Am. Dec. 640; Ergenbright v. Ammon's Adm'r, 26 Grat. 490; Crawford v. Shover, 29 Grat. 69; Snavely v. Harkrader, Id. 112; Asberry's Adm'r v. Asberry's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 463; Dobyns v. Rawley, 76 Va. 537; Burwell v. Burwell's Guardian, 78 Va. 574; Elliott's Adm'r v. Howell, Id. 297.

Use of corpus of real estate will in no case be ratified.—Authority to apply the proceeds of the sale of infant's real estate to maintenance and education must be given by the court in advance. Whitehead v. Bradley, 87 Va. 676, 13 S. E. 195; Rinker v. Streit, 33 Grat. 663; Gayle v. Hayes' Adm'r, 79 Va. 542; Harkrader v. Bonham, 88 Va. 247, 16 S. E. 159. See, also, section 5321.

Generally.—The statutes in relation to the sale of infant's lands are remedial in their nature, and should be construed liberally. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698.

Sale of infant's land for reinvestment, section 5335.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 13.

Sec. 5327. Where husband and wife live in state of separation, court may award custody of minor child to mother.—When any husband and wife shall live in a state of separation, without being divorced, and shall have a minor child or children of the marriage, the circuit court of the county, or the circuit or corporation court of the corporation, in which such child or children may be, or the judge thereof in vacation, may, in the discretion of such court or judge, upon the petition of the mother, award to her the custody and control of such child or children for such time, under such regulations and restrictions, and with such provisions and directions, as the case may require, and will best promote the welfare of such child or children; and such court or judge, in the enforcement of its orders, may direct its officer to take possession of such child or children and dispose of them as it may direct. (Code 1887, § 2610.)

The father is the natural guardian of his infant children, and has paramount right to their custody, but the right to the custody of his children is not like the right of property, an absolute and unconditional right. In controversies between parents over the custody of their infant children, the paramount consideration is the welfare of the children, and wide discretion rests with the court as to what is best for their welfare. Taylor v. Taylor, 103 Va. 750, 50 S. E. 273.

The father is the legal custodian of the minor children, and they will not be taken from his custody without the strongest reasons therefor; and this right is not affected by the voluntary separation of the parties. Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 307.

As to custody of children in case of divorce, see section 5111.

Sec. 5328. Where child in custody of father, court may make order for access of mother to child.—Such court, or judge thereof in vacation, upon the petition of the mother of such minor child or children, being in the sole custody of the father, or of any one by his authority, or of any guardian of such child or children, the father being dead, may make an order or orders for the access of the mother to such minor child or children, at such times, and subject to such regulations and restrictions, as may be just and proper. (Code 1887, § 2611.)

Where a wife's application for divorce had been refused, and she was the chief obstacle in the way of a reconciliation, and the husband was entitled to the custody of the child, the court refused to compel him to have the child at certain places and certain times to gratify the wishes and feelings of the mother. Latham v. Latham, 30 Grat. 307.

Sec. 5329. Notice to be given of application by mother; court may afterwards modify or annul order.—No such order or orders, touching the custody of such child or children, or the access of the mother thereto, shall be made, except upon reasonable notice to the father, or other person having the custody of such child or children; and, at any time after making such order or orders, the court or judge thereof in vacation, may, for good cause shown, vary, modify, or annul the same. (Code 1887, § 2612.)

Sec. 5330. Provisions governing said proceedings.—The provisions of sections fifty-eight hundred and fifty-four, fifty-eight hundred and fifty-five and fifty-eight hundred and fifty-six, shall apply to any proceedings had or orders made under the three preceding sections. (Code 1887, § 2613.)

Sec. 5331. How infants may sue.—Any minor entitled to sue may do so by his next friend. (Code 1887, § 2614.)

Infant plaintiff.—A minor entitled to bring an action should do so in his own name, by his guardian or next friend, and error in this respect was formerly fatal, even after the general verdict for the plaintiff. Stewart v. Crabbin's Guardian, 6 Munf. 280.

A guardian is not authorized to file a bill in his own name to obtain possession of his ward's estate, but must file it in the name of the ward, by his next friend. Lemon v. Hansbarger, 6 Grat. 301; Sillings v. Bumgardner, 9 Grat. 273.

A man who is made a "next friend" to an infant, without his knowledge or consent, was not disqualified from being a witness. Burwell v. Corbin, 1 Rand. 131, 10 Am. Dec. 494.

See Lile's Notes on 1 Min., p. 105.

Infant defendant.—In a suit against an infant, it is not sufficient to make the infant a party defendant merely "by his guardian." The party defendant must appear to be the infant by his guardian ad litem. Brown v. McRea's Ex'rs, 4 Munf. 439. See section 6098.

Generally.—Where Christian names of infants were omitted it was held no error. Where the infant's name is joined with his mother it is sufficient, without saying that he sues by his next friend. Wilson and wife v. Smith, 22 Grat. 493.

Cited but not construed in Langston v. Bassette, 104 Va. 47, 51 S. E. 218.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 82, section 14.

Sec. 5332. Approval of compromises on behalf of infants in suits to which they are parties.—In any action or suit wherein an infant, idiot or lunatic is a party, the court in which the same is pending shall have the power to approve and confirm a compromise of the matters in controversy on behalf of such infant, idiot or lunatic, if said compromise shall be deemed to be to the interest of the infant, idiot or lunatic; and any order or decree approving and confirming any such compromise shall be binding upon such infant, idiot or lunatic, except that the same may be set aside for fraud; and any such infant shall not be allowed to attack and set aside any such order or decree, unless he shall proceed so to do within six months after coming of age. (1908, p. 551.)

Sec. 5333. To legalize the adoption of minor children by adult persons.—A resident of this State who is not married, or a husband and wife (residents of this State) jointly, may petition the circuit court of the county, or the circuit or corporation court of the city in which they reside, for leave to adopt a minor child not theirs by birth, who is a resident of this State, and for a change of the name of such child; but a written consent must be given to such adoption by the child if of the age of fourteen years and by each of his or her living parents who is not hopelessly insane or habitually intemperate or has not abandoned such child; or if there are no such parents or if the parents are unknown or have abandoned such child or if they are hopelessly insane or habitually intemperate, then by the legal guardian; or if there be no such guardian, then by a discreet and suitable person appointed by the court to act in the proceedings as the next friend of such child; but if such parents or guardian join in said petition it shall be deemed such consent in writing.

When the foregoing provisions are complied with if the court is satisfied of the ability of the petitioner to bring up and educate the child properly, having reference to the degree and condition of the child's parents and the fitness and propriety of such adoption, it shall make an order setting forth the facts and declaring that from that date such child, to all legal intents and purposes, is the child of the petitioner and that its name is thereby changed.

The natural parents shall, by such order, be divested of all legal rights and obligations in respect to the child and the child be free from all legal obligations of obedience and maintenance in respect to them; such child shall be, to all intents and purposes, the child and heir at law of the person so adopting him or her, entitled to all the rights and privileges and subject to all the obligations of a child of such person begotten in lawful wedlock; but on the decease of such person and the subsequent decease of such adopted child without issue the property of such adopting parent still undisposed of shall descend to his or her next of kin and not to the next of kin of such adopted child. At any time after the order of the court permitting such adoption and change of name, the parent or parents of such minor child, or the child itself, if twenty-one years of age, and if not twenty-one years of age, then by its next friend, or the adopting parent or parents, may petition the court which entered such order of adoption to vacate the same and terminate the adoption and restore the former name. And the court shall hear evidence for and against such petition, and if from such evidence it appears that a termination of such adoption and restoration of name is manifestly right and proper, and especially if it be for the best interests of the child, the court shall vacate said order of adoption and change of name, and thereupon such child shall be restored to the identical position and name it held before such order of adoption. But before the court acts upon such petition, ten days' notice in writing shall be given to the person or persons who had been permitted to adopt said child; and if said petition be filed by the next friend of said child, or by its parent or parents, and said child be over fourteen years of age, the court shall require said child to appear before it and ascertain its wishes in the matter, though the court need not be controlled thereby. And the court shall see that all the property rights of such child, as well as of the person or persons adopting it, are protected, and may make such order as may be proper in the premises so that no injustice may be done (1893-4, p. 75; 1910, p. 466.)

Revisors' Note.—Under this section as revised, all of the parties must be residents of this State. Provision is made for annulling the adoption BY THE ADOPTING PARENT OR PARENTS, as well as in the other cases mentioned in the act. On the petition the court is to hear evidence both for and against the same, "and if from such evidence it appears that a termination of such adoption and restoration of name is manifestly right and proper, and especially if it be for the best interests of the child, the court shall vacate said order of adoption," etc.

As to the effect of this section upon section 5242, concerning pretermitted children, and upon section 5259, concerning probate of will, see Bell v. Jones (Corporation Court of Lynchburg), 9 Va. Law Reg. 1070.

A decree construing a will to be valid is not in favor of an infant adopted son of testatrix, who would, if the will was invalid, take the whole estate, and failure to appoint a guardian ad litem in such case is a reversible error. Langston v. Bassette, 104 Va. 47, 51 S. E. 218.

Under Act 1901-2, p. 126, section 8, the Children's Home Society of Virginia is declared to be the legal guardian of all children committed to its care, and as such may give its consent to adoption. No other consent is necessary.

A parent may transfer to another the custody of his child, and the court will not declare that custody an illegal restraint, which is held under fair agreement, and is not injurious to the child. Coffee v. Black, 82 Va. 567.

TITLE 49.

Leasing and Selling Lands of Persons Under Disabilities.

CHAPTER 217.

Leasing the Lands of Infants or Insane Persons, and the Sale of Their Lands or Those Held for the Benefit of Others.

Sec.
5334. How leases on behalf of persons under disability may be made.
5335. By whom bill may be filed for sale of lands of such persons, or lands held in trust; what to state; how verified; who to be made defendants.
5336. To prevent the abatement of suits brought under the preceding section, and to revive those which have abated.
5337. Guardian ad litem to be appointed.
5338. To validate sales of certain infants' lands.
5339. How depositions to be taken.
5340. When and for what decree for sale, lease, encumbrance or exchange may be made; court to ascertain value before encumbrance is made and secure excess to trustee; rents and profits to be first applied.
5341. Who not to be a purchaser, nor interested with lessee.
5342. How proceeds of sale or income to be secured and applied; when same may be paid over.
5343. To authorize courts to pay money to infants entitled thereto or to their parents, in certain cases, without the intervention of a guardian.
5344. Wife of insane or infant husband may convey her own estate or release her dower in lands so sold.
5345. Same right in proceeds of sale to be secured to her or compensation made.
5346. How right of dower of insane wife and curtesy of insane husband may be passed; same rights in purchase money to be secured to her or to him, or compensation made.
5347. What proceeds of sale to pass as real estate.

Sec. 5334. How leases on behalf of persons under disability may be made.—Where an infant or insane person is entitled to or bound to renew any lease, any person on behalf of such infant or insane person, or any person interested, may apply by petition or motion in a summary way to the circuit court of the county or circuit or corporation court of the corporation in which the land leased, or some part thereof, may lie, and by the order of the said court any person appointed by it may, from time to time, surrender or accept a surrender of such lease, or take or make a new lease of the same premises for such term and with such provisions as the court shall direct. Such reasonable sums as may be incurred to renew any such lease shall, with interest thereon, be paid out of the profits of the leasehold premises, and be a charge thereon till such payment. (Code 1887, § 2615; 1899-00, p. 770.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "on behalf of such infant or insane person," found in lines two and three of the text, are used in lieu of "on his own or her behalf." A reference to this section in the Code of 1849, chapter 128, section 1, p. 535, makes it clear that this is what was meant.

By the amendment of 1899-00, p. 770 this section of the Code of 1887 was changed so as to eliminate married women. For other legislation as to the property rights of married women, see 6 Va. Law Reg. 52, and chapter 207 of the Code.

The statutes of this State recognize the inviolability of trust estates from lease or sale unless the interests of the cestuis que trustent will be promoted thereby, and unless "the rights of no person will be violated." Schroeder v. Woodward, 116 Va. 506, 82 S. E. 192.

As to section generally, see Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 587; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 769; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1369.

Discussed, 10 Va. Law J. 7, 129.

Sec. 5335. By whom bill may be filed for sale of lands of such persons, or lands held in trust; what to state; how verified; who to be made defendants.—If the guardian of any infant, or the committee of any insane person, or the trustee or trustees of any estate, whether he or they be interested with others or not, think that the interest of the infant, insane person, or of those for whom the estate is held will be promoted by a sale of his or their estate, in whole or in part; or

By an exchange of his or their real estate for other real estate; or

By encumbering such real estate for the purpose of borrowing money to be used to erect buildings or other improvements on the same; or

If such guardian, committee, trustee or trustees, person or persons interested in any estate in trust, think that the interest of such infant, insane person, or persons for whom such estate is held will be promoted by the sale of the timber, coal, oil, gas, and minerals on or in his real estate; or

By a lease of such real estate, or any part thereof, for a term of years; or

By a lease of the coal, oil, gas and minerals thereof, or of any or either of them,

Such guardian, committee, trustee or trustees, or beneficiary or beneficiaries, whether the estate of the infant, insane person, or of any of the persons interested, be absolute or limited, and whether there be or be not limited thereon any other estate, vested or contingent, and whether the guardian, committee, trustee or trustees, or the infant or insane person, or any of the persons interested, reside in this State or not, may, for the purpose of obtaining such sale, exchange, or encumbrance, or making such lease, file a bill in equity in the circuit court of the county or the circuit or corporation court of the corporation in which the estate proposed to be sold, exchanged, encumbered, or leased, or some part thereof, may be, stating plainly all the estate, real or personal, belonging to such infant or insane person, or so held in trust, and all the facts calculated to show the propriety of the sale, exchange, encumbrance, or lease.

The bill shall be verified by the oath of the plaintiff, and the infant or insane person, or the beneficiary or beneficiaries in such trust, and the trustee or trustees (when not plaintiff or plaintiffs), and all others interested, shall be made defendants; and also, where there are one or more infant or insane defendants, all those who would be their heirs or distributees if all of such infant or insane defendants were dead. (Code 1887, § 2616; 1887-8, pp. 239, 503; 1901-2, p. 594; 1902-3-4, p. 842.)

Revisors' Note.—The phraseology of this section has been considerably changed with no intention to change the sense. The change in the language of the last paragraph is to settle a disputed interpretation thereof. See 11 Va. L. Reg. 57, 223, and 247. It would seem that the infant should have some adult next of kin to represent his interest.

Statute Remedial—Substantial compliance with procedure.—This section is highly remedial, and must receive a liberal construction to enhance the remedy. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 309, 10 Va. Law Reg. 786, 49 S. E. 70; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Vaughan v. Jones, 23 Grat. 456; Garland v. Loving, 1 Rand. 396; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1367; Barton, C. Pr. (2d. Ed.) 589.

The rule requiring liberal construction of statutes for the sale of lands of persons under disability, has reference rather to subjects to be sold than to the procedure. The statutes as to procedure must be substantially complied with. Coleman v. Va. Stave Co., 112 Va. 61, 70 S. E. 545.

If a suit for the sale of lands of an insane person be brought under this section then the requirements of the other sections of this chapter must be substantially complied with. Wheeler v. Thomas, 116 Va. 259, 81 S. E. 51.

This chapter is not substantially complied with when it is not averred what other lands the infants own and no proof is adduced as to the propriety of sale. Ex parte affidavits are no evidence as to the propriety of sale. Coleman v. Va. Stave Co., 112 Va. 61, 70 S. E 545.

This chapter corresponds to chapter 117 of the Code of 1887, and it was held under that chapter that if its provisions were not substantially complied with, a decree directing the sale of the infants' lands was utterly void and of no effect. Furthermore, that section 3425 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to section 6306 of this Code) gave no protection to a purchaser who had bought land under a void decree, although the sale was made more than six months from the date of the decree. Brenham v. Smith, 120 Va. 30, 90 S. E. 657. For a material change in section 6306 made by the present revision, see that section and revisors' note.

For case conforming with the requirements of the statute, see Palmer v. Garland's Committee, 81 Va. 444. For circumstances justifying private sales, see Id., and Hess v. Rader, 26 Grat. 749.

For decree rendered upon "a substantial, if not a literal, compliance with the statute," see Payne v. Morriss, 1 Va. Dec. 665, 5 S. E. 568.

For proceedings irregular under this section, see Brown v. Putney, 90 Va. 447, 18 S. E. 883.

Jurisdiction of equity courts.—The doctrine in this State is well settled that courts of equity have no inherent power, as guardians of infants, to sell their real estate for the purpose of reinvestment: the obvious purpose of the statute under which these proceedings are had, is to invest those courts with that jurisdiction in respect to estates of all persons under disability. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 305, 49 S. E. 70, 10 Va. Law Reg. 793, note. They have no general authority. Coleman v. Va. Stave Co., 112 Va. 61, 70 S. E. 545; see, also, Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Pierce's Adm'r v. Trigg's Heirs, 10 Leigh 406; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1364; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 589. For history of the statute giving this jurisdiction to the courts of equity, see Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 664 et seq., 98 Am. Dec. 698.

Under this section, where the court acquires jurisdiction both of the parties and of the subject matter of litigation, its decree, although erroneous, is conclusive until reversed or set aside. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 365, 10 Va. Law Reg. 786, 793, and note, 49 S. E. 70.

Parties.—In case of sale of ward's real estate, the bill must be filed by the guardian, and cannot be filed by the wards through their next friend. Snavely v. Harkraker, 29 Grat. 129.

When a father and mother hold lands in trust for their infant children, a bill filed against the infants in the names of the father and mother in their own right, and as trustees for such infants, is sufficient compliance with the statute as to parties. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251.

The fact that the infants were plaintiffs with their mother instead of being made defendants is no objection to the proceeding in the suit for a sale of the land. Quesenberry v. Barbour, 31 Grat. 491.

A suit under this section cannot be brought by the next friend of an insane person, but must be brought by his committee. Wheeler v. Thomas, 116 Va. 259, 81 S. E. 51.

A guardian may file a bill for the sale of the real estate of his infant children, held by himself for life and by his children in remainder. Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Grat. 551. See, also, Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 589.

As to representation of parties, see, also, Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, footnote, Va. Rep. Anno.; 98 Am. Dec. 698; also 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 238; also Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Grat. 551; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1359.

Pleadings.—The sale of infant's lands must be made in a suit brought under this section, and not in a suit brought to remove guardian and other purposes. Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 112.

As to effect of failure to aver suit brought as guardian, see Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Grat. 551; Zirkle v. McCue, 26 Grat. 517, 525.

Where a female infant defendant has answered by her guardian ad litem and in proper person, failure to proceed against her in her own proper person after her majority, or against her husband as codefendant after her marriage, will not necessarily be error. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251. See section 5336.

Affidavit.—The better practice is for the certificate to show on its face that the bill was sworn to by the plaintiffs; but where the affidavit to the bill merely recited "sworn to before me," and it was proved by evidence aliunde that the bill was signed by the plaintiffs and duly sworn to by each before the officer making his certificate, that was a sufficient compliance with the statute. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251.

The bill may be sworn to any time before the sale of the land is ordered. Durrett v. Davis, 24 Grat. 302.

The decree recites that cause was heard upon answer of guardian ad litem. It will be presumed to have been sworn to. Durrett v. Davis, 24 Grat. 302.

Propriety of making sale.—The inquiry is (1) whether the sale is for the benefit of the infants; (2) whether the right of other parties will be violated; (3) whether the sale is prohibited by the will or other instrument creating the estate in the infants. Garland v. Loving, 1 Rand. 400; Talley v. Starke's Adm'x, 6 Grat. 339; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 661, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Palmer v. Garland's Committee, 81 Va. 444; Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1367; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 422.

In suit brought under this statute, a conditional sale made before the suit was brought may be approved and confirmed by the court, as well as a sale directed, but in either case it must be clearly shown as a condition precedent to such confirmation or order of sale independently of any admissions in the answers that the interests of the infants, etc., will be promoted thereby. Smith v. White, 107 Va. 616, 59 S. E. 480.

The propriety of making a sale under this section cannot be determined by ex parte affidavits. Smith v. White, 107 Va. 616, 59 S. E. 480.

The commissioner; his report.—The report of the commissioner, to whom a case has been referred to take evidence and report upon the propriety of a sale of infant's land, is not one which section 6186 requires to lie ten days before being acted upon. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251.

Same person may act as commissioner to take accounts in suit and as guardian ad litem of the infant. Durrett v. Davis, 24 Grat. 302.

Right to show cause against decree.—The right of an infant to show cause against a decree which affects his interests after he arrives at age must be limited to causes existing at the rendition of the decree, and not such as arose afterwards. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 623, 24 S. E. 251; Walker's Ex'r v. Page, 21 Grat. 636; Durrett v. Davis, 24 Grat. 302; Zirkle v. McCue, 26 Grat. 517.

Estoppel of infant.—Where the name of an infant defendant was signed to the answer in her absence by her mother, and was never sworn to by said infant defendant, but she knew of the suit, and became of age six months after suit was brought and sixteen months before the sale, and made no objection thereto, she is estopped from objecting to the sale as against bona fide purchasers. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 625, 24 S. E. 251. See, also, Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Grat. 551; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 590.

Although proceedings instituted under this section are irregular, yet where the minors, after reaching majority, file amended pleadings requesting the sale of the property, they are equitably estopped from objecting to the validity of the sale. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 305, 49 S. E. 70, 10 Va. Law Reg. 786, 793 and note.

Bona fide purchasers protected by section 6306.—Section 6306, in regard to judicial sales applies to sales of lands of infants made in suits brought under this section. Lancaster v, Barton, 92 Va. 615, 626, 24 S. E. 251; Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Grat. 551; Dixon v. McCue's Adm'x, 21 Grat. 373, 380; Quesenberry v. Barbour, 31 Grat. 491, 500; Garland v. Pamplin, 32 Grat. 305, 320; also note on Judicial Sales, Walker's Ex'r v. Page, 21 Grat. 636. Va. Rep. Anno. As to purchasers under void decrees, see note of Brenham v. Smith, found in the first subdivision of these notes. The present revision makes an important change in section 6306, as to which see that section and revisors' note.

What interest may be sold.—Under the act of 1852-53, p. 49 (from which this section in main was taken), and the previous acts, courts of equity had authority to sell the land in which infants had an interest, whether in possession or remainder, vested or contingent, if the proper parties could be brought before the courts. Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698.

Construction of will not necessary.—This section does not require as a prerequisite that the will under which the lands are held shall be construed before a sale is ordered. Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251.

Notwithstanding the direction of testator in his will that he wishes his property to be kept together till his youngest child becomes of age, a court of equity may under this section direct a sale of the real estate, if it is for the benefit of the infant children and those who are of age consent. Talley v. Starke's Adm'x, 6 Grat. 340; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 672, 98 Am. Dec. 698. See Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 589, 590.

Trustee incompetent—Court may execute trust.—Where the trustee, in consequence of his intemperate habits, or for other reasons, is incompetent to execute the trust, it is eminently proper for the court to do so through its commissioner. Payne v. Morriss, 1 Va. Dec. 665, 5 S. E. 568; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 651, 98 Am. Dec. 698.

Generally.—Neither this section nor any section of this chapter authorizes the sale of infant's real estate, or any part of it, for his maintenance and education. Rinker v. Streit, 33 Grat. 663, 667. For such authorization, see section 5326.

In a suit in equity, brought under this section for the sale of lands of persons under disability, it is the practice to sell or exchange the absolute estate, in place of which the proceeds of sale, or the subject in which they are invested, or for which the property is exchanegd, are held upon the same trusts and subject to the same limitations as the original. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 305, 49 S. E. 70, 10 Va. Law Reg. 793, note.

Infants cannot consent to a sale of land, and the guardian cannot consent for them. Daingerfield v. Smith, 83 Va. 81, 1 S. E. 509.

Sec. 5336. To prevent the abatement of suits brought under th preceding section, and to revive those which have abated.—No suit heretofore or hereafter instituted under the preceding section shall abate by reason of the death of the infant, insane person, or other persons beneficially interested, after a lease, sale, or encumbrance has been made in pursuance of a decree in such suit, but the same shall be continued in the name of the original plaintiff until final decree, the court causing such new parties to be made as may appear necessary or proper by reason of the death of such decedent.

Any suit heretofore instituted under the preceding section which has abated by the death or marriage of the ward, may be revived by motion before the court in which the said suit was pending at the time of the abatement, or before the judge of said court in vacation, upon reasonable notice to all parties interested. The said motion may be made by any person who was a party to the said suit, or the purchaser, lessee or mortgagee of any estate sold, leased or encumbered under decrees in such suit prior to said abatement, and when made by a woman who marries while a minor and who is a minor at the time of said motion the said motion shall be made by her next friend. And if the said court or judge thereof in vacation think it proper that said suit should be revived, an order shall be entered reviving the same, and the said cause shall proceed in the name of the original plaintiff until final decree as if said death or marriage had not taken place.

Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to authorize a decree for the sale, lease or encumbrance of such estate to be entered, or a sale of such estate made, after the death of an infant or insane person in whose interest the suit was brought. (1891-2, p. 551.)

Revisors' Note.—This section now applies to all suits under section 5335, and is not restricted as formerly to suits by guardians and by them only where the suit was for A SALE. Marriage does not now abate a suit (section 6166), hence as to FUTURE abatements this provision appearing in the act has been omitted; but it has not been eliminated as to past abatements, because some of the courts may have directed such abatement.

Sec. 5337. Guardian ad litem to be appointed.—To every infant or insane defendant there shall be appointed a guardian ad litem, who, as well as the infant (if over fourteen years of age), shall answer the bill on oath in proper person. But if such infant over fourteen years of age shall be beyond the limits of the Commonwealth, or is insane or confined in any reformatory or prison, no answer shall be required from him in proper person. (Code 1887, § 2618; 1904, p. 117.)

A guardian ad litem for the infants may be appointed at rules. Talley v. Starke's Adm'x, 6 Grat. 339.

The failure of guardian ad litem to file answer is ground for setting aside decree for sale of infants' land. Ewing's Adm'r v. Ferguson's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 548.

See Lancaster v. Barton, 92 Va. 615, 24 S. E. 251, cited in notes to section 5335, under "Pleadings."

Where infant is over fourteen, three answers are necessary. (1) The infant's, (2) guardian's, and (3) the infant's by guardian, under the general rules of chancery practice.

Sec. 5338. To validate sales of certain infants' lands.—No deed acquired by a bona fide purchaser under a suit brought prior to February third, nineteen hundred, for the sale of any interest in real estate owned by an infant under fourteen years of age, shall be deemed invalid because the guardian ad litem failed to file both an answer in proper person and an answer for the infant by his guardian ad litem, if it appears that a guardian ad litem for such infant was duly appointed, and that he filed either of said answers, and that the interests of the infant in other respects were fully protected by his guardian ad litem, and the proceedings were fairly and honestly conducted without suspicion of any attempt to injure or defraud such infant. (1899-00, p. 275.)

Revisors' Note.—See, also Acts 1918, chapter 241, p. 424.

Sec. 5339. How depositions to be taken.—No deposition shall be read in any suit against any infant or insane party, whether brought under this chapter or not, unless it be taken in the presence of the guardian ad litem, or upon interrogatories agreed on by him. (Code 1887, § 2619.)

Revisors' Note.—Sections 2435 and 2619 of the Code of 1887 are identical in language, and were construed in Moore v. Triplett, 2 Va. Dec. 238, 23 S. E. 69. The present Code omits and repeals the former section and enlarges the meaning of the latter so as to make it applicable to ALL suits against infant or insane parties, WHETHER BROUGHT UNDER THIS CHAPTER OR NOT. This is a decided change in the law, but the revisors deemed it advisable

Prior to the present revision it was held that this section did not apply to ordinary suits where infants are parties. Moore v. Triplett, 2 Va. Dec. 238, 23 S. E. 69.

This section not complied with in Brown v. Putney, 90 Va. 454, 18 S. E. 883.

Sec. 5340. When and for what decree for sale, lease, encumbrance or exchange may be made; court to ascertain value before encumbrance is made and secure excess to trustee; rents and profits to be first applied.—If it be clearly shown, independently of any admissions in the answers, that the interests of the infant, insane person, or beneficiaries in the trust, as the case may be, will be promoted, and the court is of opinion that the rights of no person will be violated thereby, it may decree a sale of said estate, or of any part thereof; or, if it be real estate, an exchange of the whole or any part thereof, for other real estate, or a sale or exchange of timber, coal, oil, gas, and minerals thereof, or any or either of them, or a lease of such real estate, or of any part thereof, or a lease of the coal, oil, gas, and minerals thereof, or of any or either of them, for such term of years as the court may deem proper, taking for the purchase money, in case of a sale on credit, ample security; and if the sale be of real estate, retaining a lien thereon; or the court may decree that the real estate may be encumbered for the purpose of borrowing money to be used to erect buildings or other improvements on said real estate upon such terms and conditions as may appear proper.

In case of a lease on such real estate, or a lease of the coal, oil, gas, and minerals thereof, or of any or either of them, the contract of lease proposed to be executed by such guardian, committee, trustee or trustees shall, before being executed, be submitted to and approved by said circuit or corporation court.

If a decree is sought to encumber real estate by borrowing money to be used in erecting buildings or other improvements on same, the court shall first ascertain the present cash value of the real estate so sought to be encumbered, and so provide in its decree that, in event of a sale to pay off the amount of money borrowed, said value so ascertained (without interest) shall be preserved and paid over to the trustee or trustees, guardian, or committee, or to such person or persons as may at the time of the sale be authorized to receive it, and the surplus, or so much thereof as may be necessary, after paying costs of sale, and the said value of the real estate so ascertained, shall be applied to the payment of the lien so created; and in all cases where such property is encumbered as herein provided for, the rents and profits arising from the improvements placed on such real estate shall first be applied to the payment of the interest accruing upon the money so borrowed; and in event the life tenant shall fail to pay such accruing interest, the court may take charge of such property and sell or rent the same, as to it may appear proper.

Any exchange of lands decreed or ordered by court prior to March fifth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, shall be as valid as if such exchange had been so decreed or ordered after said date. (Code 1887, § 2620; 1887-8, pp. 240, 504; 1901-2, p. 594; 1902-3-4, p. 843.)

The act of 1887-8, p. 504, amending this section, did not validate such exchanges as were made contrary to law. Brown v. Putney, 90 Va. 454, 18 S. E. 883.

When the sale is not prohibited by the will or other instrument creating the estate in the person under disability, the inquiry is (1) whether the sale is for the benefit of the infants; (2) whether the rights of any person will be violated. Garland v. Loving, 1 Rand. 400; Talley v. Starke's Adm'x, 6 Grat. 339; Faulkner v. Davis, 18 Grat. 661, 98 Am. Dec. 698; Palmer v. Garland's Committee, 81 Va. 444. Court may confirm sale already made. Id., 81 Va. 444.

See notes to section 5335; also Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 588; Gregory's Forms Nos. 145, 336.

Sec. 5341. Who not to be a purchaser, nor interested with lessee. —At such sale neither the guardian, guardian ad litem, committee, trustee, nor lessee under any such lease, shall be a purchaser directly or indirectly. (Code 1887, § 2621; 1902-3-4, p. 844.)

This section was enacted for the benefit and protection of the persons under disability, and not of their guardians and committees; and there may be cases in which a purchase made by a guardian or other fiduciary of the land of his ward or beneficiary, sold under this chapter, ought to be sustained, and this case is an example thereof. Redd v. Jones, 30 Grat. 123; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 470; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 590, 591.

Sale of land to a guardian, committee, or other fiduciary is not void, but voidable, and cannot be impeached collaterally, and is valid till reversed. Cline's Heirs v. Catron, 22 Grat. 378; Spilman v. Johnson, 27 Grat. 33, 41. And after land has been purchased by guardian, etc., and by him sold to third person, cannot be impeached under the statute, unless it be shown that the third party had notice that guardian, etc., was purchaser. Carter v. Allan, 21 Grat. 244, 247.

Sec. 5342. How proceeds of sale or income to be secured and applied; when same may be paid over.—The proceeds of sale, or rents, income, or royalties, arising from such sale or lease shall be invested under the direction of the court for the use and benefit of the persons entitled to the estate; and in case of a trust estate subject to the uses, limitations, and conditions, contained in the writing creating the trust. The court shall take ample security for all investments made under this section, and from time to time require additional security, if necessary, and make any proper order for the faithful application and safe investment of the fund, and for the management and preservation of any properties or securities in which the same may be invested, and for the protection of the rights of all persons interested therein whether such rights be vested or contingent; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the court having charge of any of such funds from applying at any time all or any portion thereof to the proper needs and requirements of any such ward, or insane person; and after any such ward shall have arrived at the age of twenty-one years, or such insane person shall have been restored to sanity, the court may order that the entire amount of such funds, or any part thereof, be paid over to him, regardless of such needs and requirements. (Code 1887, § 2622; 1902-3-4, p. 844.)

This section changes the rule in Talley v. Starke's Adm'x, 6 Grat. 339, in reference to the guardian giving security.

Cited but not construed in Pope v. Prince's Adm'r., 105 Va. 209, 52 S. E. 1009.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 83, section 7.

Sec. 5343. To authorize courts to pay money to infants entitled thereto, or to their parents, in certain cases, without the intervention of a guardian.—Whenever it shall appear to a court having control of a fund or supervision of its administration, whether a suit be pending therefor or not, that an infant is entitled to a fund arising from the sale of lands for a division or otherwise, or as distributee of any estate, and the amount to which said infant is entitled is less than five hundred dollars, it shall be lawful for the said court, without the intervention of a guardian, upon its being made to appear to said court that the said infant is of sufficient age and discretion to use said fund judiciously, to cause said fund to be paid directly to said infant; and in any case in which said infant is of such tender years, or is otherwise incapable or incompetent to handle said fund, it shall be lawful for the court, in its discretion, to cause said fund to be paid to one of the parents of said infant for the education, maintenance, and support of said infant; or in the event that there is no living parent capable of handling said fund, to cause said fund to be applied to the maintenance and support of said infant by other means. (1901-2, p. 812; 1908, p. 45.)

Revisors' Note.—This section enlarges the scope of the act of 1908 (Acts 1908, p. 45) from which it is taken. Under that act it was necessary for a suit to be pending, and the amount was fixed at less than THREE hundred dollars. Under the revised section the pendency of a suit is not necessary, and the amount has been increased from three hundred to five hundred dollars.

Sec. 5344. Wife of insane or infant husband may convey her own estate or release her dower in lands so sold.—When a decree or order is made under this chapter, or under chapter forty-six, for the sale of real estate of an insane or infant husband, his wife, if of the age of twenty-one years, may, if she thinks fit, join in the conveyance, and thereby release her right of dower, or sell and convey all her estate and interest in the granted premises in like manner as she might have done by a conveyance thereof, made jointly with the husband if he had been under no legal disability. (Code 1887, § 2623.)

See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 929; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1367.

Sec. 5345. Same right in proceeds of sale to be secured to her or compensation made.—In case of any such release by the wife of her right of dower, or of any such conveyance of her own estate, the proceeds of the sale shall be so disposed of under the order of the court directing the sale as to secure to her the same right, use, and benefit of and in the principal sum and the income thereof that she would have had of and in the real estate and the income thereof, if it had not been sold; or if she prefer it, she may receive or have secured to her out of the said proceeds, such sum in gross, as in the opinion of the court may be sufficient to compensate her for her interest in the said real estate. (Code 1887, § 2624.)

See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 929; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1367.

Sec. 5346. How right of dower of insane wife and curtesy of insane husband may be passed; same rights in purchase money to be secured to her or to him, or compensation made.—If the husband of an insane wife wish to sell real estate and to have her right of dower therein released to the purchaser, or if the wife of an insane husband wish to sell real estate and have his right of curtesy therein released to the purchaser, he or she, as the case may be, may petition for the purpose the circuit court of the county or circuit or corporation court of the corporation in which such estate, or some part thereof, is, to which petition such insane person and his or her committee, if there be one, shall be made parties defendant, and the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to such insane defendant, who, as well as such committee, if there be one, shall answer the petition on oath; and if it appear to the court to be proper, an order may be made for the execution of such a release by a commissioner to be appointed by the court for that purpose, which release shall be effectual to pass her said right of dower or his right of curtesy, as the case may be, to the purchaser. But the court shall make such order as in its opinion may be proper to secure to the insane wife or husband, as the case may be, the same interest in the purchase money and the income thereof that she or he would have had in the real estate and income thereof if it had not been sold, or, at the discretion of the court, to secure to her or to him, as the case may be, out of the purchase money, such sum in gross as in the court's opinion may be sufficient to compensate her for right of dower or him for right of curtesy. (Code 1887, § 2625; 1895-6, p. 620; 1902-3-4, p. 845.)

The husband of an insane wife cannot, by proceeding on an ex parte petition, deprive his wife of her contingent right of dower in his real estate. The proceeding under this section must be inter partes, the wife must be made a party thereto, and, after notice, have an opportunity of being heard, or else the proceeding is void. Hess v. Gale, 93 Va. 467, 25 S. E. 533. See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 929; also 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1367.

Sec. 5347. What proceeds of sale to pass as real estate.—What may be received under chapter two hundred and fourteen and therein required to be invested, or under this chapter, for the real estate of an infant or insane person, sold or divided, or so much thereof as may remain at his or her death intestate, shall, if he or she continue until death incapable, from any cause, of making a will, pass to those who would have been entitled to the land if it had not been sold or divided. (Code 1887, § 2626.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly this section contained the words, "or married woman." These words have been stricken out.

Section 12, chapter 128, Code 1849, from which this section comes, and section 21, chapter 108, p. 410, Rev. Code 1819, were not intended to repeal that provision of the statute of distributions which gave the wife's personal estate at her death to her husband, but were designed to give the proceeds the impress of real estate, subject to precisely the same rights and interests, present or future, vested or contingent, to which the estate was subject at the time of the sale. Therefore, where the guardian of an infant female under a decree of court sold her land, and she married, gave birth to a child, and died while still an infant, the child surviving her only a few hours, the proceeds of her real estate descended as real estate to her child, subject to the life estate in her husband, and upon the death of the child it passed as real estate to the heirs of the child on the part of the mother. Vaughan v. Jones, 23 Grat. 444, 454, 455; section 5272.

TITLE 50.

Transferring to Persons in Another State Effects in This.

CHAPTER 218.

Transfer of Property in This State Belonging to Decedents, Wards, Insane Persons, or Beneficiaries in Another State or Country.

Sec.
5348. How foreign personal representative of person, who was domiciled out of this State at time of death, may have transferred certain stocks or certificates of debts.
5349. How, when it is not known to officer or agent that there is a resident personal representative.
5350. How property of non-resident infant or insane person transferred to foreign guardian or committee.
5351. How proceeds of sale of real estate of non-resident infant, insane person, or cestui que trust, invested by court, transferred to foreign guardian, committee, or trustee.
5352. What notice and evidence required in case of estate of ward or insane person before order of transfer is made.
5353. How personal estate in hands of resident trustee, belonging to non-resident beneficiaries, transferred to non-resident trustee.
5354. What notice and evidence required before transfer is made.
5355. Court may sell property of such ward, insane person, or cestui que trust, and transfer proceeds of sale.
5356. Discharge of resident guardian, committee or trustee, from liability.

Sec. 5348. How foreign personal representative of person, who was domiciled out of this State at time of death, may have transferred certain stocks or certificates of debts.—A certificate of debt of this State, or of a corporation created by it, or stock in such corporation, or in any national bank having its principal office in the State, standing on the books of the State or corporation in the name of a person who was domiciled at his death out of this State, and has no personal representative qualified as such within the same, may, by his personal representative qualified according to the laws of his domicil, be transferred as follows: Such representative may give notice, by publication once a week for two months in a newspaper published in the State or country in which he qualified, and in two newspapers published at the seat of the government of this State, that he will move the circuit court of the county, or circuit or corporation court of the city, in which the said books of the State or corporation are kept, to direct a transfer of such certificate or stock, and upon his producing to the said court evidence of such notice having been so published, and evidence also that he is the personal representative according to the laws of the domicil, the said court, after the expiration of two months from the last publication of such notice, may, on such motion, without any bill or other pleading, make an order that, upon the original certificate of such debt or stock being filed with the proper officer of the State or corporation, the same shall be transferred as may be directed by the said representative; and by virtue of such order a valid transfer thereof may be made on the books of the State or such corporation by the said representative, in person or by attorney, unless before such transfer be actually made, a notice, in writing, forbidding the same, be served on such officer, in which last mentioned case the transfer shall only be made as would have been lawful if this section had not been enacted. (Code 1887, § 2627; 1912, p. 564.)

Sec. 5349. How, when it is not known to officer or agent that there is a resident personal representative.—The stock or certificates of debt of this State, and of any corporation created by it, standing in the name of a decedent domiciled at the time of his death out of this State, and who is not known by the officer or agent charged with the duty of transferring such stock or certificates, to have a personal representative qualified as such within the same, may be transferred by the executor or administrator of such decedent qualified according to the laws of the domicil. (Code 1887, § 2628.)

Sec. 5350. How property of non-resident infant or insane person transferred to foreign guardian or committee.—When any infant or insane person, entitled to property or money in this State, resides out of it, a petition to remove such property or money to the domicile of such infant or insane person may be filed by his guardian or his committee lawfully appointed and qualified in the State or country of his residence, in the circuit court of the county, or the circuit or corporation court or some other court of the city having chancery jurisdiction, in which the property or money, or some part thereof, is. To this petition the infant or insane person, and the guardian of such infant and the committee of such insane person appointed in this State, if there be one, shall be made parties defendant, and the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to such infant or insane defendant, who, as well as the committee, if there be one, shall answer the petition on oath. Upon a hearing of the case on its merits, the court may order the guardian or committee in this State, if there be one, to pay and deliver to such foreign guardian or committee, or his agent or attorney, all personal property and money in his hands belonging to said infant or insane person, and authorize such foreign guardian or committee to sue for, recover, and receive all money or personal property which belongs to the infant or insane person, including the accruing rents of his real estate, in like manner as if he were appointed a guardian or committee of such infant or insane person in this State, and remove the same to the State or country in which said foreign guardian or committee was appointed and qualified. (Code 1887, § 2629; 1902-3-4, p. 591; 1906, p. 194.)

Revisors' Note.—This section was rewritten mainly to improve the language. The act amending section 2629 of the Code of 1887, however, did not state that the guardian of the infant appointed in this State should be made a defendant, although it did provide that the committee of the insane person should be. The present section requires such guardian to be made a defendant.

The ex parte application (no longer ex parte under amendment of 1902-4, p. 591) of a foreign guardian under sections 5350 and 5351, for the removal of the effects of his ward out of the State, is a separate and distinct proceeding from a suit by a creditor to administer the assets of the estate of the ward's deceased ancestor. Sec. 5351. How proceeds of sale of real estate of non-resident infant, insane person, or cestui que trust, invested by court, transferred to foreign guardian, committee, or trustee.—When the proceeds of sale of the real estate of an infant, insane person, or cestui que trust, under the laws now in force, are invested, or required to be invested under the direction of a court, and such infant, insane person, or cestui que trust reside out of this State, on the petition of a guardian, committee, or trustee lawfully appointed or qualified in the State or country of the residence of such infant, insane person, or cestui que trust, the court under whose direction such proceeds are so invested, or required to be invested, may, with the consent of the persons residing in this State, who would be the heirs of such infant, insane person, or cestui que trust, if he were dead, order the said proceeds to be paid and delivered to such foreign guardian, committee, or trustee, or his agent or attorney, and removed by him to the State or country in which he was appointed and qualified, but the court may refuse to grant the prayer of the petitioner whenever, in its judgment, the removal of the trust subject will defeat or conflict with the provisions of the deed, will, or other instrument creating the trust. (Code 1887, § 2630.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence of this section as it stood before the revision has been omitted, and the words "as is mentioned in the two preceding sections" have been inserted in line two of section 5352, thus making statutory the decision in Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 112, 130. In this way the confusion referred to in 10 Va. Law Reg. 827 is eliminated.

See notes to sections 5350 and 5352.

Sec. 5352. What notice and evidence required in case of estate of ward or insane person before order of transfer is made.—No such order as is mentioned in the two preceding sections shall be made until notice of the application shall have been published once a week for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county or city in which the petition is filed, or if there be none, then in an adjoining county, nor until it shall be shown by authentic documentary evidence that such foreign guardian or committee has, where he qualified, given bond with surety, sufficient to insure his accountability for the whole amount of the ward's or insane person's estate in his hands or which will probably be received by him as such guardian or committee, nor until the court shall be satisfied that the removal of such money or property from this State will not impair the rights or be prejudicial to the interests, either of the ward or insane person, or of any other person. (Code 1887, § 2631.)

Revisors' Note.—See revisors' note to the preceding section. The provision as to what newspaper is to be used for the publication is new.

The provisions of this section are mandatory, and must be complied with before any money or other personal property belonging to a non-resident defendant can be paid over to a foreign guardian. Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 112, 130.

The object of the notice required by this section is to enable parties to be affected by such removal to appear to protect their interests, and prevent it, where such removal would impair their rights or prejudice their interests. Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 417, 21 S. E. 818.

Therefore one whose rights would be prejudiced has the right to come into the proceeding and make defense against the removal of the fund, and this may be done before the term of the court ends, even after the order for removal has been made. Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 418, 21 S. E. 818.

Before foreign guardian can remove the homestead held after death of the householder for benefit of minor children (section 6536), he must see to it that the principal has been so secured that the creditors will get the benefit of it after the youngest of his wards has attained the age of twenty-one years or until the further order of the court. Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 418, 21 S. E. 818.

The foreign guardian is not authorized by the order for removal to remove the fund till after the term ends. And if he does so, and returns to this State, he can be held responsible in the courts of this State. Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 418, 21 S. E. 818.

It is too late to make objection for the first time in the Court of Appeals to the legality of the appointment and qualification of foreign fiduciary. Coltrane v. Worrell, 30 Grat. 434, 448, 449.

Under section 6180, providing for a publication "once a week for four successive weeks" it was decided that at least twenty-eight days should elapse between the first publication and the day upon which the act was to be done and that under section 5 this latter day must be excluded. Dillard v. Krise, 86 Va. 410; 10 S. E. 430.

The words "no such order" referred to the two preceding sections.

Sec. 5353. How personal estate in hands of resident trustee, belonging to non-resident beneficiaries, transferred to non-resident trustee.—When any personal estate in this State is vested in a trustee resident therein, and those having the beneficial interest in the said estate are non-residents of this State, the circuit court of the county, or circuit or corporation court of the corporation, in which the said trustee resides, may, on a petition or bill in equity, filed for that purpose, order him or his personal representative to pay, transfer, and deliver the said estate, or any part of it, to a non-resident trustee appointed by some court of record in the State in which the said beneficiaries reside. (Code 1887, § 2632.)

Where a trust deed provides that a married woman shall have the interest of a fund, and so much as shall be necessary for the support, and if she die in the lifetime of her husband she may dispose of the fund by will, and if she survive him it shall be hers absolutely, she may, if living in a foreign State, have the fund removed thereto and vested in a trustee therein on the same trusts. Coltrane v. Worrell, 30 Grat. 434. See notes to sections 5350, 5352.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 84, section 6.

Sec. 5354. What notice and evidence required before transfer is made.—No such order as is mentioned in the preceding section shall be made, until notice of the application shall have been given to all persons interested in such trust estate, nor until the court shall be satisfied by authentic documentary evidence that the non-resident trustee, appointed as aforesaid, has given bond, with sufficient surety, for the faithful execution of the trust, nor until it is satisfied that the payment and removal of such estate out of the State will not prejudice the right of any person interested or to become interested therein. (Code 1887, § 2633.)

It is too late to object in appellate court that foreign trustee was not legally appointed. Coltrane v. Worrell, 30 Grat. 434, 448.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 84, section 7.

Sec. 5355. Court may sell property of such ward, insane person, or cestui que trust, and transfer proceeds of sale.—If, in any proceeding under section fifty-three hundred and fifty or fifty-three hundred and fifty-three, it shall appear to the court to be proper, it may order the property, or any part of it, to be sold, and the proceeds to be paid to the foreign guardian or committee or non-resident trustee. (Code 1887, § 2634.)

Sec. 5356. Discharge of resident guardian, committee or trustee, from liability.—When any guardian or committee, trustee or other person in this State, shall pay over, transfer, or deliver any estate in his hands or vested in him, under any order or decree made in pursuance of this chapter, he shall be discharged from all responsibility therefor. (Code 1887, § 2635.)

Sec. 5357. What an executor may do before qualification.—No person appointed by a will executor thereof shall have the powers of executor until he qualifies as such by taking an oath and giving bond in the court in which or before the clerk by whom the will or an authenticated copy thereof is admitted to record, except that he may provide for the burial of the testator, pay reasonable funeral expenses, and preserve the estate from waste. (Code 1887 § 2636; 1902-3-4, p. 593.)

The provisions of Code 1819, sections 21, 23, p. 379, chapter 104 were construed so as to mean that a sale by an executor named who had not qualified and died before qualifying was void as against an executor who afterwards qualified. Sec. 5358. When and to whom administration, with the will annexed, may be granted.—If there be no executor appointed by the will, or if all the executors therein named refuse the executorship, or fail, when required to give such bond, which shall amount to such refusal, or having qualified die, resign or are removed from office, the said court, or clerk, may grant administration, with the will annexed, to the person who would have been entitled to administration if there had been no will, upon his taking such oath and giving such bond. (Code 1887, § 2637; 1902-3-4, p. 594.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "or having qualified, die, resign or are removed from office" are new.

Renunciation by the executor may be presumed from the fact of executor's failing to qualify, and joining another (who had qualified as administrator) in a sale of land directed by the will to be sold, such joining being not in his character as executor, but as heir of the testator. Burnley's Adm'r v. Duke, 1 Rand. 108. See, also, Thornton v. Winston, 4 Leigh 152.

The failure of the record of the court of probate to state that the executors named in the will had renounced does not make the grant of administration absolutely void, and in a suit in equity by devisees against the administrator with the will annexed the court will presume the grant of administration to be regular, unless the regularity be drawn into question by the pleadings. Thompson v. Meek, 7 Leigh 419.

If the grant of administration with the will annexed be alleged to be irregular upon the ground that the executor had not renounced, the fact of such renunciation may be established by parol evidence. Thompson v. Meek, 7 Leigh 419.

Where a will was probated, and, after refusal of executors to qualify and the relinquishment of the widow of her right to administer, administration c. t. a. was granted to one who gives bond with sureties, the fact that six years later a codicil revoking a legacy was admitted to probate did not make the administration void, and the administrator and his sureties are liable. Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321. See 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 565, 567, 569.

See note of Smith v. Lurty, cited under section 5360.

Sec. 5359. Oath of executor or such administrator.—The oath of an executor, or of an administrator with the will annexed, shall be that the writing admitted to record contains the true last will of the deceased, so far as he knows or believes, and that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office to the best of his judgment; such oath may be taken on behalf of a corporation by its president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, or trust officer. Sec. 5360. What clerk or court to appoint administrator of an estate; who to be preferred.—In the case of a person dying intestate, the jurisdiction to hear and determine the right of administration of his estate shall be in the same court or before the same clerk who would have jurisdiction as to the probate of his will, if there was a will. Administration shall be granted to the distributees who apply therefor, preferring first the husband or wife, and then such of the others entitled to distribution as the court or clerk shall see fit. But any of the said distributees may at any time waive their right to qualify in favor of any other person to be designated by them. If no distributees apply for administration within thirty days from the death of the intestate, the court or clerk may grant administration to one or more of the creditors, or to any other person. (Code 1887, § 2639; 1902-3-4, p. 594.)

What court to appoint administrator of intestate.—The circuit court of Henrico county had jurisdiction to grant administration on a claim against the Commonwealth. Com. v. Hudgin, 2 Leigh 248.

When administration of decedent's estate has been duly granted by any court of competent jurisdiction, the same court, upon the death of the administrator, has sole jurisdiction to grant administration de bonis non. Ex parte Lyons, 2 Leigh 761.

When two successive applications are made to a county court for administration and rejected, appeals taken to the circuit court, and both judgments affirmed, upon appeal to the Court of Appeals on the second case the court cannot reverse the first judgment and administration. Cottom v. Cottom, 4 Rand. 192.

Effect of court's judgment.—A judgment of a court of probate is a judgment in rem; it binds not only the immediate parties to the proceeding, but all other persons and all courts. Coalter's Ex'r v. Bryan, 1 Grat. 18, and note section 5247, where cases are collected. In regard to grants of administration, the judgment of a court of general jurisdiction over the subject is conclusive until it is avoided, or expires by its own limitation, and this although the facts of the particular case were not such as to give the court jurisdiction over that case. Fisher v. Bassett, 9 Leigh 119, 33 Am. Dec. 227; Burnley's Representatives v. Duke, 2 Rob. 102; Ballow v. Hudson, 13 Grat. 681; Andrews v. Avory, 14 Grat. 229, note Va. Rep. Anno.; 73 Am. Dec. 355; Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321, and cases cited, and note, Va. Rep. Anno. Thus ex parte Barker, 2 Leigh 719, is overruled. See Schultz v. Schultz, 10 Grat 378, 60 Am. Dec. 335; also 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1042; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 103, 110, 112; and notes to section 5247.

Who to be preferred as administrator.—Where the personal property of the wife is settled by a deed executed before the marriage, and duly recorded, that upon her dying intestate in her husband's lifetime the trustee is to convey the same to her legal heirs, her nearest blood relation is, in such event, entitled to the administration of her estate in preference to her husband. Bray v. Dudgeon, 6 Munf. 132.

After the death of intestate's children and widow, the brother of the widow is entitled to administration in preference to the intestate's brother. Cutchin v. Wilkinson, 1 Call 3.

In a contest between a distributee and a widow, who has elected to take under the will of her husband personal property given to her, the distributee is entitled to administration. Thornton v. Winston, 4 Leigh 152.

As between a distributee and a creditor asking for administration, the court has no discretion to choose between them, but must prefer the distributee. Haxall v. Lee, 2 Leigh 267.

If no distributee apply for administration, a creditor has no preference over any other person in an application therefor, but every case must depend upon its own circumstances. McCandlish v. Hopkins, 6 Call 208.

An executrix declines to qualify, and agrees that administration c. t. a. be granted to her daughter, reserving her right to qualify after her daughter's death. This renunciation is absolute and irrevocable, and she has not any preferable right to the administration de bonis non with the will annexed. Thornton v. Winston, 4 Leigh 152.

The word "distributees" as used in this section means those who would be entitled under the Statute of Distributions to the personal estate of the decedent if he had died intestate, and does not embrace legatees and devisees. But distributees who recognize the preferable right of the widow to qualify, if the court deems her a proper person to qualify, will not, therefore, waive their right to qualify or designate who shall in event the court denies the applicattion of the widow to qualify. Smith v. Lurty, 107 Va. 548, 59 S. E. 403.

This section does not confer upon widow the absolute right to qualify as administratrix on her husband's estate or to designate the person to be appointed. Smith v. Lurty, 107 Va. 548, 59 S. E. 403.

If devisees and legatees would have been distributees had the testator died intestate, by the terms of the statute they are entitled to apply for administration themselves and consequently may, "at any time waive their right to qualify in favor of any other person to be designated by them." Tompkins v. Poff, 120 Va. 162, 90 S. E. 630, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 837, and note.

Under this section and section 5358, when read together, a distributee who applies for administration and is appointed and qualifies can only be removed for cause; and the same principle applies to an appointee in whose favor a distributee waives his right to qualify. By substitution such person is clothed with all the rights of the distributee and occupies the same plane. When, therefore, the appointment, either of a distributee or of some other person designated by him, has been made and the appointee has qualified, the power of the court or clerk is exhausted, and no further appointment can be made until a vacancy occurs in the office in some way recognized by law. Tompkins v. Poff, 120 Va. 162, 90 S. E. 630, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 837, and note; 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 696.

The construction set out in the preceding paragraph does not unduly discriminate between distributees of the same class. The statute contemplates a possible preference in favor of suitable distributees in the order in which they apply for appointment; and to the diligent in this instance, as in others, the maxim, "Prior in time, prior in right," applies. Tompkins v. Poff, 120 Va. 162, 90 S. E. 630, 2 Va. L. Reg. 827, and note.

This section deals with two classes of persons who are eligible to appointment as administrators: (1) Distributees who apply therefor or any other person in whose favor any of the said distributees at any time waive their right to qualify; and (2) one or more of the creditors or any other person after the expiration of thirty days from the death of the intestate. The provision of section 5369, which allows a distributee, upon notice, to displace "a creditor or other person than a distributee," applies only to persons included in class (2) above and not to those enumerated in class (1). Tompkins v. Poff, 120 Va. 162, 90 S. E. 630, 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 837, and note.

Sec. 5361. Persons presumed to be dead; administration not to be granted by a clerk.—Administration upon the estate of a person presumed to be dead on account of absence from the Commonwealth for seven years or more shall not in any case be granted by a clerk. (1908, p. 536, § 1.)

Revisors' Note.—This and the seven following sections are taken from the same act (Acts 1908, p. 536), with various changes in phraseology and some changes in meaning. Instead of providing that the cases shall be transferred to the court, as was done by section 1 of the act, section 5361 simply prohibits clerks from having jurisdiction in such cases. Section 5362 extends the jurisdiction to the judge in vacation as well as to the court in term. This change is made throughout the sections. From section 5363 there has been omitted the part of the act authorizing the admission of certain evidence. By chapter 261 of this Code the disabilities have been removed, hence the retention of that part of the act was unnecessary. Section 5365 provides for an investment of the funds instead of directing them to be put at interest. Under section 5366 reasonable notice must be given to the parties interested before a revocation can be had. That section also distinctly validates the title of bona fide purchasers.

See section 6239 for presumption of death at the end of seven years' absence from the State.

Sec. 5362. Persons presumed to be dead; administration before court; notice of application.—Whenever letters of administration on the estate of any person supposed to be dead on account of absence for seven years or more from the place of his last domicile in this State shall be applied for, the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, if satisfied that the applicant would be entitled thereto were the supposed decedent in fact dead, shall cause to be advertised in a newspaper published in the county or city once a week for four successive weeks the fact of said application, together with notice that on a certain day, which shall be at least two weeks after said advertisement, the court or judge will hear evidence concerning the alleged absence of the supposed decedent, and the circumstances and duration thereof. (Id.)

For a case under the former law see Selden's Ex'r v. Kennedy, 104 Va. 826, 52 S. E. 635, 11 Va. L. Reg. 986, and note.

Sec. 5363. Hearing application; evidence receivable; further publication.—At the hearing, which may be either in term time or vacation, the court or judge shall hear such legal evidence as will then be offered for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the presumption of death has been established, and if satisfied that the legal presumption of death is made out, the court or judge shall so order, and shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be inserted for two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county or city and also, when practicable, in a newspaper published at or near the place beyond the Commonwealth where the supposed decedent had his residence when last heard from. Such notice shall require the supposed decedent, if alive, or any person for him, to produce to the court or the judge thereof in vacation, within twelve weeks from the date of its last insertion ,satisfactory evidence of his continuance in life. If there be not in the county or city a newspaper in which the publication required by this and the preceding section may be made, the same may be published in some newspaper in an adjacent county or city. (Id., § 2, 3.)

Sec. 5364. Grant of administration; effect.—If within the said period of twelve weeks evidence satisfactory to the court or judge of the continuance in life of the supposed decedent shall not be forthcoming, the court or judge shall issue letters of administration to the party entitled thereto, and the said letters, until revoked, and all acts done in pursuance thereof, and in reliance thereupon, shall be as valid as if the supposed decedent were really dead. (Id., § 4.)

Sec. 5365. Distribution of estate; refunding bond; investment.—Before any distribution of the proceeds of the estate of such supposed decedent shall be made, the persons entitled to receive the same shall give a refunding bond with surety to be approved by the court or judge, in such form as the court or judge shall direct, and with condition that if the supposed decedent shall in fact be alive at that time, they will respectively refund the amounts received by each on demand, with interest thereon; but if the person or persons entitled to receive the same is or are unable to give the security aforesaid, then the money shall be invested under an order of the court or judge in such manner as the said court or judge may approve, which investment may be changed from time to time as to the court or judge may seem proper. The interest arising from such investment shall be paid annually to the person or persons appearing to be entitled thereto, and such investment shall continue until security is given, as aforesaid, or the court or judge, on application, shall order it to be paid to the person or persons appearing to be entitled to it. (Id., § 5.)

Sec. 5366. Revocation of administration; effect on previous acts; title of purchasers, widow, heirs, and next to kin.—The court, or the judge thereof in vacation, after reasonable notice to the parties interested, may revoke said letters at any time on due and satisfactory evidence that the supposed decedent is in fact alive. After such revocation all the powers of the administrator shall cease, but all receipts or disbursements of assets and other acts previously done by him, and the title of bona fide purchasers to property under sales made by him, shall remain as valid as if said letters were unrevoked, and the administrator shall settle the account of the administration down to the time of such revocation, and shall transfer all assets remaining in his hands to the owner thereof who had been presumed to be dead, or to his duly authorized agent or attorney. But nothing in this section shall validate the title of any person to any money, or property received as widow, next of kin, or heir of such supposed decedent, but the same may be recovered from them in like manner as if no such administration had been granted. (Id.)

Sec. 5367. After revocation, substitution of supposed decedent in pending actions; reopening of judgments against former administrator; effect of judgments after substitution.—After revocation of the letters, the person erroneously supposed to be dead may, on suggestion filed of record of the proper fact, be substituted as plaintiff in all actions brought by the administrator, whether prosecuted to judgment or otherwise. He may, in all actions previously brought against his administrator, be substituted as defendant, on proper suggestion filed by himself, or of the plaintiff therein, but shall not be compelled to go to trial in less than three months from the time of such suggestion filed. Judgments recovered against the administrator, before revocation as aforesaid of the letters, may be opened, on application by the supposed decedent made within three months from the said revocation, and supported by affidavit, denying specifically, on the knowledge of the affiant, the cause of the action, in whole or in part, or specifically alleging the existence of facts which would be a valid defense; but, if within said three months, such application shall not be made, or being made, the facts exhibited shall be adjudged an insufficient defense, the judgment shall be conclusive to all intents, saving the defendant's right to have it reviewed, as in other cases, by certiorari, appeal, or writ of error. After the substitution of the supposed decedent as defendant in any judgment, as aforesaid, it shall become a lien upon his real estate in the county or city, and shall so continue as other judgments, unless and until it shall be set aside by the court below, or reversed in the Supreme Court of Appeals. (Id., § 6.)

Sec. 5368. Costs, by whom payable.—The costs attending the issue of such letters or their revocation, shall be paid out of the estate of the supposed decedent; and costs arising upon an application for letters which shall not be granted, shall be paid by the applicant. (Id., § 7.)

Sec. 5369. Oath and bond of administrator; when grant to cease.—Before any grant of administration, as of the estate of an intestate, the person to whom it is granted shall, in the court or before the clerk granting it, give bond and take an oath that the deceased has left no will, so far as he knows, and that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office to the best of his judgment. Such oath may be taken on behalf of a corporation by its president, a vice-president, secretary, treasurer, or trust officer. If a will of the decedent be afterwards admitted to record, or if, after administration is granted to a creditor or other person than a distributee, any distributee who shall not have before refused shall apply for administration, there may be a grant of probate or administration, after reasonable notice to such creditor or other person, in like manner as if the former grant had not been made; and the said former grant shall thereupon cease. (Code 1887, § 2640; 1902-3-4, p. 594; 1914, p. 30.)

Sec. 5370. Penalty of bond of executor or administrator.—Every bond of an executor or administrator shall be in a penalty equal, at the least, to the full value of the personal estate of the deceased to be administered; and where there is a will, which authorizes the executor or administrator to sell real estate, or receive the rents and profits thereof, the bond shall be in a penalty equal, at the least, to the full value, both of the said personal estate and of such real estate, or rents and profits, as the case may be. (Code 1887, § 2641.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "or rents and profits, as the case may be," found at the end of this section, are new. The penalty of the bond ought not to cover the value of the real estate if the executor is only to receive the rents and profits.

Amount of security—Discretion of court.—The intention of this section is that the court granting administration on an estate should have a discretion in regard to the amount of security, and the general practice of requiring the security in double the estimated value of the estate is a proper exercise of that discretion. Atkinson v. Christian, 3 Grat. 448.

Executors now liable for land payments.—Under 1 Rev. Code, p. 379, chapter 104, section 21, the securities of the executor were bound by their bond for due administration of the personal assets only. Jones v. Hobson, 2 Rand. 483; Burnett v. Harwell, 3 Leigh 89. As the law was then, they could not have been held liable for land payments collected by the executor, but now they are liable therefor. Reherd v. Long, 77 Va. 839, 845.

The official bond of an executrix only binding the obligors for the due administration of the personal estate, the sureties are to no extent responsible for the rents and profits of the real estate. Hutcherson v. Pigg, 8 Grat. 220.

Executors take land as trustees.—Acting under the will, the executors take land, not as executors, but only as trustees; but when it is subjected to their control, it must be included in their official bonds and in the inventory or appraisement. Section 5376. As trustees they are liable only for their respective receipts. Boyd's Ex'rs v. Boyd's Heirs, 3 Grat. 114.

Bond presumed to be correct unless evidence to the contrary.—In the absence of evidence directly to the contrary, it must be presumed that the official bond of the executor and his sureties was in the usual form, with a condition "for the faithful discharge of the duties of his trust." Reherd v. Long, 77 Va. 839, 845.

Effect of incorrect form of bond.—A bond taken from an administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo, in the form of a bond for administration de bonis non, was held void for all purposes in Morrow's Adm'r v. Peyton's Adm'r, 8 Leigh 54. But this decision is criticised and overruled in Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321.

Where the court or officer has authority to take a bond, and makes a mistake by omitting some condition prescribed, or inserting a condition not authorized or illegal, unless the statute by express words or necessary implication makes it wholly void the bond is not void; the good shall not be vitiated by the bad, and the bond may be sued on, so far as the conditions are good, as a statutory bond. And where the court has cognizance of the subject matter, and takes a bond which on its face is valid, but contains a recital of facts necessary to its validity, the obligors shall be estopped from denying the truth of the recitals. Gibson v. Beckham, 16 Grat. 321, 334, and cases cited; also note thereto, Va. Rep. Anno.

Coexecutors joining in the same executorial bond are sureties for each other. Boyd's Ex'rs v. Boyd's Heirs, 3 Grat. 113. See, also, as to coadministrators, Morrow's Adm'r v. Peyton's Adm'r, 8 Leigh 54; Cox v. Thomas' Adm'x, 9 Grat. 319; Caskie's Ex'rs v. Harrison, 76 Va. 93, and note to Boyd's Ex'rs v. Boyd's Heirs, supra, Va. Rep. Anno.; Yates' Adm'r v. Wilson, 86 Va. 625, 10 S. E. 976.

All sureties should be made parties.—All the sureties in the official bond of an executrix should be parties to a suit by legatees for distribution, or a sufficient reason should be shown for failing to make them parties, before a decree is made against one of them. Hutcherson v. Pigg 8 Grat. 220.

Sec. 5371. When security not to be required.—Where the will directs that an executor shall not give security, the court or clerk shall not require it of him, unless on the application of any person interested, or from its or his own knowledge, it or he thinks security ought to be required. (Code 1887, § 2642; 1902-3-4, p. 594.)

Revisors' Note.—For an act authorizing courts, in their discretion where the amount coming into the hands of personal representatives or guardians does not exceed one hundred dollars, to permit such fiduciaries to qualify by giving bond without surety, and providing that on estates of decedents of one hundred dollars or less in value, there shall be no tax or court cost upon the qualification of a personal representative, see Acts 1918, p. 469.

Under this section courts of probate may exercise wide discretion in requiring security of executors where the will directs that none shall be given, and the exercise of this discretion should not be disturbed except in case of plain abuse. It may be required on application of any person interested or by the court on its own motion. Schnurman v. Biddle, 105 Va. 702, 64 S. E. 977.

When an executor, who has been permitted to qualify without security, brings a suit in chancery to reduce into possession the funds of his testator, the court may, in its discretion, require security before it will lend its aid. Bryce v. Stevenson, 2 Rand. 438.

Where a testator appointed his wife and son executrix and executor of his will, directing that they should be allowed to qualify without giving security, and afterwards by codicil appointed a third person executor with them, the third person is not entitled to qualify without giving security. Fairfax v. Fairfax's Ex'r, 7 Grat. 36. Quaere, if parol testimony is admissible in such case to show intention of testator. Id.

To the judgment of a county court refusing to permit a person named as executor in a will to qualify without giving security, an appeal would formerly lay as a matter of right to the circuit court. Fairfax v. Fairfax's Ex'r, 7 Grat. 36.

Sec. 5372. Executor of executor to have no authority over estate of first testator; administration thereof granted by court.—The executor of an executor shall have no authority as such to administer the estate of the first testator, but on the death, resignation or removal of the sole surviving executor of any last will, administration of the estate of the first testator, not already administered, may be granted, with the will annexed, to such person as the court shall think fit to appoint. (Code 1887, § 2643.)

Sec. 5373. On marriage of female personal representative her authority is not extinguished.—Where an unmarried woman who is a personal representative, either alone or jointly with another, shall marry, her husband shall not be a personal representative in her right, but the marriage shall not operate as an extinguishment of her authority. Whenever such female personal representative shall marry, the court in which or before whose clerk she qualified shall, on the motion of any surety on her bond as such, and may on the motion of any other person interested, or when it shall seem proper to such court, revoke her powers and authority, and thereafter the other personal representative, if there be any, may proceed in discharging the trust as if she were dead, and, if there be no other personal representative, administration de bonis non (with the will annexed, if there be a will) may be granted by the court. (Code 1887, § 2644; 1891-2, p. 333; 1902-3-4, p. 594.)

Sec. 5374. When estate of decedent committed to sheriff or sergeant; no bond required of officer; when court may revoke order and allow another to qualify; payment of State tax on administration.—If at any time two months elapse without there being an executor or administrator of the estate of a decedent (except during a contest about the decedent's will or during the infancy or absence of the executor), the court, or in vacation the clerk thereof, in which or by whose clerk the will was admtited to record, or which has jurisdiction to grant administration on the decedent's estate, shall, on the motion of any person, order the sheriff of the county or city, or the sergeant of the city, if there be no sheriff thereof, to take into his possession the estate of such decedent and administer the same; whereupon such sheriff or sergeant, without taking any other oath of office or giving any other bond or security than he may have before taken or given, shall be the administrator, or administrator de bonis non, of the decedent, with his will annexed, if there be a will, and shall be thenceforward entitled to all the rights and bound to perform all the duties of such administrator. The court may, however, at any time afterwards, on reasonable notice to such sheriff or sergeant, revoke such order made by it or its clerk, and allow any other person to qualify as executor or administrator. When an estate is committed to the sheriff or sergeant on the motion of a creditor or other person, the State tax due for such administration shall be paid by the party upon whose motion the estate was committed, and the same shall be repaid to him by the sheriff or sergeant out of the first funds received by him from such estate. (Code 1887, § 2645; 1902-3-4, pp. 78, 595.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence is new, but is the substance of Acts 1902-3-4, p. 78.

If the county court commits an estate to the sheriff for administration before the expiration of the statutory period (now two months) from the death of the testator or intestate, the act is not void, but voidable. Hutcheson v. Priddy, 12 Grat. 85.

The sheriff stands on the footing of any other administrator, subject only to the power reserved to the court to revoke the order committing the estate to him, and allow some other person to qualify as executor or administrator. Every right and every duty pertaining to any other administrator is thus devolved upon him; therefore the court cannot grant the administration to a distributee without notice to the sheriff of the application. Hutcheson v. Priddy, 12 Grat. 85.

The sheriff into whose hands the administration of the estate has been put must proceed with the administration till it is completed although his official term may have ended, and he and his sureties are liable for acts done by himself or deputy before or after the expiration of his office in administering the estates. Tunstall's Adm'r v. Withers 86 Va. 892, 11 S. E. 565; Dabney's Adm'r v. Smith's Legatees, 5 Leigh 13; Douglass' Ex'r v. Stumps, Id. 392; Tyler v. Nelson's Adm'x, 14 Grat. 214; Mosby's Adm'r v. Mosby's Adm'r, 9 Grat. 601; Hudson v. Burwell's Adm'r, 1 Va. Dec. 364; Cocke vs. Harrison, 3 Rand. 494; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 571.

The sheriff may administer such estate by deputy, and as well after as before the expiration of his office. Mosby's Adm'r v. Mosby's Adm'r 9 Grat. 584, 601; Dabney's Adm'r v. Smith's Legatees, 5 Leigh 13; Douglass' Ex'r v. Stumps, Id. 392; Hudson v. Burwell's Adm'r, 1 Va. Dec. 364.

Where the will vested in the executors an interest and a trust, and it was their duty to take possession of the land and to account for the rents and profits, and, after the death of one executor and the removal of the other, administration c. t. a. was committed to the sheriff, he was authorized under this statute to execute the power and trust, and is therefore bound to account for the rents and profits. Mosby's Adm'r v. Mosby's Adm'r, 9 Grat. 584.

It is not imperative on the court to grant administration to a distributee after estate has been committed to the sheriff, but there is a legal discretion in the court. Hutcheson v. Priddy, 12 Grat. 35.

Sec. 5375. Letters of administration in due form unnecessary; how made out when required.—A copy of the order whereby certificate is granted to any personal representative for obtaining probate or letters of administration, shall be as effectual as the probate or letters made out in due form. Nevertheless, the clerk of the court by which such order is made, shall, when required by any personal representative, make out such probate or letters in due form. The same, when so made out, shall be signed by the clerk, sealed with the seal of the court, and certified by the judge, to be attested in due form. (Code 1887, § 2646.)

Revisors' Note.—A change has been made in the last sentence of this section in order to make it conform to section 6205, which is a copy of the federal statute on that subject.

Sec. 5376. Appraisement of estate of decedent; to be signed and returned to commissioner of accounts; to be recorded by clerk, and date of its return entered by commissioner; its effect as evidence; pay of appraisers.—Every court or clerk by whose order any person is authorized to act as a personal representative shall, except where a testator directs his estate not to be appraised, or, though he so directs, if the court or clerk deems it proper, appoint three or more appraisers in every county or corporation in which there may be any goods or chattels of the deceased, or in case of a will in which there may be any real estate which the personal representative is authorized to sell, or of which he is authorized to receive the rents and profits. After taking an oath for the purpose, they shall appraise such goods or chattels as may be produced to them, and also the said real estate. The appraisers shall receive each, for their attendance, one dollar per day. The appraisement shall be signed by them and returned to the commissioner of accounts of such court, who shall inspect the same, see that it is in proper form, and, within ten days after it is received and approved by him, deliver it to the clerk of such court, who shall record the same, with the certificate of approval. The date of return of an appraisement shall be entered by the said commissioner in his record book. Every such appraisement shall be prima facie evidence of the value of the estate embraced therein, and that it came to the hands of the personal representative. (Code 1887, § 2647; 1902-3-4, p. 595.)

Carr's Ex'r v. Anderson, 2 Hen. & M. 361, and Parks' Adm'r v. Rucker, 5 Leigh 149, construing the old statute, 1 Rev. Code 1849, p. 386, have been overruled by the last clause of this section; and whilst under the old law the appraisement was, without signature of personal representative, prima facie evidence of the value only (Rogers' Adm'x v. Chandler's Adm'x, 3 Munf. 65), it is now also prima facie evidence that the estate came into the hands of the personal representative. Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 624; 3 Min. Sec. 5377. Duty of every personal representative; debt of executor not extinguished by his appointment; how representative, whose powers have ceased, may pay or deliver assets of decedent to administrator de bonis non; effect thereof.—It shall be the duty of every personal representative to administer, well and truly, the whole personal estate of his decedent. The appointment of a debtor as executor shall not extinguish the debt. When the powers of a per sonal representative have ceased and there be an administrator de bonis non of the decedent's estate, it shall be lawful, with the con sent of the court in which or before whose clerk the administrator de bonis non qualified, for the personal representative to pay and deliver to such administrator de bonis non the assets of the de cedent, whether converted or not, for which such former persona representative is responsible; but such consent shall not be given unless the administrator de bonis non shall have given, or shall give, a bond sufficient to cover the additional assets, so to be paid or delivered to him. The administrator de bonis non shall administer the same as assets received in due course of administration, and his receipt therefor shall be a voucher in the settlement of the accounts of the former personal representative, and shall exempt such per sonal representative from all liability for said assets so lawfully paid over and delivered. But this section shall not be construed as exempting such former personal representative and his sureties from liability for any breach of duty with respect to such assets committed by him before they were so paid over and delivered by him as aforesaid; nor as authorizing a suit by the administrator de bonis non against such personal representative or his estate to compel the payment and delivery to him of such assets of the de cedent as were converted by said representative. (Code 1887, § 2648.)

Statute of limitations—New promise by personal representative.—The personal representative must so administer the estate as to protect it against all stale demands; for, in the eyes of the law, these do not constitute valid charges against the estate to be administered. Therefore the personal representative, when sued at law or in equity, must plead the statute of limitations as to all claims barred at the time of action brought. Nor where the debt was barred in the lifetime of the testator or intestate can the personal representative make a promise which will take the case out of the statute; though he may, when the debt is just and about to be barred after the death of the testator or intestate make a promise to pay which will prevent the operation of the statute. Smith v. Pattie, 81 Va. 654; Trimyer v. Pollard, 5 Grat. 460; Bell v. Crawford, 8 Grat. 110; Bishop v. Harrison's Adm'r, 2 Leigh 537.

Exoneration of real estate.—It is the duty of an executor or administrator to apply the assets of the estate not necessary for the payment of debts to the exoneration of the real estate of his testator or intestate which may be under mortgage. Dandridge v. Minge, 4 Rand. 397; but see Frasier v. Littleton's Ex'rs, 100 Va. 9, 40 S. E. 108. See generally note, Carrington v. Didier, 8 Grat. 266, Va. Rep. Anno.

Debt of executor not extinguished.—The provision that the appointment of a debtor as executor shall not extinguish the debt changes the rule of common law. Utterback's Adm'r v. Cooper, 28 Grat. 233, note Va. Rep. Anno.; 3 Min. (2 Ed.) 212, 601; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 715.

What assets administrator d. b. n. is entitled to.—Before Acts 1883 p. 643, amending this section as it stood in Code 1873, p. 940, the administrator de bonis non was entitled only to those assets which had not been converted. Wernick v. McMurdo, 5 Rand. 51; Tyler v. Nelson's Adm'x, 14 Grat. 223; Clarke v. Wells' Adm'r, 6 Grat. 475; Georgia H. I. Co. v. Kinnier's Adm'x, 28 Grat. 88; Hinton v. Bland's Adm'r, 81 Va. 595; Morris' Adm'r v. Morris' Adm'r, 4 Grat. 293. But now, with the con sent of the court in which he qualified, the administrator d. b. n. is entitled to the assets of the decedent, whether converted or not.

Who may sue personal representative of administrator.—The administrator d. b. n. cannot sue the personal representative of a former executor or administrator for assets converted or wasted; such suit may be brought directly by creditors, legatees, or distributees. Wernick v. McMurdo, 5 Rand. 57; Hinton v. Bland's Adm'r, 81 Va. 595; Cheatham v. Friend, 9 Leigh 580; Dodson v. Simpson, 2 Rand. 294.

When receiver may be appointed.—When the estate has been committed to the sheriff as administrator d. b. n., and unadministered assets are insufficient to pay debts, and, in order to pay same, that fund must be drawn upon to some unknown extent, it is proper not to pay that fund at once to distributees, but to appoint receiver to hold same for protection of sureties, creditors, and distributees, since administrator d. b. n. cannot sue his predecessor for assets wasted or converted. Harman v. McMullin, 85 Va. 187, 7 S. E. 349; Wernick v. McMurdo, 5 Rand. 51; Hinton v. Bland' Adm'r, 81 Va. 595.

Sec. 5378. Authority to an executor or administrator of a deceased person to execute on behalf of such deceased person a deed to real estate sold by such deceased person during his lifetime under a written contract.—When any deceased person shall have bona fide sold any land and shall have given a written contract to the purchaser to convey the same, and the written contract has been duly recorded in the county or corporation wherein the land is situated. his executor or administrator may, upon the payment of the price, or the balance thereof remaining unpaid, and a full compliance with the conditions of the written contract, execute a deed to the purchaser conveying such real estate as shall be specified in the said written contract, and such deed shall convey the title as fully as if it had been executed by the deceased obligor. (1910, p. 288.)

Sec. 5379. Personal representatives to furnish the ages and addresses of heirs; affidavit; clerk to record list; cost of recording; list as evidence; commissions of personal representatives.—Every personal representative of an intestate shall, at the time of his qualification, furnish the court or clerk granting the administration a list of the names, and as far as possible the ages and addresses, of the heirs of his decedent, accompanied by his affidavit that he has made diligent inquiry as to such names, ages and addresses, and that he believes such list to be true and correct, which list it shall be the duty of the clerk to record in the deed book and index in the name of the decedent as grantor and the heirs as grantees. Such list so made and recorded shall be prima facie evidence of facts therein stated. The cost of recording such list shall be deemed a part of the cost of administration, and be paid out of the estate of the intestate. Such personal representative shall not receive any compensation for his services until such list is filed and recorded, unless he files an affidavit before the commissioner of accounts that said heirs are unknown to him, and that after diligent inquiry he has been unable to ascertain their names, ages, or addresses, the case may be. (1912, p. 453; 1916, p. 507.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is the substance of the act of 191 (Acts 1912, p. 453). The act of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 507) amended th former act in several particulars, the most material of which was the e tension of the act so as to embrace the personal representatives of decedents, testate and intestate. The revised section is restricted to th scope of the act of 1912, and applies to personal representatives of inte tates only. No necessity was seen for the extension.

For discussion of act of 1912, chapter 185, similar to this sectio see 1 Va. L. R. N. S. 477.

Sec. 5380. What estate not to be sold.—Unless it be necessary fo the payment of funeral expenses, charges of administration debts, the personal representative shall not sell estate which th will directs not to be sold. (Code 1887, § 2650.)

See Burks' Pleading and Practice, p. 632.

Sec. 5381. What goods personal representative to sell; when an how.—Of the goods not mentioned in the preceding section, th personal representative shall, subject to the provisions of chapte two hundred and seventy-four, sell, as soon as convenient, at pul lic auction, such as are likely to be impaired in value by keepin giving a reasonable credit (except for small sums), and taking bon with good security. (Code 1887, § 2651.)

As to liability of personal representative for selling property, as th law was previous to the statute, see Lawrason v. Davenport, 2 Call 95.

In determining which of the goods should be sold as liable to be in paired in value, some latitude must be allowed the executor, and his co duct, appearing to be fair and probably proceeding from a good intentio ought to be sanctioned by a court of equity. McCall v. Peachy's Adm 3 Munf. 288; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 636.

If he omits to take security, the executor or administrator is himse liable, however solvent may be the purchaser, nor is the purchaser's par ner in business a security sufficient to exonerate the executor or admini trator. Miller v. Holcombe's Ex'r, 9 Grat. 665; Southall's Adm'r v. Ta lor, 14 Grat. 269; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 578.

Cited, but not construed, in Gregory v. Parker, 87 Va. 455, 12 S. 801.

Sec. 5382. When to sell the other goods.—If the goods so sold b not sufficient to pay the funeral expenses, charges of administratio debts and legacies, the personal representative shall sell so muc of the other goods and chattels as may be necessary to pay th same, having regard to the privilege of specific legacies, and to th provisions of chapter two hundred and seventy-four. (Code 188 § 2652.)

The plain interpretation of this section is that the personal estate of deceased person is the natural and primary fund for the payment of deb and legacies, and as a general rule must be first exhausted before the re estate can be made liable; and the personal estate will not be exonerate by a charge on the real estate, unless there be express words of a pla intent in the will to make such exoneration. New's Ex'x v. Bass, 92 V 383, 389, 23 S. E. 747; Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 549.

It is, under ordinary circumstances, the duty of the personal repr sentative not to sell, but collect debts due the estate; but where the is no collusion or fraud, and whether it be necessary for the payme of debts or not, a sale required by the best interests of the estate, or one made by the personal representative in the exercise of his best judgment and in the honest belief that the interests of the estate require it, will be approved when these facts clearly appear. Trevelyan's Adm'r v. Lofft, 83 Va. 152, 1 S. E. 901; Knight v. Yarborough, 4 Rand. 566; Pinckard v. Woods, 8 Grat. 140; Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 541; Watkins v. Stewart, 78 Va. 111; Wayland v. Crank's Ex'r, 79 Va. 602. See, also, note on Executors and Administrators, 5 Grat. 9, Va. Rep. Anno.

Under a similar statute in regard to the sale of slaves, it was held the sale of a slave specifically bequeathed and sold by an executor at public auction cannot be impeached by the purchaser, whether justified by a deficiency of the personal estate or not. Sale v. Roy, 2 Hen. & M. 69. Also it was held that if an executor sold the slaves of his testator when there were no debts to render such sale necessary, and bought them himself, the sale might be set aside at the instance of any person interested. Sec. 5383. Estate for another's life, assets.—Any estate for the life of another shall go to the personal representative of the party entitled to the estate, and be assets in his hands, and be applied and distributed as the personal estate of such party. (Code 1887, § 2653.)

Sec. 5384. Suits upon debts of decedent, for and against.—A personal representative may sue or be sued upon any judgment for or against, or any contract of or with, his decedent. (Code 1887, § 2654.)

Breach of Promise.—In Grubbs v. Sult, 32 Grat. 203, 34 Am. Rep. 765, it was held that "an action for breach of promise of marriage will not lie against the personal representative of the promisor either at common law or under this section," since the wrong is in the nature of a personal injury. See, also, Burton v. Mill, 78 Va. 482; Lee's Adm'r v. Hill, 87 Va. 499, 12 S. E. 1052, 24 Am. St. Rep. 666; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 278; Lile's Notes, 63; section 5818, and notes. It was suggested that the rule might be otherwise where special damages to estate of plaintiff were alleged and proved. It would seem that Mumpower v. Bristol, 94 Va. 737, 27 S. E. 581, settles this question in the negative. See 3 Va. Law Reg. 439, and notes to section 5385.

Claims arising after decedent's death.—A personal representative cannot be sued as such for services rendered or goods furnished to his testator's or intestate's estate since his death. Fitzhugh's Ex'r v. Fitzhugh, 11 Grat. 300, 62 Am. Dec. 653. Daingerfield v. Smith and others, 83 Va. 81, 1 S. E. 509. It seems that an action will not lie against the personal representative as such for funeral expenses of his testator or intestate. Fitzhugh's Ex'r v. Fitzhugh, 11 Grat. 300, 62 Am. Dec. 653.

Tort.—In Virginia, except as authorized by its own statutes, no action of tort can be maintained by or against the executor or administrator of the person by or to whom the wrong was done. Quoting Harris v. Crenshaw, 3 Rand. 14; Martin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 151 U. S. 673, 14 Sup. Ct. 533, 38 L. Ed. 311.

Insurance.—The administratrix may maintain an action on a policy of fire insurance taken out for the benefit of the insurer and his legal representatives. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Kinnier's Adm'x, 28 Grat. 88.

See, also, 6 Va. Law Reg. 583, and Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Thomas, 90 Va. 663, 19 S. E. 454, as to whether this is true of fire policy taken out for benefit of insurer merely.

Covenants of warranty.—An action of covenant by the vendee of a slave upon a covenant of warranty binding the vendor and his heirs (not naming executors) will lie against the executors. Lee v. Cooke, 1 Wash. 306.

An action of covenant respecting real estate will lie against executors though not expressly bound. Harrison v. Sampson, 2 Wash. 155.

Foreign executor coming into the State bringing assets with him may be sued here, but otherwise he cannot sue or be sued here under authority of a foreign court of probate. Fugate v. Moore, 86 Va. 1045, 11 S. E. 1063.

Sec. 5385. For goods carried away, waste, or damage to estate of or by decedent.—An action of trespass, or trespass on the case, may be maintained by or against a personal representative for the taking or carrying away any goods, or for the waste or destruction of or damage to, any estate of or by his decedent. (Code 1887, § 2655.)

Statute remedial.—This is a remedial statute, and should be liberally construed. Lee's Adm'r v. Hill, 87 Va. 503, 12 S. E. 1052, 24 Am. St. Rep. 666.

The effect of this section is to make all actions for wrong to property revivable for or against representative. Actions for wrong to person die with person, except under section 5786. Anderson v. Hygeia Hotel Co., 92 Va. 687, 24 S. E. 269. See, also, section 5790.

"Estate" is here used in the most comprehensive sense. Lee's Adm'r v. Hill, 87 Va. 503, 12 S. E. 1052, 24 Am. St. Rep. 666.

Rule for determining whether action survives.—In determining whether a cause of action survives to or against the personal representative, the real nature of the injury or claim ought to be regarded, and not the form of the remedy by which it is sought to be redressed or enforced. Lee's Adm'r v. Hill, 87 Va. 497, 12 S. E. 1052, 24 Am. St. Rep. 666.

The damages allowed to be recovered by or against a personal representative by this section are direct damages to property, and not those which are merely consequent upon a wrongful act to the person only. Mumpower v. Bristol, 94 Va. 737, 27 S. E. 581, 3 Va. Law Reg. 439, note.

Illustrative Cases.—At common law, assumpsit for breach of contract, and, under this section, trespass on the case for wrongful discharge of a servant, may, when defendant dies pending the action, be revived against the personal representative. Lee's Adm'r v. Hill, 87 Va. 497, 12 S. E. 1052, 24 Am. St. Rep. 666.

Under this section trover may be sustained against a personal representative as such, though the goods never came into his hands. Ferrill v. Brewis' Adm'r, 25 Grat. 765.

An action for maliciously and without probable cause suing out an injunction against a plaintiff whereby the operation of his mill was suspended will not survive. Mumpower v. Bristol, 94 Va. 737, 27 S. E. 581, 3 Va. Law Reg. 439.

The term "goods" as used in this section is broad enough to include money, and an action may be maintained for money illegally collected by decedent as collector of internal revenue. Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 22 Sup. Ct. 493, 46 L. Ed. 713.

Sec. 5387. When administrator de bonis non may have scire facias. Where a suit is pending, or a judgment or decree has been ren- ered in this State in favor of a personal representative, upon a ntract made or for a cause of action which accrued in the life- me of the decedent, the administrator de bonis non of such de- edent may sue forth a scire facias to have execution upon such dgment or decree, or to revive and prosecute to judgment or de- ee the suit so pending, if the personal representative who brought could have maintained the same. (Code 1887, § 2657.)

Previous to the statute it was held that an administrator de bonis n may maintain an action of debt on a judgment obtained by the exe- tor. Dykes v. Woodhouse's Adm'r, 3 Rand. 287; Allen v. Cunningham, Leigh 399; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 572.

Sec. 5388. When suit may be brought on bond of personal repre- ntative.—Where an execution on a personal judgment or decree gainst a personal representative is returned without being satis- ed, there may be forthwith brought and prosecuted an action gainst the obligors in any bond given by such personal represent- tive for the faithful discharge of his duties. (Code 1887, § 2658.)

Revisors' Note.—The only change made in this section is the inser- on of the word "personal" in line one. Some changes were also made section 5389. The changes in the two sections read together were be- eved to be material, but need not be discussed as, upon further con- deration and discussion, the revisors have become satisfied that this d the following section as they stood in the Code of 1887 were of such ng standing and had operated so well in practice that they should not be sturbed, and that the Legislature should be asked to restore them.

The statutory requirements are: (1) To obtain judgment for the ebt, (2) sue out execution, and (3) have it returned "not satisfied." hen, an action for a devastavit upon the bond of the personal represen- tive against him and his sureties may be instituted. Bush v. Beale, 1 rat. 229; Kent's Adm'r v. Cloyd's Adm'r, 30 Grat. 555, 559; Cookus v. eyton's Ex'r, 1 Grat. 451; Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 168.

1 Rev. Code, p. 390, chapter 104, section 63, from which this se tion came, applied in terms only to execution on judgments. In Bush Beale, 1 Grat. 229, it was held to apply also to execution on decrees, a this is now embodied in the statute.

Representative and sureties not chargeable beyond a sets; how they may plead in actions against them.—No personal re resentative, or any surety of his, shall be chargeable beyond th assets of the decedent, by reason of any omission or mistake i pleading or false pleading of such representative, and in any actio on the bond of a personal representative, the judgment against hi shall be prima facie evidence against his sureties, but such sureti may plead any pleas, and offer any evidence which would be admi sible in an action against the personal representative suggesting devastavit. Sec. 5390. Order in which debts of decedent to be paid.—Whe the assets of the decedent in the hands of his personal represent tive, after the payment of funeral expenses and charges of admi istration, are not sufficient for the satisfaction of all demand against him, they shall be applied:

First. To the claims of physicians, not exceeding fifty dollars, fo services rendered during the last illness of the decedent; and ac counts of druggists, not exceeding the same amount, for article furnished during the same period; and claims of professional nurse or other person rendering service as nurse to the decedent, at hi request or the request of some member of his immediate family t exceeding the same amount, for services rendered during the me period; and accounts of hospitals and sanitariums, not exeding the same amount, for articles furnished and services renred during the same period.

Second. To debts due the United States.

Third. To debts due this State.

Fourth. To taxes and levies assessed upon the decedent previous his death.

Fifth. To debts due as trustee for persons under disabilities, as ceiver or commissioner under decree of court of this State, as perıal representative, guardian or committee, where the qualification ıs in this State.

Sixth. To all other demands, except those in the next class; and Seventh. To voluntary obligations. (Code 1887, § 2660; 1895-6, 289; 1902-3-4, p. 673.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly this section put debts due the United tes and this State in the same class. The revised section gives priority debts due the United States.

Taxes.—Where the owner of real estate dies subsequent to February . the taxes for that year become a preferred charge against his estate. ıcheloe v. Gibson, 115 Va. 119, 78 S. E. 603.

The State has no priority under subsection 4 on decedent's estate taxes collected by him as a tax collector of the State and not acunted for. Spillman v. Payne, 84 Va. 435, 4 S. E. 749. But where ney collected for tax bills placed in their hands by tax collector was d over by his deputies to his administrator as "the State's money." was held that the doctrine of "earmarking" applied, and that the adnistrator properly paid that money to the State in preference to the ditors of the tax collector. Spillman v. Payne, 84 Va. 435, 4 S. E. 749. ıce the decision in this case the section has been amended. See what is w subsection 3.

Counsel fees.—An executor or administrator ought to be credited in administration account for fees paid to counsel, notwithstanding those s were more than the law allowed. Lindsay v. Howerton, 2 Hen. & 9

Subsection 5—Trustees.—The term "trustee" is here used in the reicted sense of "express trustee," as distinguished from trustees, in a neral sense, by construction or implication of law. Debts arising out of nstructive and implied trusts are not included in the statute. Brown v. mbert's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 256, 267; Price's Ex'r v. Harrison's Ex'r, 31 at 114.

Where one, acting as trustee de facto, becomes indebted to the fidury estate. and afterwards regularly became by appointment trustee de re, the debt aforesaid is entitled to priority, under subsection 5, as a uciary one. Brown v. Lambert's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 256, 268.

Partner's separate assets.—Where deceased partner's separate assets e insufficient to pay all his debts, those due by him in a fiduciary pacity are to be paid before anything is applied to payment of partnerip debts. Robinson v. Allen, 85 Va. 721, 730, 8 S. E. 835.

Guardian and ward.—The wards of a guardian de son tort are not enled under this section to any priority over the general creditors of such ardian in the administration of his personal estate after his death. The nguage of the section cannot be extended by construction. Watts v. ewberry, 107 Va. 233, 57 S. E. 657.

A guardian having no authority to receive proceeds of sale of infant's nds is not liable so as to render his debt to infant a preferred debt of e guardian's estate of the fifth class. His liability is merely as a conructive trust, and the statute does not contemplate a preference in favor of constructive trustees. Pope v. Prince's Adm'r, 105 Va. 209, 52 S. 1009.

A bond given by a guardian to his ward on his becoming of age t debt due by guardian in his fiduciary capacity did not destroy the fiducia character of the debt, and it remains fiduciary till satisfied. Smith Blackwell, 31 Grat. 291, 299.

Commissioners for sale.—Where two persons were appointed to s real estate of an infant, with power in either to act, but only one ga bond and acted under the order of court, making sale and reporting sa to court, and the decree ratifying sale and directing collection of pu chase money was made, and upon such collection he turned over a lar portion of the proceeds to the other party, the latter was not liable as co missioner of the court for the funds turned over to him so as to con under the fifth class. Pope v. Prince's Adm'r, 105 Va. 209, 52 S. E. 100

Law prospective.—Act of 1870, amending the former law by inse ing in the third (now fifth) class "debts of trustee for persons under d abilities," was only prospective in its operation. Price's Ex'r v. Harrison Ex'r, 31 Grat. 114; 2 Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 772.

Payment out of order.—Voluntary payment by administrator out intestate's assets of debts of inferior class in preference to debts of high class, when there is a deficiency of assets, does not entitle him to have t creditors so paid preferred. The case has no analogy to the case of executor paying legacies before paying debts. Findlay v. Trigg's Adm 83 Va. 539, 3 S. E. 142.

Payment of one debt in excess of its share is a devastavit, for whi another creditor may be reimbursed. McCormick's Ex'rs v. Wright Ex'rs, 79 Va. 524; 2 Barton, C. Pr. (2d. Ed.) 772.

Order of payment.—For the order in which assets of decedent shou be applied for payment of his debts, see, further, Elliott v. Carter, Grat. 541, and note Va. Rep. Anno.; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 772.

As to order of payment of debts at common law changed by th statute, see 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 154, 580; Nimmo's Ex'r v. Com., 4 Hen. & 57, 4 Am. Dec. 488; Mayo v. Bentley, 4 Call 528.

Wills must conform to this section, and cannot prescribe a differe order in which the personalty shall be applied in the payment of a d cedent's debts. Deering & Co. v. Kerfoot's Ex'r, 89 Va. 491, 494, 16 S. 671. But as to real estate, see section 5395, and notes.

It is beyond the power of a testator, by a direction in his will, effect the order prescribed by this section in which personalty shall applied in the payment of his debts. Deering v. Kerfoot, 89 Va. 491, S. E. 671.

Generally.—"Voluntary obligations," as used in seventh subdivisio is supposed to mean gifts under seal.

CHAPTER 220.

Duties of Personal Representatives as to Real Estate, and the Liability of Such Estate for Decedent's Debts.

Sec.
5393. Executors, and administrators with will annexed, to sell real estate devised to be sold, and receive proceeds, and also certain rents.
5394. To pay over proceeds and rents to persons entitled.
5395. Real estate of decedent to be assets for payment of debts in same order as personal estate.
5396. How such assets administered.
5397. When heir or devisee liable for value of real estate; when purchasers not liable.
5398. Heir or devisee liable in equity, and not at law; effect of judgment against personal representative as evidence.
5399. When suit in equity not to be brought to enforce claim of less than twenty dollars.
5400. Lien acquired in lifetime of decedent not affected.

Sec. 5393. Executors, and administrators with will annexed, to sell real estate devised to be sold, and receive proceeds, and also certain rents.—Real estate, devised to be sold, shall, if no person other than the executors be appointed for the purpose, be sold and conveyed, and rents and profits of any real estate which executors are authorized by the will to receive, shall be received by the executors who qualify, or the survivor of them. If none qualify, or those qualifying die, resign, or are removed before the trust is executed or completed, the administrator, with the will annexed, shall sell or convey the lands so devised to be sold, and receive the proceeds of sale, or the rents and profits aforesaid, as an executor might have done. (Code 1887, § 2663.)

Revisors' Note.—The word "resign" in line six of the text is new.

Object of this section was to prevent the necessity of resorting to a court of equity for the appointment of a trustee, by devolving the execution of the power upon the executors, thus disregarding the distinction between a naked power and a power coupled with an interest. Elys v. Wynne, 22 Grat. 224, 230; Brown v. Armistead, 6 Rand. 597.

Section does not operate as a conveyance of the estate or any interest therein to the executors, but merely to give them power to make any sale of real estate which the will directs to be sold without empowering any particular person to make the sale. Elys v. Wynne, 22 Grat. 224, 230.

Sales by Executors.—At common law a sale was not effectual, unless made by the whole number of executors named to and for the same. This was remedied by 21 Hen. VIII, chapter 4, from which the present statute comes. The act of 1785, chapter 61, embraced virtually the first part of the present section. In 1794 was added the second part, and thus the law has remained with slight changes to this time. See Brown v. Armistead, 6 Rand. 596.

Under Act 1785, chapter 61, a testator having directed his four executors (three of whom qualified) to sell his real and personal estate for payment of debts, a sale by two of the acting executors was valid, and the third was presumed to have renounced his right to administer as at date of sale in question. Nelson v. Carrington, 4 Munf. 332, 6 Am. Dec. 519.

If a written agreement of sale be signed by the purchaser and one of two acting executors, the other may, by acts in pais, even though not in writing, manifest his assent to the sale. Nelson v. Carrington, 4 Munf. 332, 6 Am. Dec. 519.

Two out of three nominated executors qualify, and sell and convey real estate to the purchasers, who pay up the purchase money in full. Afterwards the third qualifies, and consents to the sale by sharing the commissions. Held, that the title of the purchaser is valid, at least in equity. Mills v. Mills' Ex'rs, 28 Grat. 442, 490; also section 5357.

When widow renounces provision of her husband's will, and dower is assigned her, the executor has no power to sell during widow's life and widowhood, even a part of the land devised to be sold after wife's death or marriage. Jackson v. Ligon, 3 Leigh 161; Raper v. Sanders, 21 Grat. 70.

An executor selling land of testator, by virtue of power given by the will, is not bound to convey with general warranty. Grantland v. Joy, 5 Munf. 295.

Sales by administrators.—Where executors are directed by will to sell lands, and they renounce executorship, an administrator with will annexed may sell under authority given by 1 Rev. Code, p. 388, section 52 (virtually same as this section), although the will directs the executor to sell, provided the said land will sell for as much as, in their judgment, will be equal to its value. Brown v. Armistead, 6 Rand. 594, 596.

Testator directed his land to be sold for the best price that could be got, as was directed by letter of attorney to J. H. of same date with will. Held, that the administrator with the will annexed has power to sell land under this section. Broadus v. Rosson, 3 Leigh 12.

Where one dies leaving a will and the executor fails to qualify, and another is appointed administrator only on his estate without "the will annexed," such administrator does not succeed to the power of the executor with respect to the real estate to be sold, and the validity of such appointment for any purpose may well be doubted. Coles v. Jamerson, 112 Va. 311, 71 S. E. 618.

Generally.—After directing that a portion of his estate be sold for payment of his debts, testator directs that a part of another tract of land be sold for that purpose. Held, that his intention was to sell all of the latter if necessary to pay the debt after the first had been exhausted. Thompson v. Meek, 7 Leigh 419.

Sec. 5394. To pay over proceeds and rents to persons entitled.—It shall be one of the duties of an executor or administrator, by virtue of his office, and as such embraced by his official bond, faithfully to pay the rents and profits or proceeds of sale of real estate which may lawfully come to his hands, or to the hands of any person for him, to such persons as are entitled thereto. (Code 1887, § 2664.)

Under 1 Rev. Code, chapter 104, section 21, the sureties were not responsible for the proceeds of land sold by an executor under a power in the testator's will. Burnett v. Harwell, 3 Leigh 89; Jones v. Hobson, 2 Rand. 483. But now he is chargeable with the real estate in his character of executor as much as he is with the personalty. Smith's Ex'r v. Smith, 17 Grat. 277; section 5370 and notes.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 86, section 2.

Sec. 5395. Real estate of decedent to be assets for payment of debts in same order as personal estate.—All real estate of any person who may hereafter die, as to which he may die intestate, or which, though he die testate, shall not by his will be charged with or devised subject to the payment of his debts, or which may remain after satisfying the debts with which it may be so charged or subject to which it may be so devised, shall be assets for the payment of the decedent's debts and all lawful demands against his estate, in the order in which the personal estate of a decedent is directed to be applied. (Code 1887, § 2665.)

Proper order to marshal assets to pay debts.—(1) Personal estate at large not exempted by the terms of the will or necessary implication.

(2) Real estate or any interest therein expressly set apart by will for payment of debts.

(3) Real estate descended to the heir.

(4) Property, real or personal, expressly charged with the payment of debts, and then subject to such charge, specifically devised or bequeathed.

(5) General pecuniary legacies (ratably).

(6) Specific legacies (ratably).

(7) Real estate devised. Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 541, 548; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 594.

The object of this section.—The object of the statute was to do away with the distinction between simple contract debts (for which at common law the lands were not liable), and debts of record and of specialty binding the heirs expressly, and to make the real as well as the personal estate of a decedent liable for the liquidation of all his debts. Frasier v. Littleton's Ex'rs, 100 Va. 9, 11, 40 S. E. 108; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 86. But it was not intended thereby to disarrange the order of liability of the assets of a decedent's estate. Frasier v. Littleton's Ex'rs, 100 Va. 12, 40 S. E. 108; McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 615, 630; Peirce v. Graham, 85 Va. 227, 235, 7 S. E. 189. Therefore, this section does not give a devisee of encumbered lands (which belong in fourth class, supra) a right of contribution from devisees of unencumbered lands (which belong in seventh class, supra). Frasier v. Littleton's Ex'rs, 100 Va. 9, 40 S. E. 108.

Real estate is made assets for the payment of debts (when it is not made equitable assets by will), and is liable like other assets in the hands of an executor or administrator, whenever it or its proceeds come to his hands by terms of the will, whether under a power coupled with an interest or under a mere power. Smith's Ex'r v. Smith, 17 Grat. 268, 277.

Personal estate primary fund for payment of debts.—As between real and personal estate of persons deceased, the personal estate in the hands of the executor or administrator is the primary fund for the payment of debts of every description contracted by the testator or intestate. Pleasants v. Flood's Adm'r, 89 Va. 103, 15 S. E. 504; Scott's Ex'x v. Ashlin, 86 Va. 581, 587, 10 S. E. 751; Ryan's Adm'r v. McLeod, 32 Grat. 375; Alexander v. Byrd, 85 Va. 690, 700, 8 S. E. 577. And the personal property will not be exonerated by a charge on the real estate, unless there be express words or a plain intent in the will to make such exoneration. New's Ex'x v. Bass, 92 Va. 389, 23 S. E. 747; Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 549; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 772, and note to section 5382.

If the creditor proceeds against the real estate descended or devised, the heir or devisee who has sustained the loss shall be allowed to stand in the place of the specialty creditor, to reimburse himself out of the personal estate in the hands of the executor or administrator, provided creditors or parties having more favored claims than the heir or devisee are not prejudiced. Pleasants v. Flood's Adm'r, 89 Va. 103, 15 S. E. 504.

Land in which the widow is entitled to dower being sold by the executor under a charge for the payment of debts, he should be credited for the amount paid the widow in satisfaction of her dower interest. Meeks' Adm'r v. Thompson, 8 Grat. 134, 56 Am. Dec. 134.

When real estate may be subjected.—If debts are unduly paid out of their order, or the personalty exhausted, whether by devastavit or distribution, the real estate in the hands of the heirs (not of the widow) may be subjected. Scott's Ex'x v. Ashlin, 86 Va. 581, 587, 10 S. E. 751; Alexander v. Byrd, 85 Va. 690, 8 S. E. 577; Lewis v. Overby's Adm'r, 31 Grat. 601; Ryan's Adm'r v. McLeod, 32 Grat. 367; Davis v. Newman, 2 Rob. 667, 40 Am. Dec. 764; Pugh v. Russell, 27 Grat. 789.

But when the charge of the debt is primarily and principally upon real estate, and the personal security of covenant is only collateral, the real estate is the primary fund to be looked to, as between the heirs and distributees. Pleasants v. Flood's Adm'r, 89 Va. 96, 103, 15 S. E. 504.

The whole of the real estate of which the decedent died possessed is liable for his debts, and if one of the heirs or devisees has aliened or wasted his part of the estate, and is insolvent, the others must contribute ratably to make up the deficiency according to the value of the lands descended. Lewis v. Overby's Adm'r, 31 Grat. 601; Hopkirk v. Dennis, 2 Munf. 326; Ryan's Adm'r v. McLeod, 32 Grat. 375.

There can be no sale of real estate until there has been an account of personal property, debts and liens. New's Ex'x v. Bass, 92 Va. 383, 23 S. E. 747.

Testator may prefer creditors out of realty, but not out of personalty.—This section recognized the common law right of the ancestor to indicate the charges he wishes to make upon the land for such of his debts as he may prefer; but it does not alter or enlarge the common law liability of the personalty of a decedent as the primary fund for the payment of his debts, nor does it give to a testator the right to prefer his creditors out of his personal assets, as it does in the case of realty. Deering & Co. v. Kerfoot' Ex'r, 89 Va. 491, 16 S. E. 671. See 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 1048; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1048.

When real and personal property are both charged with payment of debts they must contribute ratably.—Though personal property is applicable to the payment of debts before real property, when neither species is expressly charged by the terms of the will, yet when both are equally and expressly charged they stand on the same footing, and each must contribute its ratable share to the common burden. Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 541, 583; Murphy's Adm'r v. Carter, 23 Grat. 489.

General creditors can subject only equity of redemption in mortgaged lands.—This section does not apply to the estate of the debtor which he has previously conveyed to another, nor that on which he has created a lien for the payment of a particular debt (except subject to such charge). In the latter case the creditors coming in under this section must take the subject in the same plight in which the debtor left it. McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 615, 631. See section 5194 and revisors' note.

Therefore general creditors coming in after death of decedent cannot displace creditors claiming under a deed of trust, nor can they subject anything beyond the equity of redemption. McCandlish v. Keen, 13 Grat. 632.

This section does not change the rule that where a part of a tract of land, subject to a mortgage or other charge, is conveyed, the residue is primarily liable for the whole debt, and where there are successive conveyances, at different times, the land is liable in the inverse order of conveyances. Miller v. Holland, 84 Va. 652, 654, 5 S. E. 701.

Power of executor over real estate not increased.—This section does not give an executor power over, interest in, or right concerning the real estate, where the will gave him no power in regard thereto. Therefore an executor with no power over the realty under the will cannot maintain a suit against the heirs to sell the realty to pay debts; nor can he as next friend to the infant heirs, uniting the widow, compel the creditors to have the realty sold to pay debts. Peirce v. Graham, 85 Va. 227, 7 S. E. 189; Litterall v. Jackson, 80 Va. 604.

Judgment against executors does not bind heirs—Rule not changed.—It was the rule, not altered by this section, that a judgment against a personal reresentative did not bind, and was not evidence against the heirs. Brewis v. Lawson, 76 Va. 41, citing Mason's Devisees v. Peter's Adm'rs, 1 Munf. 437; Foster v. Crenshaw's Ex'rs, 3 Munf. 520; Chamberlayne v. Temple, 2 Rand. 384, 396, 14 Am. Dec. 786; Street's Heirs v. Street, 11 Leigh, 498, 508; Robertson v. Wright, 17 Grat. 534, 540. See, also, Watts v. Taylor's Adm'r, 80 Va. 627; Daingerfield v. Smith, 83 Va. 81, 1 S. E. 599; Pannill's Adm'r v. Calloway's Committee, 78 Va. 387. But see section 5398, providing that such judgment or decree shall be prima facie evidence of such claim against the heir or devisee. See, also, Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 919, note.

Payment by executor—Reimbursement from real estate.—Executor having exhausted the personal estate in payment of debts, and being largely in advance to the estate for payment of debts which bound the heirs, in entitled to stand in the place of the creditors whose debts he has paid, and charge the real estate. And the real estate in the hands of the devisees is liable in proportion to its value at the death of the testator. Gaw v. Huffman, 12 Grat. 628.

Debts a charge upon the whole estate.—Directing by will the payment of all just debts charges the whole estate, which charge is not released by a subsequent selection of particular parts to be sold for that purpose. Trent v. Trent's Ex'x, Gilmer 174, 9 Am. Dec. 594; Thompson v. Meek, 7 Leigh 429. But in Leavell v. Smith's Ex'rs, 99 Va. 379, 38 S. E. 204, it is said: "The language, 'It is my will and desire that all my just debts and funeral expenses be paid,' did not thereby charge the debts on the real estate." See Gaw v. Huffman, 12 Grat. 628; also Clarke v. Buck, 1 Leigh 490; Downman v. Rust, 6 Rand. 587.

Generally.—Creditors do not have to see to it that the personal representative does not waste any of the assets liable for debts. Scott's Ex'x v. Ashlin, 86 Va. 581, 588, 10 S. E. 751; Ryan's Adm'r v. McLeod, 32 Grat. 375.

In Gayle v. Hayes' Adm'r it is said that this section does not apply to real estate of infants. 79 Va. 542.

Sec. 5396. How such assets administered.—Such assets, so far as they may be in the hands of the personal representative of the decedent, may be administered by the court in the office whereof there is or may be filed, under chapter two hundred and twenty one, a report of the accounts of such representative, and of the debts and demands against the decedent's estate, or they may, in any case, be administered by a court of equity. (Code 1887, § 2666.)

If any one of the heirs apprehends loss by reason of the alienation or insolvency of a co-heir, he can bring suit to have the estate administered under a court of equity, or he may require a proper report of the debts and liabilities to be filed by the personal representative in the proper court. Therefore, the duty is not imposed upon the creditor of instituting inquiries as to the sufficiency of the personal estate to pay the debts. Ryan v. McLeod, 32 Grat. 375.

Until a suit is brought to charge lands descended or devised with the payment of debts, the heir or devisee is entitled to the rents and profits without being accountable therefor to creditors (Blow v. Maynard, 2 Leigh 29); and an executor receiving rents was held bound to account for them to the heirs and devisees (Hobson v. Yancey, 2 Grat. 77; Barton, C. Pr. [2d Ed.] 1085).

As to jurisdiction of a court of equity to enforce a lien of a judgment, and when it may decree a sale of realty, see section 6472, and Blow v. Maynard, 2 Leigh 29, and note Va. Rep. Anno.; Tennant's Heirs v. Pattons, 6 Leigh 196; Price v. Planters Nat. Bank, 92 Va. 481, 23 S. E. 887, 32 L. R. A. 214.

Under statute against fraudulent devises from which this chapter comes, an action of debt lay on an executor's bond for a creditor claiming a debt from the executor's estate, arising from a breach of the condition by the executor in his lifetime, against the executor's devisees, to have satisfaction out of the lands devised. Sec. 5397. When heir or devisee liable for value of real estate; when purchasers not liable.—Any heir or devisee who shall sell and convey any real estate, which by this chapter is made assets, shall be liable to those entitled to be paid out of the said assets, for the value thereof, with interest; in such case, the estate conveyed shall not be liable if the conveyance was bona fide, and at the time of such conveyance no suit shall have been commenced for the administration of the said assets nor any reports have been filed as aforesaid of the debts and demands of those entitled. But no alienation of such estate, made by an heir or devisee, within one year after the death of the testator or intestate, shall be valid against creditors of such testator or intestate, although no such suit shall have been commenced or report of debts and demands filed within said year. (Code 1887, § 2667.)

The object and effect of this section are twofold: (1) To protect the creditor or other person to be paid out of the real estate declared to be assets, by making the heir or devisee personally liable for the value, with nterest, of such estate when sold and conveyed by him; (2) to protect a ona fide purchaser of such estate under a conveyance made before the urchase of such estate under a conveyance made before the commence- nent of a suit for the administration of the assets or the filing of any such eport as is described. Easley v. Barksdale, 75 Va. 274, 281.

This section and section 6469 must be construed together; they re- uire a lis pendens to be docketed to affect a purchaser without notice f the pending suit. Easley v. Barksdale, 75 Va. 274.

For case of purchaser taking land with constructive notice of charge y will upon it, see Burwell's Adm'rs v. Faubar, 21 Grat. 446, 455.

Sec. 5398. Heir or devisee liable in equity, and not at law; ef- fect of judgment against personal representative as evidence.—An heir or devisee may be sued in equity by any creditor to whom a claim is due for which the estate descended or devised is liable, or for which the said heir or devisee is liable in respect to such estate; and he shall not be liable to an action at law for any matter for which there may be redress by such suit in equity. And any judgment or decree for such claim hereafter rendered against the personal representative of the decedent shall be prima facie evi- dence of the said claim against the heir or devisee in such suit in equity. (Code 1887, § 2668.)

A bill alleging that the surviving executor had regularly settled his accounts, which showed that there were no assets in his hands, and that none would come into his hands to pay indebtedness of testator, and pray- ng an account of the fee simple and annual rental value of the real estate n the hands of the devisees, etc., states a case for the jurisdiction of a court of equity. Leavell v. Smith's Ex'rs, 99 Va. 374, 377, 38 S. E. 202.

The latter part of this section, making a judgment or decree against he personal representative prima facie evidence against the heir or de- isee of the decedent, applies only to judgments or decrees rendered since he enactment of the section, February 19, 1884. Staples' Ex'rs v. Staples, 35 Va. 76, 7 S. E. 199; and overrules Mason's Devisees v. Peter's Adm'rs, 1 Munf. 437; Foster v. Crenshaw's Ex'rs, 3 Munf. 520; Chamberlayne v. Sec. 5399. When suit in equity not to be brought to enforce claim of less than twenty dollars.—No suit in equity shall be brought for the recovery or enforcement of any such claim, the principal whereof does not exceed twenty dollars, unless the person liable or whose estate is liable, being a resident of this State, shall have been notified, at least thirty days before the suit was brought, that such suit would be brought, if the amount of the claim was not paid within said time. Sec. 5400. Lien acquired in lifetime of decedent not affected.—This chapter shall not affect any lien, by judgment or otherwise, acquired in the lifetime of the decedent. (Code 1887, § 2670.)

Section construed by Corporation Court of Danville in Wood v. Wood's Adm'r, 5 Va. Law Reg. 395, where it is said that liens acquired in the lifetime of a decedent, whether upon real or personal property, are paramount to all other claims whatsoever attaching thereon after his death.

Appointment of assistant commissioners of accounts their duties and powers.—The judge of each court in this State having jurisdiction of the probate of wills and granting administrations on estates of decedents may, either in term or in vacation appoint, in addition to the commissioner of accounts, an assistant commissioner of accounts, who shall perform all the duties and exercise all of the powers required of the commissioner of accounts in all cases in which the commissioner of accounts from any cause is so situated that he cannot perform the duties of his office, or in which the commissioner of accounts is of opinion it is improper for him to act. An assistant commissioner of accounts making a settlement of a fiduciary account under the provisions of this section shall, within thirty days, report the fact and date of such settlement to the commissioner of accounts, who shall make an entry of the same in his record books. (1889-90, p. 47; 1899-00 p. 590; 1912, p. 13.)

Sec. 5403. When, and of what, inventories to be returned to commissioners; how compelled; their duty to examine inventories and deliver them for recordation.—Every personal representative, guardian, curator, or committee, shall, within four months after the date of the order conferring his authority, return to the said commissioner, in proper form, an inventory of all the personal and rea estate which has come to his possession or knowledge, or which is under his management or subject to his authority in his fiduciary character; and shall, within four months after any other such estate shall come to his possession or knowledge, return to the said commissioner a further inventory thereof. If he fail to make the return herein first mentioned, the commissioner shall issue, through the sheriff or other proper officer, a summons to such fiduciary, requiring him to make such return; and if said return be not made within thirty days after the date of service of the summons, the commissioner shall report the fact to his court at the next succeeding term thereof. The court shall immediately thereupon order a summons to the fiduciary, requiring him to appear at the following term; and upon his appearing unless excused for sufficient reason, he shall be fined by the court in a sum not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars. And if the said fiduciary still fail to make such return within such time as the court may prescribe, he shall be deemed guilty of contempt of court, and be dealt with accordingly. The said commissioner shall inspect all inventories returned to him by fiduciaries, see that they are in proper form, and, within ten days after they are respectively received and approved by him, deliver them to the clerk of the court, to be recorded as required by law. An appraisement made, according to chapter two hundred and nineteen, shall be considered such an inventory as is required in this section, if it be signed by the personal representative. Sec. 5404. When and by whom accounts of sales returned to them; their duty; penalty on trustees for failure.—Every such fiduciary shall, within four months after selling any property as such, return to the said commissioner an account of such sale; and when sale is made under any deed of trust, otherwise than under a decree, there shall, within four months after the sale, be returned by the trustees to the commissioner of accounts of the court wherein said deed may have been first recorded, an inventory of the property sold and an account of sale. The commissioner shall inspect the same, see that it is made out in proper form, and deliver it to the clerk, to be recorded as herein directed in regard to inventories. Any trustee failing to comply with this section shall forfeit his commission on such sales, unless these commissions shall be allowed by the court. (Code 1887, § 2674; 1897-8, p. 983; 1916, p. 510.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from Acts 1897-8, p. 983, without change. The amendment of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 510), is covered by the last sentence of section 5408.

Sec. 5406. Liability of fiduciaries, agents, and attorneys, for debt lost by negligence or failure to make defense.—If any fiduciary men tioned before in this chapter, or any agent or attorney at law, shal by his negligence or improper conduct, lose any debt or othe money, he shall be charged with the principal of what is so lost and interest thereon, in like manner as if he had received suc principal. And if any personal representative, guardian, curator or committee shall pay any debt the recovery of which could b prevented by reason of illegality of consideration, lapse of time, o otherwise, knowing the facts by which the same could be so pre vented, no credit shall be allowed him therefor. (Code 1887, 2676.)

General rule as to liability of fiduciaries, &c.—Courts of equity wi not hold fiduciaries, agents or trustees liable for losses in managing trust, where they acted in good faith, in the exercise of reasonable di cretion, and as they would probably have done in their own matter Lovett v. Thomas' Adm'r, 81 Va. 245; McCall v. Peachy's Adm'r, 3 Mun 288; Watkins v. Stewart, 78 Va. 111; Elliott v. Carter, 9 Grat. 541; Dav v. Harman, 21 Grat. 194; Lingle v. Cook's Adm'rs, 32 Grat. 262, 269 Douglass v. Stephenson's Ex'r, 75 Va. 747; Myers' Ex'r v. Zetelle, 21 Gra 733, and note Va. Rep. Anno., where all the Virginia cases are collected Davis v. When fiduciaries not responsible.—Compromise of a doubtful clai by personal representative is no devastavit, and he cannot be held r sponsible. Turpin v. Chesterfield Coal & Iron Min. Co., 82 Va. 74. B see section 5440, as to necessity of ratification by court of equity. Se also, 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 477, and cases there cited.

A personal representative is not bound to sue for the recovery of debt due the estate, where it is apparent that the debtor is unable pay it. Mitchell's Adm'r v. Trotter, 7 Grat. 136; Lovett v. Thomas' Adm' 81 Va. 258.

Where the loss of the debt was incurred from the extraordinary d preciation in value of the property covered by the deed of trust, rath than for any culpable neglect on the part of the executor, the execut should not be held responsible. Nelson's Ex'r v. Page, 7 Grat. 160.

When fiduciaries are responsible.—A personal representative who h entrusted a due bill of his intestate to an attorney for collection will held personally liable for the debt if, after hearing that the attorney h let the note run out of date, he fails to bring suit while the attorney is solvent. Mills' Adm'r v. Talley's Adm'r, 83 Va. 361, 5 S. E. 368.

The executor ought not to be allowed a credit for paying a gambling debt of testator. Carter's Ex'rs v. Cutting, 5 Munf. 223.

Interest on debts lost.—Before this section was enacted (Code 1849, chapter 132, section 6) fiduciaries were not liable for interest on debts lost by their negligence or misconduct. Roots v. Stone, 2 Leigh 650; Chapman's Adm'rs v. Shepherd's Adm'r, 24 Grat. 377, 382; Stearns v. Mason, Id. 494; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 715, 716; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 338; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 476.

Statutes of limitation—When fiduciary must plead.—It is the duty of personal representative, etc., to interpose the bar of the statute of limitations to every claim not asserted within the statutory period. Smith v. Pattie, 81 Va. 654, 663; Tunstall v. Pollard, 11 Leigh 1; Trimyer v. Pollard, 5 Grat. 460; Bell v. Crawford, 8 Grat. 110; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1482. This is for the protection of the other creditors, or of legatees or distributees of the decedent. Tunstall v. Pollard's Adm'r, 11 Leigh 1. See, also, 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 477.

Not only is it the duty of the personal representative to make this defense in equity as well as at law, but he or any person interested may do so, where an account has been ordered or taken for administering the assets in equity, by an exception to the report of the commissioner. Smith v. Pattie, 81 Va. 654, 665.

This section does not require a personal representative, etc., to plead the statute of limitations to a claim apparently barred, where he knows facts making statute inapplicable. Radford v. Fowlkes, 85 Va. 820, 8 S. E. 817.

New promise by personal representative.—When the claim was barred in the lifetime of the testator or intestate, no promise of the personal representative can revive the claim so as to take it out of the statute. Smith v. Pattie, supra.

But the personal representative may, where the debt is known to be just and is about to be barred after death of the testator or intestate, make a promise to pay, which will prevent the operation of the statute. Smith v. Pattie, 81 Va. 665; Bishop v. Harrison's Adm'r, 2 Leigh 537.

Statute applied.—Joint obligor whose liability has ceased cannot be compelled to contribute to reimburse co-obligor who has paid the debt. Turner's Adm'r v. Thom, 89 Va. 745, 17 S. E. 323. On the statute generally, see Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 712, 721, 746, 868.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute see Justis' Annotations, chapter 87, section 5.

Sec. 5407. How judgment may be entered against personal representative; when costs to be paid out of his own estate.—A judgment or decree against any person, as the personal representative of a decedent, or committee of a convict or an insane person, for a debt due from such decedent, convict, or insane person, may, without taking an account of the transactions of such representative or committee, be entered to be paid out of the personal estate of such decedent, convict, or insane person in, or which shall come to, the hands of the representative or committee to be administered. When the court enters of record, that if he had prudently discharged his duty, the suit or motion would not have been brought or made, the judgment or decree, so far as it is for costs, shall be entered to be paid out of his own estate. Sec. 5408. When fiduciaries to exhibit their accounts before commissioners for settlement; what entry to be made by commissioners in their books.—A statement of all money which any personal representative, guardian, curator, or committee shall have received, or become chargeable with or have disbursed, within one year from the date of the order conferring his authority, or within any succeeding years, together with the vouchers for such disbursements, shall, within six months after the end of every such year, be exhibited by him before the commissioner of accounts of the court wherein the order conferring his authority was made, and a statement of all the money which any trustee, acting under a trust created since the first day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty, shall have received or become chargeable with, or have disbursed within a year from the date of such trust, or within any succeeding year, together with the vouchers for such disbursements, shall within six months after the end of every such year be laid by him before the commissioner of accounts of the court wherein the instrument creating the trust was first recorded; and the said commissioner shall state, settle, and report to the court an account of the transactions of any such fiduciary, as provided by law. If any such fiduciary fail to make such exhibit, as herein required, the commissioner and the court shall proceed against him in like manner, and the court shall impose the same penalty, unless such fiduciary is excused for sufficient reason, as is herein provided in cases where fiduciaries fail to return inventories of their respective estates. The commissioner shall enter in his record book, in a separate column, the date of each settlement of fiduciary accounts made by him. This section and section fifty-four hundred and four are subject to the proviso that if after a deed of trust is given on land lying in a county, and before a sale thereunder said land is taken within the limits of an incorporated city, the returns of the trustee and settlement of his accounts shall be before the commissioner of accounts of such city. (Code 1887, § 2678; 1916, p. 511.)

Revisors' Note.—The words "within six months after the end of every such year" appearing in lines thirteen and fourteen of the text are new. The last sentence is new and covers the amendment of 1916 (Acts 1916, p. 511). See revisors' note to section 5404.

Sec. 5409. When fiduciaries to forfeit their commissions, etc.—If any such fiduciary wholly fail to lay before such commissioner a statement of receipts for any year, within six months after its expiration, and though a statement be laid before the commissioner, yet if such fiduciary be found chargeable for that year with any money, not embraced in the said statement, he shall have no compensation for his services during said year, nor commission on such money, unless allowed by the court. This section shall not apply to a case in which, within six months after the end of any year, such fiduciary shall have given to the parties entitled to the money received in such year, a statement of the said money, and actually settled therefor with them; nor to a case in which, within the said six months after the end of any year, a fiduciary shall have laid a statement of his receipts within such year before a commissioner in chancery, who may, in a pending suit, have been ordered to settle his account. (Code 1887, § 2679.)

Former rule—Absolute forfeiture.—Previous to enactment of 1867, no discretion was given the court to allow commissions to fiduciaries failing to file statement of receipts in prescribed time. Robertson v. Gillenwaters, 85 Va. 119; Strother v. Hull, 23 Grat. 670; Moses v. Hart's Adm'r, 25 Grat. 795; Crigler's Committee v. Alexander's Adm'r, 33 Grat. 678; Wood's Ex'r v. Garnett, 6 Leigh 271; Boyd's Ex'rs v. Boyd's Heirs, 3 Grat. 115; Morris' Adm'r v. Morris' Adm'r, 4 Grat. 293; Frazier v. Frazier, 77 Va. 796; 3 Min. (2d Ed.) 634; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1479, 1480.

Present rule—Court has discretion.—But by the present statute commissions in such case are not absolutely forfeited, but may be allowed in the discretion of the court. Brent's Adm'r v. Clevinger, 78 Va. 12; Trevelyan's Adm'r v. Lofft, 83 Va. 148, 1 S. E. 901; Barton, C. Pr. (2d Ed.) 764.

The right of a fiduciary to compensation is not a vested one, but is derived from statutes; therefore the requirements of the statutes are mandatory. The loss of compensation as a consequence of failure to comply with these statutes is the only effectual mode of enforcing them. Wood's Ex'r v. Garnett, 6 Leigh 276; Crigler's Committee v. Alexander's Ex'r, 33 Grat. 674. Compensation ought in no case to be allowed a delinquent fiduciary, except where he gives such a reasonable excuse for his failure to comply with the law that to refuse to comply would be inequitable. This will depend upon the circumstances of each particular case. Trevelyan's Adm'r v. Lofft, 83 Va. 141, 1 S. E. 901; Brent's

When fiduciary does not forfeit commissions—Reasonable excuse.—Where, in pending suit, the estate is being settled by the court, the fiduciary does not forfeit his commissions for failure to comply with this section. Fauber's Adm'rs v. Gentry's Adm'r, 89 Va. 312, 15 S. E. 899.

Where personal representative yearly laid his accounts before commissioner of accounts, the failure of the latter to audit, state, and report them cannot cause the latter to lose his commissions. Lovett v. Thomas' Adm'r, 81 Va. 245.

Prevention by the Civil War was a reasonable excuse. Brent's Adm'r v. Clevinger, 78 Va. 12; Moses v. Hart's Adm'r, 25 Grat. 795.

Where a settlement has been made, but by mistake not before a commissioner of proper court, and the whole matter is gone into in a subsequent proceeding, the executor may be allowed compensation. Moorman v. Crockett, 90 Va. 197, 17 S. E. 875.

A fiduciary who failed to make annual settlements or any statement to the beneficiaries, as required by this section and section 5408, and whose only excuse was that he did not deem it necessary, as he had annually paid the interest, is not entitled to commissions, and his right to future commissions will depend upon his future conduct. Ward v. Funsten, 86 Va. 369, 10 S. E. 415.

Generally.—A fiduciary who fails to settle his account as required by this section and who offers no sufficient excuse for his failure so to do forfeits his commission under this section. Crismond v. Jones, 117 Va. 34, 83 S. E. 1045.

Sec. 5410. How compelled to exhibit their accounts for settlement.—When any such fiduciary shall have so failed to lay before such commissioner a statement of his receipts for any year, a commissioner before whom the said statement might have been laid, shall, upon request made to him, within ten years from the commencement of such year, by any person who is interested as creditor, legatee, distributee, surety of such fiduciary, or otherwise, or who appears as next friend of an infant so interested, issue a summons, directed to the sheriff or other officer of any county or corporation, requiring him to summon such fiduciary to lay before the commissioner a statement of his receipts and disbursements, accompanied by his vouchers, for such year, and for the time which may have since elapsed. If the same be not, within one month after the service of such summons, laid before the commissioner who issued it, he shall, on being requested so to do, report the fact to the court which, or the clerk of which, appointed him; and said court shall take such measures to compel the performance by the fiduciary of his duty as could be taken if an express order of the court had been disobeyed. Sec. 5411. Accounts of a fiduciary settled in a chancery cause to be certified to clerk of court in which he qualified; fees allowed clerk, and how paid.—When the account of any fiduciary is settled in a chancery cause, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court in which said cause is, as soon as may be after a final decree therein, to certify to the clerk of the court wherein the fiduciary qualified, a copy of such account so far as the same has been confirmed, with a memorandum at the foot thereof stating the style of the suit and the date of such final decree. The account and memorandum so certified shall be recorded by the clerk to whom it is certified, in the book in which accounts of fiduciaries are required to be recorded under section fifty-four hundred and twenty-eight, and if in a proceeding subsequent to such final decree, by appeal or otherwise, the account shall be reformed or altered, a copy of such reformed or altered account shall in like manner be certified and recorded, together with a memorandum stating the style of the suit and the date of the decree of confirmation. When the clerk of the court in which the cause may be, is also clerk of the court in which or before whom the fiduciary qualified, he shall make the memoranda and recordations required by this section, and shall for such purpose use the original papers. For making any copy under this section, the clerk shall be entitled to the fees prescribed in like cases, and for recording such account of the fiduciary he shall be entitled to the fees allowed for recording accounts settled ex parte; the fees for copying and recording to be paid as the court, in which the cause may be, or the judge thereof, shall direct. (Code 1887, § 2681.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 87, section 7.

Sec. 5412. How record books furnished to commissioners and paid for; to be delivered to successors.—The clerk of each court shall furnish to the commissioner of accounts of said court a suitable record book and other such books as may from time to time be needed, which shall be paid for as other books used for public records; and whenever a commissioner shall cease to act as such, the said books shall be delivered to his successor. (Code 1887, § 2682.)

Sec. 5413. When fiduciaries personally liable for costs.—The costs of all proceedings against fiduciaries failing, without good cause, to make the returns and exhibits required, shall be paid by them personally, and they shall receive no allowance for the same in the settlement of their accounts. (Code 1887, § 2683.)

Sec. 5414. Fees of commissioners of accounts; not to be paid unless sworn to.—The fees of commissioners of accounts for the special duties hereinbefore imposed upon them shall be the same as are now allowed by law to commissioners in chancery, and the said commissioners of accounts shall, in all cases, return with their accounts affidavits subscribed by them as to the time they were occupied in settling said accounts. And unless and until such affidavits are returned, the said commissioners of accounts shall not be entitled to any compensation for their services. (Code 1887, § 2684.)

Sec. 5415. When court may require another commissioner to settle accounts of a fiduciary; what he shall certify to commissioner of accounts; receipts to be given fiduciaries for vouchers; effect thereof as evidence.—On motion of any fiduciary having charge of an estate, or of any person interested therein, the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, may require any one of its commissioners in chancery to settle the accounts of such fiduciary; and, whenever a court deems it proper, it may require any one or more of its commissioners in chancery to settle the accounts of any of the fiduciaries mentioned in the preceding sections of this chapter. A commissioner making a settlement under such order of a court shall, within thirty days, report the fact and date of such settlement to the commissioner of accounts, who shall make an entry of the same in his record book. Any commissioner having before him the accounts of a fiduciary for settlement shall, on request, execute and deliver to such fiduciary a receipt for all vouchers filed with him, which receipt, if said vouchers be afterwards lost or destroyed, shall, in any suit or proceeding against such fiduciary, be evidence of the delivery to such commissioner of the vouchers therein mentioned. (Code 1887, § 2685.)

Sec. 5416. Commissioners to examine and report on official bonds of fiduciaries.—When any personal representative, guardian, curator, or committee, except a sheriff or other officer, shall have laid the statement required by section fifty-four hundred and eight before a commissioner, he shall examine whether said fiduciary has given such bond as the law requires, and whether it is in a penalty, and with sureties sufficient. Any commissioner of the court in which the order was made conferring on said fiduciary his authority, shall, at any time before such statement is laid before a commissioner, upon the application of any person who is interested or appears as next friend of an infant interested, after reasonable notice to such fiduciary, examine into any of the said matters, or inquire whether security ought to be required of a fiduciary who may have been allowed to qualify without giving it, or whether, by reason of the incapacity, misconduct, or removal of any fiduciary from this State, or for any other cause, it is improper to permit the estate of the decedent, ward, or other person, to remain under his control. The result of every such examination and inquiry shall be reported by the commissioner to the court by which he is appointed. (Code 1887, § 2686.)

application of any surety or his personal representative, shall, or when it appears proper, on such report of the clerk or a commissioner, or on evidence adduced before it by any party interested, may, at any time, whether such fiduciary shall or shall not have before given bond, or whether he shall have given one with or without sureties, order him to give before such court a new bond in a reasonable time to be prescribed by it, in such penalty, and with or without sureties, as may appear to it to be proper, and may, if such order be not complied with, or whenever from any cause it appears proper, revoke and annul his powers; but no such order shall be made unless reasonable notice appear to have been given to such fiduciary by the commissioner who made such report, or by the surety or his representative making the application aforesaid, or by the service of a rule or otherwise; and no such order or revocation shall invalidate any previous act of such fiduciary. (Code 1887, § 2687.)

History of section.—Under the law at the time of the revision of 1849, a new bond of certain fiduciaries, when executed, related back to the time of the qualification of the fiduciary, bound the sureties in the new bond from that time, and discharged the sureties in the former bond, except in pending suits on the former bond, in which case the securities in that bond were indemnified in the new bond. The bond provided in this section has no relation back, and the sureties in the former bond are not discharged from any liabilities incurred thereunder before the execution of the new bond. See Burks' Address, Barton L. Pr. (2d Ed.), p. 1397.

Effect of new bond.—Where a new bond is given, the sureties in the old bond are discharged from future liability. If an additional bond be given, the old sureties remain liable for past defaults, while as to the future both sets of sureties become jointly liable. 8 Va. Law Reg. 511. See section 281, and notes. Cases construing former statute, Lingle v. Cook's Adm'rs, 32 Grat. 262, 274; Greenesville Justices v. Williamson, 12 Leigh 93.

Where a guardian, who has given one bond, with sureties, afterwards of his own motion gives another, the latter bond relates back to his appointment as guardian, and the sureties in the first bond are discharged. Sayers v. Cassell, 23 Grat. 525. (Decided in 1873.)

The sureties on the first bond cannot escape if, when they plead the new bond, the counter plea of nul tiel record is sustained. Greenesville Justices v. Williamson, 12 Leigh 93. See Burks' Address, Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1396.

Power to remove fiduciaries.—As to the power of court to remove executors from offices and circumstances justifying such action, see Reynolds v. Zink, 27 Grat. 29; Snavely v. Harkrader, 29 Grat. 112, 128.

Appellate court will interfere only where manifest injustice has been done, or it is plain that proper case has not been made out, for exercising such power. Id.

Revocation of appointment of guardian void under former statute, at least as to persons dealing with guardian as such, without notice thereof, because revocation was made without any summons to guardian to answer being served on him and without any appearance by him. Bank of Virginia v. Craig, 6 Leigh 399.

Generally.—If, after removal of guardian, he collects money due the ward, he and his surety are accountable therefor, and if the payment be made in good faith by one ignorant of the aforesaid removal. Sage v. Hammonds, 27 Grat. 651. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1478.

Ample provision is made whereby any person interested in the estate of a lunatic may for cause shown, have his committee removed, his a counts corrected, his expenditures restrained, and such relief grant as will assure the proper fulfillment by the committee of the duties his office. Lake v. Hope, 116 Va. 687, 82 S. E. 738.

No count of any fiduciary shall be completed by any commissioner til it shall have been mentioned in such list, for ten days after ing so mentioned. (Code 1887, § 2693; 1904, p. 115.)

The provisions of this section apply to the report, regular or spe-l, mentioned in section 5430; and consequently the court cannot, der section 5430, make an order lending out or investing the money erein referred to until the commissioner has posted the notice as herein uired. Sec. 5425. Expenses and commissions allowed fiduciaries.—Th commissioner, in stating and settling the account, shall allow th fiduciary any reasonable expenses incurred by him as such; an also, except in cases in which it is otherwise provided, a reasonabl compensation, in the form of a commission (on receipts), or othe wise. (Code 1887, § 2695.)

Reasonable expenses.—Expense of recovering a runaway negro money paid for hire of slave to make crop on decedent's estate, proceed of which are credited to the estate, are reasonable expenses. Nimmo Com., 4 Hen. & M. 57. Also counsel fees, though greater than allowe by law. Lindsay v. Howerton, 2 Hen. & M. 9. Also moneys paid an advanced for clothes, schooling, and other necessary expenses, an these should be allowed out of principal of ward's estate, if it appea such disbursements were unavoidable without culpable neglect on part o guardian; otherwise such allowance ought to be made out of profit only. Hooper v. Royster, 1 Munf. 119. See section 5321 and revisors note. Also clerk hire, renting counting room, postage, etc. Hipkins Bernard, 4 Munf. 83; Farneyhough's Ex'rs v. Dickerson, 2 Rob. 582 Guardian should be credited for repairs to ward's houses, though unabl to say to which particular houses repairs were made. Newton v. Poole 12 Leigh 112, 140. See 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1483.

These "reasonable expenses" have preference to claims of creditors Nimmo v. Com., 4 Hen. & M. 57.

Where vouchers are wanting, an article ought to be allowed o oath of defendant, if it be of such nature that the expense probably mus have been incurred, or that, perhaps, a voucher for it could not hav been procured, e. g., mourning for widow, midwife fees, carpenter's fee McCall v. Peachy's Adm'r, 3 Munf. 289; Newton v. Poole, 12 Leigh 140 Beverley v. Miller, 6 Munf. 99; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1485.

Commissions to fiduciaries.—The amount of commissions to be a lowed to a personal representative is not fixed by law, and though per cent. on receipts (not disbursements) is generally allowed, yet thi allowance may be increased, and the court of probate is the most com petent tribunal to make the allowance. Appellate court will be dis inclined to disturb the allowance, especially after long acquiescenc therein by distributees of estate. Boyd's Sureties v. Oglesby, 23 Gra 675; Whitehead v. Whitehead, 85 Va. 878, 9 S. E. 10; Lovett v. Thoma Adm'r, 81 Va. 256; Waddy's Ex'r v. Hawkins' Adm'r, 4 Leigh 458; Min. (3d Ed.) 1487. Seven and a half per cent. on receipts and dis bursements allowed, the real and personal estate both having bee managed by the executor. Fitzgerald v. Jones, 1 Munf. 150. See, also Triplett's Ex'rs v. Jameson, 2 Munf. 242. Ten per cent. allowed on re ceipts where debts were small and debtors dispersed. Cavendish Fleming, 3 Munf. 198; McCall v. Peachey, 3 Munf. 288. See, also, 4 Mi (3d Ed.) 1487, 1488.

Commissions are not to be allowed to the fiduciary upon the valu of property belonging to the estate, and finally turned over to him i kind, unless when it was perishable, or was such property as the fidu ciary might properly have sold, or bonds which he might have collecte but did not, and with consent of cestui que trust paid over to him i kind as so much money. And if the fiduciary appear to have con verted the property of cestui que trust into money with a view to com missions, when there is no sufficient reason therefor, commissions will b denied to him. Gregory v. Parker, 87 Va. 455, 12 S. E. 801; Bank of Vir ginia v. Craig, 6 Leigh 437; Farneyhough's Ex'rs v. Dickerson, 2 Rob 582; Claycomb's Legatees v. Claycomb's Ex'r, 10 Grat. 589; Gran berry's Ex'r v. Granberry, 1 Wash. 249, 1 Am. Dec. 455; 4 Min. (3d Ed. 1488.

Thus, on United States bond held by fiduciary, and from which th interest was collected, the fiduciary is entitled to 5 per cent. commissio on the interest and no more. Gregory v. Parker, 87 Va. 451, 12 S. E. 80 nd where slaves are turned over, the executor is not entitled to a commission on the appraised value; but the rule is otherwise as to grain nd other perishable property which by law the executor is entitled to ell. Claycomb's Legatees v. Claycomb's Ex'r, 10 Grat. 589.

On bonds due the estate, passed by executor to the legatees and oluntarily received by the latter, the executor is entitled to commission n the amount of such bonds. Farneyhough's Ex'rs v. Dickerson, 2 Rob. 82. Likewise on bonds or other debts turned into mortgages, which atter were delivered to legatees; also on sales of crops; on money found n the house and disbursed for use of family or invested in bank stock. lipkins v. Bernard, 4 Munf. 83.

An executor is not entitled to commission on the amount of debt due rom him to the testator. Farneyhough's Ex'rs v. Dickerson, 2 Rob. 82; Carter's Ex'r v. Cutting, 5 Munf. 227; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1488. Nor s he entitled to commissions but once on the same fund. McCall v. 'eachy's Adm'r, 3 Munf. 297.

A personal representative who pays off a debt secured on stocks, s entitled to the usual commission on the full value of the stock, and s not restricted to a commission on the net value after deducting the ebt secured. Allen v. Virginia Trust Co., 116 Va. 319, 82 S. E. 104.

An executor is generally entitled to a commission of five per cent. n receipts which may be reduced or increased under peculiar circumtances, and this allowance extends to stocks and bonds distributed in ind. Allen v. Virginia Trust Co., 116 Va. 319, 82 S. E. 104.

When a testator fixes the compensation for an executor or trustee nder his will, and the executor or trustee named therein accepts the ppointment, he is entitled to as much and is limited to as little, as the estator has fixed. In cases where the language of the testator is susceptible of more than one construction, the question becomes one of interetation which the courts must settle by ascertaining the probable intention and understanding of the parties. Where no compensation at ll is named in the will, the rule is that the allowance shall be reasonble, being usually five per cent. on receipts, subject to increase or reuction of this rate under peculiar circumstances. Williams v. Bond, 20 Va. 678, 91 S. E. 627.

The executor is entitled to the usual commission, though a legatee nder the will. Granberry's Ex'r v. Granberry, 1 Wash. 246, 1 Am. Dec. 455. But see Jones v. Williams, 2 Call 102; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1489.

Commissions have priority over all debts due from decedent. Nimmo's Ex'r v. Com., 4 Hen. & M. 57, 4 Am. Dec. 488.

As to when commissions are forfeited, see section 5409, and notes hereto, 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 490.

Interest on Funds in Fiduciaries' Hands—Generally.—Interest is ot affected by the absence abroad of the creditor, nor by the nonxistence of the person entitled to the money, nor, as is presumed, by is hostile alienage. Sharpe's Ex'r v. Rockwood, 78 Va. 24; Burwell's Ex'rs v. Anderson, 3 Leigh 348; Anderson v. Burwell's Ex'rs, 6 Grat. 05; Bourne's Ex'r v. Mechan, 1 Grat. 292; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1493.

At the close of an administration account, the interest due from an dministrator is not to bear interest. Morris' Adm'r v. Morris' Adm'r, Grat. 294. But after decree disposing of the fund interest is to be harged from date of decree upon whole fund, principal and interest, lready accrued. Chapman's Adm'rs v. Shepherd's Adm'r, 24 Grat. 377.

When an executor takes bonds for purchases made at a sale of testaor's personal property, he will be charged with interest thereon only rom the end of the year that the bonds fall due. Rosser v. Depriest, 5 Grat. 6, 50 Am. Dec. 94.

As to interest being charged on debt lost by improper conduct of iduciary, see section 5406 and notes; also 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1491.

Mode of charging interest.—(1) As to mode of charging interest where fiduciary is guardian, see section 5323 and notes; 1 Min. (4th Ed.) 48 499, 500. (2) Where fiduciary is committee of insane person. Crigler Committee v. Alexander's Ex'r, 33 Grat. 674.

Annual balance—Interest thereon.—The propriety of charging exec tor interest on annual balances in his hands depends upon the circun stances of each case. Wood's Ex'r v. Garnett, 6 Leigh 271; Burwell Ex'rs v. Anderson, 3 Leigh 348; Granberry's Ex'r v. Granberry, 1 Was 246. He ought not to be charged interest on small annual balance where he was not in default in not paying them over to legatees, ar never applied the money to his own use. Wood's Ex'r v. Garnett, 6 Leig 271.

Executor should be allowed interest on balances due him on a ministration account. Jones v. Williams, 2 Call 102, and note Va. Re Anno.

The executor should not be charged with compound, but only wit simple, interest upon the yearly balances left over in his hands, unle testator directed that those balances be invested in interest bearin securities. Lovett v. Thomas' Adm'r, 81 Va. 245; Crigler's Commi tee v. Alexander's Ex'r, 33 Grat. 674; Garnett v. Carr, 1 Rob. 196.

But when the beneficiaries are minors, and accumulation for the benefit is the ruling intention of the will, compound interest will b charged, whether the fiduciary be an executor or guardian. Strother Hull, 23 Grat. 663; Garnett v. Carr, 1 Rob. 196; Id., 3 Leigh 407 Handly v. Snodgrass, 9 Leigh 484, note Va. Rep. Anno.

Where the account wrongly charges interest upon interest, yet, it is obvious that, had the account been properly settled, the balanc against the executor would exceed the sum reported to be due, the d cree will not be reversed at the instance of the debtor. Handly Snodgrass, 9 Leigh 484, 490; Carter's Ex'rs v. Cutting, 5 Munf. 238 Burnley's Adm'r v. Duke, 1 Rand. 108.

Interest on annual balances should not be carried into account of su ceeding years.—Though interest ought to be charged on the annu balances, such interest ought not, as in the case of debtors, to be carrie to the account of the succeeding years, in order to deduct the same fro the payments made in such succeeding years (Granberry v. Granberry, Wash. 249); nor to convert it into principal, and make it bear intere (Sheppard's Ex'r v. Starke, 3 Munf. 29).

Fiduciary keeping fund considered a borrower.—If fiduciary pro erly invest funds, he will be liable for interest which he actually r ceived or ought to have received; but if he keeps funds he is presume to have used them, and to have made interest, and therefore he is treate like a borrower. Sharpe's Ex'r v. Rockwood, 78 Va. 24, 35; Templeton Fauntleroy, 3 Rand. 434; Burwell's Ex'rs v. Anderson, 3 Leigh 34 Anderson v. Burwell's Ex'rs, 6 Grat. 405; Bourne's Ex'rs v. Mechan, Grat. 292; Leake's Ex'r v. Leake, 75 Va. 800; Crickard's Ex'r Crickard's Legatees, 25 Grat. 410; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1492.

Estimated profits—Interest on.—Interest will be allowed on estimat hires or profits, whether actually received or not, if it was the duty fiduciary to have received them (Cross Curatrix v. Cross' Legatee 4 Grat. 257; Rosser v. Depriest, 5 Grat. 6, 50 Am. Dec. 94; Dabney Cottrell's Adm'x, 9 Grat. 582); thus changing the rule expressed Whitehorn v. Hines, 1 Munf. 557; Dillard v. Tomlinson, Id. 183; Baird Bland, 5 Munf. 492; Roper v. Wren, 6 Leigh 38; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 149

Settlement prevented by failure of legatees.—Where the failure to bri the executor to settlement proceeded from neglect of the residua legatees, without any wilful default on his part, interest ought not be charged on the balance due from him to the estate except from th date of the decree; neither in such case ought interest to be allowed hi on payments to the legatees before the decree, though made in bon which carried interest. Fitzgerald v. Jones, 1 Munf. 150.

Trustees in Trust Deed.—Where a fiduciary is a trustee in a dee of trust, as to disbursements, commissions, and interest, see section 516 and notes, and Lomax v. Pendleton, 3 Call 538; Beverleys v. Miller, Munf. 99; Coltrane v. Worrell, 30 Grat. 434; Cogbill v. Boyd, 79 Va.

Sec. 5426. Accounts, etc., to be reported.—Every account stated ıder this chapter shall be reported, with any matters specially ated deemed pertinent by the commissioner, or which may be re-ıired by any person interested to be so stated. (Code 1887, § 96.)

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 335, 336.

Sec. 5427. Where filed; what to be done with vouchers.—The ɔmmissioner shall file the report in the office of the court by which e is appointed, as soon as practicable after its completion, and ıall, with his report, return such of the vouchers or evidence be-ɔre him as any person interested may desire him to return, or as e may deem proper. (Code 1887, § 2697.)

Sec. 5428. Court to examine reports and correct any errors; when ɔnfirmed to be recorded; vouchers, etc., to be returned to parties.—he court, after one month from the time the report may have een filed in its office, shall examine the same, with such exceptions ıereto as may be filed, at any time before such examination. It ıall correct any errors which shall appear on the exceptions, and ny appearing on the face of the account, whether excepted to or ɔt; and to this end may commit the report to the same or another ɔmmissioner, as often as it sees cause; or it may cause a jury to e empaneled to inquire into any matter which, in its opinion, should e ascertained in that way; or it may confirm the report in a whole r in a qualified manner, and shall certify in the order that it has ıade a personal examination of said reports, whether excepted to r not. The clerk shall record every report which may be so con-rmed, and at the foot of it, the order of confirmation, in what is nown as will books, and index the same according to the provisions f section thirty-three hundred and ninety-four.

Any vouchers or other evidence remaining with the commissioner t the time of such confirmation, and not wanting for any further ıatter of inquiry before him, shall be returned by him to the party ho filed the same. (Code 1887, § 2698; 1904, p. 268.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is taken from section 2698 of the ɔde of 1887 without the amendment of 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 268). That mendment provided that the account should lie in the clerk's office irty days for exceptions, and should stand confirmed at the expiration f that period if not excepted to. It made it the duty of the court or ıdge to examine only such accounts as to which exceptions were filed. he revisors were of opinion that this amendment deprived estates of the rotection to which they are justly entitled. Settlements which are not xcepted to are often the most objectionable. The revised section goes ven further than the section as it stood before the amendment in that t requires the court TO CERTIFY IN THE ORDER THAT IT HAS MADE A PERSONAL EXAMINATION of the reports, whether excepte to or not. It will be observed that the reports are to be recorded i the will books and indexed according to section 3304.

Exception to commissioner's report of accounts settled by hin should specify with reasonable certainty the grounds of the exception But an exception which points out the particulars in which the commis sioner has failed to obey the order under which he is acting, or whic shows wherein the account is settled on a wrong principle. is suffi ciently specific. Robinett's Adm'r v. Robinett's Heirs, 92 Va. 124, 2 S. E. 856, citing Crockett v. Sexton, 29 Grat. 46; Simmons v. Simmons Adm'r, 33 Grat. 451; Morrison's Ex'r v. Ex parte settlements by a master commissioner of the account of a fiduciary shall be taken as correct except so far as the same is falsi fied, and the onus is upon the plaintiff to show that it is not correct When such settlement is made inter partes and is duly returned an confirmed, it cannot be disturbed except for errors upon its face and afte discovered evidence. Radford v. Fowlkes, 85 Va. 820, 8 S. E. 817. Se revisors' note above.

Sec. 5429. Effect of confirmation.—The report, to the extent t which it may be so confirmed, shall be taken to be correct, excep so far as the same may, in a suit, in proper time, be surcharged o falsified. (Code 1887, § 2699.)

Statute declaratory.—This section, enacted first in 1849, is simpl declaratory of the pre-existing rule. Leavell v. Smith's Ex'rs, 99 Va 374, 377, 38 S. E. 202. Rule followed in Anderson v. Fox, 2 Hen. & M 245 (opinion of Judge Tucker); Atwell's Adm'rs v. Milton, 4 Hen. & M 253; Wall's Ex'rs v. Gressom's Distributees, 4 Munf. 110; Wyllie v Venable's Ex'r, Id., 369; Shearman v. Audited accounts prima facie evidence.—Though great and nume ous errors appear in the accounts settled by commissioner's report, an even though the executor appear to have taken an unfair advantag and though he never returned to the court and did not exhibit to th creditors any inventory and appraisement of the estate, the audited a counts are to be taken as prima facie evidence, and to be corrected onl so far as they are surcharged and falsified. The audited account res upon the supposed integrity of an impartial tribunal. Newton v. Pool 12 Leigh 112; Leake's Ex'r v. Leake, 75 Va. 792; Carter v. Edmond 80 Va. 61; Green's Adm'r v. Thompson, 84 Va. 392, 5 S. E. 507; Rad ford v. Fowlkes, 85 Va. 820, 841, 8 S. E. 817; Owens v. Owens, 10 Va. 432, 63 S. E. 990.

An ex parte settlement, confirmed by the court, cannot be ove turned by showing that before the account was settled the administrato paid his individual debts by checks drawn by him as administrator o his decedent's estate. It will not be inferred that he has misappropriate the funds belonging to the estate. McIntyre v. Wright, 113 Va. 29 74 S. E. 172.

No appeal from order confirming settlement—Bill to surcharge o falsify.—This section negatives the idea of an appeal from the orde confirming the ex parte settlement and clearly points out the remedy t be pursued by a party who thinks himself aggrieved by an ex parte settl ment of a fiduciary account. The remedy is by bill to surcharge an lsify the ex parte settlement. Owens v. Owens, 109 Va. 432, 63 E. 990.

This section forms no barrier to a bill in equity specifying errors, hether of law or fact, in the settlement. Interested parties may ırcharge such a settled account by specifying items for which credit ıould be given, but which are omitted, or may falsify by pointing out ıarges improperly made. Not only the duty of specifying errors, but so the onus probandi, devolves on the party complaining. Peale v. ickle, 9 Grat. 445; Corbin v. Mills' Ex'rs, 19 Grat. 438.

Upon a bill to surcharge and falsify an executor's account, though aintiff is held to specification of items of surcharge and falsification, et he may always show that the account is erroneous upon its face, and, ithout controverting the items themselves, show that they have been) arranged as to produce results injurious to him. Garrett v. Carr, Leigh 407; Radford v. Fowlkes, 85 Va. 820, 8 S. E. 817.

A bill which states no ground of fraud, accident or mistake, but erely seeks to correct an error which it alleges the commissioner of ccounts made in his settlement, is not sufficient to entitle the com-ainant to reopen the settlement by bill in equity. Johnson v. Com., 17 Va. 506, 85 S. E. 566.

When executor or administrator substituted to rights of creditor.—he faith and credit to which the settled ex parte accounts of a personal presentative are entitled does not extend to items therein that are ot properly executorial, and hence not to payments to creditors over and eyond the personal estate. Therefore, if an executor or administrator, fter exhausting the assets which properly come into his hands, pays debts the decedent out of his own estate, he can only claim to be sub-ituted to the rights of the creditor, and must prove his demand by ie same kind of evidence that would be demanded of the original credi-or. Leavell v. Smith's Ex'rs, 99 Va. 374, 38 S. E. 202; Street's Heirs Street, 11 Leigh 498, 7 Va. Law Reg. 195.

Modifications, etc., of rule of section.—The inconvenience of the ule in this section has given rise to a few modifications and exceptions, hen necessary to attain the justice of the case. Thus, where the settle-ents are erroneous upon their face, or do not profess to be final or to mbrace all the transactions of the executors, the court will have the ccounts reformed by the commissioner. Chapman's Adm'rs v. Shep-erd's Adm'r, 24 Grat. 377, 390; Shugart's Adm'r v. Thompson's Adm'r, 0 Leigh 443, note Va. Rep. Anno.

Impeachment of reports—When not allowed.—Commissioners' re-orts not excepted to cannot be impeached before an appellate court in elation to matters which may be affected by extraneous testimony. eters v. Neville's Trustee, 26 Grat. 549; Cole's Committee v. Cole's dm'r, 28 Grat. 365; Simmons v. Simmons' Adm'r, 33 Grat. 451; Rad-ord v. Fowlkes, 85 Va. 820, 8 S. E. 817. See note to section 5428.

Sec. 5430. Court may order money in hands of fiduciary to be invested, etc.—When it appears by a report made as aforesaid or a pecial report of the commissioner, that money is in the hands of ny fiduciary, the court, in the clerk's office of which said report is led, may order the same to be invested or loaned out, or make uch other order respecting the same as may seem to it proper. The provisions of section 5423 apply to the report, regular special, mentioned in this section; consequently the court cannot und this section make an order lending out or investing the money here referred to until the commissioner has posted the notice as required section 5423. Executors and other fiduciaries may invest in Virgin three per centum bonds issued by virtue of an act approved Febr ary fourteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-two.—Executors, a ministrators, trustees and other fiduciaries may invest the fun held by them in a fiduciary capacity in the following securiti which are and shall be considered lawful investments:

In the bonds issued under the act approved February fourteent eighteen hundred and eighty-two, commonly known as the Riddl berger bonds, and in what are commonly called century bonds this State;

Sec. 5433. Court may order payment of amounts due from certain luciaries to persons entitled.—When a report of the accounts of y guardian, curator, committee, or trustee aforesaid, shall be conmed, either in whole or in a qualified manner, the court, in the erk's office of which said report is filed, may order payment of hat shall appear due on such accounts to such persons as would entitled to recover the same by suit in equity. Sec. 5435. How sum reserved for dividend on contingent claim to e paid, when it is established.—Upon any such claim being allowed ubsequent to any dividend, there shall be ordered to be paid out of ne estate remaining in the hands of the representative or under the ontrol of the court (without regarding any debt of superior dignity or which there may have been no such reservation), the amount f such claim, or a proportion thereof, equal to what shall have een paid to other creditors of the same class, if there be enough emaining to pay the same, or such proportion, but the former divilend shall not be disturbed. (Code 1887, § 2704.)

Sec. 5436. How assets applied at subsequent dividends.—When, t the time of any dividend, the whole assets are not distributed, or when further assets afterwards come to the hands of the perso representative, if, after paying such proportion as is mentioned the two preceding sections, or any claim allowed subsequent to su dividend, there remain a surplus, it shall be divided among all creditors who shall have proved debts and demands against the cedent's estate, in the order and proportions in which they may entitled. (Code 1887, § 2705.)

Sec. 5437. When distribution to be made of estate of decede refunding bonds to be given; where recorded.—A personal repres tative shall not be compelled to pay any legacy given by the w or make distribution of the estate of his decedent, until after a y from the date of the order conferring authority on the first exe tor or administrator of such decedent; and, except where it is oth wise specially provided, he shall not then be compelled to make su payment or distribution until the legatee or distributee shall gi him a bond, executed by himself or some other person, with su cient surety, with condition to refund a due proportion of a debts or demands which may afterwards appear against the cedent, and of the costs attending their recovery. Such bond sh be filed and recorded in the clerk's office of the court which m have decreed such payment or distribution, or in which the counts of such representative may be recorded. (Code 1887, 2706.)

A general legacy payable in no special manner, where the will silent as to the time of payment and as to when interest is to begin run, is not payable until one year after the executor's qualification, a does not bear interest until payable. Moorman v. Crockett, 90 Va. 1 196, 17 S. E. 875.

Personal representatives, who without taking proper refundi bonds pay legacies or bequests or distribute personalty before the de shall have been paid, are guilty of devastavit, and they and their secu ties are liable to unpaid creditors. Edmunds' Adm'r v. Scott, 78 V 720; Lewis v. Overby's Adm'r, 31 Grat. 601; Crookus v. Peyton's Ex 1 Grat. 431; Morrison v. Lavell, 81 Va. 519, 522; Kippen v. Carr's Ex 4 Munf. 119.

The intention to waive the refunding bond must be clear. It w not be inferred from a mere assent to the legacy, because the execu may be willing to assent to a legacy and aver to hold it for the ben of the legatee, and still not willing to part with the possession of it wi out a refunding bond. Nelson's Adm'r v. Cornwell, 11 Grat. 724; Whi head's Adm'r v. Coleman's Ex'rs, 31 Grat. 784, 788.

No action can be maintained at law for a legacy against execu without an express promise to pay. No admission of assets or m acknowledgment will be sufficient; for without such promise the execu has a right to require a refunding bond, which a court of law can compel the creditor to give or the executor to receive. On or after the day named in the rder, the court in term, or the judge in vacation, may order the ayment and delivery to the legatees or distributees of the whole or part of the money and other estate not before distributed, with or ithout a refunding bond, as it may prescribe; but every legatee distributee to whom any such payment or delivery is made, and s representatives, may, in a suit brought against him within five ears afterwards, be adjudged to refund a due proportion of any ebts or demands appearing against the decedent, and the costs at- nding their recovery. When said compoundin and compromise shall have been so ratified and approved, it sha be binding on all parties in interest before said court. 5444. Right of entry not affected by descent cast.

Sec. 5441. Wife's right of entry not to be barred by judgment, in husband's lifetime, by default or collusion; when she may, in his lifetime, defend her right.—A woman shall not be barred of her right of entry into land by a judgment in her husband's lifetime by default or collusion, but after his death may prosecute the same by any proper suit; or, in the lifetime of the husband, if he will not appear, or, against his wife's consent, will render the wife's lands during the coverture in a suit against the husband and wife for lands which are her inheritance, the wife may come at any time before judgment, and defend her right. Sec. 5442. Nor shall her right of entry be affected by his acts only.—No conveyance or other act suffered or done by the husband only, of any land which is the inheritance of his wife, shall be or make any discontinuance thereof, or be prejudicial to the wife or her heirs, or to any having right or title to the same by her death, but they may respectively enter into such land, according to their right and title therein, as if no such act had been done. Summary Remedy for Unlawful Entry or Detainer.*

Sec.
5445. How person turned out or kept out of possession of land may recover it; when proceeding to be in court and when it may be before a justice.
5446. Service of summons; when and where returned; plea of defendant; how case tried; its precedence.
5447. Verdict and judgment; how summons issued by justice directed and served.
5448. How possession of premises in city or town, or in subdivision of suburban or other lands for residential purposes recovered from tenant or lessee whose rent is in default.

Sec. 5445. How person turned out or kept out of possession of land may recover it; when proceeding to be in court and when it may be before a justice.—If any forcible or unlawful entry be made upon lands, or if, when the entry is lawful and peaceable, the tenant shall detain the possession of land after his right has expired, without the consent of him who is entitled to the possession, the party so turned out of possession, no matter what right or title he had thereto, or the party against whom such possession is unlawfully detained, may, within three years only after such forcible or unlawful entry, or such unlawful detainer, sue out of the clerk's office of the circuit court of the county, or the circuit or corporation court of the city, in which the land, or some part thereof, is, a summons against the defendant to answer the complaint of the plaintiff that the defendant is in possession and unlawfully withholds from the plaintiff the premises in question. A declaration may be filed as in other actions at law, but if the premises be adequately described in the summons no such declaration shall be necessary. In any case where possession of any house, land, or tenement is unlawfully detained by the tenant, or some person claiming under him, the lease of such tenant being originally for a period not exceeding one year, or for the time such tenant is employed by the landlord as laborer, the landlord or other person entitled to the possession may present to any justice of the county, city, or town in which said premises are situated, a statement, under oath, of the facts which authorize the removal of the tenant or other person in possession (describing said premises); and thereupon the said justice shall issue his summons against the person or persons named in the said affidavit. (Code 1887, § 2716; 1889-90, p. 163; 1902-3-4, p. 675; 1904, p. 323.)

Revisors' Note.—The word "only" in line seven of the text is new. The limitation is of the right and not merely of the remedy. The purpose of this insertion is to make this fact clearer.

Formerly, in unlawful entry or detainer there was a writ but no declaration, and in ejectment there was a declaration but no writ. This state of the law led to confusion between the two actions, and it was often difficult to remember which required the writ but no declaration, and which the declaration but no writ. In order to simplify this, the revisors have provided that in unlawful entry or detainer "A declaration may be filed as in other actions at law, but if the premises be adequately described in the summons no such declaration shall be necessary" (Section 5445); and in the case of ejectment that "The action may be commenced by the issuance of a writ as in other actions at law, or by the service of a declaration" (section 5456). These changes permit the practitioner to select his manner of commencing either action.

Distinction between unlawful detainer and ejectment.—In the latter action title or the right of possession is always involved. The design of the former is to protect the actual possession, whether rightful or wrongful, and to afford summary redress and restoration. Forcible entry of owner is unlawful. Entry of strangers is unlawful, whether forcible or not. Judgment only restores the status quo, but settles nothing as to the title or right of possession. Davis v. Mayo, 82 Va. 97; Olinger v. Shepherd, 12 Grat. 462.

When and by whom action may be brought.—Mortgagee may maintain unlawful detainer to recover mortgaged property. Allen v. Gibson, 4 Rand. 468.

Vendor of land, though he has put vendee in possession, has legal title to land as long as the contract remains executory, and, unless provisions of section 5471 apply, may maintain action of unlawful entry and detainer, after making demand of possession, even though vendee may be entitled to specific performance of contract. Williamson v. Paxton, 18 Grat. 475.

Tenant in common may maintain this action without joining cotenant. Allen v. Gibson, 4 Rand. 468.

Digitized by Google

Where tenant holds possession after his right has expired, this action may be maintained, as in such case it determines only the right of possession, although it may turn altogether upon the validity of title under which defendant claims. Corbett v. Nutt, 18 Grat. 624.

Plaintiff having obtained an assignment of certain oyster beds for planting oysters for one year, and having paid tax and had bed staked off according to law, has such possession as will sustain action against party entering upon and holding said beds against him, nor is his right to recover affected by fact that the law under which such assignment was made to plaintiff was repealed after he paid tax, but before beds were staked off to him. Power v. Tazewell, 25 Grat. 786.

Where railroad company, having power to condemn, purchases right and interest of life tenant, they acquire only life estate, and remainderman, on termination of life estate, may recover the premises in this action. Hope v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 79 Va. 283.

When action will not lie.—Where defendant in possession under written contract, by which plaintiff agrees to convey land with general warranty, has paid most of purchase money, and offers to pay residue upon the delivery of deed, which plaintiff is unable to make, and plaintiff demands possession, action of unlawful detainer will not lie. Rosenberger v. Bowen, 84 Va. 675, 5 S. E. 699.

Vendor cannot maintain this action against vendee, if subsequent to sale to vendee he has parted with all title to another. Dobson v. Culpeper, 23 Grat. 352.

Where entry was made before and possession held for longer than statutory period, action cannot be maintained. Kincheloe v. Tracewells, 11 Grat. 587.

What right or possession will support action.—Possession under claim of title, without regard to right of possession, is sufficient to maintain action against person unlawfully entering. Fore v. Campbell, 82 Va. 808, 1 S. E. 180; Olinger v. Shepherd, 12 Grat. 462.

Where city has long been in possession of water lots adjoining a street, and has exercised acts of dominion over them, it may, by virtue of such possession, maintain an action of unlawful entry and detainer against a person disturbing such possession under claim of title through a void grant. Norfolk City v. Cooke, 27 Grat. 430.

Possession, to maintain this action, need not be by occupancy or enclosure. Any possession sufficient to maintain trespass is enough. Actual bona fide possession of part under color of title to whole is such possession as will maintain action for whole, where it is not in adverse possession of another. Olinger v. Shepherd, 12 Grat. 462.

When defendants are estopped from denying title of landlord, it is not necessary, to the support of unlawful detainer by landlord's grantee, that such grantee should acquire any personal ownership by conveyance from landlord. Allen v. Paul, 24 Grat. 332.

Landlord and tenant.—A tenant cannot dispute the title of landlord. Emerick v. Tavener, 9 Grat. 220, 58 Am. Dec. 217. But a vendee may show that subsequent to sale to him the title of vendor had failed or been aliened. Dobson v. Culpeper, 23 Grat. 352.

The general rule that tenant cannot deny landlord's title is not varied by fact that he is in possession of land when he accepts lease; but where he has been induced to accept such lease by fraudulent misrepresentation of lessor, he is not estopped thereby. Alderson v. Miller, 15 Grat. 279; Locke v. Frasher's Adm'r, 79 Va. 409.

Neither tenant nor vendee of tenant will be permitted to introduce evidence of title to land embraced in the lease; nor can they introduce title papers to show that they had not possession of land embraced in lease. Emerick v. Tavener, 9 Grat. 220, 58 Am. Dec. 217.

Presumption of tenancy from year to year may be rebutted.—The presumption that a person holding over after expiration of tenancy is tenant from year to year may be repelled by evidence which shows that it is in some other capacity or for some other purpose. Williamson v. Paxton, 18 Grat. 475. See section 5517 and revisors' note.

The object of the action of nt is to try possessory title to corporeal hereditaments, and to re- he possession thereof. The effect of the amendment was simply it the plaintiff, in cases where the premises are occupied, in his on to join as defendants with the occupant any person claiming ereto, or interest therein adversely to the plaintiff. Steinman v. 99 Va. 595, 39 S. E. 227.

ssee and landlord.—The statute uses the word "landlord" as a cor- of the word "lessor." The word "lessee" used not so much to de- articular estate or interest as to express a relation—that of land- d tenant, a present holding under and in subordination to the another. Hanks v. Price, 32 Grat. 107.

Under this section ejectment may properly be brought against persons who have made entries and surveys of any part of the land in controversy, and are setting up claims to it, though not in occupation of it at time suit is brought. Harvey v. Tyler, 2 Wall 328, 17 L. Ed. 871.

Action against husband, title in wife.—Where, at the time husband was sued in ejectment, he was in possession by the mere sufferance of his wife, who held the title and resided on the premises, but was not sued and the husband acquired a life estate in the land by the death of the wife after judgment and before execution, he is entitled, by reason of his wife's death, to have a judgment by default as to him opened and be allowed to defend. King v. Davis, 137 Fed. 222, 11 Va. Law Reg. 463.

Where a wife owning a separate estate, and living on it with her husband was not made a party with him to an ejectment suit by a third person, but her deed was not filed for record until long after judgment in favor of plaintiff, she is only entitled to have the judgment opened and be allowed to defend, and is not entitled to an order restraining the execution of the judgment against her. Id.

Generally.—Under this section a person who has had the land surveyed and regularly paid taxes on it, and claims to own it, may be made defendant, when no one is in actual occupation thereof. Lynchburg Cotton Mills v. Rives, 112 Va. 137, 70 S. E. 542.

Sec. 5456. How action commenced.—The action may be commenced by the issuance of a writ as in other actions at law, or by the service of a declaration. In either case the name of the real claimant shall be inserted as plaintiff, and all the provisions of law concerning a lessor of a plaintiff shall apply to such plaintiff. (Code 1887, § 2727.)

Revisors' Note.—Before the revision the action of ejectment was commenced by the service of a declaration and notice; now it may be commenced as other actions at law, or as formerly. See revisors' note to section 5445.

Sec. 5457. What is to be stated in the declaration.—It shall be sufficient for the plaintiff to aver in his declaration that on some day specified therein (and which shall be after his title accrued) he was possessed of the premises claimed, and being so possessed thereof the defendant afterwards, on some day to be stated, entered into such premises or exercised acts of ownership thereon or claimed title thereto or some interest therein, to his damage such sum as the plaintiff shall state. (Code 1887, § 2728; 1895-6, p. 514.)

Where a declaration describes land in controversy as lying north of a road, and the verdict is south of the road, and in other particulars the description is the same, such variance is immaterial, and the description in the declaration must be presumed to be a mistake. Notice to defendant; service thereof.—If the actio be commenced by the service of a declaration, there shall be su joined thereto a notice in writing by the plaintiff or his attorne addressed to the defendant, and notifying him that the said declar tion will be filed on some specified rule day in the clerk's office the court in which the suit is to be prosecuted, or in court, on so named day in the then next term of said court. Such declaratio and notice shall be served in the same manner as other notice (Code 1887, § 2732.)

Revisors' Note.—This section conforms to the change made in secti 5456. If the action be commenced by the issuance of a writ as in oth actions at law, of course section 5461 would have no application.

It would seem that from the decision of Leas & McVitty v. Merrima 132 Fed. 510, an action may be instituted under this section in a Feder court in Virginia in accordance with the State practice, Rev. St. Sec. 9 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 683) which provides that all writs and process shall be under seal of the court, not applying, as such copy of declarati and notice is not "a process issuing from the court," and under the co formity act (Rev. St. Sec. 914 U. S. Comp St. 1901, p. 684), such practi may be allowed. Leas & McVitty v. Merriman, 132 Fed. 510.

Sec. 5465. Evidence in actions of ejectment and unlawful ent or detainer involving the location of reservations within the exteri boundaries of grants or other conveyances.—On the trial of any a tion of ejectment, or unlawful entry or detainer, where it appea from the evidence that the land in dispute, or any portion thereof, embraced within the exterior boundaries of a grant or other co veyance under which the plaintiff claims his title, which grant other conveyance reserves one or more parcels of land within sa boundaries from the operation thereof, but without sufficient d scription of said reserved land on the face thereof, or by referen on the face thereof to other grants or conveyances of public recor containing such sufficient description, by courses and distance natural boundaries or land marks, or otherwise of such reserv land, as will enable the same to be readily and accurately locat by a competent surveyor, the plaintiff shall be entitled to recov so much of said land within said exterior lines, as does not appe by a preponderance of the evidence to be within the limits of a such reservation, and as he would otherwise be entitled to recov if such grant or other conveyance had contained no such reserv tion; but this section shall not apply where it shall appe from the evidence that the defendant is in possession of such r served land under claim of title thereto. (1902-3-4, p. 898.)

Duly authenticated copies of grants of land from the Commonweal which do not show that the original patents were sealed with the less seal of the Commonwealth may be received in evidence. Howdashell Krenning, 103 Va. 30, 48 S. E. 491.

In a case to which it applies the practical effect of this section is cast upon a defendant the burden of proving that the land in controver lies within the limits of the reservation. Sutherland v. Gent, 116 Va. 7 82 S. E. 713.

See note on "Evidence" under section 5454.

Sec. 5466. When action by co-tenants, etc., against co-tenan what plaintiff to prove.—If the action be by one or more tenan in common, joint tenants, or coparceners, against their co-tenan the plaintiff shall be bound to prove actual ouster or some other a amounting to total denial of the plaintiff's right as co-tenant. (Co 1887, § 2736.)

The possession of one co-tenant is presumed to be the possession all, yet if the defendants prove actual ouster of the others, or other a which amount to a notorious denial of the others' rights, and such p session continues for the statutory period of adverse possession, a plea the statute of limitations will be good. Stonestreet v. Doyle, 75 Va. 3 40 Am. Rep. 731.

Sec. 5471. When vendee, etc., entitled to conveyance of legal title, vendor cannot recover.—A vendor, or any claiming under him, shall not, at law any more than in equity, recover against a vendee, or those claiming under him, lands sold by such vendor to such vendee, when there is a writing, stating the purchase and the terms thereof, signed by the vendor or his agent, and there has been such payment or performance of what was contracted to be paid or performed on the part of the vendee, as would in equity entitle him, or those claiming under him, to a conveyance of the legal title of such land from the vendor, or those claiming under him, without condition. (Code 1887, § 2741.)

Scope of section.—The equitable defence under this statute is limited to mortgages and deeds of trust where the mortgage money has been fully paid, or the trust completely performed, or to sales where the vendee has paid all the purchase money and performed everything incumbent on him, so as to entitle him to a specific execution of the contract in equity, and a conveyance of the legal title without any condition proper in equity to be imposed upon him. It must be a sale, and not the partnership in the acquisition of the land, and the terms of the contract must be plain. Davis v. Teays, 3 Grat. 283.

The statute was dictated, not by a general, but a restrictive, policy, and its scope will not be enlarged. Jennings v. Gravely, 92 Va. 377, 23 S. E. 763.

This section applies to unlawful detainer as well as ejectment. Locke v. Frasher's Adm'r, 79 Va. 409; Dobson v. Culpepper, 23 Grat. 352.

Equitable estoppel cannot be set up as a defense to an action of ejectment. Casselman v. Bialas, 112 Va. 57, 70 S. E. 479. It will be remembered, however, that by section 5473, the defendant's resort to equity, is not affected by this section.

A mere parol disclaimer—a mere parol equitable estoppel in pais—is not such a defence as can be taken advantage of under this section. Suttle v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co., 76 Va. 284; Fry v. Stowers, 98 Va. 417, 36 S. E. 482. But a solemn admission in regard to a disputed question of boundary, or location of disputed corner, is entitled to same weight in ejectment as would be given to it by a jury in another case. Fry v. Stowers, 98 Va. 417, 36 S. E. 482.

In a case where the defendant sought to set up as an equitable defence the sale of land sued for under a decree of court, and such land had been fully paid for under such sale, but no deed had been made to the defendants, it was held that this was not a defence, within the meaning of this section. Jennings v. Gravely, 92 Va. 377, 23 S. E. 763.

Verdict for less than claimed.—Where the verdict in ejectme only for a part of the land sued for the boundaries of the part recov should be designated. The verdict must be certain in itself or ref some certain standard by which to ascertain the land found, othe it will be too uncertain to render judgment thereon. Steelman v. Laf 112 Va. 494, 71 S. E. 524.

Where the verdict is for plaintiff, and is for part only of land clai the boundaries of part recovered should be designated, otherwise it be too uncertain to sustain a judgment. Slocum v. Compton, 93 Va. 25 S. E. 3.

Undivided interest.—Where less land is recovered than is dema the boundaries of the land recovered should be designated. Yet, if a divided interest is recovered, it is impossible to set out the bounds but, the interest being certain, that is sufficient. Callis v. Kemp, 11 78.

Right to quarry.—Where the declaration charged that the defen unlawfully withheld the possession of a whole limestone tract, and evidence showed that the defendant claimed no other right than to qu and to remove limestone from the land, a verdict of not guilty is cont to the evidence. It should have been for the plaintiff, except as to right to quarry and remove limestone. Reynolds v. Cook, 83 Va. 3 S. E. 710, 5 Am. St. Rep. 317.

Generally.—Where, in action of ejectment, evidence is conflictin to boundary lines, verdict of jury fixing lines will not be disturbed u valid objection is shown thereto. Fry v. Stowers, 98 Va. 417, 36 482.

A verdict which describes land "as the remaining one-third of lands hereinbefore excepted, and claimed by said defendants," sufficie shows that defendants claimed title thereto to support a verdict under section. Collins v. Riley, 104 U. S. 322, 26 L. Ed. 752.

A writ of error from the Supreme Court o Appeals shall lie to such judgment in like manner as in a commo law action.

In a proceeding under this section, no claim of the plaintiff fo rents, profits or damages shall be considered. (1912, p. 133.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is based upon the act cited. Unde the language of the act any person "having an interest" in real estate wa permitted to file the petition. The revised section declares what sort o interest is required, and provides that the petitioner must have "a sub sisting interest in real estate and a right to its possession, or to th possession of some share, interest or portion thereof." In stating hi interest the plaintiff must conform to section 5459 relating to ejectmen The real estate and the boundary line or lines thereof sought to be estab lished must be described with reasonable certainty, but a plat may b used for this purpose.

The act permitted the petition to be filed only in court, and provide that the case should be matured in like manner as an action of ejec ment, except that it was not necessary to serve a copy of the petitio The revised section allows the petition to be filed in court or at rules, an expressly states that the proceeding shall be commenced by the servi of a copy of the petition upon the defendant, or by giving notice in wri ing of its having been filed. All persons having a present interest in th line or lines must be made defendants. No formal plea or answer necessary, but grounds of defense having been stated in writing, th parties are deemed to be at issue upon the petition and the grounds defense, which issue is declared to be the true boundary line or line Surveys may be ordered by the judge either in term time or vacatio whether application be made therefor or not, thus carrying into the sectio the construction placed upon the act of 1912 in Hamman v. Miller, 11 Va. 873, 83 S. E. 382.

The act did not provide how the judgment should be enforced. Th revised section enacts that the judgment may be enforced in the sam manner as judgments in ejectment. The proceeding is a proceeding law and not in equity (Wright v. Rabey, 117 Va. 884, 86 S. E. 71), an it is provided that writs of error shall lie in like manner as in comm law actions.

No claim for rents, profits or damages can be considered in th proceeding.

5503. How payment of such value to be made by defendant when land sold therefor.
5504. When such value to be deemed real estate.
5505. When and how defendant, evicted, may recover from plaintiff amount paid.

Sec. 5491. How defendant may apply therefor, and have judgment suspended.—Any defendant against whom a decree or judgment shall be rendered for land, where no assessment of damages has been made under the preceding chapter, may, at any time before the execution of the decree or judgment, present a petition to the court rendering such decree or judgment, stating that he, or those under whom he claims while holding the premises under a title believed by him or them to be good, have made permanent improvements thereon, and praying that he may be allowed for the same over and above the value of the use and occupation of such land; and thereupon the court may, if satisfied of the probable truth of the allegation, suspend the execution of the judgment or decree, and impanel a jury to assess the damages of the plaintiff and the allowances to the defendant for such improvements. (Code 1887, § 2760.)

This section alters the common law, and allows defendant, as set off to plaintiff's claim for rent and damages, compensation for improvements made by him at a time when there was reason to believe that his title was good, not exceeding the increase of value to same. Hollingsworth v. Funkhouser, 85 Va. 448, 8 S. E. 592.
